Replacing the original KJV text with text from NKJV and/or other versions for (hopefully) easier reading and/or accuracy where it's deemed appropriate. [-LY]

Like the Jefferson bible, this is an attempt to edit the four gospels into a consistent account, in this case focusing on the words of Jesus. [Unlike the Jefferson bible, this is not an attempt to strip out any aspect of Jesus and his ministry, in Jefferson's case the miracles, in the process.] There is plenty of connecting narrative around the instances where Jesus speaks, so this is better than simply presenting each quote out of context. The focus on what Jesus is attributed as saying makes it easier to browse the core texts of the New Testament. All in all, a very useful reference, and a great read.

Extensive Notes and an Appendix have also been added.

REMINDER BY THE PUBLISHER

The number of words in the KJV New Testament is 181,253. Only 36,450 of these 181,253 words are the words of Christ — barely over 20 per cent.

Considered as verses, the New Testament has 7,959 verses, of which but 1,599 are sayings of Christ.

These relatively few sayings of Jesus have not a place apart, but run in an uneven distribution through the four Gospels (a few in other Books); and in each of the four Gospels — Matthew, Mark, Luke, John — the "sayings" are unevenly distributed through the narrative. Often a "saying" recorded, it may be, by Matthew, is paraphrased, or even duplicated, by one or more of the other three biographers, none of whom seems to have intended either a chronological harmony with the others, or even a sustained sequence of his own.

Accordingly, only the devoted reader of the New Testament, the habitual reader, is sufficiently the delver to have become familiar with Christ's sayings—really familiar—familiar with the sayings not only as severally set down by the four evangels, but also as one message, one gospel proclaiming the Savior's great objective.

If relatively few persons in a Christian country are habitual readers of the sayings of Christ that may be because relatively few persons are delvers.

The publisher is convinced that this book provides the means for the nonreaders of the New Testament to become familiar with Jesus the Christ, his sayings, and his great purpose, without delving—indeed without effort, so engaging is the story here recorded—a glowing short story.

[Extra Note: Replacing KJV text with New KJV (NKJV) text [sometimes additionally modified; hopefully, for better clarity] provide a more modern feel and fluidity of read. However, the KVJ is not without its advantages, especially regarding pronouns; as the use of thee, thou, thine, ye, etc. allow for explicit indication of singular or plural pronoun forms, person, case, – most modern translations require context and supplemental notes to achieve the same end. –LY]

THE COMPILER'S PURPOSE

THE shelves of the libraries and of the bookstores bend beneath the tomes of the sayings, the bare sayings, of all the other great men; but one will not find in library or bookstore, in any published book, the complete sayings of Jesus, the bare sayings in simple sequence, Christ's own words, separate.

This compiler's purpose has been to enable any reader, whether confirmed Christian or inquiring pagan, or a frankly detached, to get him a book of CHRIST'S OWN WORDS, "divested," so runs the title page, "of the context, excepting those brief portions of the gospel narratives retained to establish the place, the time, or occasion, or a question the reply to which is the Master's own answer."

Many a reader, arrived at FINIS [END] in the New Testament itself, has but a hazy picture of Christ on his daily walks as a circuit preacher everywhere within walking distance; has but a sketchy outline of the times and occasions—so many biographers! — Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul — each essaying not a biography as such, not the record of the Teacher's sayings as such, but intent upon launching each his own conception of Christ's mission.

Christ's sayings complete, brought into a sequence of times and occasions, but lifted out of contexts alien to the present purpose, may prove to be a glowing story new not only to the non-reader, but new even to the whilom [former] New-Testament readers who have not as yet discerned the "continuities."

Devoted readers will not be diverted from the Great Text. Perhaps other readers—the casual New-Testament reader and the non-reader—after enjoying these pages may venture the greater enjoyment: the attentive perusal of all the gospels and all the epistles, perhaps of all the New Testament.

Extra Notes: While consistency with recognized Biblical texts is a primary objective; where there are pieces of a story scattered across several books, an attempt was made to combine the information into one unified story; taking care to not lose or alter the meaning and original intent as best as possible. While it cannot be exactly determined in all instances; an attempt was made to insure, as closely as possible, a sense of continuity -- of timeline and unified storylines. [-LY]

To hopefully help the reader, some additional, though minimal, contextual Biblical verses were added to the original to (again, hopefully) allow more clarity and understanding; along with additional notes, indicated as "[see Extra Note #], where # is a sequence number. The APPENDIX has been greatly augmented with additional notes, reference materials and links to relevant documents. Also, all quotes by Jesus are now in red letter. [-LY]

Some Thoughts

The coverage of the life and ministry of Jesus takes place in the Gospels [Matthew, Mark, Luke and John] (with some supporting information provided in Acts and some of the epistles).

What's striking is not the apparent (on first glance) differences among the Gospels, but their similarities and cohesiveness.

While there are many specific differences (usually missing pieces of information) from one Gospel to another; any one of the Gospels, while showing differences with another Gospel in some of the specifics, will allow you to get the main gist of what is being reported.

However, I found that (for me) merging the various Gospel stories and reporting of events chronologically as in a biography, provided a complete and non-contradictory picture (and improved understanding and comprehension) of an event or story; and further facilitated experiencing the chronological narrative contained herein. (At least as chronological as can be deduced from the text and historical background.)

In addition to converting Bible text from KJV to (usually) NKJV, I've made changes (mainly verse additions) to original text where I felt appropriate (adding to surrounding background to give a better feel for social, religious and political attitudes and conditions in which the text is presented).

With that in mind, extensive "extra notes" were added, so that potential problems and confusion with a passage can be addressed immediately. The notes also add contextual background to help you (and me) better understand and be able to "put yourself in" the midst of the 'action'. Also, pointing out prophetical significance and social dynamics. [Currently acting as a repository of reference information.]

These extra notes cover word, phrases and topic areas that I wish I knew (and had quick and easy access to) when originally reading the Sayings of Jesus. Their subsequent discovery facilitated enhancement of comprehension, understanding of the events and their 'backdrop', putting me more in the midst and 'experiencing' it in my mind – an enjoyable and rewarding place to be.

Where there are related verses, recalling a particular event or a corresponding series of events, spread among the various Gospels – that have no clear inter-Gospel verse chronology – table charts are included in the footnotes to help the reader view and compare the different Gospel perspectives and provide a possible "best-case" sequencing and prioritizing of verses.

So far, I have NOT come across any "conflict" that was not reasonably resolvable when looking at the merged texts for the Gospels and/or referencing corresponding background information. [Which has amazed the skeptic in me!] [-LY]

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

As the compiler / assembler of this Information, I have the luxury of being able to pick and choose (or filter) what is included. However, while I acknowledge a natural skewing of information as I have become aware of various sources; where there is an honest and common difference of opinion about different verses and their understanding or contradictions among the Gospels, I have endeavored to include several (even contradicting) perspectives to make you fully aware of the issues and to allow you to explore and determine for yourself which is the best "solution" to Biblical problems and supposed contradictions. You will also be able to see how they were harmonized by the original compiler and/or by me and often view my supporting comparison charts.

The corollary to what I'm saying is: just because I include it in the notes and/or Appendix does not mean I agree with it, nor do I expect you to agree without testing against scripture, the leading of the Holy Spirt and verifying for yourself.

So far, when "contradictions" and problems among the Gospels have been encountered, I've learned not to panic, but to pray for understanding and wisdom and for access to resources that deal in an intellectualy honest, logical and rational (in in the good sense of those words) way to determine solutions. INTRODUCTION

BY NORMAN VINCENT PEALE, D.D.

One of the high spiritual moments which have enriched my life came the day I read this book at one sitting. It was a moving and unforgettable experience in which I had the feeling of actually being in the presence of Jesus. It produced a strange compelling identification with the sights, sounds and atmosphere of those times and the Lord's presence was profoundly realistic. When I finished the book I came back to present reality with a start. This effect was created by the fact that here we have every recorded word spoken by Jesus and in the sequence in which he uttered them.

This little volume offers an amazing reading experience, one in which the reader follows the Master through the villages and about the lake and into the cities, hearing his priceless comments to individuals and his sermons to vast multitudes. The reading of all of his words at one time and in chronological order produces an effect quite different from that which is attained by reading isolated Scripture passages in which his spoken words appear, as profoundly helpful as these are. The impact upon mind and heart, of his whole massage, affects one profoundly.

This book gives a panoramic concept of the thoughts and teachings of Jesus. And so grand and noble is the impression made upon the mind that the reader has an enhanced understanding of the purpose of this the greatest life ever lived. For mental stimulation, heartfelt comfort, and soul satisfaction, THE COMPLETE SAYINGS OF JESUS is unique.

I shall always be grateful that Lunsford P. Yandell made this little volume known to me years ago. He explained that a friend of his, a businessman, Arthur Hinds, sensed the importance of bringing the words of Jesus together in chronological form so that the full sweep and completeness of the immortal message might more effectively be felt and comprehended. These laymen had a keen consciousness of the ineffable power of the words of Jesus and, in a desire to relate them more widely to busy modern people, arranged them in this convenient and readable form. For many years this book has been made available through the literature sales organization of the Marble Collegiate Church. The thousands who have read the book, through our recommendation, have reported that it has brought great spiritual blessing to them. I commend this new edition to all who desire the creative touch of Christ upon their lives.

DISCLAIMER: Remember, when the original edition was published (1927), Norman Vincent Peale was one of the most well-known and respected protestant theologians of his time and his recommendations carried a lot of weight / influence with the average person. * PLEASE KEEP IN MIND that he has NOTHING TO DO with the production of this document, was simply giving a recommendation – I am NOT endorsing his version of theology.)  [-LY]

LINEAGE OF JESUS

LINEAGE OF JESUS—BORN IN BETHLEHEM

FROM NARRATIVES OF MATTHEW AND LUKE

Matthew 1: 1-2, 6-7, 11-12, 16-17.

The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham:

Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat . . . .

. . .. And Jesse begat David the king; and David the king begat Solomon; and Solomon begat . . . .

. . .. And Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, after that they were carried away to Babylon; and Jechonias begat . . . .

. . .. And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus who is called Christ. [see Extra Note 1]

So all the generations from Abraham to David are 5* fourteen generations; and from David until the captivity in (carrying away into) Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the captivity in Babylon until the Christ are fourteen generations. [see Extra Note 2]

Luke 2: 1-12, 16-21.

It came to pass in those days, that a decree went out from Cesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. And all went to be registered, every one into his own city.

Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, 5^ into Judea, unto the city of David which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David), to be registered with Mary his betrothed wife, who was with child.

So it was, that, while they were there, the days were completed for her to be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. [Dec. B.C.] 5†

Now there were in the same country shepherds living out (abiding) in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, an angel of the Lord appeared to them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were greatly afraid. Then the angel said, “Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. You (plural) shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger…"

And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger…

When eight days were completed for the circumcision of the child, his name was called JESUS, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

[see Extra Note 3]

Footnotes

5:* Like this "are," all the words which are italicized in the King James text (or NKJV text) are set in italics throughout this book also.

The punctuations also are, throughout, the punctuations of the King James (or NKJV) text.

5:^ Nazareth. A rather obscure town, nowhere mentioned in the OT. It was Jesus' hometown (21:11; 26:71; see Luke 2:39; 4:16-24; John 1:45-46). He will be called a Nazarene. These exact words are not found in the OT and probably refer to several OT prefigurations and/or predictions (note the plural, "prophets") that the Messiah would be despised (e.g., Psalms 22:6; Isaiah 53:3), for in Jesus' day "Nazarene" was virtually a synonym for "despised" (see John 1:45-46). Some hold that in speaking of Jesus as a "Nazarene," Matthew may be alluding to the "Branch" (Hebrew netser) of Isaiah 11:1, since the word also appears in the Targums (see The Religious Writings and History of Judaism in the Appendix), rabbinic literature, and the Dead Sea Scrolls as a Messianic title.

5:† It happens that dates "from the birth of Christ" did not begin to be cast until centuries after Christ's day. The monk said to be then responsible for the calculations made a mistake. The consensus of informed opinion now is that the "birth" of Jesus is to be set back four years. Accordingly the boy Jesus was "five years old" in December of what would have been the first year of the anno Domini calendar if that calendar had been started on the day of his birth: that is, five years and one week old on New Year's Day, A.D. 2. [Extra Note: some believe he could have been born as early as 7 B.C.]

 This book assumes Jesus was born approximately 3 years earlier than originally calculated, possibly sometime in 4 B.C., and therefore died in 30 A.D. around the age of 33. *****

Extra Note 2 (i.e., Extra Note - not part of original publication):
The genealogy in Matthew (1:1-17) does not directly correspond to the one in Luke (3:23-38) which has 14 generations in the first series, 20 in the 2nd series and 22 in the 3rd series. Matthew's 3rd series of ancestors is only 13, instead of 14 as indicated in the text. They both appear to be tracing Jesus' lineage through Jesus' step-father, Joseph, especially in the Greek. However, if you are open to considering that other versions of Matthew written in Judean Aramaic could have predated the Greek (or even the possibility that Aramaic was the original language or was simultaneously translated from Hebrew into Greek) [and it is widely considered that Matthew is the most likely of the Gospels to have been written in Aramaic]; then the Aramaic versions of the Bible (Peshitta) yield translations that could mean "father", especially in the context of genealogy. This yields the following genealogical record:

First Series	Second Series	Third Series
1. Abraham	1. Solomon	1. Salathiel
2. Isaac	2. Roboam	2. Zerubabel
3. Jacob	3. Abia	3. Abiud
4. Judas	4. Asa	4. Eliachim
5. Phares	5. Josaphat	5. Azor
6. Esron	6. Joram	6. Sadoe
7. Aram	7. Ozias	7. Achim
8. Aminadab	8. Joatham	8. Eliud
9. Naasson	9. Achaz	9. Eleazar
10. Salmon	10. Ezechias	10. Mathan
11. Booz	11. Manasses	11. Jacob
12. Obed	12. Amon	12. Joseph (father of Mary)
13. Jesse	13. Josias	13. Mary
14. David	14. Jechonias	14. Jesus

This then would represent Mary's lineage (who's the daughter of different Joseph) and Luke would represent Joseph's… problem solved! ☺

Extra Note 3:

Jesus is the Anglicized Latin version (IESVS) of the Greek form (Iēsous) of the Hebrew name "Joshua" (i.e, Yeshua), which = "The LORD saves" or "Yahweh saves." [Lk 1:31; 2:21; Jn 10:25; 1Jn 2:12]

The name Jesus [actually, Joshua] was given to sons as a symbolic hope for the Lord's anticipated sending of salvation through a Messiah who would purify his people and save them from oppression. But the angel points to a more important theme: to save his people from their sins. Salvation from sins was a repeated promise in OT prophets (e.g., Isaiah 40:2; 53:6; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27; Daniel 9:24; Zechariah 13:1). [Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The Greek form of the name Iēsous, which was translated into Latin as Jesus [IESVS], is the same as the Hebrew Yeshua (Joshua), which means "Yahweh saves" (Yahweh is typically rendered as "Lord" in the OT). It was a fairly common name among Jews in 1st century Palestine, as references to a number of people by this name in the LXX and Josephus indicate. [Source: NET Bible note]

The Latin form of Jesus has several declensions, including Iesus, Iesu, and Iesum.

The name Yeshua is also used in Israelite Hebrew historical texts to refer to other Joshuas recorded in Greek texts such as Jesus ben Ananias and Jesus ben Sira.[5]

In English, the name Yeshua is extensively used by followers of Messianic Judaism,[6] whereas East Syrian Christian denominations use the name Isho in order to preserve the Aramaic or Syriac name of Jesus. [Source: Wikipedia]

The Name Jesus In Ancient Hebrew Text

"Yeshua" in First Century Hebrew Text. This is how the name "Jesus" would have been written in ancient Hebrew documents. The four letters or consonants from right to left are Yod, Shin, Vav, Ayin (Y, SH, OO, A). Jesus is the Greek name for the Hebrew name Joshua or Y'shua which means "The LORD or Yahweh is Salvation".

Aramaic forms of Jesus' Name:

English translations from Aramaic tend to use Y'shua (AENT), Yeshua (HRV/Timm, Bauscher), or Jesus (Murdoch, Magiera); others: Jeshu (Etheridge), Yahshua (HRVB), etc.

Syriac. Syriac is a late variant of Aramaic widespread in Christendom, thus coined "Christian Aramaic".

 - Aramaic. Taken directly from the "Peshitta".
 - Aramaic. Peshitta; with diacritical marks.

The "Peshitta" is the Aramaic New Testament and closely resembles the language of Jesus.
(for a counter to this: http://www.hebrew4christians.com/Articles/Jesus_Hebrew/jesus_hebrew.html)

[If this was so, then] Jesus would have even called himself "Eesho" or more specifically "Eesa" since the Northern Palestinian Jews pronounced the letter "shin" as "seen". Interestingly enough we find a few striking parallels in Biblical Hebrew and Aramaic which tell volumes and uncover astounding facts.

The name Yahshua [Yashua or Y'shua] means Yahweh's [YHWH] salvation, so by stating His name and then showing what the name means "He will save His people from their sins" clearly shows an Aramaic [or Hebrew?] writing style that does not exist in Greek. The name "Jesus" has no such entomology in Greek and comes from "Ieasous" which is the masculine form of the pagan goddess of healing Ieasa.

THE ESCAPE FROM HEROD—AGAIN IN GALILEE AT NAZARETH

FROM MATTHEW'S NARRATIVE

B.C. 4

Matthew 2: 1-5; 7-15; 19-23.

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, “Where is he who has been born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and have come to worship him.”

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him. And when he had gathered all the chief priests and scribes of the people together, he asked them where the Christ was to be born. They said, “In Bethlehem of Judea…” [see Extra Note 1]

Then Herod, secretly called the wise men, and determined from them what time the star appeared. He sent them to Bethlehem, and said, “Go and search carefully for the child. When you have found him, report back to me, so that I may come and worship him also.”

After they heard the king, the wise men departed; and, behold, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceedingly great joy.

And when they came into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down and worshiped him: and they opened their treasures, and presented unto him gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

Warned by God in a dream that they should not return to Herod, the wise men departed for their own country by another way.

When the wise men were departed, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream, saying, “Arise, take the child and his mother, flee into Egypt, and stay there until I bring you word: for Herod will seek the young child to destroy him.”

Joseph arose, took the child and his mother by night, and departed for Egypt: and was there until the death of Herod. [See Extra Note 2]

When Herod was dead, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, saying, “Arise, take the child and his mother, and go into the land of Israel, for those who sought the young child’s life are dead.”

Then Joseph arose, took the young child and his mother, and came into the land of Israel. But when he heard that Archelaus was reigning in Judea instead of his father Herod: he was afraid to go there. And being warned by God in a dream, he turned aside into the region of Galilee: and he came and dwelt in Nazareth. [See Extra Note 5]

Footnotes

Extra Note 1: for thus it is written by the prophet (Micah 5:2): “But you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are not the least among the rulers of Judah; for out of you shall come a ruler who will shepherd My people Israel.”

Extra Note 2: When Herod saw that he had been tricked by the wise men, he became enraged. He sent men to kill all the children in Bethlehem and throughout the surrounding region from the age of two and under, according to the time he had learned from the wise men. (See also: Extra Note 5)

[COMMENT: Date (at top of chapter) says “B.C. 4”, but the rest of the dates indicate only a 3-year actual offset (e.g., for Jesus at age 30, it indicates A.D. 27.) Confusing as to where the “B.C. 4” came from, but not critical. However, see also Extra Note 3, below]

Extra Note 3: Astronomical science shows that … Jesus was approximately 33½ years old at death, having begun his 3½-year ministry at about age 30 (Luke 3:23). Scholars mostly agree that Rome was off by a couple of years in estimating the beginning date of our calendar, so when taking into account the “zero year” (between 1 BC and AD 1), Jesus would have been born around 4 BC. He did not make it to his 34th birthday, which would have been around September or October of 30 AD.

Extra Note 5:

Jesus returns from Egypt to Nazareth

Soon after the birth of Jesus, Joseph had fled with his family to Egypt, where there was a large Jewish community, and safety. But after the death of Herod Joseph had a dream/impulse/vision that convinced him that he and his little family should return to where they had come from, Nazareth in Galilee.

At that moment Nazareth was a safer place to be than Judea, which was experiencing upheavals under the rule of King Herod the Great's oldest surviving son Archelaus, now the ethnarch (political leader of a distinct ethnic group) of Judea. King Herod had died, and the current ruler of Galilee was his younger son Herod Antipas (Herod is a family name, a surname).

Antipas was what might kindly be called a hands-off ruler, inclined to do nothing rather than make any sort of decision. This laziness/caution had served him well during the last years of his father's life, when King Herod had executed many members of his own family, including Antipas' two older brothers. Antipas, apparently too lazy to care about power, kept his head down and survived.

So Joseph decided the safest thing to do was return to his native Nazareth, where he could live quietly, work hard, and raise a family.

Nazareth was not entirely cut off from the world. It was about seven miles southeast of Sepphoris, the capital of western Galilee. There Jesus grew into manhood.

How long was Jesus in Egypt?

The gospel of Matthew tells us that after the wise men had started back home, "An angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream. 'Get up,' he said, 'take the child and his mother and escape to Egypt. Stay there until I tell you, for Herod is going to search for the child to kill him.'"

We don't know exactly when to date this historically. It was, however, no more than two years after Jesus was born, because Herod then tried to kill Jesus by slaying all of the baby boys who had been born in Bethlehem in the past two years, based on when the wise men told him they first saw the star. And since, according to the gospel of Luke, Jesus was born around the time of "the first census that took place while Quirinius was governor of Syria," his birth occurred some time between 6 B.C. and 4 B.C. (Even though A.D. dating is supposed to begin with the birth of Christ, it wasn't quite calculated correctly in the first place and so it actually begins a little way into his lifetime.)

We have a better idea of when the sojourn in Egypt ended. The gospel of Matthew also tells us that "after Herod died, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said, 'Get up, take the child and his mother and go to the land of Israel, for those who were trying to take the child's life are dead.'" Herod died in 4 B.C. So depending on when Jesus was born, the journey to Egypt lasted no more than two years, and perhaps as little as a few weeks or months.

THE BOY JESUS: AT TWELVE, VISITS JERUSALEM—TARRIES BEHIND—TALKS IN TEMPLE WITH THE DOCTORS—SPEAKS TO HIS MOTHER HIS FIRST RECORDED WORDS

A.D. 8. Age 12. Nazareth. Jerusalem

Luke 2: 40-52.

The child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him.

Now his parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the Passover. When Jesus was twelve years old, they went up to Jerusalem according to the custom of the feast.

They had finished the days, as they returned, the boy Jesus lingered behind in Jerusalem; and Joseph and his mother did not know it; but, supposing him to have been in the company, they went a day's journey and [then] they sought him among their relatives and acquaintances. When did not find him, they returned to Jerusalem, seeking him.

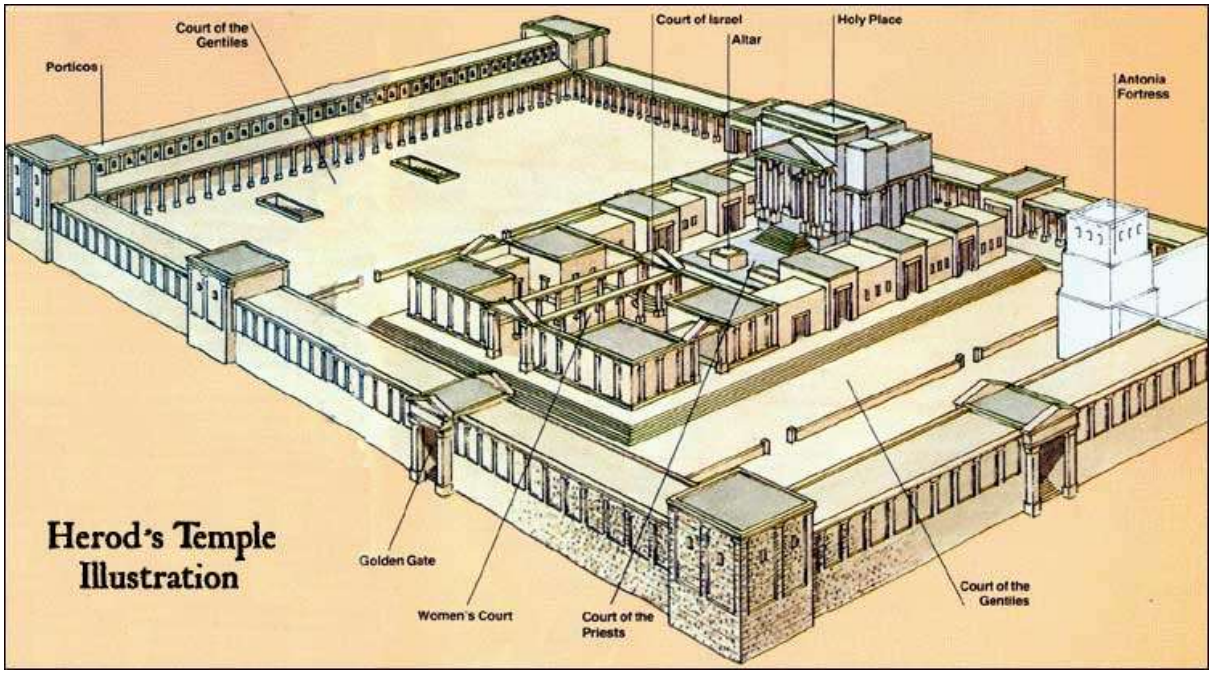
After three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the teachers, both listening to them and asking questions. All that heard him were astonished at his understanding and answers.

His mother said to him, “Son, why have you done this to us? Look, your father and I have been anxiously searching for you.”

Jesus said to them, “Why did you seek me? Did you not know that I must be about my Father's business?”

But they did not understood his remark to them.

He went down with them to Nazareth, and was obedient to them; but his mother kept all these things in her heart.



And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. 7*

JESUS AT THIRTY—BAPTIZED BY JOHN

A.D. 27. Age 30 Judea: Jordan.

Matthew 3: 1-6; 13-17; Mark 1: 10-11; Luke 3: 22-23.

In those days John the Baptist came preaching in the wilderness of Judea, saying, “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand!”

This is the one that was spoken of by the prophet Isaiah, saying, “The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.”

John clothed himself in a camel's hair garment, with a leather belt about his waist; and his food was locusts and wild honey.

People from Jerusalem, all Judea, and all the region round the Jordan went out and were baptized by him in the Jordan, confessing their sins.

Then Jesus came from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him. But John tried to prevent him saying, “I need to be baptized by you, and you are coming to me?”

Jesus answered and said to him, “Permit it to be so now, for this is the way for us to fulfill all righteousness.”

Then John allowed him. And Jesus, when he had been baptized, came up immediately out of the water; and behold, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting on him; and a voice came from heaven, saying, “This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.”

And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age.

Footnotes

Prior to baptizing Jesus, John had criticized and refused to baptize the Pharisees and Sadducees who had come out to him, calling them a brood of vipers.

Extra Note 1: Maps and Perspectives

The place where John baptized Jesus is uncertain. Yet no one doubts the historical event. The early Church would never have preserved a tradition of Jesus' baptism by John if it weren't an actual memory. For it implies, on the face of things, that Jesus needed purification through the good graces of the Baptist. That is why the Gospels stress that John pronounced himself unworthy and that Jesus allowed it, saying, "All righteousness must be fulfilled" (Matthew 3:15)…

…Matthew and Mark set the baptism of Jesus in the Jordan River near the wilderness at a site accessible from Jerusalem . Luke 3:1-22 tells us that the Baptist received the Word of God in the wilderness and then "came into all the region around the Jordan." John locates the event precisely at "Bethany beyond the Jordan," but the name is unattested elsewhere.

This map shows the location of “Bethany beyond the Jordan” on the east bank of the Jordan River. This location, however, is one of two traditions. Another tradition identifies the site on the west side of the river. [Image: Biblical Archaeology Society.]

In the Biblical Archaeology Review article “Where John Baptized: Bethany beyond the Jordan,” journalist Rami Khouri explains the reason why we do not have a clear idea of the specific location of “Bethany beyond the Jordan” from the ancient sources:

The Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark and Luke) mention Jesus’ baptism, but none of them indicates whether it occurred on the western or eastern shore of the Jordan. However, it seems likely that it would have been on the eastern shore. Jesus was coming from Galilee (again, explicit in Matthew and Mark). The normal route through the Decapolis (a group of ten Roman cities in the region) from Galilee would bypass a hostile Samaria by crossing the Jordan and proceeding south on the eastern side of the river.

[However,] the famous Madaba map, a partially destroyed sixth-century mosaic map in a church in Madaba, Jordan, seems to locate it west of the Jordan River. I say “seems,” not because there is any doubt as to the location west of the river, but because it is not called by the appellation “Bethany beyond the Jordan.” It is called Beth Abara, instead of Bethany. In the third century, the church father Origen, unable to locate the Bethany referred to in the first chapter of the Gospel of John, somewhat arbitrarily suggested emending the text to read “Beth Abara across the Jordan.” Beth Abara means “House of the Crossing,” possibly identifying a ford in the Jordan. A site of that name does appear in the Talmud. Following Origen, Eusebius in his Onomasticon (early fourth century) also refers only to this name, spelling it Bethaabara. In Jerome’s Liber Locorum (late fourth century) he calls the site Bethabara. Most of the ancient manuscripts, such as the major codices known as Vaticanus and Sinaiticus (fourth–fifth centuries), read Bethany in John 1:28. Nevertheless, Beth Abara apparently caught on and it is used in the Syriac version of the Gospels. And Beth Abara, not Bethany, appears on the Madaba map—on the west side of the Jordan. Beneath the name Beth Abara is a three-line legend telling us that this is the site of “The Baptism of St. John.”

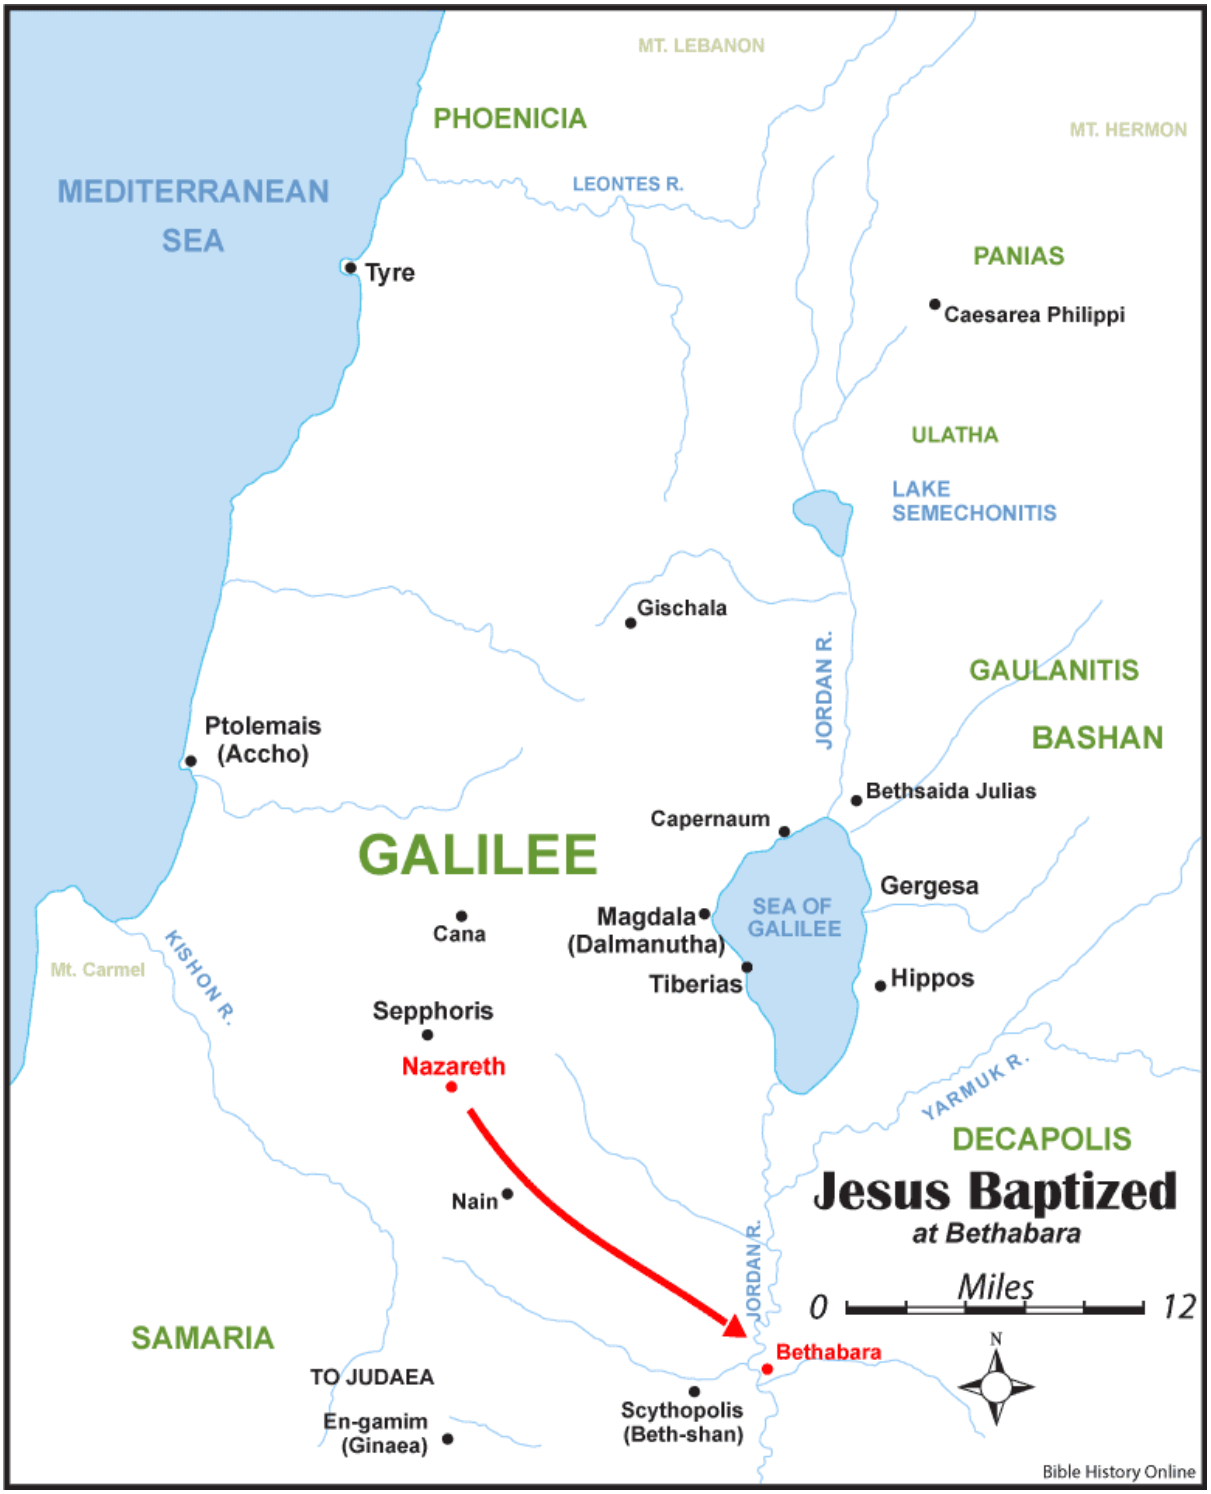
Perhaps the Madaba map mosaicist, who lived east of the Jordan, understood “beyond” the river to mean west of the river—though for the original writer of the Gospel of John, “beyond” the Jordan clearly meant east of the Jordan River.



It is important to remember that veneration of the baptismal site of John the Baptist on the east side of the Jordan River—as attested by evidence of churches and the monastery complex at Al-Maghtas—began no earlier than the Byzantine period.

The identification of “Bethany beyond the Jordan”—whether on the west or east side of the Jordan River—“has nothing to do with archaeological reality,” University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill archaeologist Jodi Magness told the Associated Press. “We don’t have any sites with evidence or archaeological remains that were continuously venerated from the first century on.”

Bethabara (house of the ford), a place beyond Jordan, in which according to the Received Text of the New Testament, John was baptizing. Joh 1:28 If this reading be correct, Bethabara is identical with Beth-barah (fords of Abarah) the ancient ford of Jordan on the road to Gilead; or, which seems more likely, with Beth-nimrah, on the east of the river, nearly opposite Jericho. - Smith

CHRIST'S LONG FAST IN THE WILDERNESS—SATAN'S FUTILE WILES

A.D. 27. Age 30. Judea.

Matthew 4: 1-11; Mark 1: 13; Luke 4, 1-13.

Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. He was there in the wilderness forty days, and was with the wild beasts.

In those days he had nothing to eat. And after he had fasted forty days and forty nights he was hungry.

The tempter came and he said, “If you are the Son of God, command that these stones become bread. But Jesus answered,

“It is written, ‘Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God.’”

Then the devil brought him to Jerusalem, the holy city, set him on a pinnacle of the temple, and said to Jesus, “If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here. For it is written, ‘He shall give his angels charge over you, to protect you and with their hands they will support you, so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.’”

Jesus answered saying, “It is written again, ‘You shalt not tempt the Lord your God’.”

Again, up on a high mountain, the devil showed him, in a moment of time, all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them, and said to Jesus, “All these things will I give you; all this power and glory, for it has been relinquished to me, and I give it to whomever I wish. If you will fall down and worship me, all shall be yours.”

And Jesus answered,

“Get behind me, Satan; for it is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and him only you shall serve’.”

Then, when the devil had ended every temptation, he left him, until an opportune time.

And the angels came and waited on Him. 8*

Extra Note 1:

The Temptations of Jesus in the Synoptic Gospels:

The temptations that Jesus faced in the desert just after being baptized are mentioned only briefly in Mark's Gospel (and not at all in John's Gospel). According to the accounts in other two Gospels, the devil confronted Jesus with the same three temptations, but in a different order, which shows the slightly different emphases of Matthew and Luke, respectively.

.	Mark 1:12-13	Matthew 4:1-11	Luke 4:1-13
Intro	12 And the Spirit immediately drove him out into the wilderness. 13 He was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan; and he was with the wild beasts...	1 Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. 2 He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterwards he was famished.	1 Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness, 2 where for forty days he was tempted by the devil. He ate nothing at all during those days, and when they were over, he was famished.
Tempt #1	x	3 The tempter came and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become loaves of bread." 4 But he answered, "It is written, 'One does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.' (cf. Deut 6:13)
Tempt #3	x	8 Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor; 9 and he said to him, "All these I will give you, if you will fall down and worship me." 10 Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! for it is written, 'Worship the Lord your God, and serve only him.'" End	13d - and the angels waited on him.	11 Then the devil left him, and suddenly angels came and waited on him.	13 When the devil had finished every test, he departed from him until an opportune time.

COMMENTS:

1. Biblical Terminology: The Greek verb peirazw (used 38 times in the NT) is sometimes translated "to tempt" (or passive: "to be tempted"), while at other times it is translated "to test" or "to try" (or "to be tested" or "to be tried"). Similarly, the noun peirasmoV (used 21 times in the NT) is variously translated "temptation," "testing," or "trial." The related verb ekpeirazw (used only 4 times, in Matt 4:7; Luke 4:12; 10:25; and 1 Cor 10:9) is usually translated "to test" or "to put to the test."
2. Literary Context: In all three Synoptic Gospels, the temptations of Jesus in the wilderness occur just before he begins his public ministry and immediately after his baptism in the Jordan river, when the Holy Spirit had descended upon Jesus "like a dove" and a voice from heaven was heard to say, "You are my Son, the Beloved; with you I am well pleased" (Mark 1:9-11; par. Matt 3:13-17; Luke 3:21-22).
3. The Holy Spirit and the Devil/Satan: All three Synoptics indicate that Jesus was "driven" or "led by the Spirit" into the wilderness in order to be tested/tempted by the devil. Thus, Jesus is not alone; the Holy Spirit is with him to help him resist the temptations he must face. Jesus is not running away from God, nor has God abandoned him. On the other hand, God and/or the Holy Spirit are not doing the testing/tempting (cf. James 1:13). Rather, the one who confronts Jesus is the supreme personification of evil, referred variously as the devil (diaboloV), or the tempter (peirazwn), or Satan (SatanaV).
4. Fasting: Contrary to what we might assume, Mark's Gospel does not mention anything about Jesus fasting while he was in the wilderness; only Matthew and Luke say that Jesus fasted for forty days (Matthew adds "and forty nights," while Luke emphasizes that "he ate nothing at all").
5. Forty Days: This temporal indication does not need to be taken literalistically (as if it were exactly 40 days, not 39 nor 41); rather, the number forty symbolically means "a long time," and alludes to other biblical events that are said to have taken either forty days or even forty years.
6. Use of Scripture: Jesus responds to each of the devil's temptations by quoting a passage from Scripture, specifically the Book of Deuteronomy (part of the "Torah" or "Instructions/Law" that God gave the ancient Israelites through Moses), thereby showing Jesus' reliance upon and adherance to the Word of God. Only in the temptation at the Jerusalem Temple (second in Matthew, third in Luke) does the devil also quote scripture in an attempt to persuade Jesus, but to no avail.
7. The Main Temptation that Jesus Faced: In two of the three specific temptations that Jesus faces, the devil begins by saying, "If you are the Son of God..." Recalling that Jesus' experience in the wilderness occurs immediately after his baptism, where the voice from heaven proclaimed, "You are my beloved Son...," we come to see that the devil's primary objective is to get Jesus to doubt or deny his identity, that he is truly the Son of God!

8. Differing Emphases in Matthew and Luke: The last temptation in Matthew's account is that Jesus could receive supreme political power ("all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor"), if only he worshipped Satan rather than God. This clearly connects with the emphases throughout Matthew's Gospel on the "Kingdom of Heaven" and on Jesus as the true "King of the Jews." In contrast, the last of the three temptations in Luke's version takes place at the Temple of Jerusalem, the same location where Luke's Gospel both begins and ends (cf. 1:5-25 and 24:50-53). Click here for larger images of Jerome Nadal's depictions of the First Temptation and the Second and Third Temptations, as depicted at right.

9. Luke's conclusion: Whereas Matthew concludes his account by saying that "the devil left him [Jesus]," Luke adds "until an opportune time," thereby implying that the devil will return again later in the story, which he indeed does, not only entering into Judas (22:3) and testing Peter (22:31), but also testing Jesus once again at Gethsemane (22:39-46; cf. 22:28).
10. Satan in Mark's Gospel: Although Mark does not narrate the three temptations in the wilderness that are well known from Matthew and Luke, Jesus struggles against Satan throughout Mark's Gospel, as seen especially in his exorcisms (casting out demons or unclean/evil spirits; 1:23-28, 32-34, 39; 3:11; 5:1-20; 7:24-30; 9:14-29) and in some controversies with human opponents (3:22-27; cf. 8:33). Jesus also involves his disciples in this struggle against Satan by giving them authority to perform exorcisms (3:15; 6:7, 13).
11. Other "Temptations" of Jesus: Elsewhere in the Synoptics, Jesus is "tested" by people who demand that he show them "a sign from heaven" (Mark 8:11; par. Matt 16:1; Luke 11:16), by some Pharisees who question him about the Mosaic law of divorce (Mark 10:2; Matt 19:3), or about paying taxes to Ceasar (Mark 12:15; Matt 22:18), or about which commandment of the Mosaic law is the greatest (Matt 22:35), and by a lawyer, who asks him, "What must I do to inherit eternal life?" (Luke 10:25). In all these passages, the NT uses forms of the words peirazw, ekpeirazw, or peirasmoV.
12. "Temptations" of Jesus' Disciples in the Synoptics: In the Lord's Prayer, Jesus teaches his disciples to pray to God, "Do not bring us to the time of trial" (eiV peirasmon; Matt 6:13; Luke 11:4); and at Gethsemane, Jesus tells his closest disciples to pray "that you may not come into the time of trial" (eiV peirasmon; Mark 14:38; Matt 26:41; Luke 22:40, 46).

The Devil or Satan in the Gospel according to John:

Although the Fourth Gospel (John) does not tell us of Jesus being tempted or tested by Satan at the beginning of his public ministry, Jesus does face various conflicts with Satan throughout the narrative. Moreover, in John's Gospel Jesus' opponents several times accuse him of being possessed by Satan (cf. Mark 3:22-27 & par.).

- 6:70-71 - Jesus asks his disciples, "Did I not choose you twelve? Yet is not one of you a devil?" (referring to Judas Iscariot, who will later betray him).
- 7:20 - When Jesus plainly tells his opponents that some of them want to kill him, they reply, "You are possessed! Who is trying to kill you?"
- 8:44, 48-49, 52 - In a highly polemical exchange with some of his opponents, Jesus says, "You belong to your father the devil and you willingly carry out your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning and does not stand in truth, because there is no truth in him.

When he tells a lie, he speaks in character, because he is a liar and the father of lies..." In response, his opponents say, "Are we not right in saying that you are a Samaritan and are possessed?" Jesus answered, "I am not possessed; I honor my Father, but you dishonor me..." (So) the Jews said to him, "Now we are sure that you are possessed..."

- 10:19-21 - When Jesus again speaks of his intimate relationship with his Father in heaven, the Jews have various opinions and reactions, including wondering whether Jesus himself is possessed by demons: "Many of them said, 'He is possessed and out of his mind; why listen to him?' Others said, 'These are not the words of one possessed; surely a demon cannot open the eyes of the blind, can he?' "
- 13:2, 27-30 - At the beginning of the Last Supper, the evangelist tells us, "The devil had already induced Judas, son of Simon the Iscariot, to hand him over..." Slightly later during that supper, Satan enters into Judas, who then goes to the chief priests to betray Jesus.

"Temptations" mentioned in other New Testament Writings:

- On several occasions various apostles warn that one must not put God, or Christ, or the Spirit of the Lord "to the test" (Acts 5:9; 15:10; 1 Cor 10:9; cf. Heb 3:8-9).
- The Letter to the Hebrews not only recalls how Jesus "was tested by what he suffered" and thus "he is able to help those who are being tested" (Heb 2:18), but also emphasizes that Jesus "in every respect has been tested as we are, yet without sin" (4:15), just as Abraham also was "put to the test" when asked to sacrifice his son, Isaac (11:17).
- Paul assures the Christians in Corinth that God will faithfully stand by them throughout their trials: "No testing has overtaken you that is not common to everyone. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tested beyond your strength, but with the testing he will also provide the way out so that you may be able to endure it" (1 Cor 10:13).
- The Letter of James commends Christians who endure temptations and trials of any kind, and emphasizes that temptations do not come from God, but rather from one's own evil desires (James 1:12-14).
- Christians are sometimes even told to "test yourselves" (2 Cor 13:5) or to "test those who claim to be apostles" to see if they are living the faith properly (Rev 2:2).
- Temptations/Testings faced by various Christians in the past, present, or future are mentioned in several other NT writings (see Acts 20:19; 1 Cor 7:5; Gal 4:14; 6:1; 1 Thess 3:5; 1 Tim 6:9; 1 Peter 1:6; 4:12; 2 Peter 2:9; Rev 2:10; 3:10).

Alternate View:

The Temptations of Our Lord

It is well known that the order of the temptations in Matthew is not the same as in Luke. Commentators and Harmonizers assume that the one is right and the other is wrong; and proceed to change the order of one in order to make it agree with the other. But an examination of the combined accounts, giving due weight to the words and expressions used, will explain all the differences, and show that both Gospels are absolutely correct; while the differences are caused by the three temptations being repeated by the devil in a different order, thus making six instead of three.

Mark and Luke agree in stating that the temptations continued all the forty days (Mark 1:13, Luke 4:2); they are described as follows:

1. (Luke 4:3,4) "The devil (ho diabolos) said to Him, "Speak to this stone (to litho touto) that it become a loaf (artos)." This appears to be the first temptation: and there is no reason whatever why it should not have been repeated in another form; for it is nowhere stated that there were three, and only three, temptations.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

2. (Luke 4:5-8) "And the devil, conducting (anagagon) Him, shewed to Him all the kingdoms of the habitable world, or land (Gr. oikoumene), in a moment of time." Nothing is said about "an exceeding high mountain".

   The devil claims to possess the right to the kingdoms of the world, and the Lord does not dispute it. Satan says: "To Thee will I give this authority (exousia) and all their glory, for to me it has been delivered, and to whomsoever I wish I give it. Therefore, if Thou wilt worship before me, all shall be Thine."

   Nothing is said here about "falling down", as in Matthew. Here only "authority" is offered; for all the critical Greek texts read "pasa" (not "panta") fem. to agree with exousia.

   The Lord did not say, "Get thee hence" (as in Matthew 4:10), but "Get thee behind Me", which was a very different thing. Satan did not depart then, any more than Peter did when the same was said to him (Matthew 16:23).

3. (Luke 4:9-12) "And he conducted (egagen) Him to Jerusalem, and set Him upon the wing of the temple, and said to Him, 'If Thou art the Son of God, cast Thyself down hence, for it is written, that to His angels He will give charge concerning Thee, to keep thee (tou diaphulaxai se)'", etc.

   There is nothing said about this "keeping thee" in Matthew; moreover, it is stated that having finished every form of temptation, "he departed from Him for a season". Note that the devil departed (apeste) of his own accord in Luke 4:13, while in Matthew the Lord summarily dismissed him and commanded him to be gone (Matthew 4:10).

4. (Matthew 4:3-4) After the "season" (referred to in Luke 4:13), and on another occasion therefore, "he who was tempting Him (ho peirazon), having come (proselthon), said, If Thou are the Son of God, say that these stones become loaves (artoi)". Not "this stone", or "a loaf" (artos), as in Luke 4:3. Moreover he is not plainly called "the devil", as in Luke 4:3, but is spoken of as the one who had already been named as tempting Him (ho peirazon); and as "having come" (proselthon); not as simply speaking as being then present.

5. (Matthew 4:5-7) "Then (tote)" -- in strict succession to the preceding temptation of the "stones" and the "loaves" -- "Then the devil taketh (paralambanei) Him unto the holy city, and setteth Him upon the wing of the temple", &c. Nothing is said here about the angels being charged to "keep" Him (as in Luke 4:10); nor is there any reason why any of these three forms of temptation should not have been repeated, under other circumstances and conditions.

6. (Matthew 4:8-10) Here it is plainly stated that the second temptation (Luke 4:5-8) was repeated: for "Again the devil taketh Him unto an exceedingly high mountain, and sheweth to Him all the kingdoms of the world (kosmos, not oikoumene, as in Luke 4:5), and their glory, and said to Him, All these things," (not "all this authority", as in Luke 4:6)", will I give to Thee if, falling down, Thou wilt worship me". Here, in this last temptation, the climax is reached. It was direct worship. Nothing is said in Luke about falling down. Here it is boldly and plainly said, "Worship me." This was the crisis. There was no departing of satan's own accord here. The moment had come to end all these temptations by the Lord Himself. "Go! Said the Lord (hupage), Get thee hence, Satan ... Then the devil leaveth (aphiesin) Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him".

This angelic ministry marked the end. There is no such ministry mentioned at the end of the third temptation in Luke 4:3-12; for then Satan "departed" of his own accord, returning (in Matthew 4:3) after "a season" (Luke 4:13). True, the Lord had said "Get thee behind Me, Satan" (Luke 4:8); but He did not, then, summarily dismiss him, nor did Satan depart: he continued with his third temptation, not departing till after the third had been completed.

We thus conclude that, while there were temptations continuous during the whole of the forty days (Mark 1:13, Luke 4:2), they culminated in six direct assaults on the Son of man, in three different forms; each form being repeated on two separate occasions, and under different circumstances, but not in the same order.

This accords with all the variations of the words used, explains the different order of events in the two Gospels and satisfies all the conditions demanded by the sacred text.

The two different orders in Matthew and Luke do not arise from a "mistake" in one or the other, so that one may be considered correct and the other incorrect; they arise from the punctilious accuracy of the Divine record in describing the true and correct order in which Satan varied the six temptations; for which variation, he alone, and neither of the Evangelists, is responsible.

JOHN ANSWERS THE PRIESTS—"BEHOLD THE LAMB OF GOD"—JESUS HAILS ANDREW, SIMON, PHILIP, AND NATHANAEL

A.D. 27 Age 30. Bethabara 9^ [Bethany]

John 1: 19-20 . . . 22-29 . . . 37-51.

John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, “Who are you?”, confessed, “I am not the Christ... I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, ‘Make straight the way of the Lord.’”

They asked him, “Why do you baptize then, if you are not the Christ?

John answered, “I baptize with water, but there stands one among you whom you do not know. It is he who, coming after me, is preferred before me, whose sandal strap I am not worthy to unloose. [see Extra Note 1]

These things happened in Bethabara 9^ [Bethany] across the Jordan, where John was baptizing.

The next day John stood with two of his disciples. And looking upon Jesus as he walked, he said, “Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world!”

The two disciples heard John speak, and they followed Jesus. Then Jesus turned, and seeing them following, said to them, “What do you seek?”

They answered, Rabbi (which is to say when translated, Master), where are you staying? Jesus said to them, “Come and see.” [see Extra Note 2]

They came and saw where he was staying, and remained with him that day (now it was about the tenth hour). One of the two was Andrew, Simon Peter's 19:‡ brother. He first found Simon, and said to him, “We have found the Messiah.” 9* [see Extra Note 3]

Andrew brought Simon to Jesus. And when Jesus looked at Simon, he said,

“You are Simon the son of Jonah: you will be called Cephas.”

Cephas is, by interpretation, ‘A Stone’. 9†

The day following, Jesus wanted to go to Galilee, and he found Philip: he was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Simon Peter. And Jesus said to Philip, “Follow me.”

Philip found Nathanael, and said to him, “We have the one whom Moses wrote about in the law (and so did the prophets): Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph. And Nathanael said, “Can there any good thing that comes out of Nazareth?” Philip said, “Come and see.”

Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, and said about him: “Here is a true Israelite; no deceit is in him.”

Nathanael said, “How do you know me?” Jesus answered, “Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you.”

Nathanael answered, “Master, you are the Son of God; you are the King of Israel.”

Jesus said, “Because I said to you, ‘I saw you under the fig tree’, do you believe? You will see greater things than these.” Then he continued, “I assure you, you will see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of man.” [see Extra Note 5]

Footnotes

9:^ "Bethany" (according to nearly all the best and most ancient manuscripts); not the Bethany of Lazarus, but another of the same name, and distinguished from it as lying "beyond Jordan," on the east. [See also Extra Note 4 below] (see also Chapter XLVII)

19:‡ See also Chapter XII for parallel reporting of Jesus meeting Simon Peter and Andrew for the first time. See Footnote 9:† for why Simon is also called Simon Peter or just Peter in the Bible.

9:* ". . . which is, being interpreted, the Christ."

9:† The Revised Version has it: ". . . which is by interpretation, Peter." The HSBEC says, “(which means ‘Rock’)”. The NASB and NET say, “(which is translated ‘Peter’)”. The ESV and NLT say, “(which means ‘Peter’)”.

Both words, Peter (from Greek) and Cephas (from Aramaic), have the meaning, rock, stone. NET

NET Bible Note sn 104: The change of name from Simon to Cephas is indicative of the future role he will play. Only John among the gospel writers gives the Greek transliteration (Κηφᾶς, Kēphas) of Simon's new name, Qephâ (which is Galilean Aramaic). Neither Πέτρος (Petros) in Greek nor Qephâ in Aramaic is a normal proper name; it is more like a nickname.

At Caesarea Philippi, Jesus made a play on words using the nickname (Matthew 16:18).

Jesus has the same reason as God renamed Abram to Abraham, and Sarai to Sarah. He did this to identify the person's spiritual transformation.

The key to understand this is in the meaning of 'Simon' and 'Peter' name. Simon (Simeon in Hebrew) have meaning "The one whom hears (Word of God)", and Peter (Chepas in Hebrew) means "a rock". The name changes is to underline the transformation of the person whom hears words of God to a spiritual rock.

Extra Note 1:
Slaves carried their master's sandals (the one servile activity that was too demeaning for rabbis' disciples to duplicate); John claims that he is not worthy to be even Christ's slave. Prophets were often called God's servants in the Old Testament (e.g., 2Ki 18:12; 19:34; 20:6; 24:2; Je 35:15; 44:4). [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Rabbi (Aramaic) = My Master (term of respect) -- did NOT, at this time, refer specifically (as it came to do later) to one who had been trained in the rabbinical schools. Rabbi shows their serious intentions in following him. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Note: It is also translated as "teacher" in the Greek (didaskolas). Ref: Teacher and Rabbi in the NT Period, by Mare, Grace Theological Journal 11.3 (1970) 11-21

The tenth hour: It may be wondered why in (v 39) the tenth hour is mentioned.

If John was using the normal Jewish method of reckoning, the hour would have been late afternoon (4 p.m.) and a stay until the end of the day is implied. [Source: New Bible Commentary]
The hour is mentioned to show why they stayed out the day with Jesus — because little of it remained. [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown commentary]

If the Romon method of reckoning time was used, then we are talking mid-morning (10 a.m.), which would allow plenty of time for the disciples staying with Jesus the rest of the day.

For detailed discussion of this and other occurences of the "hour" in the Gospels – for which there are debates and potential contradictions, depending on conclusions drawn -- see in the Appendix:

Since there is no known Bethany "beyond the Jordan," it is likely that the name would have been changed to a more etymologically edifying one (Origen mistakenly thought the name Bethabara meant "house of preparation" and for this reason was appropriate in this context; see TCGNT 171for discussion). On the other hand, both since Origen's understanding of the Semitic etymology of Bethabara was incorrect, and because Bethany was at least a well-known location in Palestine, mentioned in the Gospels about a dozen times, one has to wonder whether scribes replaced Βηθαβαρᾶ with Βηθανίᾳ . However, if Origen's understanding of the etymology of the name was representative, scribes may have altered the text in the direction of Bethabara. And even if most scribes were unfamiliar with what the name might signify, that a reading which did not contradict the Gospels' statements of a Bethany near Jerusalem was already at hand may have been sufficient reason for them to adopt Bethabara. Further, in light of the very strong testimony for Βηθανίᾳ, this reading [of Bethany] should be regarded as authentic.

"Beyond the Jordan" means Perea, one of the territories controlled by Herod Antipas. Because Josephus tells us that John was later imprisoned in the fortress Machaerus in the same region (Josephus, Jewish Antiquities 18.116-119), it makes sense that this is where he ministers and is later arrested. Extra Note 5:
Son of man. Jesus' most common title for himself, used 81 times in the Gospels (13 times in John) and never used by anyone but Jesus there. Elsewhere it is used by Stephen (Acts 7:56) and in John's vision (Revelation 1:13). In Daniel 7:13-14 the Son of Man is pictured as a heavenly figure who in the end times is entrusted by God with authority, glory and sovereign power. That Jesus considered "Son of Man" to be a Messianic title is evident by his use of it here in juxtaposition to Peter's use of "Christ" (Mark 10:29). [NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]
Son of man — A name that Yeshua commonly uses to refer to Himself. It comes from Daniel 7:13-14, in which the "Son of Man" is given all authority. This name sometimes emphasizes Yeshua's humanity and sometimes His deity. In Hebrew, this title reads Ben-ha-Adam. (Matthew 9:6; Mark 9:31; Luke 21:36; John 6:27)

The encounter between Jesus and Nathanael is most instructive. First, we note the high opinion that Jesus expressed of him (John 1:47). The thought of an Israelite in whom there is nothing false may have been prompted by the story of Jacob, who is clearly in mind in v 51. Secondly, we note his inquiring mind — How do you know me? There is here an element of surprise which suggests that Nathanael had not previously met Jesus. Thirdly, we note the foreknowledge of Jesus, which must have greatly impressed Nathanael. There is no certain way of knowing what Nathanael was doing under the fig-tree, but the main point here is the more than ordinary insight of Jesus, which was clearly recognized by Nathanael. His response was far-reaching. Not only did he recognize Jesus as Rabbi, but also as Son of God and King of Israel. Again, even at this early stage, there was an understanding of Jesus as Son of God, however rudimentary. John has brought out the initial references to the divine Sonship of Jesus in the prologue to the very core of the emerging ministry of Jesus. The greater things of v 50 are explained by v 51, which speaks of the development of spiritual vision. The idea of seeing angels ascending and descending on the Son of Man seems to be an echo from the story of Jacob (Genesis 28:12). The meaning of the statement is that heaven is now opened for continuous communication with people, the representative of whom is Christ himself under the title Son of Man. It is remarkable that this title is substituted for Nathanael's Son of God, for this shows that the human aspect of Jesus is as important as the divine.
[Source: New Bible Commentary]

The opening of the heavens indicated a major revelation (e.g., Ezekial 1:1). Jesus' words allude to Genesis 28:12: Jesus is the new way between heaven and earth (Jacob's ladder) on whom angels ascend and descend; like Jacob of old, this "genuine Israelite" Nathanael (John 1:47) would receive this new revelation. JESUS' MOTHER AND THE WATER CHANGED TO WINE—HE DRIVES THE MONEYMAKERS FROM THE TEMPLE—TEMPLE OF THE BODY

A.D. 27. Age 30. Cana. Jerusalem.

John 2: 1-9, 12-16, 18-21.

On the third day, there was a wedding in Cana of Galilee. Both Jesus and his disciples were invited to the marriage; and the mother of Jesus was there.

When they ran out of wine, Jesus' mother told him, "They have no wine."

Jesus replied, "Woman, what does your concern have to do with me? My hour has not yet come."

His mother said to the servants, "Whatsoever he says to you, do it."

Now six stone waterpots had been set there for Jewish purification. Each holding twenty or thirty gallons.

Jesus said, "Fill the waterpots with water."

They filled them to the brim, and he said, "Draw some out now, and take it to the master of the feast.

And they took it. When the master of the feast tasted the water, it had turned to good wine!

In this first miracle he revealed his glory, and his disciples believed him.

After this Jesus went to Capernaum, with his mother and brothers, and his disciples; and they did not stay there many days.

Now the Passover of the Jews was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

11* He found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves; and the changers of money sitting doing business. When he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, with the sheep and the oxen; poured out the changers' money, and overturned the tables; and he said to those who sold doves, "Take these things away! Do not make my Father's house a house of merchandise!"

So the Jews responded to Jesus, “What sign do you show to us, since you do these things?” He answered, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” 11†

Then the Jews said, “It has taken forty-six years to build this temple, and you will raise it up in three days?”

But Jesus was speaking of the temple of his body.

NIGHTTIME VISIT OF NICODEMUS—CHRIST ENLIGHTENS HIM

April, A.D. 27 Age 30. Jerusalem.

John 3: 1-21.

A man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews, came to Jesus by night, and said to him, Master, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God; for no man can do these miracles that you do, unless God is with him.

Jesus answered, “Truly, truly, I say to you, unless a man is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.” [see Extra Note 1]

Nicodemus said to him, “How can a man be born when he is old?”

Jesus answered, “Truly, truly, I say unto you, except a man is born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh: and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

“Marvel not that I said to you, ‘You must be born again.’

“The wind blows wherever it will, and you hear the sound it makes, but cannot tell where it comes from and where it goes. So it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit.”

Nicodemus said, “How can these things be?”

Jesus answered, “Are you a teacher of Israel, and do not know not these things? Truly, truly, I say to you, we speak what we do know, and testify what we have seen; and you do not receive our witness.

“If I have told you earthly things, and do not believe, how will you believe if I tell you heavenly things? No man has ascended up to heaven, but he who came down from heaven, that is, the Son of man who is in heaven.

“Just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believes in him should not perish, but have eternal life.

“For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He who believes in him is not condemned; but he does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

"And this is the condemnation, that the light has come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one doing evil hates the light and does not come to the light, lest his deeds should be exposed. But he who does the truth comes to the light, that his deeds may be made clearly seen, that they have been done in God." 12.*

Extra Note 1:

Truly = Verily = Most Assuredly = I tell you the Solemn Truth = Amen ("So be it", "Yes, I agree")

What does Jesus mean when He says, "Verily, verily" (or "Truly, truly," or "Amen, Amen") in the gospels?

Answer: At various times in the gospels, Jesus introduces a statement using phrases such as "Verily, I say" or "Truly, I say this to you." In the Gospel of John, Jesus frequently uses the phrase "Truly, truly" (ESV) or "Verily, verily" (KJV) or "Very truly" (NIV). These expressions all use [are translations of, or in the case of "amen" are transliterations of] the Greek word amēn, taken directly from the Hebrew word ā'mēn. This word has different implications depending on how and where it is used. Jesus' application of the term is noticeably different from prior uses.

In modern use, the word amen is typically used at the end of a prayer. It may also be spoken to show agreement with some statement or idea. This is slightly different from, but closely related to, the original use of the term as seen in the Old Testament. The Hebrew word ā'mēn literally means "so be it." The term is an expression of complete and total agreement. In passages such as 1 Chronicles 16:36 or Deuteronomy 27:15–26, this is how the term is used. Placing the word amen at the end of a statement is a way of accepting, agreeing, or endorsing what came before.

Jesus, however, was fond of saying, "Amen," before making a statement or giving a message. When used in this way, the word amen has slightly different implications. Leading off with amen not only implies that what follows is true but also that the person making the statement has firsthand knowledge and authority about it. Saying, "Verily, verily," before making a statement is a strong claim to truth, presented from an almost audacious attitude. Speaking on worldly or secular matters, saying, "Verily, verily," would imply that what follows is that person's own original idea.

So, when Jesus leads off with the words verily, verily in verses such as Matthew 18:3, Mark 3:28, Luke 23:43, and John 8:51, He is not merely saying, "Believe me, this is true." He is actually saying, "I know this is true firsthand." Since many of these comments are on heavenly, spiritual, or godly issues, Jesus' use of verily, verily is part of His consistent claim of divinity. Jesus is not merely aware of these truths: He is the One who originated them!

The disciples and others listening to Jesus' words would have understood His use of these phrases in exactly that way. So, when we read Jesus' words and see statements beginning with "verily," "truly," or some variation, we should recall the deeper meaning. Those claims are not only Jesus' opinion on the truth. Those are ideas about which He has intimate, personal, firsthand knowledge.

Note: "Truly" is used primarily in this document as stated by Jesus, instead of "Verily" or "Amen". They are essentially equivalent.

"Amen, Amen" Sayings in the Fourth Gospel [John] (compiled by Felix Just, S.J., Ph.D.):

In the Hebrew Bible, the word "Amen" connotes agreement, certainty, faithfulness. It was simply transliterated αμην in Greek, and so also "amen" in most modern languages. It is used at the end of some psalms, curses, blessings, prayers, and prophecies to allow the hearers/readers to say, "So be it!" or "Yes, I agree!" (Deut 27:15-26; 1 Kings 1:36; 1 Chron 16:36; Neh 5:13; Ps 106:48; Jer 28:6). Sometimes it is repeated twice for emphasis (Num 5:22; Neh 8:6; Ps 41:13; 72:19; 89:52).

Similarly in the NT, "Amen" is used 28 times at the end of doxologies, blessings, and other prayers (Rom 1:25; 9:5; 11:36; 15:33; 16:27; 1 Cor 14:16; 2 Cor 1:20; Gal 1:5; 6:18; Eph 3:21; Phil 4:20; 1 Thess 3:13; 1 Tim 1:17; 6:16; 2 Tim 4:18; Heb 13:21; 1 Peter 4:11; 5:11; 2 Peter 3:18; Jude 1:25; Rev 1:6, 7; 3:14; 5:14; 7:12 [twice]; 19:4; 22:20). It is also used 101 times in the four Gospels, but with some major differences:

- The only person who says "Amen" in the Gospels is Jesus himself (with the exception of the "shorter ending" of Mark--usually added just after 16:8);
    - in Matt 25:12, 40, 45, the characters in the parables who use this expression clearly represent Jesus.
- Jesus uses the phrase, "Amen, I say to you...," at the beginning of his own statements, rather than in response to what someone else said;
    - thus, it is not an expression of agreement, but a literary device for emphasizing what he says subsequently.
- In the Synoptic Gospels, this expression is used a total of 50 times by Jesus and the parabolic characters (13 in Mk; 31 in Mt; only 6 in Lk);
    - it is translated "Verily I say unto you... (KJV); "Truly, I say to you..." (RSV); "Truly, I tell you" (NRSV); etc.
- In the Fourth Gospel, the expression is used 25 times, again only by Jesus, but always with a doubled "Amen, Amen" for extra emphasis;
    - this is like saying "Hear Ye, Hear Ye" - as used by royal messengers or town criers in medieval England.
- It is sometimes translated literally: "Verily, verily, I say unto you." (KJV); "Truly, truly, I say to you" (RSV); "Amen, Amen, I say to you..." (NAB);

  - but other English Bibles render it more colloquially: "Very truly, I tell you" (NRSV); "I tell you the truth" (NIV), etc.

- These twenty-five "Amen, Amen" sayings contain some of the most important things said and claims made by Jesus in the Fourth Gospel:

  - see John 1:51; 3:3, 5, 11; 5:19, 24, 25; 6:26, 32, 47, 53; 8:34, 51, 58; 10:1, 7; 12:24; 13:16, 20, 21, 38; 14:12; 16:20, 23; and 21:18.

- 16:23 – "Truly, truly, I say to you, if you ask anything of the Father, he will give it to you in my name."

To Simon Peter after the Resurrection:

- 21:18 – "Truly, truly, I say to you, when you were young, you girded yourself and walked where you would; but when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and another will gird you and carry you where you do not wish to go."

JOHN EXTOLS JESUS—THE WOMAN AT THE WELL—"ONE SOWETH, AND ANOTHER REAPETH"

A.D. 27. Age 30. Samaria: Sychar.

John 3: 22 . . . 28, 4: 1-40.

After these things Jesus and his disciples came into the land of Judea. John was baptizing in Aenon near to Salim. For John had not yet been thrown into prison.

There arose a dispute between some of John's disciples and the Jews. They came to John, saying, “Rabbi, he that was with you on the other side of the Jordan, about whom you testified – look, he is baptizing, and all are coming to him.”

John said, “You yourselves bear me witness, that I said, ‘I am not the Christ’, but that ‘I have been sent before him’”.

When Jesus knew that the Pharisees had heard that he made and baptized more disciples than John (though Jesus himself did note baptize, but his disciples), he left Judea, and departed again to Galilee; but he needed to go through Samaria.

He came to a city of Samaria called Sychar, near to the plot of ground that Jacob gave to his son Joseph. [see Extra Note 1]

Now Jacob's well was there, so Jesus, being wearied from his journey, sat on the well. It was about the sixth hour. [see Extra Note 2]

There came a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus said to her, “Give me to drink.”

The woman said, “How is it that you, being a Jew, ask a drink from me, a Samaritan woman?” For the Jews have no dealings with the Samarians.

Jesus answered, “If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that says to you, ‘Give me a drink’; you would have asked of him, and he would have given you living water.”

The woman said, “Sir, you have nothing to draw with, and the well is deep. Where then do you get that living water? Are you greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well; and drank from it himself, along with his sons and his livestock?”

Jesus said, “Whosoever drinks of this water will thirst again; but whosoever drinks of the water that I shall give him will never thirst; but the water that I shall give him will become in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.“

The woman answered, “Sir, give me this water that I may not thirst, nor come here to draw.”

Jesus said, “Go, call your husband, and come here.”

The woman answered, “I have no husband.”

Jesus said, “You have well said, ‘I have no husband,’ for you have had five husbands; and the one whom you now have is not your husband; in that you spoke truthfully.”

The woman said, “Sir, I perceive that you are a prophet. Our fathers worshipped on this mountain; and you Jews say that in Jerusalem is the place where one should worship.” [see Extra Note 3]

Jesus said, “Woman, believe me, the hour is coming, when you will neither on this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, worship the Father. You worship what you do not know; we know what we worship, for salvation is of the Jews.” [see Extra Note 4]

“But the hour is coming, and now is, when the true worshippers will worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father is seeking such people to worship him.

“God is a Spirit: and those that worship him must worship in spirit and in truth.”

The woman said, “I know that Messiah is coming, who is called Christ. When he comes, he will tell us all things.”

Jesus said, “I who speak to you am he.”

The woman went her way into the city, and said to the men, “Come, see a man, which told me all the things that I ever did. Could this be the Christ?”

In the meantime, his disciples urged him, saying, “Master, eat.”

But he said, “I have food to eat of which you do not know. “

Therefore said the disciples one to another, “Has anyone brought him anything to eat?”

Jesus said to them, “My food is to do the will of him who sent me, and to finish his work. Do you not say, ‘There are yet four months, and then comes the harvest’? Behold, I say to you, lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are already white for harvest. And he who reaps receives wages, and gathers fruit for eternal life; that both he that sows and he who reaps may rejoice together. For in this the saying is true: ‘One sows and another reaps.’ I sent you to reap that for which you have not labored; others have labored, and you have entered into their labors.”

Many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him because of the word of the woman who testified, “He told me all that I ever did.”

So they urged Jesus to stay with them: and he stayed there two days.

Extra Note 1:
There were two possible routes from Judea to Galilee. The longer was through Gentile country on the east side of the Jordan; the shorter was through Samaria and was most used in spite of the animosity between the Jews and the Samaritans. V 4 suggests this latter route was chosen of necessity. Perhaps John is implying that there was divine reason as far as Jesus was concerned. It is generally supposed that Sychar is the modern Askar, near to the ancient Shechem. There still exists a deep well, which according to tradition is the original well. That Jacob was of special significance to the Samaritans is seen (from v 12). [Source: New Bible Commentary]

There are no exact borders to Judea and Galilee. The boarders are rather fuzzy, and motivated by tribal and agricultural differences, rather than any official national border. In addition, because of the mountainous terrain, there are no direct roads, and the quality of the roads that do exist vary greatly.

The distance from Judea to Galilee which Jesus traveled as noted in John chapter 4 is 70 miles. This trip would have taken about 2 1/2 days

The Samaritan Bible contained only the Pentateuch. They worshiped the true God, but their failure to accept much of his revelation meant that they knew little about him. salvation is from the Jews. The Messiah would come from God's historic people [Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]

On Mount Gerizim the Samaritans had built a temple to rival the one in Jerusalem, from which they had long been separated politically and religiously. [Source: Ryrie Study Bible Notes]

Extra Note 4:
You is plural, implying "You Samaritans." In saying we worship what we know Jesus identifies himself as a Jew. The verse shows that John's Gospel is not anti-Semitic. Salvation is from the Jews in the sense that the whole OT, which taught about salvation, was from the Jewish people, and the Messiah himself came from the Jews and not from the Samaritans or (by implication) from the Gentiles. CHRIST IN CANA CURES NOBLEMAN'S SON AT CAPERNAUM

A.D. 27. Age 30. Galilee: Cana (again).

John 4: 43-53.

After the two days Jesus went into Galilee; for Jesus himself testified that a prophet has no honor in his own country.

The Galileans received him, having seen all the things he did in Jerusalem at the feast; for they also had gone to the feast.

So Jesus came again to Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water wine.

And there was a certain nobleman [royal official], who's son was sick at Capernaum. He went to Jesus, and implored him come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death.

Then said Jesus unto him, "Except you people see signs and wonders, you will not believe."

The nobleman said, "Sir, come down before my child dies." Jesus answered, "Go your way: your son lives."

The man believed, and went his way. And as he was going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, "You son lives!"

Then he inquired of them the hour when the child got better. They said, "Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him."

So the father knew that it was at the same hour in which Jesus said to him, "Your son lives."

AT THE POOL: THE IMPOTENT MAN CURED—SABBATH HEALING JUSTIFIED—JESUS' SONSHIP SET FORTH—"SEARCH THE SCRIPTURES"

A.D. 27. Age 30. Jerusalem: Pool of Bethesda.

John 5: 1-47.

After this there was a feast of the Jews; and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

At Jerusalem there is a pool by the Sheep Gate, called Bethesda, having five covered colonnades. In these lay multitudes of sick people: blind, lame, paralyzed; waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel went down at a certain time into the pool and stirred up the water; then whoever stepped in first, after the stirring of the water, was made well of whatever disease he had. [See Extra Note 1]

A certain man was there, who had been an infirmity for thirty-eight years. When Jesus saw him lying there, and knew that he had already been in that condition a long time, he said to him, “Do you want to be made well?”

The sick man answered, “Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; but while I am trying to come, another steps down before me.”

Jesus said to him, “Rise, take up your bed, and walk.” [See Extra Note 2]

Immediately the man was made whole, took up his bed, and walked; and that day was the Sabbath.

The Jews therefore said to him who was cured, “It is the Sabbath day; it is not lawful for you to carry your bed.”

He answered them, “He who made me well said to me, ‘Take up your bed and walk.’”

Then they asked him, “Who is the man that said ‘Take up your bed and walk’”? And he that was healed did not know who it was; for Jesus had slipped out, a crowd being in that place.

Afterward Jesus found him in the temple, and said to him, “Behold, you have been made whole. Sin no more, lest a worse thing come upon you.”

The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him well.

And the Jews persecuted and sought to kill Jesus, because he had done these things on the Sabbath.

But Jesus answered them, “My Father has been working until now, and so I have been working.”

The Jews sought all the more to kill him, because he had not only had broken the Sabbath, but also said that God was his Father, making himself equal with God.

Then Jesus said unto them, “Truly, truly, I say to you, the Son can do nothing of himself, but what he sees the Father do; for whatever he does, the Son also does in a like manner. For the Father loves the Son, and shows him all things that he himself does; and he will show him greater works than these, that you may marvel.

“For as the Father raises up the dead, and give life to them; even so the Son give life to whom he will.

“For the Father judges no man, but has committed all judgment to the Son; that all men should honor the Son, just as they honor the Father. He who honors not the Son does not honor the Father who sent him.

“Truly, truly, I say to you, He that hears my word, and believes on him that sent me, has everlasting life, and shall not come into judgement; but is passed from death into life.

“Truly, truly, I say unto you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God: and those that hear will live. For as the Father has life in himself; so has he granted the Son to have life in himself; and has given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son of man. Do not marvel at this: for the hour is coming in which all who are in the graves will hear his voice, and come forth -- those that have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those that have done evil, to the resurrection of judgement/damnation.

“I can do nothing on my own. I judge only as I hear, and my judgment is righteous; because I do not seek my own will, but the will of the Father which has sent me. If I bear witness of myself, my witness is not true.

“There is another who bears witness of me; and I know that the witness which he witnesses of me is true.

“You have sent messengers to John, and he testified to the truth. Yet I do not receive testimony from man; but I say these things, so that you may be saved. He was a burning and a shining lamp, and you were willing for a time to rejoice in his light.

“But I have greater witness than John’s; for the works which the Father has given me to finish -- the very works that I do -- bear witness of me, that the Father has sent me. And the Father himself, who sent me, has testified of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor seen his form. But you do not have his word abiding in you, because whom he sent, him you do not believe.

“You search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; yet they testify about me. But you are not willing to come to me, that you may have life.

“I do not receive honor from men. But I know you, that you do not have the love of God in you. I have come in my Father's name, and you do not receive me; if another comes in his own name, him you will receive. How can you believe, who receive honor from one another, and do not seek the honor that comes only from God?

“Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father. There is one who accuses you – Moses, on whom you have set your hope/trust. For if you believed Moses, you would believe me; for he wrote of me. But if you do not believe his writings, how will you believe my words?”

Footnotes

Extra Note 1:
The feast of the Jews in v 1 is unnamed. If it was the Passover, this could indicate that the total period of the ministry exceeded three years. It seems that the reason why a feast is mentioned is to account for Jesus' presence in Jerusalem, although John stresses several feasts in the ministry of Jesus. There have been excavations of a double pool in the north-east quarter of the city which is thought to be the pool described here as being near the Sheep Gate. There are variations of the name, but Bethesda is the best attested. The most important detail is the number of the five colonnades, whose existence archaeology has confirmed. These areas would hold a great number of people waiting to take advantage of the medicinal waters.

The additional text which appeared (in vs 3-4) [speaking of angels, etc.] is not well attested and is rightly omitted from the NIV (see mg.). Nevertheless, v 7 confirms that there was some movement of the waters, possibly due to springs. The fact that John mentions that the lame man had been there for thirty-eight years suggests that this was common knowledge. He was probably notorious for the time he had been begging there. CHRIST READS IN SYNAGOGUE AT NAZARETH—ELUDES ANGRY HEARERS—BEGINS TO PREACH REPENTANCE

A.D. 28. Age 31. Nazareth. Capernaum.

Luke 4: 16-31; Mark 1: 15; Matthew 4: 17.

Jesus came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up. And as was his custom, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up to read. When he was handed the book of Isaiah and had opened the book, he found the place where it was written:

> 17* The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he has sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

He closed the book, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. The eyes of all who were in the synagogue were fixed on him; and he began to say to them, "Today as you listen, this Scripture has been fulfilled."

So all bore witness to him, and marveled at the gracious words that came out of his mouth. They said, "Is not this Joseph's son"?

And Jesus said, "You will surely say this proverb to me, 'Physician, heal yourself.' Whatever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in your country."

Then he said, "Truly, I say to you, no prophet is accepted in his own country.

"But I tell in truth, there were many widows in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up forty-two months, and there was a great famine throughout all the land. Yet to none of them was Elijah sent except to Zarephath (Sarepta), a city in the region of Sidon, to a woman who was a widow.

"And many lepers were in Israel during the time of Elisha the prophet: and none of them was cleansed, except Naaman the Syrian." [see Extra Notes 1]

When all those in the synagogue heard these things, they were filled with rage, and got up, and drove Jesus out of town, and led him to the edge of the hill on which their city was built, so that they could throw him over the cliff. But, passing right through the crowd, he went on his way.

Now Jesus had heard that John was put in prison; and leaving Nazareth, he departed for Galilee and came to the city of Capernaum.

Jesus stayed in Capernaum, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, “The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” “Repent and believe the gospel.” “Repent, for the kingdom of God is at hand.”

From that time Jesus began to preach; and he taught them on the Sabbath days.

Footnotes

17:* This passage from Luke (4, 18-19) paraphrases verses 1-2 of Isaiah 61, which Jesus "stood up for to read."

Extra Notes 1:
Citing examples from the ministries of Elijah and Elisha, Jesus reminds the people of Nazareth that when Israel rejects God's prophets, God sends them elsewhere, even to Gentiles. At this the crowd becomes angry [Source: ESV Study Bible notes] The mention of God's favor toward two Gentiles (and the implication that God might again bless Gentiles if the Jews rejected Jesus) infuriated the people. The accounts are in 1Ki 17:8-24 and 2Ki 5:1-14. [Source: Ryrie SB Notes]
Jesus' point: Nazareth will not receive him, but non-Jews will. Elijah and Elisha are apt analogies for Jesus' ministry, which included raising the dead and multiplying food (similar to what Elijah did for the widow of Zarephath) and healing lepers. BY THE SEA—CHRIST CHOOSES THE FOUR—THE CURE IN THE SYNAGOGUE—SOLITARY PRAYER—IN "THE NEXT TOWNS" ROUND ABOUT GALILEE

A.D. 28. Age 31. Galilee: Capernaum.

Mark 1: 16-39; Luke 4: 31 . . . 38 . . . 44; Matthew 4: 17 . . . 25.

Now as Jesus walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon Peter 19:‡ and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea; for they were fishermen. He said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men."

Immediately they left their nets and followed him.

When he had gone a little farther from there, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, who also were in a boat with their father, mending their nets. He called them: and they left their father in the boat with the hired servants 19^, and followed Jesus.

They went into Capernaum; and on the Sabbath day Jesus entered into the synagogue, and taught. They were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority and not as the scribes.

There was a man in their synagogue with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, "Let us alone! What have we to do with you, Jesus of Nazareth? Did you come to destroy us? I know who you are: the Holy One of God!"

Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Be quite, and come out of him!"

When the unclean spirit had thrown the man and cried out with a loud voice, he came out of him, and did not hurt him.

Then they in the synagogue were all amazed and spoke among themselves, saying, "What a word this is! For with authority and power He commands the unclean spirits, and they come out." (And so the news about him went out into all the region surrounding Galilee.) 19†

Jesus arose and they come out of the synagogue and entered the house of Simon Peter and Andrew, with James and John. But Simon's wife's mother [mother-in-law] lay sick with a fever, and they told him about her at once. So he came and took her by the hand and lifter her up, and immediately the fever left her. And she served them.

At evening, when the sun had set, they brought to him all who were sick and those who were demon-possessed. And the whole city was gathered together at the door. Then he healed many who were sick with various diseases, and cast out many demons; and he did not allow the demons to speak, because they knew Him.

In the morning, rising up a long while before daylight, Jesus went out to a solitary place, and there he prayed.

The people sought him and came to him, and tried to keep him from leaving them. He said to them, "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also: because for this purpose I have been sent."

Simon and those who were with Jesus searched for him. When they had found him, they said to him, "Everyone is looking for you."

He answered, "Let's go in the next towns that I may preach there also: because that is why I came out."

And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom. His fame went throughout Syria. And multitudes followed him from Galilee, and Decapolis; 19* from Jerusalem, and Judea; and from beyond Jordan.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT: THE BEATITUDES, ADMONITIONS, PRECEPTS

A.D. 28, Age 31 Near Capernaum.

Matthew 5: 1-48.

Seeing the multitudes, Jesus went up on a mountain: and when he was seated, his disciples came to him. Then he opened his mouth and taught them, saying, “Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

“Blessed are those who mourn: for they shall be comforted.

“Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

“Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness: for they shall be filled.

“Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.

“Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

“Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

“Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

“Blessed are you, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and say all kinds of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

“Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

“You are the salt of the earth; but if the salt loses its savor, who shall it be salted? It is then good for nothing but to be cast out and to trampled underfoot by men.

“You are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hidden. Nor do they light a lamp and put it under a basket, but on a lampstand, and it gives light to all who are in the house. Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven.

“Do not think that I came to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I did not come to destroy but to fulfill. For assuredly, I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle will by no means pass from the law till all is fulfilled.

“Whoever therefore breaks one of the least of these commandments, and teaches men to do the same, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever obeys them and teaches others to do so, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. For I say to you, that unless your righteousness exceeds the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven.

“You have heard that it was said to those of old, ‘You shall not murder, and whoever murders will be in danger of the judgment.’ But I say to you that whoever is angry with his brother without a cause shall be in danger of the judgment. And whoever says to his brother, ‘Raca!’ shall be in danger of the council. But whoever says, ‘You fool!’ shall be in danger of hell fire. [see Extra Note 1]

“Therefore if you bring your gift to the altar, and there remember that your brother has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar, and go your way. First be reconciled to your brother, and then come and offer your gift.

“Agree with your adversary quickly, while you are on the way with him, lest your adversary deliver you to the judge, the judge hand you over to the officer, and you be thrown into prison. Truly, I say to you, you will by no means get out of there till you have paid the last penny.

“You have heard that it was said to those of old, ‘You shall not commit adultery.’ But I say to you that whoever looks at a woman to lust for her has already committed adultery with her in his heart.

“If your right eye causes you to sin, pluck it out and cast it from you; for it is more profitable for you that one of your members perish, than for your whole body to be cast into hell.

“And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and cast it from you; for it is more profitable for you that one of your members perish, than for your whole body to be cast into hell.

“It has been said, ‘Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.’ But I say to you that whoever divorces his wife for any reason except sexual immorality causes her to commit adultery; and whoever marries a woman who is divorced commits adultery. 21*

“Again you have heard that it was said to those of old, ‘You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform your oaths to the Lord.’ But I say to you, do not swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Nor shall you swear by your head, because you cannot make one hair white or black. But let your ‘Yes’ be ‘Yes,’ and your ‘No,’ ‘No.’ For whatever is more than these is from the evil one.

“You have heard that it was said, ‘An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.’ But I tell you not to resist an evil person. But whoever slaps you on your right cheek, turn the other to him also. If anyone wants to sue you and take away your tunic, let him have your cloak also. And whoever compels you to go one mile, go with him two.

Give to him who asks you, and from him who wants to borrow from you do not turn away.

"You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor * and hate your enemy.'

21† "But I say to you, love your enemies, bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you, and pray for those who spitefully use you and persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven; for He makes His sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust.

"For if you love those who love you, what reward have you? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? And if you greet your brethren only, what do you do more than others? Do not even the tax collectors do so?

"Therefore you shall be perfect, just as your Father in heaven is perfect."

Extra Note 1:

"Raca," is an Aramaic word of contempt or abuse meaning "empty head" or "worthless" [and is derived from a root word meaning "to spit" (on)]; the insult is about the same as the one that follows it, "Fool!" The punishments are also roughly equal: the (day of God's) judgment, the heavenly Sanhedrin (or supreme court), and hell. (Jewish literature described God's heavenly tribunal as a supreme court, or Sanhedrin, parallel to the earthly one.) "The hell of fire" is literally "the Gehenna of fire."

[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

The dangerous and destructive effect of human anger is likewise stressed throughout Scripture (e.g., Prov 20:2 ; 22:3 ; 29:22 ; 2 Cor 12:20 ; Gal 5:20 ; Eph 4:31 ; Col 3:8 ; James 1:20). Anger typically entails a desire to damage or destroy the other person, either in some personal way or literally in the form of murder (cf. Matt 5:21 and James 4:1-2). Calling someone a fool is closely related to anger, in that it represents a destructive attack on one's character and identity. Thus Jesus warns that the person who violates another person in this grievous way is liable to the hell of fire.

In this section of the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus is taking serious offences under the Hebrew Law and their punishments, and then holding up things considered mild, normal, acceptable behavior and saying that the punishment would be greater. Diagrammatically:

1. murder → judgment (human, implied)
2. anger → judgment (divine, implied)
3. [spit on] or calling someone a piece of spit → get them before the elders
4. calling someone a moron, a fool → Gehenna, hell, fire

In the same way that those who make great show of fasting, praying and charity have their reward on earth (and not in heaven), those who make great show of their sinfulness, through murder or using a taboo four-letter word, get their comeuppance here and now, but those of us who get away with lives full of anger and putting down others — in ways that seem oh-so mild — will have to account for our sins eventually. In a nutshell, we obsess about big sins, but we should look to root out those little evils that lurk in our hearts: the frustrations that cripple our lives and the badmouthing that destroys our relationships with others. And one other thing: perhaps, given this perspective, we are more forgiving then of the struggle to be good in the lives

Question: "Why did Jesus warn against saying the word raca in Matthew 5:22?"

Answer: Matthew 5:22 is the only passage in the Bible where the term raca is used. Raca comes from the Aramaic term reqa. It was a derogatory expression meaning “empty-headed,” insinuating a person’s stupidity or inferiority. It was an offensive name used to show utter contempt for another person. Jesus warned that the use of such a word to describe someone was tantamount to murder and deserving of the severest punishment of the law.

In Matthew 5:21, Jesus recalled the sixth commandment, “You shall not murder” (Exodus 20:13). In characteristic fashion, Jesus took the old law one step further by explaining the true significance of the law—a deeper, spiritual meaning they had never seen.

First, Jesus warns that the very act of murder finds its roots in an angry, murderous spirit: “But I tell you that anyone who is angry with his brother will be subject to judgment” (Matthew 5:22a). God, who examines the very thoughts and intents of the heart, will issue judgment upon unrighteous anger. Next, Jesus warns against name-calling, using “raca” as an example (verse 22b). Then He issues a third warning against those who call someone a “fool” (verse 22c).

The first-century Jews recognized that “anyone who murders will be subject to judgment” (Matthew 5:21), but Jesus warns that even calling another person insulting names such as “raca” is sinful. Murder begins in the heart, and epithets such as “raca” are signs that there is hatred lurking within. The hatred that causes one person to hurl insults is the same hatred that causes another to commit murder. The attitude of the heart is the same, and it’s this attitude that makes a person morally guilty before God.

Jesus not only warns us against expressing unrighteous anger, which can lead to murder, but clearly commands that disparaging denunciations and name-calling be avoided. Such abusive words reveal the true intents of one’s heart and mind for which we will be held in judgment: “I the LORD search the heart and examine the mind, to reward each person according to their conduct, according to what their deeds deserve” (Jeremiah 17:10; cf. 1 Samuel 16:7; 1 Chronicles 28:9).

Sea of Galilee from the Mount of Beatitudes (James Emery)

Extra Note 4.

What are the beatitudes?

The first 12 verses of this (Matthew 5:1-12) are know as the “Beatitudes”, because the main verses (8 total) all start with “Blessed are”.

The “Blessed are…” statements actually start in verse 3 on thru verse 11, with the 12th continuing and supporting the concepts stated in verses 10 and 11.

This section is one of the most loved portions of the Gospel. It forms the beginning of what has come to be known as the “Sermon on the Mount” which is recorded in Matthew 5-7. The preaching of this sermon may have come a little later in the chronology of the life of Christ; but Matthew placed it here at the beginning of Jesus’ ministry because it forms such a grand proclamation of the kingdom. It is the first of the five major discourses that Matthew includes.

The beatitudes, statements of characteristics and blessing, are part of the Sermon on the Mount that Jesus spoke and is recorded in Matthew. Each beatitude looks at different circumstances of life and how all Christians are blessed through their faith. Through these 8 beatitudes, Jesus teaches of virtues and values in life that will result in blessings and rewards.

Question: "What are the beatitudes?"

Answer: The Beatitudes are the eight declarations of blessedness spoken by Jesus at the beginning of the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:3-12), each beginning with "Blessed are..." It is debated as to exactly how many beatitudes there are. Some speak of seven, nine, or ten beatitudes, but the number appears to be eight (verses 10-12 of Matthew 5 being one beatitude).

The Greek word translated “blessed” means “happy, blissful” or, literally, “to be enlarged.” In the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus uses the word to refer to more than a superficial happiness; in this context, blessed refers to a state of spiritual well-being and prosperity. The happiness is a deep joy of the soul. Those who experience the first aspect of a beatitude (poor, mourn, meek, hungry for righteousness, merciful, pure, peacemakers, and persecuted) will also experience the second aspect of the beatitude (kingdom of heaven, comfort, inherit the earth, filled, mercy, see God, called sons of God, inherit the kingdom of heaven). The blessed have a share in salvation and have entered the kingdom of God, experiencing a foretaste of heaven. Another possible rendering of the beginning of each beatitude is “O the bliss [or blessedness] of . . . .”

The Beatitudes describe the ideal disciple and his rewards, both present and future. The person whom Jesus describes in this passage has a different quality of character and lifestyle than those still "outside the kingdom." As a literary form, the beatitude is also found often in the Old Testament, especially in the Psalms (1:1; 34:8; 65:4; 128:1) and in the New Testament as well (John 20:29; 14:22; James 1:12; Revelation 14:13).

Four of the Beatitude verses occur again in a slightly different form in the Gospel of St. Luke (6:20-23), likewise at the beginning of a sermon, and running parallel to Matthew, 5-7, if not another version of the same. And here they are illustrated by the opposition of the four curses (24-26).

The Sermon On the Mount, which the Beatitudes begin, is the first of five discourses in Matthew:

Jesus' Five Discourses

The authoritative message of the Messiah (Sermon on the Mount)	chs. 5-7
The authoritative mission of the Messiah's messengers	ch. 10
The mysteries of the messianic kingdom revealed in parables	ch. 13
The community of the Messiah revealed	chs. 18-20
The delay, return, and judgment of the Messiah (Olivet Discourse)	chs. 24-25

5:3-12 The Beatitudes all begin with “Blessed are . . .” They are called “beatitudes” from Latin beatus, “blessed, happy” (but see note on v. 3). These short statements summarize the essence of the Sermon on the Mount…More than a temporary or circumstantial feeling of happiness, this is a state of well-being in relationship to God that belongs to those who respond to Jesus' ministry.

5:1-12 1 The Greek word translated "blessed" is mak`rioi (3107), which means to be "fully satisfied." In Classical Greek, the word referred to a state of blessedness in the hereafter. In the NT, however, the term is used of the joy that comes from salvation (cf. Ps. 51:12). This satisfaction is not the result of favorable circumstances in life. It comes only from being indwelt by Christ. Therefore, it would be wrong to translate mak`rioi "happy" (derived from the English word "hap") because it is connected with luck or favorable circumstances.

Blessedness is not static, but progressive. This progress depends upon the fulfillment of the conditions set down in these Beatitudes:

(1) "The poor in spirit . . ." (ptochois [4434], v. 3) indicates a "helpless" person as opposed to penes (3993) which means "poor, but able to help oneself." The first step toward blessedness is a realization of one's own spiritual helplessness.

(2) "They that mourn . . ." (v. 4) are those who sorrow for their sins and the sins of others.

(3) The "meek" ones are willing to see themselves as they really are (v. 5). This concept they have of themselves is evidenced in their submission to God and His Word, as well as in their dealings with others.

(4) "They which do hunger . . ." (v. 6; from the Greek, hoi peinontes [3983]) could be better rendered "the hungering ones." This indicates a constant and recurrent satisfaction with God's righteousness; the nourishment received from being filled is expended in hungering anew for another filling.

(5) The "merciful" are characterized by a caring attitude for those who are in misery (v. 7). They take the heartaches of others and make them their own.

(6) "Purity of heart" can only be acquired through the continuous cleansing that believers experience when they have fulfilled the previous conditions of blessedness (v. 8). The purer a person becomes, the more clearly he can see God.

(7) A "peacemaker" is not simply someone who tries to stop the feuding between nations and people (v. 9). It is a believer that has experienced the peace of God and who brings that peace to his fellow human beings.

(8) Being "persecuted for righteousness' sake" causes a person to reach the highest level of the satisfaction of blessedness (v. 10).

This state of blessedness begins the very moment that a person believes on Jesus Christ for salvation. This is demonstrated by the fact that the promises concerning the kingdom of heaven in verses three and ten are in the present tense.

While in this life one may enjoy the results of implementing these truths, the ultimate condition of blessedness will be experienced in heaven (v. 12).

5:1 The Sermon on the Mount
This sermon not only reveals God's divine nature, it puts into our hands the most powerful of evangelistic weapons. It is the greatest evangelistic sermon ever preached by the greatest evangelist who ever lived. The straightedge of God's Law reveals how crooked we are:

v. 3: The unregenerate heart isn't poor in spirit. It is proud; self-righteous, and boastful (every man is pure in his own eyes--Proverbs 16:2).

v.. 4: The unsaved don't mourn over their sin; they love the darkness and hate the light (John 3:19).

v. 5: The ungodly are not meek and lowly of heart. Their sinful condition is described in Romans 3:13-18.
v. 6: Sinners don't hunger and thirst after righteousness. Instead, they drink iniquity like water (Job 15:16)

v. 7: The world is shallow in its ability to show true mercy. It is by nature cruel and vindictive (Genesis 6:5).

v. 8: The heart of the unregenerate is not pure; it is desperately wicked (Jeremiah 17:9).

Those who are born again manifest the fruit of the Spirit, live godly in Christ Jesus (vv. 3-9), and therefore suffer persecution (vv. 10-12). However, their purpose on earth is to be salt and light: to be a moral influence, and to bring the light to those who sit in the shadow of death (vv. 13-16)

Matthew 5:1-12: The Beatitudes, or Blessings

Mt Chapters 5-7 is the first block of teaching material in Matthew, dealing with the ethics of the kingdom . In 4:17 Jesus summarizes his message: "Repent, for the kingdom is at hand"; Mt 5-7 shows in greater detail the repentant lifestyle that characterizes the people of the kingdom. This block is introduced by a common Old Testament literary form called beatitudes: "Happy are those who . . . for they shall . . . " (e.g., Ps 1:1). (The form appears also in some Greek literature, but is more common in Jewish sources.) Here the blessings are the promises of the kingdom for those who live the repentant life. Jesus' hearers would have understood them especially as promises for the future time of God's reign; we must read them in the light of the present aspect of the kingdom as well (see "kingdom" in the glossary). The future kingdom was sometimes defined by images from the creation narratives or from Israel's exodus from Egypt, which the Jewish people regarded as their original redemption.

Mt 5:1-2. Although one would stand to read Scripture publicly, the most respected Jewish teachers would usually sit to expound it, often with disciples sitting at their feet. Some scholars have compared the "mountain" (cf. Lk 6:17) here to Mount Sinai, where God through Moses first taught his ethics by the law (Ex 19-20; cf. Isa 2:2-3).

Mt 5:3. Ancient writers and speakers would sometimes bracket a section of material by beginning and ending with the same phrase. These blessings involve the gift of the kingdom (5:3,10).

Many Jewish people believed that the kingdom would be ushered in only by a great war and force of arms; Jesus promises it for the "poor in spirit," the "humble" or "meek" (5:5), the peacemakers (5:9). Poverty and piety were often associated in Judaism; the term poor could encompass either physical poverty (Lk 6:20), or the faithful dependence on God that it often produced ("in spirit," as here).

Mt 5:4. Mourning was usually associated with either repentance or bereavement; the conjunction with "comfort" means that the second aspect is in view here. It could mean grief over Israel's sins, but in this context probably refers to the pain of the oppressed (it involves the broken, as perhaps in 5:3). "Comfort" was one of the blessings promised for the future time when God would restore his mourning people (Isa 40:1; 49:13; 51:3,12; 52:9; 54:11; 57:18; 61:2; 66:13).

Mt 5:5. Here Jesus cites Scripture (Ps 37:9,11). Not those who try to bring in the kingdom politically or militarily but those who humbly wait on God will "inherit the earth." The Hebrew of the psalm could mean "inherit the land" in a narrower sense (Ps 25:13), but in Jesus' day Jewish people expected God's people to reign over all the earth, as some other Old Testament passages suggest.

Mt 5:6. On the physically needy, see comment on Lk 6:20. Jewish people understood that God would also satisfy his people's needs in the future kingdom (Isa 25:6; 41:17-18; 55:2), as he had supplied for them in the exodus when he first redeemed them (Dt 6:11; 8:7-10). But the greatest object of longing should be God (Ps 42:1; 63:1) and instruction in his righteousness (Ps 119:40,47,70,92,97,103; Je 15:16).

Mt 5:7. Some later rabbis uttered similar statements (cf. also Pr 11:17). Like the peacemakers (v. 9), the merciful are not those who seek to bring in the kingdom by force. The mercy Jewish people generally hoped to receive was expected in the day of judgment (cf. Mi 7:18-19).

Mt 5:8. The "pure in heart" (Ps 73:1) were those in Israel whose hearts were "clean," or undefiled, those who recognized that God alone was their help and reward (Ps 73:2-28). The righteous would see God on the day of judgment (e.g., Isa 30:20), as in the first exodus (Ex 24:10-11).

Mt 5:9. Both the Jewish people and the righteous were called "sons of God" in Jewish tradition; the ultimate declaration of that fact would be made in the sight of the nations on the day of judgment (cf. Ho 1:10). Those teachers who came to dominate Pharisaism after the war of A.D. 66-70 were the ones who emphasized the way of peace rather than the way of revolt espoused by others. But many other Jewish leaders had joined in the spirit of revolt and were killed or came to be viewed as illegitimate leaders after the revolt's failure.

Mt 5:10-12. Many of the Old Testament prophets suffered in bringing God's word to Israel (e.g., Je 26:11); Jewish tradition amplified the number of prophetic martyrs further and made it a major emphasis. The burden of proof was always on the prophet who spoke what people wanted to hear (Je 28:8-9; cf. 6:14; 8:10-11; 23:17).

Most Jewish people did not believe that prophets still existed in the Old Testament sense, so Jesus' comparing his followers to the prophets indicated that they would have an extraordinary mission. To suffer for God was meritorious (Ps 44:22; 69:7), and Judaism highly honored martyrs for God's law; yet no other rabbi called disciples to die for his own teachings or name.

5:3-10 The good life (cf. Lk 6:20-22).

The discourse begins with a rounded portrait of the true disciple in the form of eight 'beatitudes'. Neither blessed nor 'happy' adequately translates makarios , which is rather a term of congratulation and recommendation. These qualities are to be envied and emulated; they make up 'the good life'. Each is followed by a reason, pointing out that no-one will be the loser by following this way of life, however unpromising it may appear in the short term. The rewards are at the level of spiritual experience and relationship with God rather than of material recompense. The key phrase, which opens and concludes the series, is theirs is the kingdom of heaven . This refers to the people who acknowledge God as their King and who may, therefore, confidently look forward to the fulfilment of his purpose in their lives.

Lk 6:20-22 offers only four beatitudes, balanced by four 'woes'. They are phrased in the second person and focus on the material and social condition of the disciples, rather than on the spiritual qualities set out here.

The Beatitudes (5:3–12) (Cf. Lk. 6:20–23.)
The contrast between the Sermon on the Mount and the Law-giving at Sinai is at its greatest here. The latter begins with the Ten Commandments [Decalogue], which give the fundamental laws governing the behaviour of those that would be in covenant relationship with God. The Beatitudes are addressed to those who show by their lives that they have achieved what the Decalogue demands. So far from being a new law, … the Sermon describes the life of those who by grace have passed beyond law. [See also: Extra Note 5]
For v. 3 cf. Isa. 11:4; 57:15; 61:1; for v. 4 Isa. 61:1; for v. 5 Ps. 37:11; for v. 6 Isa. 55:1 f.; for v. 8 Ps. 24:3 f.

[Source: Zondervan Bible Commentary]

5:1-7:27 Matthew seems to have presented Jesus' Sermon on the Mount and other discourses in his Gospel as actual events rather than as anthologies of Jesus' teaching, and thus parallels to individual sayings appearing elsewhere in the Gospels should be taken as evidence that Jesus taught similar things on multiple occasions. Matthew organized other major teachings of Jesus around specific events in His ministry (see 7:28; 11:1; 13:53; 19:1; 26:1).

Extra Note 5:

Sermon on the Mount vs Ten Commandments

Compare and Contrast https://sermonondamount.weebly.com/compare-and-contrast.html

Excerpt:

This compare and Venn Diagram compares and contrast two very significant parts if the Bible. The ten commandments and The Sermon on the Mount- 'The Golden rule.' There are a differences between the two but there are also a few similarities. One main difference that is obvious is that the 'Ten Commandments' were written in the Old Testament, while the 'Sermon on the Mount- The Golden rule' was written in the New Testament.

Another difference was that the Ten Commandments were written in negative (you shall not), while the Sermon on the Mount was spoken in positive. In the Ten Commandments, God showed Moses and the Israelites that he was mean, loud and not-friendly. But when Jesus came down on Earth had spoke on the mount, he explained and taught that God is not what they used to think he was. Jesus explained God to be loving, gentle and caring.

There are 3 similarities between these two events. The first is that both events happened on a mountain. This is was a very significant thing in the Bible. Many of the encounters with God were on a mountain. This is because the mountain is higher to the heavens then on the ground and when you are higher up on a mountain, you are closer to God. Another similarity is that they both had something to do with God the father and when these events happened, there was a crowd around Moses and Jesus.

The Ten Commandments, core of the Mosaic law http://www.sermononthemount.org.uk/Background/TenCommandments.html

Excerpt:

> …The Ten Commandments themselves are broadly divisible into an initial group (1-4), that concern people's relationship with God, and a later group (5-10), that concern relationships between people.
> Jesus' approach
> Jesus seems to have considered the first four commandments, those defining people's relationship to God, so foundational that he didn't always mentioned them when dealing with the commandments, but instead referred to just referred to the latter six, the inter-personal ones. Though the fourth, Sabbath observance, might, on some occasions, be omitted because of his disciples special status with regard to it (as discussed below). The final six commandments, Jesus seems to have recognised as a distinct group, which he sometimes chose to emphasise in isolation from the rest.
> Jesus' use of the final six commandments as a unit is illustrated by the account of his meeting with a rich young ruler. When a young man asks Jesus how he can inherit eternal life, Jesus tells him to obey commandments six to nine, then omits the tenth, before citing the fifth, just to make the omission more obvious (Matt 19:16-22, Luke 18:18-23). The parallel passage in Mark's Gospel (Mark 10:17-22) has Jesus substitute a hint at the tenth commandment rather than omit it altogether. Whichever is closer to what really happened, Jesus was expecting the young man to notice the error and queried it. When the expected query failed to materialise, Jesus knew to challenge the young man in that precise area.
> Jesus also focuses on the final six commandments in the Sermon on the Mount, where after commending those who have obeyed 1-3, in the Beatitudes (Matt 5:3-10), he affirms the fifth in his discussion of the significance of the divine law (Matt 5:13-20), and then, in the antitheses, considers what it meant for his followers to obey the final five commandments in the light of obeying the first three.

Jesus and the Ten Commandments

Excerpt:

> Jesus and the Decalogue (i.e., 10 Commandments)
> As a devout Jew, Jesus was familiar with the Hebrew Bible and among the early Christians there was profound interest in how his teaching related to the traditional teaching in Israel, which his enemies had accused him of flouting. This interest came especially from Jewish Christians, whose concerns and needs were of major significance to the author of Matthew's Gospel. … far from dispensing with the Ten Commandments of Israel, Jesus insisted on their continuing relevance and their fulfilment, and he even took pains to show their deeper significance and application for his followers (Mt 5:17-48). Moreover, all of the synoptic gospels make a point of recording the conversation between Jesus and the rich young man who wanted to know how to gain eternal life, when Jesus said, simply, 'keep the commandments' (Mk10:17-22; Mt 19:16-30; Lk 18:18-30). According to Mark, Jesus instanced those forbidding murder, adultery, theft, false witness, defrauding, and the command enjoining care for one's parents; but he added that one thing the young man was lacking was to 'follow' Jesus. Luke's later version is basically faithful to Mark's, but Matthew's version includes as a commandment, less than accurately, the injunction to 'love your neighbour as yourself', and adds, perhaps influenced by the earlier Sermon on the Mount (Mt 5:48), that if the young man wished to be 'perfect' he should 'follow' Jesus (Mt 19:19-21).

The Ten Commandments inform the teaching of Jesus in another conversation between him and a Jewish lawyer which is recorded by Mark and Matthew. Given the absolute authority of all the Ten Commandments, and the multiplication of many other minor laws and rules in Israelite observance, a question had arisen among the Jews and was now put to Jesus: was there any priority among them, and if so, which commandment was 'the first of all', as Mark phrases it (12:28), or 'the greatest', according to Matthew (22:34)? In his reply Jesus had no doubt: moving outside the Ten Commandments, he replied that 'the greatest and first commandment' was to love God totally (Mk 12:30; Mt 22:37-38; see Deut 6:5). And then, according to Mark, he added for good measure, as was usual with him, 'The second is this, "You shall love your neighbour as yourself"' (Mk 12:31), which Matthew records as, 'A second is like it: "You shall love your neighbour as yourself"' (Mt 22:39).

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT (CONTINUED): ALMSGIVING, THE LORD'S PRAYER, FORGIVING, TREASURES, GOD OR MAMMON, SUFFICIENT UNTO THE DAY

A.D. 28, Age 31 Near Capernaum.

Matthew 6: 1-34.

[Jesus continues,] "Take heed that you do not do your charitable deeds before men, to be seen by them. Otherwise you have no reward from your Father in heaven. Therefore, when you do a charitable deed, do not sound a trumpet before you as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory from men. Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward. "But when you do a charitable deed, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, that your charitable deed may be in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will Himself reward you openly.

"And when you pray, you shall not be like the hypocrites. For they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the corners of the streets, that they may be seen by men. Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward. But you, when you pray, go into your room, and when you have shut your door, pray to your Father who is in the secret place; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you openly.

"And when you pray, do not use vain repetitions as the heathen do. For they think that they will be heard for their many words. Therefore do not be like them. For your Father knows the things you have need of before you ask Him.

"In this manner, therefore, pray:

"Our Father (which art) in heaven, Hallowed be your name. Your kingdom come. Your will be done; on earth, as it is in heaven.

"Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

"And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one.

"For yours is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.

“For if you forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if you do not forgive men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

“Moreover, when you fast, do not be like the hypocrites, with a sad countenance. For they disfigure their faces that they may appear to men to be fasting. Assuredly, I say to you, they have their reward. But you, when you fast, anoint your head and wash your face, so that you do not appear to men to be fasting, but to your Father who is in the secret place; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you openly.

“Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroys and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

“The lamp of the body is the eye. If therefore your eye is good, your whole body will be full of light. But if your eye is bad, your whole body will be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in you is darkness, how great is that darkness!

“No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon. [see Extra Note 3]

“Therefore I say to you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink; nor about your body, what you will put on. Is not life more than food and the body more than clothing? Look at the birds of the air, for they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they?

“Which of you by worrying can add one cubit to his stature? So why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin; and yet I say to you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Now if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you, O you of little faith?

“Therefore do not worry, saying, ‘What shall we eat?’ or ‘What shall we drink?’ or ‘What shall we wear?’ For after all these things the Gentiles seek. For your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things.

“But seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added to you. Therefore do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about its own things. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble.

Footnotes

(See also the previous and the following chapters for more regarding the Sermon on the Mount.)

Extra Note 1:
Prayer for forgiveness appears in standard ancient Jewish prayers (note the sixth of the Eighteen Benedictions). Jewish teaching regarded sins as "debts" before God; the same Aramaic word could be used for both [sin/transgression/offense or debt]. Biblical law required the periodic forgiveness of monetary debtors (in the seventh and fiftieth years), so the illustration of forgiving debts would have been a graphic one (especially since Jewish lawyers had found a way to circumvent the release of debts so that creditors would continue to lend). [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 2:
*from the evil one: Or from evil. The alternate reading refers to sin in general; the NLT reading refers to Satan, the tempter (see Jas 1:13). Some manuscripts add For yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever. Amen; this doxology was added later (probably based on 1Chronicles 29:11-13) to tailor the prayer to the liturgy. [Source: New Living Translation Study Bible Notes]

"For yours is the kingdom and the power and the glory, forever. Amen" (ESV footnote) is evidently a later scribal addition, since the most reliable and oldest Greek manuscripts all lack these words, which is the reason why these words are omitted from most modern translations. However, there is nothing theologically incorrect about the wording (cf. 1 Chronicles 29:11-13), nor is it inappropriate to include these words in public prayers. [Source: ESV Study Bible note]

Parallels with ancient Jewish prayers, and possibly the Aramaic wording behind this verse, suggest that the first line means: "Let us not sin when we are tested"—rather than "Let us not be tested" (cf. 4:1; 26:41 in context; cf. Ps 141:3-4). Some scholars have suggested an allusion to the final time of suffering here, which was expected to precede the coming kingdom, but while such testing could be included, most Jewish prayers about testing were for strength in the present era. Because Jewish prayers were commonly used in liturgical contexts that ended with a statement of praise, later texts' addition of the benediction ("Thine is the kingdom . . . ") to the original text of Matthew is not surprising. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

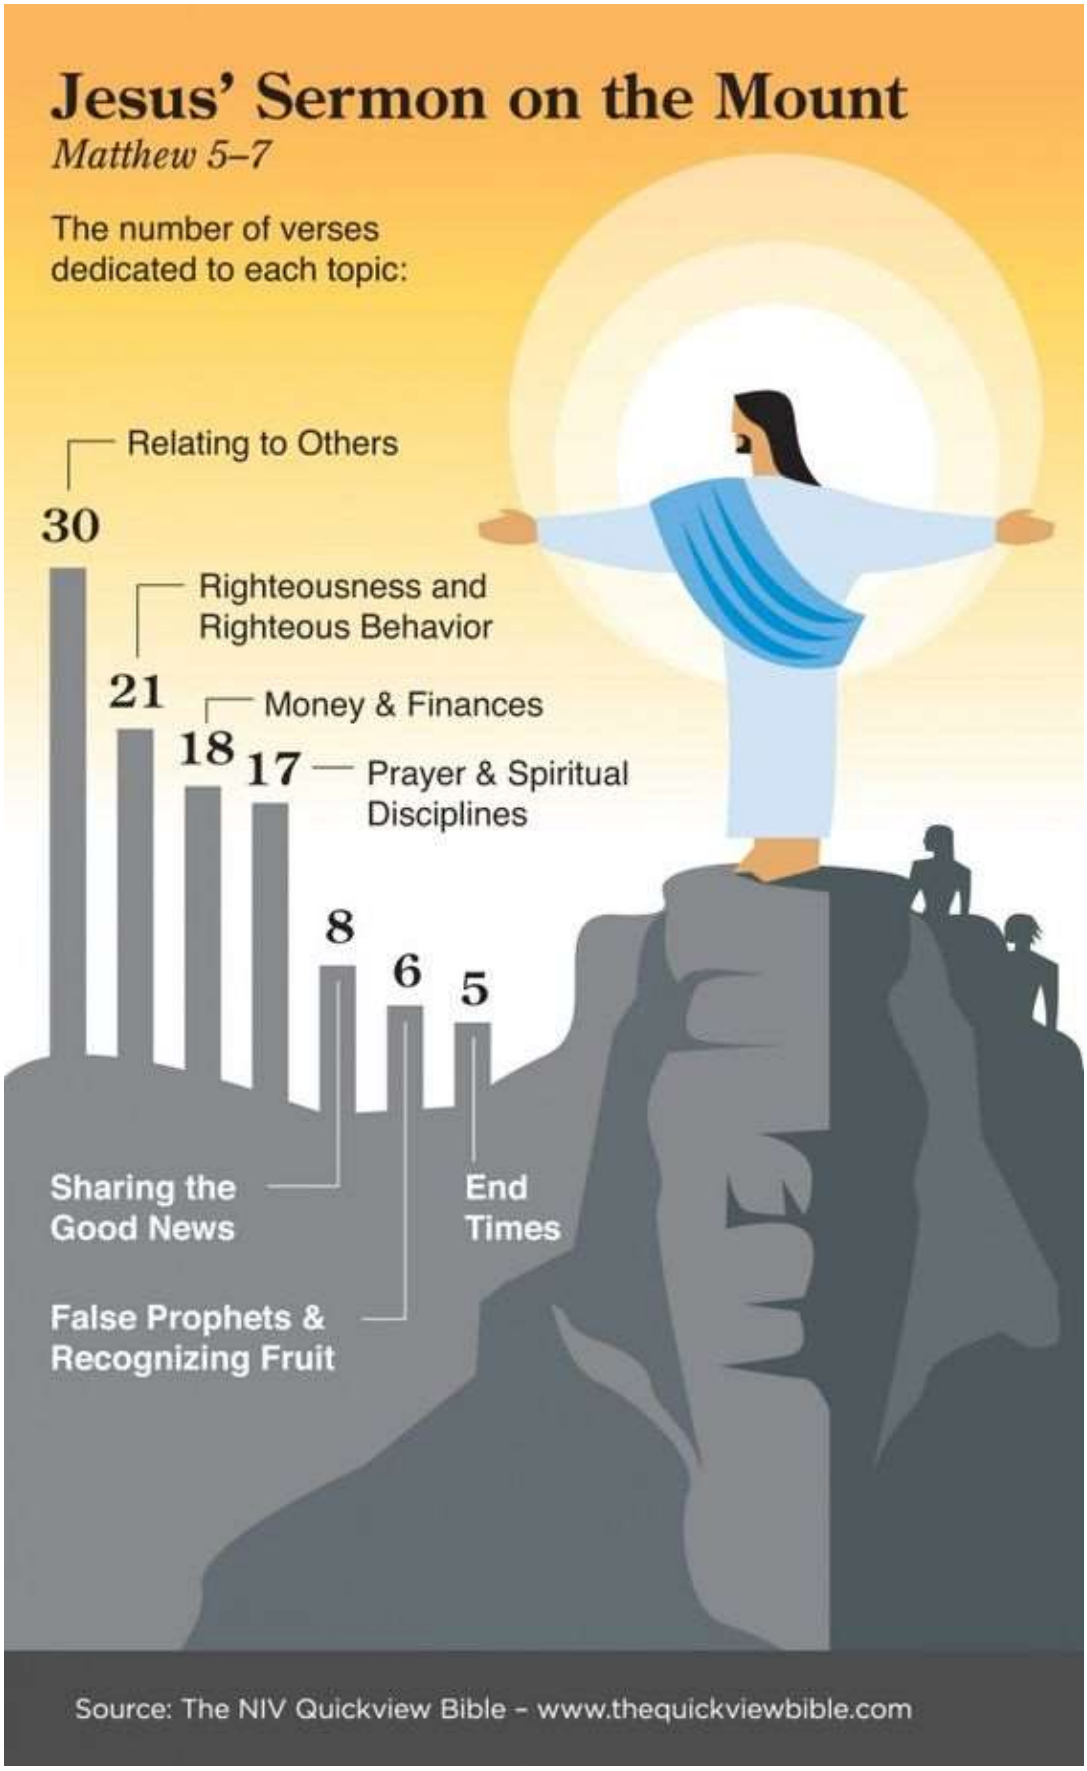
mammon, an Aramaic word – general term for material possessions (not necessarily ill-gotten gains); "money" is one possible translation.



Extra Note 4:

Two Prayers – The prayer in Matthew 6 (above) is slightly different from the prayer in Luke 11 (see Chapter L in this book). If you look closely at the text, you will see that Jesus taught this prayer on two different occasions and to two different groups of people. Matthew's version was part of the Sermon on the Mount. "Disciples" in this context referred to a rather large group of followers. In Luke's account, Jesus is speaking only to the twelve apostles.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT (CONCLUDED): JUDGE NOT, PEARLS BEFORE SWINE, PRAYER, THE GOLDEN RULE, THE STRAIT GATE, "I NEVER KNEW YOU," ROCK FOUNDATION

A.D. 28, Age 31 Near Capernaum.

Matthew 7: 1-29.

[Jesus continues,] "Judge not, that you be not judged. For with what judgment you judge, you will be judged; and with the measure you use, it will be measured back to you.

"And why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye, but do not consider the plank in your own eye? Or how can you say to your brother, 'Let me remove the speck from your eye'; and look, a plank is in your own eye? Hypocrite! First remove the plank from your own eye, and then you will see clearly to remove the speck from your brother's eye.

"Do not give what is holy to the dogs; nor cast your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn and tear you in pieces.

"Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened.

"Or what man is there among you who, if his son asks for bread, will give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will he give him a serpent? If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father who is in heaven give good things to those who ask Him!

24 * "Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets.

"Enter by the narrow gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leads to destruction, and there are many who go in by it. Because narrow is the gate and difficult is the way which leads to life, and there are few who find it.

"Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravenous wolves. You will know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes from thornbushes or figs from thistles? Even so, every good tree bears good fruit, but a bad tree bears bad fruit. A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. Therefore by their fruits you will know them.

"Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, 'Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in your name, cast out demons in your name, and done many wonders in your name?' And then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you; depart from me, you who practice lawlessness!'

"Therefore whoever hears these sayings of mine, and does them, I will liken him to a wise man who built his house on the rock: and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house; and it did not fall, for it was founded on the rock. But everyone who hears these sayings of mine, and does not do them, will be like a foolish man who built his house on the sand: and the rain descended, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house; and it fell. And great was its fall."

And so it was, when Jesus had ended these sayings, that the people were astonished at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. 24†

“In the epistle of James, the Holy Spirit has given the church a commentary on Jesus’ Sermon on the Mount and Sermon on the Plain, a commentary that is rich in applications for daily life.”

The similarities appear both in subject matter and in structure. Note the parallels between Matthew 7:1-27 [see also chapter XIV in this book] and James 2:1-26 below, especially Matthew 7:12 (cf. Matt. 22:39; Leviticus 19:18).

This brings up related a passage of James 5:1-6 [regarding rich people and wealth]…

James 5:6: ". . . for day laborers it was very serious not to find work or not to be paid. For this reason James personifies the salary, seeing it as the very blood of the exploited workers crying out pitifully. The case was the same for the peasants. The peasants die because they pour out their strength in their work, but the fruit of their work does not come back to them. They cannot regain their strength because the rich withhold their salaries. Therefore James accuses the rich of condemning and killing the just (5:6)."

These are strong words of warning. James evidently believed that his readers were erring in this area of their lives, and needed a severe shock! The Jews' gift for making money, and their interest in this pursuit, needed control. We need this warning too, since modern culture values money very highly.

As with James 1:10, there is a question about whether James was referring to rich Christians or rich unbelievers in this periscope [i.e., a set of verses that forms one coherent unit or thought]. Here, as there, I tend to think that James was probably referring to rich Christians. He seems to be addressing his readers rather than "speaking rhetorically, formally addressing non-Christians in 1:10 as well as . . . in 5:1-6, but saying this really for the benefit of his Christian readers, who were suffering at the hands of rich persecutors."

"THE WORLD'S VIEW OF RICHES	THE WORD'S VIEW OF RICHES
Money brings freedom.	The desire for money can be enslaving and lead to destruction; only Christ brings true freedom (1 Tim. 6:7-10).
Money brings security.	Worldly wealth is very insecure; it will quickly pass away (1:10). Real security is found in knowing and trusting God (Jer. 9:23, 24; 1 Tim. 6:17-19).
Money is what matters.	Christ and the kingdom of God are what matters (Matt. 6:33; Phil. 3:7-10).
Money is power.	Power comes from being filled with the Spirit (Acts 1:8; 3:1-10).
Money establishes not only your net worth, but your worth as a person.	Your worth is based on what God says, not what your bank statement says (John 3:16; Eph. 1:3-14).
Money makes you successful.	Success comes from knowing and doing what God says (Josh. 1:8).
Money gives you options.	God is the One who ultimately gives you options (Eph. 3:20).
Money brings happiness.	The happiness that money brings is short-lived. And in the long run, money can actually produce 'many sorrows' (1 Tim. 6:10). Lasting joy comes from knowing God (5:1-6; John 15:11; 16:24).
Money is your reward. Save it, and spend it on yourself.	Give as much as you can (Matt. 6:19-24; Acts 20:35; 2 Cor. 9:6-11; 1 Tim. 6:18).
Money is your possession. Spend it on whatever you want.	All that you have is God's to do with as He pleases. You are merely a manager of His possessions (Ps. 24:1; Luke 19:11-27; 2 Cor. 5:10)."[221]

Essentially the attitude of the rich that James condemned was: "Get all you can, as fast as you can, any way you can." In the following passage (James 5:7-12), he counseled a different attitude: to urge his readers, rich and poor, to practice patience.

A LEPER CLEANSED—THE DRAUGHT OF FISH—PALSIED MAN CURED

A.D. 28. Age 31. By Lake Gennesaret. Capernaum.

Matthew 8: 1-4, 9: 2-7; Mark 1: 40-45, 2: 1-12; Luke 5: 1-15 and 18-25.

When Jesus had come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. And behold, a leper came and worshiped him, saying, “Lord, if you are willing, you can make me clean.”

Then Jesus put out his hand and touched him, saying, “I am willing; be cleansed.”

Immediately his leprosy was cleansed. [see Extra Note 1]

And Jesus said to him, “See that you tell no one; but go your way, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”

However, he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the matter, so that Jesus could no longer openly enter the city, but was outside in deserted places; and they came to him from every direction.

So it was, as the multitude pressed about him to hear the word of God, that he stood by the Lake of Gennesaret, and saw two boats standing by the lake; but the fishermen had gone from them and were washing their nets. Then he got into one of the boats, which was Simon's, and asked him to put out a little from the land. And he sat down and taught the multitudes from the boat.

When he had stopped speaking, he said to Simon, “Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a catch.”

But Simon answered and said to Him, “Master, we have toiled all night and caught nothing; nevertheless at your word I will let down the net.”

And when they had done this, they caught a great number of fish, and their net was breaking. So they signaled to their partners in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both the boats, so that they began to sink.

When Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus’ knees, saying, “Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord!”

For he and all who were with him were astonished at the catch of fish which they had taken; and so also were James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon.

Jesus said to Simon, “Do not be afraid. From now on you will catch men.”

So when they had brought their boats to land, they forsook all and followed Jesus.

And again Jesus entered Capernaum after some days, and it was heard that he was in the house. Immediately many gathered together, so that there was no longer room to receive them, not even near the door. And he preached the word to them.

And, behold, men brought a paralytic (or one sick of the palsy 25†), lying on a bed carried by four men. They could not come near Jesus because of the crowd; and when they could not find a way they could bring him in, they went up on the housetop, and uncovered the roof where Jesus was, and let the paralytic down on his bed (or couch or mat) through the tiling with his bed into the midst before Jesus. [see Extra Note 2]

Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, “Son, be of good cheer; your sins are forgiven you.” 25 *

Some of the scribes and Pharisees who were sitting there, began reasoning in their hearts; saying among themselves, “This man blasphemes! Why does he speak blasphemies like this? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?”

Jesus knowing their thoughts said, “What do you reason about these things in your hearts? Why do you think evil? Which is easier to say to the paralytic, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Arise, and take up you bed and walk?’ But that you may know that the Son of man has power on earth to forgive sins” -- He said to the paralytic,”I say to you, arise, and take up you bed, and go to your house.”

Immediately he arose before them, took up what he had been laying on, and departed to his own house.

And they were all amazed, and they glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, “We never saw anything like these strange and incredible things today!”

[Extra Note 3]: Paralytic or Palsy?

Palsy is a medical term which refers to various types of paralysis or paresis, often accompanied by weakness and the loss of feeling and uncontrolled body movements such as shaking. The word originates from the Anglo-Norman paralisie, parleisie et al., from the accusative form of Latin paralysis, from Ancient Greek παράλυσις (parálusis), from παραλύειν (paralúein, "to disable on one side"), from παρά (pará, "beside") + λύειν (lúein, "loosen"). The word is longstanding in the English language, having appeared in the play Grim the Collier of Croydon, reported to have been written as early as 1599:

Rob. I'll have thee come, I say. Why tremblest thou?
Grim. No sir, not I; 'tis a palsy I have still.

In some editions [e.g., KJV], the Bible passage of Luke 5:18 [included in the chapter] is translated to refer to "a man which was taken with a palsy". More modern editions simply refer to a man who is paralysed. Although the term has historically been associated with paralysis generally, "is now almost always used in connection to the word cerebral—meaning the brain".

MATTHEW (LEVI) CALLED—HIS BANQUET—THE WHOLE NEED NOT A PHYSICIAN—JOHN'S DISCIPLES FAST: CHRIST'S FAST NOT—TWO PARABLES: OLD GARMENT, NEW WINE

A.D. 28, Age 31. Capernaum.

Luke 5: 27-39; Matthew 9: 9-17; Mark 2: 13-22.

Jesus went out again by the sea; and the multitudes came to him, and he taught them.

As he passed by, he saw a man, named Matthew (also called Levi, a publican [tax collector] 26*), the son of Alphaeus, sitting at the tax booth. And he said to him, "Follow me." [see Extra Note 1]

And he rose up, left all, and followed Jesus.

Levi made him a great feast 26‡ in his own house; and, many tax collectors and sinners were together eating with Jesus and his disciples.

But their scribes and Pharisees complained to his disciples, saying, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners? Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?"

When Jesus heard that, he said to them, "Those who are well have no need a physician, but those who are sick do. Go and learn what this means: 'I desire mercy and not sacrifice.' 26‡ For I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

Then, the disciples of John and the Pharisees, who used to fast often and make prayers, came and said to Jesus, "Why do your disciples not fast (but continue to eat and drink)?" [see Extra Note 2]

Jesus said to them, "Can you make the friends of the bridegroom fast, while the bridegroom is with them? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast. But the days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast in those days."

And he also told them a parable:

“No one tears a patch from a new garment and puts it on an old garment. Otherwise, not only will he tear the new, but also the piece from the new garment will not match the old.

“And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the new wine will burst the skins, it will spill, and the skins will be ruined. But new wine should be put into fresh wineskins. And no one, after drinking old wine, wants new, because he says, ‘The old is better.’”

Extra Note 1:
Levi (called “Matthew” in 3:18; see Matt 9:9) collects taxes [publican] and thus collaborates with Herod Antipas who, in turn, collaborates with the Roman Empire. As the occupying political force in the Jewish land of Palestine, Rome and all who collaborated with Rome were despised by pious Jews. The taxation system was corrupt, and most tax collectors skimmed money from the taxes for themselves. “Beside the sea” (Mark 2:13) and “in his house” (v. 15) suggest that the tax booth used by Levi was by the Sea of Galilee and was used for taxing fishermen.
[Source: ESV Study Bible notes]

The tax booth was a booth located on the edge of a city or town to collect taxes for trade. There was a tax booth in Capernaum, which was on the trade route from Damascus to Galilee and the Mediterranean. The “taxes” were collected on produce and goods brought into the area for sale, and were a sort of “sales tax” paid by the seller but obviously passed on to the purchaser in the form of increased prices. It was here that Jesus met Levi (also named Matthew [see Mt 9:9]) who was ultimately employed by the Romans, though perhaps more directly responsible to Herod Antipas. It was his job to collect taxes for Rome and he was thus despised by Jews who undoubtedly regarded him as a traitor. [Source: Net Bible notes]

Matthew is spoken of five times in the New Testament; first in Matthew 9:9, when called by Jesus to follow Him, and then four times in the list of the Apostles, where he is mentioned in the seventh (Luke 6:15, and Mark 3:18), and again in the eighth place (Matthew 10:3, and Acts 1:13). The man designated in Matthew 9:9, as "sitting in the custom house", and "named Matthew" is the same as Levi, recorded in Mark 2:14, and Luke 5:27, as "sitting at the receipt of custom". The account in the three Synoptics is identical, the vocation of Matthew-Levi being alluded to in the same terms. Hence Levi was the original name of the man who was subsequently called Matthew; the Maththaios legomenos of Matthew 9:9, would indicate this. The fact of one man having two names is of frequent occurrence among the Jews. It is true that the same person usually bears a Hebrew name such as "Shaoul" and a Greek name, Paulos. However, we have also examples of individuals with two Hebrew names as, for instance, Joseph-Caiaphas, Simon-Cephas, etc. It is probable that Mattija, "gift of Iaveh", was the name conferred upon the tax-gatherer by Jesus Christ when He called him to the Apostolate, and by it he was thenceforth known among his Christian brethren, Levi being his original name. Matthew, the son of Alpheus (Mark 2:14) was a Galilean, although Eusebius informs us that he was a Syrian. As tax-gatherer at Capharnaum, he collected custom duties for Herod Antipas, and, although a Jew, was despised by the Pharisees, who hated all publicans. When summoned by Jesus, Matthew arose and followed Him and tendered Him a feast in his house, where tax-gatherers and sinners sat at table with Christ and His disciples. This drew forth a protest from the Pharisees whom Jesus rebuked in these consoling words: "I came not to call the just, but sinners".

We first meet Matthew in Capernaum, in his tax booth on the main highway. He was collecting duties on imported goods brought by farmers, merchants, and caravans. Under the Roman Empire's system, Matthew would have paid all the taxes in advance, then collected from the citizens and travelers to reimburse himself. Tax collectors were notoriously corrupt because they extorted far and above what was owed, to ensure their personal profit. Because their decisions were enforced by Roman soldiers, no one dared object. Matthew was named Levi [from root meaning “joined”, “attached” or “pledged” or “lend” or “to take”] before his call by Jesus. We don't know whether Jesus gave him the name Matthew or whether he changed it himself, but it is a shortening of the name Mattathias, which means "the gift of God [YHWH]." On the same day Jesus invited Matthew to follow him, Matthew threw a great farewell feast in his home in Capernaum, inviting his friends so they could meet Jesus too. From that time on, instead of collecting tax money, Matthew collected souls for Christ. Despite his sinful past, Matthew was uniquely qualified to be a disciple. He was an accurate record keeper and keen observer of people. He captured the smallest details. Those traits served him well when he wrote the Gospel of Matthew some 20 years later.

Extra Note 2:
The Pharisees fasted twice a week — conspicuous piety. John's followers were probably fasting in mourning for him. The required public fasts were only three in number: the Day of Atonement; the day before Purim; and the ninth of Ab, commemorating the fall of Jerusalem.

[Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]

Wedding feasts could involve seven days of festivity; so crucial an obligation was joy that rabbis were said to pause their instruction to hail passing bridal processions. One was not permitted to fast or engage in other acts of mourning or difficult labor during a wedding feast. Jesus makes an analogy about the similar inappropriateness of fasting in his own time.

IN THE CORNFIELD ON THE SABBATH—"THE SABBATH WAS MADE FOR MAN"—THE WITHERED HAND—THE PHARISEES CONSPIRE—THE TWELVE ORDAINED—PARABLES

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum.

Matthew 12: 1-16; Mark 2: 23-28, 3: 1-15, 22-29; Luke 6: 1-13, 11: 24-26.

At that time Jesus went on the Sabbath day through the grainfields; and his disciples were hungry and began, as they went, to pick the head of grains, rubbing the grains with their hands and eating them. [see Extra Note 1]

And some of the Pharisees said to them, “Why are you doing what is not lawful to do on the Sabbath?”

Jesus said to them, “Have you never read what David and those with him did when he was in need and became hungry -- how he entered the house of God in the days of Abiathar the high priest, and ate the sacred bread, and gave it to his companions; which was not lawful for them to eat, except for the priests alone?

“Or have you not read in the law, how that on the Sabbath the priests in the temple profane the Sabbath, and are blameless?

“But I tell you, that in this place is one greater than the temple. But if you had known what this means, ‘I desire mercy and not sacrifice,’ you would have not condemned the guiltless.

“The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath: therefore the Son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath day."

On another Sabbath, Jesus entered into the synagogue and taught.

There was a man there whose right hand was withered. The scribes and Pharisees watched Jesus closely, whether he would heal on the Sabbath day, so they could accuse him.

But he knew their thoughts, and he said to the man, “Get up and stand in front of everyone.” The man arose and stood in their midst.

Then said Jesus to them, “I will ask you one thing: Is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do evil, to save life or to kill (or destroy) it?”

But they kept silent. And Jesus said,

“What man is there among you who has one sheep, and if it falls into a pit on the Sabbath, will not lay hold of it and lift it out? “Of how much more value then is a man than a sheep? Therefore it is lawful to do good on the Sabbath.”

When Jesus had looked round at them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.”

He did so, and his hand was restored as whole as the other.

The Pharisees were filled with rage; and they went out and met right away with the Herodians, plotting what they might do to destroy Jesus. [see Extra Note 2]

But when Jesus knew of it, he withdrew himself with his disciples to the sea. Great multitudes followed him and he healed them all. And he warned them not to make him known.

Jesus went up on the mountain and called for those he wanted and they came to him. He appointed twelve apostles [meaning “he that is sent” or messengers], that they might be with him and that he might send them out to preach, and to have power to heal sicknesses and to cast out demons. [see Extra Note 3]

They went into a house, but the crowds came back and they could not even eat. When Jesus’ family 28 ^ heard about this, they went out to restrain him, for they said, “He is out of his mind.”

And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, “He has Beelzebub,” and, “By the ruler of the demons he casts out demons.”

Jesus called them and spoke to them in parables, 28 *

“How can Satan cast out Satan?

“And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house is divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. And if Satan rises up against himself and is divided, he is not able to stand, but his end has come.

“No man is able to enter into a strong man’s house and steal his property unless he first ties up the strong man. Then he can plunder his house.

“Truly, I say to you, all sins will be forgiven the sons of men, and whatever blasphemies they may utter; but he who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit never has forgiveness, but is subject to eternal condemnation” — because they said, “He has an unclean spirit.”

29* "When an unclean spirit goes out of a man, it goes through dry places, seeking rest; and finding none, it says, 'I will return to my house from which I came.' "And when it comes, it finds the house swept and put in order. "Then it goes and brings seven other spirits more wicked than itself, and they enter in, settle down, and dwell there. [As a result], the last state of that man is worse than the first."

Cornfields [Grainfields]: Unfortunately Bible versions [such as the KJV] and commentators often speak of the growing of corn in Palestine. "Corn" is an old English generic term for grain and should not be confused with the maize of the New World, which Europeans only began using after the Spanish discovery of America.

Extra Note 2:
The Pharisees and the Sabbath (see Mt 12:1-14; Mk 2:23-3:6; Lk 6:1-11).
These two stories make clearer why some of Jesus' contemporaries found his mission unacceptable. As they saw it, he was a dangerous radical, undermining the obedience to the law which was at the heart of their religion [and Pharisee political power]. As such, he would be better eliminated (14).

Both stories focus on Sabbath law. The simple OT command to 'keep the seventh day holy' had been hedged about with a mass of subsidiary legislation to determine just what was and was not permissible on the Sabbath. Forbidden acts included reaping and healing where there was no immediate threat to life. The stories focus on Jesus' failure to observe these specific regulations; there is no suggestion that he was opposed to the Sabbath principle as such. The issue was how it should be interpreted and who had the right to interpret it.

In vs 3-8 Jesus makes this an issue of his personal authority and claims the right to dispense with regulations as David had done (1Sa 21:1-6) and as the temple priests were obliged to do in fulfilling their duties. In putting himself in the same company, Jesus in effect claims to be at least equal with David and greater than the temple; the same argument will be carried further in vs 41-42. If that is his status, then surely he is Lord of the Sabbath too. And his authoritative dismissal of Pharisaic tradition is in line with Hosea's principle that God is concerned with love before ritual (7; see also 9:13).

The healing of the shriveled hand could have waited until a weekday. Jesus, however, exposed the double standard of those who were prepared to make exceptions to alleviate animal suffering (or to avoid economic loss?) but not for human relief. His sweeping statement, ' It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath ', was in striking contrast with the Pharisees' tendency to multiply regulations. No wonder they had to oppose a man who so openly flouted both their authority and the principles they stood for.

The Pharisees were quite different from the Herodians (supporters and associates of Herod Antipas of Galilee and the Herodian family dynasty -- A loosely organized group that sought to advance the political and economic influence of the Herodian family (c. 37 B.C. - A.D. 93)). However, these two groups held counsel together (cf. Ps 2:2) in order to destroy their common enemy, Jesus (Mark 14:1-2). [Source: ESV Study Bible notes]

Cycle of Five "Conflict Stories" (Mark 2:1—3:6)

Mark seems to have intentionally grouped these five conflict stories together near the beginning of his Gospel. Note how each story ends with one or two brief sayings of Jesus, which seem to express the main point of the story. Note also how the conflict builds from one story to the next, culminating in the plot to kill Jesus in 3:6.

From corresponding NET notes for “friends” in Mark 3:21:

[43] tc Western witnesses D W it, instead of reading οἱ παρ’ αὐτοῦ (hoi par ’ aujtou , here translated “family”), have περὶ αὐτοῦ οἱ γραμματεῖς καὶ οἱ λοιποί (peri autou hoi grammateis kai hoi loipoi , “[when] the scribes and others [heard] about him”). But this reading is obviously motivated, for it removes the embarrassing statement about Jesus’ family's opinion of him as “out of his mind” and transfers this view to the Lord's opponents. The fact that virtually all other witnesses have οἱ παρ’ αὐτοῦ here, coupled with the strong internal evidence for the shorter reading, shows this Western reading to be secondary.

tn On the meaning “family” for οἱ παρ’ αὐτοῦ (hoi par ’ autou), see BDAG 756-57 s.v. παρά A.3.b. β . בּ .

sn The incident involving the religious leaders accusing Jesus of being in league with the devil (3:22-30) is sandwiched between Mark's mention of Jesus’ family coming to restrain him (the Greek word for restrain here is also used to mean arrest ; see Mk 6:17; 12:12; 14:1,44,46,49,51) because they thought he was out of his mind (3:21). It is probably Mark's intention in this structure to show that Jesus' family is to be regarded as not altogether unlike the experts in the law [scribes] in their perception of the true identity of Jesus; they are incorrect in their understanding of him as well. The tone is obviously one of sadness and the emphasis on Jesus' true family in vv. 31-35 serves to underscore the comparison between his relatives and the scribes on the one hand, and those who truly obey God on the other.

In Mk 3:20-35 we are introduced directly to the family of Jesus-the new family that he came to establish, that we become part of when we follow him. Having called the Twelve to him [in Mark, see Chapter XX], Jesus now returns to town (3:20). Probably he is back at his Capernaum base, and maybe this is once more the house we have been in before, first in chapter 1 and then again in chapter 2. Not surprisingly, he will have to face his opponents again as well as the crowds. The fact that opposition now also comes from his own human family must have hurt. It is against this background of false accusations, of blindness and hostility towards Jesus, that he shows us his true family.

The story focuses around two ideas about Jesus-the first from Jesus' physical family, who think he is mad, and the second from the religious authorities, who think he is possessed by evil. Jesus and his team are so busy that they don't have time for a lunch-break (3:20). It is quite possible to read the report in verse 21 as, ' People were saying , "He is out of his mind."' In other words, a rumour is doing the rounds that Jesus is mad. Alternatively, it could mean (as the NIV translators have assumed) that the family themselves have come to that conclusion. Either way, it is the family who feel that they have no choice but to come and take him away. Yes, Jesus is a thirty-year-old man who is living an independent life, but in a culture where the honour of the family is so vital, they simply have to follow up on stories like this. It is a question of honour or shame, just as it is in the Middle East even today. Presumably it is what Jesus has been saying, the claims he has been making, that has led people to say that he is mad. After all, he has been claiming to forgive people's sins in his own name! (2:5). He has been announcing that, now he has arrived, God is in action again, doing new things-in fact, God's longed-for kingdom is here.

Interestingly, it seems that the final straw is the report that Jesus isn't getting regular meals. Like many mothers, Mary is probably most concerned that her eldest son should be eating properly! So the family set off, and they will appear again shortly. [This is in fact the first example in the Gospel of bracketing -a device Mark uses to illustrate one story by means of another. There is a striking example in chapter 11, where the cursing of the fig tree is an acted parable illustrating the downfall of the temple. In this case Mark is highlighting the fact that Jesus' own physical family understand him no better (at this point) than his religious adversaries.]

Meanwhile, the religious leaders are getting in on the act (3:22).

https://hermeneutics.stackexchange.com/questions/20823/in-mark-3-is-it-jesus-family-or-friends-who-try-to-take-him-away

Read in isolation the text does not tell us clearly whether those who came and said "He is beside himself" were friends or family. However, the context gives a possible answer, because Mark 3:20-21, Mark 3:22-30, Mark 3:31-35 form an intercalation or sandwich (A1-B-A2). This is listed by John Dominic Crossan in The Birth of Christianity, page 106, as among the six Markan intercalations most widely recognised by New Testament scholars.

A Markan intercalation is a literary device the author uses for mutual emphasis of two otherwise unrelated issues. The first issue begins with the claim that Jesus had lost his senses (A1), followed by the scribes saying that Jesus was in league with the devil (B), then Jesus rejecting his family, saying that, for him, his followers were now his mother and brethren (A2). Family ties were strong, so Mark needed a compelling reason to say that Jesus would reject his family, and their prior rejection of him provides that reason.

This sandwich matches the people who came and said "He is beside himself" (Mark 3:20-21, event A1) with his brethren and his mother (Mark 3:31-35, event A2), providing evidence that the people in Mark 3:21 were actually Jesus' family.

REV Bible Commentary

"when his family heard this." The Greek is idiomatic: literally, "those who were beside him," but that is an idiom that generally refers to friends, family, or associates, and here the context favors Jesus' family (cp. Mark 3:31). The Greek is para (#3844 παρά), a preposition usually meaning "beside." Thus the book of Mark is vague here, saying only that these people were those who were beside him. This is a case when we have to rely on other parallel records to give the details, and we learn what happened from the scope of Scripture. Matthew 12:46 and Luke 8:19 let us know that this group of people is his mother and brothers. At this point, Jesus' brothers did not believe in him (John 7:5) and thought he was out of his mind. It is not clear what Mary thought. Given the way Jesus said, "Who is my mother" (Matt. 12:48), it is possible and perhaps even likely that, although Mary knew Jesus was the Messiah, she was confused about him and thought that he had somehow gotten away from what he was supposed to do as Messiah. The common teaching of the day about the Messiah was wrong, for example, that he would never die. It is also possible, however, that with her husband dead she was not able to stand against her sons who would have been running the family at the time.

This record of Jesus' family coming to take charge of him is a clear indication that Jesus' stepfather, Joseph, was dead; otherwise, he would have been leading the group. That means Joseph died between the time Jesus was 12 (Luke 2:42) and the time he started his ministry. He had worked with his father, the builder, and had become a builder himself (Mark 6:3). This group "set out" to take him. They arrive in verse 31.

"to seize him." In the honor-shame society of the ancient Near East, if a family member was behaving in such a way that the family thought he or she was bringing shame to the family, members of the family would seize the offending person and take physical charge of him. Women were sometimes killed for dishonoring the family, and this is still known today as "honor killing." Jesus was in a precarious situation if his family had won the crowd, but as it turned out (and we are not told exactly how this occurred) his family left without taking him with them.

"they were saying." Jesus' family was saying that Jesus was out of his mind, and they were supported in what they thought by others who were saying basically the same thing (e.g., Mark 3:22).

THE TWELVE BY NAME—THE SERMON IN THE PLAIN: BENISONS AND ADMONITIONS, PRECEPTS, THE GOLDEN RULE (AGAIN), JUDGE NOT, GIVE

A.D. 28. Age 31. Near Capernaum.

Matthew 10: 2-4; Mark 3: 16-19; Luke 6: 14-38.

In those days Jesus went out to a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. When it was day, he called his twelve disciples to himself.

Now the names of these twelve apostles are: 29‡ Simon [whom he also surnamed Peter], and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; James the son of Alpheus, and Thomas; and Lebbeus whose surname was Thaddeus [Judas 30:†]; Philip, Bartholomew; and Matthew the publican 30.; and Simon called the Zealot, the Canaanite; and Judas Iscariot, who was also a traitor and betrayed Jesus. [see Extra Note 1]

Jesus came down with them and stood on a level place with a crowd of his disciples and a great multitude of people from all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the seacoast of Tyre and Sidon, who came to hear him and be healed of their diseases, as well as those who were tormented with unclean spirits. And they were healed. And the whole multitude sought to touch him, for power went out from him and healed them all.

Jesus lifted up his eyes toward his disciples, and said:

“Blessed are you poor, for yours is the kingdom of God.

“Blessed are you who hunger now, for you shall be filled.

“Blessed are you who weep now, for you shall laugh.

“Blessed are you when men hate you, and when they exclude you, and revile you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake.

“Rejoice in that day and leap for joy! For indeed your reward is great in heaven, for in like manner their fathers did to the prophets.

“But woe to you who are rich, for you have received your consolation.

“Woe to you who are full, for you shall hunger.

“Woe to you who laugh now, for you shall mourn and weep.

“Woe to you when all men speak well of you, for so did their fathers to the false prophets.

“But I say to you who hear:

“Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, and pray for those who spitefully use you.”

“To him who strikes you on the one cheek, offer the other also. And from him who takes away your cloak, do not withhold your tunic either.

“Give to everyone who asks of you. And from him who takes away your goods do not ask them back.

31.* “And just as you want men to do to you, you do the same to them.”

“But if you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners love those who love them. And if you do good to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same. And if you lend to those from whom you hope to receive back, what credit is that to you? For even sinners lend to sinners to receive as much back.

”But love your enemies, do good, and lend, hoping for nothing in return; and your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High. For He is kind to the unthankful and evil. Therefore be merciful, just as your Father also is merciful.

“Judge not, and you shall not be judged. Condemn not, and you shall not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven.

“Give, and it will be given to you: good measure, pressed down, shaken together, and running over will be put into your bosom. For with the same measure that you use, it will be measured back to you.”

29:† As to the names of "the twelve," a comparison of the texts is interesting: Matthew 10: 2-4; Mark 3: 14-19; Luke 6: 13-16; and ("the eleven") Acts 1: 13. [See also Extra Note 1 for chart]

30:† According to Strong’s: g2280. Θαδδαῖος Thaddaios; Thaddaeus = "large hearted, courageous" one of the twelve apostles. From a comparison with the catalogue of apostles in Lk 6:16, and Acts 1:13, is seems that Judas, Lebbaeus and Thaddaeus were the same person, and the writer of the book of Jude.

Extra Note 1:

Lists of the 12 Apostles occur in Mark 3:16-19; Luke 6:13-16; Matthew 10:2-4 and Acts 1:13.

Comparing the four lists, we note that there appear to have been three groups of four disciples each. Peter, Philip, and James the son of Alphaeus seem to have been the leaders of these groups (see rows 1,5 and 9).

Peter's name occurs first, here, as in all the other lists, probably because he was the "first among equals." Matthew may also have listed him first because he became the leading apostle to the Jews.[879] James' name occurs before his brother John's, probably because James was older. Matthew described himself humbly as "the tax collector."

Thaddaeus ("Warm-Hearted") and Judas the son (or brother) of James, seem to be two names for the same man, and Simon the Cananaean seems to have been the same person as Simon the Zealot. The Zealots constituted a political party in Israel, centered in Galilee. They sought independence from the Roman occupation of Israel.[880] However, the name Zealot did not become a technical term for a member of this revolutionary group until the time of the Jewish Wars (A.D. 68-70).[881] So Zealot here probably refers to Simon's reputation for religious zeal.[882] Cananaean is the Aramaic form of Zealot and does not refer to the land of Canaan.

Iscariot may mean of Kerioth, the name of two Palestinian villages, or the dyer, his possible occupation. It may be a transliteration of the Latin sicarius, another Zealot-like movement.[883] Some scholars believe that Iscariot means false one and comes from the Aramaic seqar meaning falsehood.[884] The names Andrew and Philip are Greek and probably reflect the more Hellenistic flavor of their hometown, Bethsaida, which was on the east bank of the Jordan River (John 1:44).

These men became Jesus' main agents in carrying out His mission, though Judas Iscariot, of course, proved to be a hypocritical disciple. Probably Matthew described the Twelve in pairs because they went out in pairs (Mark 6:7)

Note: All the Apostles were from Galilee; except for Judas Iscariot, who was possibly from Judah.

THE SERMON IN THE PLAIN (CONCLUDED)—MORE PARABLES—"WHY CALL YE ME, LORD, LORD?"—ROCK FOUNDATION

A.D. 28. Age 31. Near Capernaum.

Luke 6: 39-49.

And he spoke a parable to them,

“Can the blind lead the blind? Will they not both fall into the ditch? A disciple is not above his teacher, but everyone who is perfectly trained will be like his teacher.

“And why do you look at the speck in your brother's eye, but do not perceive the plank in your own eye? “Or how can you say to your brother, ‘Brother, let me remove the speck that is in your eye,’ when you yourself do not see the plank that is in your own eye? You hypocrite! First remove the plank from your own eye, and then you will see clearly to remove the speck that is in your brother's eye.

“A good man out of the good treasure of his heart brings forth good; and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart brings forth evil. For out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaks.

“But why do you call me ‘Lord, Lord,’ and not do the things which I say? Whoever comes to me, and hears my sayings and does them, I will show you whom he is like:

“He is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid the foundation on the rock. And when the flood arose, the stream beat vehemently against that house, and could not shake it, for it was founded on the rock. But he who heard and did nothing is like a man who built a house on the earth without a foundation, against which the stream beat vehemently; and immediately it fell. And the ruin of that house was great.”

THE CENTURION'S SERVANT HEALED—THE WIDOW'S SON RESTORED

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum. Nain.

Matthew 8: 5-13; Luke 7: 11-18.

When Jesus had entered Capernaum, a centurion came to him, pleading with him, saying, “Lord, my servant is lying home paralyzed (sick of the palsy), dreadfully tormented.

The elders of the Jews came, saying, “He was worthy: for he loved our nation, and has built us a synagogue.”

And Jesus said to the centurion, “I will come and heal him.”

The centurion answered, “Lord, I am not worthy that you should come under my roof. But only speak a word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man under authority, having soldiers under me. And I say to this one, ‘Go,’ and he goes; and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes; and to my servant, ‘Do this,’ and he does it.”

When Jesus heard it, he marveled, and turned and said to the people that followed him,

“Truly, I say to you, I have not found such great faith, not even in Israel! And I say to you that many will come from east and west, and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. But the sons of the kingdom will be cast out into outer darkness. There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

Then Jesus said to the centurion, “Go your way; and as you have believed, so let it be done for you.”

And his servant was healed that same hour. 32* [see Extra Note 1]

The day after, Jesus went into a city called Nain; and his disciples went with him, and a large crowd.

Now when he came near the gate of the city, behold, a dead man was being carried out, the only son of his mother; and she was a widow. And a large crowd from the city was with her.

When the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her and said to her, “Do not weep.”

Then he came and touched the open coffin, and those who carried him stood still.

And he said, “Young man, I say to you, arise.”

So he who was dead sat up and began to speak.

And Jesus presented him to his mother.

Then fear came upon all, and they glorified God, saying, “A great prophet has risen up among us”; and, “God has visited His people.”

And this report about him went throughout all Judea and all the surrounding region.

(And the disciples of John [the Baptist] reported to him all of all these things.)

Footnotes

32:* Luke (7: 2-10) goes further into details regarding the centurion than does Matthew (above), but does not quote Jesus so fully.

Extra Note 1: The centurion and his servant were non-Jewish soldiers in the army of occupation. Behind the man's reluctance to be visited by Jesus is the problem of relations between Jews and Gentiles: a Jewish teacher could not be expected to defile himself by entering a Gentile house. His simple acceptance, however, in soldier's jargon, of Jesus' practical authority over illness is evidence of a faith beyond that of anyone in Israel. By including Jesus' striking saying in v 11-12 (cf. Lk 13:28-29), Matthew draws out the implications of this contrast for the future development of the people of God. Many will come from the east and the west (and this Gentile ‘believer’ is a prototype of them) and join the Jewish patriarchs at the Messianic banquet, which all Jews expected to enjoy as of right. At the same time, however, the Jewish subjects of the kingdom who did not share this Gentile's faith would find themselves outside, in the place which popular belief assigned to the Gentiles. The basis of acceptance in the kingdom of heaven would no longer be racial origin but faith. The unusual healing from a distance (cf. 15:21-28, also involving a Gentile ‘patient’) was thus an appropriate response to this Gentile's faith (13). [Source: New Bible Commentary]

A centurion was a Roman officer in charge of 100 soldiers. At that time Palestine had been under Roman control for about 100 years. Roman officers, all too often, were brutal and despised men. But some of them, influenced perhaps by the Jewish religion, were good men. The first Gentile to be received into the church was a centurion named Cornelius (Acts 10). SYNAGOGUE — The Bible tells us that a Roman centurion built a synagogue here for the Jews (Luke 7:1-5). His servant was later healed from severe palsy by Jesus (Matthew 8:5-13; Luke 7:1-10). The remains of what must have been a beautiful basalt synagogue has been discovered by archaeologists. As expected for such a sacred building, it was found at the highest point in town.

Capernaum synagogue wall with earlier basalt level below—the remains of the synagogue where Jesus taught

This is the synagogue where our Lord frequently taught (John 6:59; Mark 1:21; Luke 4:33). Here, Jesus cured a demon-possessed man (Mark 1:21-28) and delivered the sermon on the bread of life (John 6:25-59). He even restored the life of the daughter of one rulers of this synagogue (Mark 5:22; Luke 8:41).

The synagogue is near the lake, and is built so that when the Jews prayed here, they faced Jerusalem. It was destroyed along with Jerusalem's temple, around 70 A.D. Many years later, it was replaced with a white stone synagogue (perhaps 250-300 A.D.) (shown above).

Archaeological evidence indicates the town did not begin until the 2nd century B.C., which explains why it is only mentioned in the New Testament, not the Old. It is located below sea level, and is 10 miles (16 kilometers) from Tiberias. The ruins can be reached by road or boat. (Photo by BiblePlaces.com —a ChristianAnswers associate.)

Under the monumental building are the remains of the early Roman synagogue from the times of Jesus, which was built with the local (black) basalt rock. This earlier synagogue was the center of activities of Jesus, where he taught (Mark: "And they went into Capernaum; and straightway on the Sabbath day he entered into the synagogue, and taught.")

JOHN, FROM PRISON, SENDS MESSENGERS—JESUS REPLIES—EXTOLS JOHN: A SERMON WITH PARABLES—"FRIEND OF SINNERS"

A.D. 28 . Age 31. Galilee, near Cana.

Matthew 11: 2-15, 16-19; Luke 7: 24-35.

Now when John had heard in prison about the works of Christ, he sent two of his disciples and said to Jesus "Are you the Coming One, or do we look for another?"

And that very hour he cured many of infirmities, afflictions, and evil spirits; and to many blind he gave sight.

Then said Jesus to the two disciples [of John],

"Go and tell John the things you have seen and heard: that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, the poor have the gospel preached to them. And blessed is he who is not offended $32_{\pm}$ because of me."

When the messengers of John were departed, Jesus began to speak to the multitude of people concerning John, $32_{\pm}$

"What did you go out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken by the wind? But what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Indeed those who are gorgeously appareled and live in luxury are in kings' courts. But what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I say to you, and more than a prophet.

"This is he of whom it is written: 'Behold, I send My messenger before Your face, Who will prepare Your way before You.'

"For I say to you, among those born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist; but he who is least $32^{\wedge}$ in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

"And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffers violence, and the violent take it by force. For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John.

"And if you are willing to receive it, he is Elijah who is to come. [see Extra Note 1]

"He who has ears to hear, let him hear!

The people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him.

Jesus said, “To what then shall I liken the men of this generation, and what are they like? They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to one another, saying:

‘We played the flute for you,
And you did not dance;
We mourned to you,
And you did not weep.’

“For John the Baptist came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, ‘He has a demon.’ The Son of Man has come eating and drinking, and you say, ‘Look, a glutton and a winebibber, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!’

“But wisdom is justified by all her children.”

Footnotes

32:† ". . . be offended in me: find in me nothing to his hurt.

32:‡ The reader interested in comparing the two texts of Christ's address "to the people concerning John" will note that Luke's (7, 24-35) is briefer than Matthew's (11, 7-30).

32:^ After John comes a shift of eras. The new era is so great that the lowest member of it (the one who is least in the kingdom of God) is greater than the greatest one of the previous era.

Extra Note 1:
The last reference to John the Baptist was to his imprisonment (Matthew 4:12). It seems that from prison he followed the progress of the one for whom he had prepared the way. In this section we see not only John's verdict on Jesus' ministry (2-6), but also Jesus' verdict on John (7-15) and his comments on how both of them had been received by people at large (16-19).

John's question (3) suggests that he was surprised by Jesus' style of ministry. The fierce judgment he himself had preached (3:11-12) was not yet obvious, and Jesus' concern for the helpless and unimportant resulted in a far more ‘low-key’ image than John may have hoped for. In reply, Jesus wove together OT texts (mainly Isa 35:5-6 and 61:1-2), which found clear and visible fulfilment in his deeds recorded in chs. 8-9. Unexpected as they may have been to John, these acts of mercy were indeed the ‘deeds of the Messiah’ (the literal meaning of the phrase what Christ was doing; v 2). Those who do not recognize them as such have always found Jesus hard to take (6; fall away on account of is lit. ‘be scandalized by’).

Despite this implied rebuke, however, Jesus went on to commend John as a true prophet, and more. In his rugged, unconventional preaching the people had themselves recognized the authentic voice of God's spokesman. But, great as he was, John was still only the forerunner (10, quoting Mal 3:1), the last and greatest of the prophets, the returning Elijah who was to inaugurate the last days (Mal 4:5-6). God's decisive new initiative, the kingdom of heaven, had begun with Jesus, and John stood only on its threshold (as indeed his ambivalent response to Jesus indicated). Note in v 13 the strong sense of the whole OT revelation, law, no less than prophets, as pointing forward to Jesus and finding their fulfilment in him (cf. 5:17).

But, different as John and Jesus were in their style and their message, there was no pleasing some folk, as the playful little parable of vs 16-19 points out. John's ascetic lifestyle was branded as fanatical, and Jesus' convivial approach was thought scandalous. But God's wisdom is wiser than human prejudice and is justified (vindicated) by the very actions which this generation despised.

WOE UNTO CHORAZIN, BETHSAIDA, CAPERNAUM—"COME UNTO ME . . . MY YOKE IS EASY"

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum?

Matthew 11: 20-30; Luke 10: 13-15.

Then He began to rebuke the cities in which most of His mighty works had been done, because they did not repent: 33*

"Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say to you, it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of judgment than for you.

"And you, Capernaum, who are exalted to heaven, will be brought down to Hades; for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. But I say to you that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for you."

At that time Jesus said,

"I thank you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that you have hidden these things from the wise and prudent and have revealed them to babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in your sight.

"All things have been delivered to me by my Father, and no one knows the Son except the Father. Nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and the one to whom the Son wills to reveal him.

"Come to me, all you who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

"Take my yoke upon you and learn from me, for I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

Footnotes

33:* This censure of "the cities," and the homage, "I thank thee, O Father," are from Matthew (11:20-27). In Luke (10:13-15 and 21;22) is a paraphrase, being a part of Christ's admonition of the "other seventy . . . sent two and two into every city." Turn to XLVIII in this book.

THE WOMAN WITH THE ALABASTER BOX OF OINTMENT, AND SIMON THE PHARISEE: PARABLE OF THE TWO DEBTORS

A.D. 28. Age 31 Galilee (Capernaum?).

Luke 7: 36-50.

Then one of the Pharisees [Simon 34^] asked him to eat with him. And he went to the Pharisee's house, and sat down to eat.

And behold, a woman in the city who was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at the table in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster flask of fragrant oil, and stood at his feet behind him weeping; and she began to wash his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head; and she kissed his feet and anointed them with the fragrant oil. 34*

Now when the Pharisee [Simon] who had invited him saw this, he spoke to himself, saying, “This Man, if he were a prophet, would know who and what manner of woman this is who is touching Him, for she is a sinner.”

And Jesus answered him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.”

So he said, “Teacher, say it.”

“There was a certain creditor who had two debtors. One owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing with which to repay, he freely forgave them both. Tell Me, therefore, which of them will love him more?”

[see Extra Note 1]

Simon answered and said, “I suppose the one whom he forgave more.”

And He said to him, “You have rightly judged.”

Then he turned to the woman, and said to Simon, “Do you see this woman?

“I entered your house; you gave me no water for my feet, but she has washed my feet with her tears and wiped them with the hair of her head.

“You gave me no kiss, but this woman has not ceased to kiss my feet since the time I came in.

“You did not anoint my head with oil, but this woman has anointed my feet with fragrant oil.

"Therefore I say to you, her sins, which are many, are forgiven, for she loved much. But to whom little is forgiven, the same loves little."

And he said unto her, "Your sins are forgiven."

And those who sat at the table with Jesus began to say to themselves, "Who is this who even forgives sins?"

Then Jesus said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you. Go in peace."

THE MAN BLIND, MUTE, AND BEDEVILED—DOUBTING PHARISEES ADMONISHED—PARABLES—"EVERY IDLE WORD"

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum.

Matthew 12: 22-37; Luke 11: 17-23; Mark 3: 22-29.

Then one was brought to Jesus who was demon-possessed, blind and mute; and he healed him, so that the blind and mute man both spoke and saw.

And all the multitudes were amazed and said, “Could this be the Son of David?” Now when the Pharisees heard it they said, “This fellow does not cast out demons except by Beelzebub, the ruler of the demons.”

But Jesus knew their thoughts, and said to them,

35* “Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will not stand. If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself. How then will his kingdom stand? Because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub.

“And if I cast out demons by Beelzebub, by whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges.

“But if I cast out demons by the Spirit of God, surely the kingdom of God has come upon you.

“Or how can one enter a strong man's house and plunder his goods, unless he first binds the strong man? And then he will plunder his house.

“When a strong man, fully armed, guards his own palace, his goods are in peace. But when a stronger than he comes upon him and overcomes him, he takes from him all his armor in which he trusted, and divides his spoils.

“He who is not with me is against me, and he who does not gather with me scatters abroad.

“Therefore I say to you, every sin and blasphemy will be forgiven men, but the blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven men.

“Anyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man, it will be forgiven him; but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven him, either in this age or in the age to come.

“Either make the tree good and its fruit good, or else make the tree bad and its fruit bad; for a tree is known by its fruit.

“Brood of vipers! How can you, being evil, speak good things? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. A good man out of the good treasure of his heart *brings forth good things, and an evil man out of the evil treasure brings forth evil things.

“But I say to you that for every idle word men may speak, they will give account of it in the day of judgment.

“For by your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned.”

DOUBTERS SEEK A SIGN—"A GREATER THAN SOLOMON IS HERE"—PARABLE: THE BACKSLIDER

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum.

Matthew 12: 38-45.

Then some of the scribes and Pharisees answered, saying, “Teacher, we want to see a sign from you.”

But he said to them, “An evil and adulterous generation seeks after a sign, and no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the great fish, so will the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

“The men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and indeed a greater than Jonah is here. [see Extra Note 1]

“The queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with this generation and condemn it, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and indeed a greater than Solomon is here.

“When an unclean spirit goes out of a man, he goes through dry places, seeking rest, and finds none. Then he says, ‘I will return to my house from which I came.’ And when he comes, he finds it empty, swept, and put in order. Then he goes and takes with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter and dwell there; and the last state of that man is worse than the first. So shall it also be with this wicked generation.” 37*

Extra Note 1:

[Source: Halley's Bible Handbook]

Jesus Christ referred to Jonah as a historical person and to his experience as real (Matthew 12:38-42; 16:4; Luke 11:29-32). Jonah is the only Old Testament character with whom Jesus Christ compared Himself directly. Jesus did refer to other prophets, however, namely: Elijah, Elisha, and Isaiah—besides quoting and alluding to many others.

"If the three days' confinement of Jonah in the belly of the fish really had the typical significance which Christ attributes to it . . . it can neither be a myth or dream, nor a parable, nor merely a visionary occurrence experienced by the prophet; but must have had as much objective reality as the facts of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ."

J. Vernon McGee argued that Jonah died and God raised him back to life on the basis of Jesus' words about him (Matt. 12:39-40). Jesus' prediction does not require that interpretation. Most conservative expositors believe that Jesus' prediction does not require that interpretation.

It is unlikely that the writer would have given us the name of Jonah's father if he was not a real person. Furthermore, the narrator presented Jonah as a real person, not a mythical or fictitious figure.

Summary of Jonah (name means "Dove")

The book of Jonah is Narrative History and a Prophetic Oracle. The prophet Jonah wrote it approximately 785-760 B.C. before Assyria conquered Israel's Northern Kingdom. Key personalities include Jonah, the captain and the ship's crew and the people of Nineveh.

The purpose of this book is to show that God is a merciful and gracious God. Although the wicked city of Nineveh deserved to be crushed immediately, God was patient towards them. A reluctant prophet, Jonah originally ran from God before delivering a message of repentance to the nation of Nineveh.

• In chapter 1, God directed Jonah to go to Nineveh however; Jonah disobeyed, boarded a ship and headed for Tarshish. The sailors of the ship became concerned because of the great storm that brewed and Jonah explained that God was bringing judgment upon him. The sailors threw him into the sea where he was swallowed by an enormous fish. "And the LORD appointed a great fish to swallow Jonah, and Jonah was in the stomach of the fish three days and three nights" (1:17).

• Chapter 2-3, After God had the fish cough him up, three days later; Jonah obeyed God and went to Nineveh to fulfill his mission. Jonah preached a message of repentance and to his surprise, the sinful city repented. "Then the people of Nineveh believed in God; and they called a fast and put on sackcloth from the greatest to the least of them" (3:5).

• In chapter 4, God deals with Jonah and teaches him about His love and compassion.

"...knew that You are a gracious and compassionate God, slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness, and one who relents concerning calamity" (4:2). Nineveh's repentance must have been short-lived; it was destroyed in 612 B.C.

The following outline points out some of the parallels in the story nicely…

C. Jonah's rescue (1:17—2:10 [2:1-11])
1. God's grace (1:17 [2:1])
2. Jonah's praise (2:1-9 [2-10])
3. God's last word (2:10 [11])
II. Heathen Sinners Saved (3:1—4:11)
God's Mercy on Nineveh

Timetable of the Book of Jonah

DEPARTURE	DESTINATION	ARRIVAL	CHAPTER

Nineveh	Gourd Vine	Heart of God	4

Note: Jonah is the only Old Testament prophet on record whom God sent to a heathen nation with a message of repentance.

Purpose: "The main purpose of the book is to teach Israelites that God loves other nations than their own; or, in fact, to teach us that he loves other nations than our own. In service of this purpose, Jonah stands for most Israelites—or most of us—as he represents the typical attitude people tend to have toward nations they have no reason to love themselves."

Short Outline of Jonah:

Chap. 1 – "I won't go"
Chap. 2 – "OK, I'll go"
Chap. 3 – "Here I am"
Chap. 4 – "I knew I shouldn't have come"

Theme: "The overriding theme of the book is the sovereign God's grace toward sinners, illustrated in His decision to withhold His judgment from the guilty but repentant Ninevites."

Message: The message of Jonah then is that God will give us His heart of compassion for the lost as we execute the commission that He has given us.

(1) This is the one book of the Old Testament which sets forth the resurrection of Jesus Christ. . .

(2) The book of Jonah teaches that salvation is not by works, but it is by faith which leads to repentance. . . The most significant statement in the book of Jonah is in the second chapter: "Salvation is of the Lord" (Jonah 2:9). He is the author of salvation; He erected the great building of our salvation; He is the architect.

(3) The third great purpose of this book is to show that God's purpose of grace cannot be frustrated. Jonah refused to go to Nineveh, but God was still going to get the message to Nineveh. The interesting thing in this particular case is that Jonah was going to be the witness for God in Nineveh – he didn't know he was going there, but he did.

(4) The fourth great truth in this book is that God will not cast us aside for faithlessness. He may not use you, but He will not cast you aside. There are a lot of football players sitting on the bench; in fact, more sit on the bench than play in the game. A player is called out to play only when it is believed that he can make a contribution to the game. If you and I are faithless, God may bench us; but we are still wearing our uniform, and He will not cast us aside. Anytime we want to get back in the game of life and do His will, He will permit us to do it.

(5) The fifth great truth is that God is good and gracious. Read Jonah 4:2 for the most penetrating picture of God in the entire Bible. It is wrong to say the Old Testament reveals a God of wrath and the New Testament reveals a God of love. He is no vengeful deity in the book of Jonah.

(6) The sixth and last great teaching is that God is the God of the Gentiles. When God chose Abraham, in effect He said to the Gentiles, "I'm going to have to leave you for a while because of the sin that has come into the human family. I'm going to prepare salvation for you through a man and a nation, and I'll bring the Redeemer, the Saviour into the world through them." Now God has a salvation for all mankind. I have written Romans 3:29 over the book of Jonah in my Bible. Paul writes, "Is he the God of the Jews only? Is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also." The book of Jonah reveals that even in the Old Testament God did not forget the Gentiles. If He was willing to save a woman like Rahab the harlot, and a brutal, cruel nation like the Assyrians and the inhabitants of Nineveh, its capital, then I want to say to you that God is in the business of saving sinners.

God makes two kinds of promises—Unconditional and Conditional.

A. Many of God's promises are unconditional, and nothing we can do will change them. For example, God promised to make Abraham the father of many nations, and that is exactly what occurred. The same is true of the rainbow, which is a symbol of God's promise to never again destroy the earth with a flood.

B. Conditional promises, on the other hand, depend upon the choices that we make. Take the story of Jonah for example. God instructed him to preach the message of coming judgment to the people of Nineveh in order to bring them to repentance. His purpose was accomplished through His servant, and the punishment was prevented.

Scripture Lesson:

Jonah - The Costly Decision to Run From God by Charles Stanley

I. Introduction: Anytime that we choose to disobey the Lord's specific instructions to us, we are running from Him. The story of Jonah illustrates what can happen when a person rebels against the Almighty. The narrative teaches us a powerful lesson about the foolishness of resisting God's will.

II. What can we learn from the story of Jonah?

A. The Lord does not withdraw His command simply because we are unwilling to obey it. Although Jonah ran from God's will, the divine command remained unchanged.
If you don't hear the Lord's voice, ask Him to communicate in a way that you can understand. The Father speaks to us through His Word, through our conscience, and through the Holy Spirit.

B. It is impossible to run from God successfully.

1. Jonah took a ship "to flee to Tarshish and from the presence of the LORD" (Jonah 1:3). When God sent a fierce storm that threatened to capsize the boat, the prophet told the sailors to cast him overboard if they wanted to survive. Apparently, he was willing to die rather than obey God (v. 12). Only after Jonah found himself in the belly of "a great fish" was he willing to obey the Lord (Jonah 2:1-9).

2. How do people today attempt to run from God? They act to please themselves rather than do what the Lord desires of them. For example, they ignore wise counsel regarding a potential marriage partner or refuse to discipline their children. You cannot disobey God without it costing you in some way.

C. Running from the Lord results in painful circumstances. The greater the call on your life, the more guilt you will feel when you choose to rebel. Jonah felt so uncomfortable that he was willing to die. He told the sailors, "Throw me into the sea" (Jonah 1:12). Sin always results in loss of some kind. We may lose abilities, time, money, opportunities, or relationships.

D. When you run from God, your disobedience will often bring pain and loss to others. Jonah's rebellion cost the sailors their cargo and, therefore, their profit from the voyage. He also endangered their lives. We like to think that sin is a private matter and no one will be hurt by our disobedience. But when we rebel against the Lord, there is always a price.

E. The Father's grace frequently provides a second chance.

1. Many times the Lord gives us another opportunity to obey Him. After the sea creature deposited Jonah on land, the prophet traveled to Nineveh and preached to the people.They responded to the divine warning and turned from their evil ways (Jonah 3:1-5).

2. The Lord isn't looking for perfect men and women; rather, He seeks those who are available to serve Him. When judgment didn't fall on the wicked city, the prophet was so angry and depressed that he asked the Lord to take his life (Jonah 4:1-8). But God used Jonah despite his attitude.

F. Running from God can be eternally disastrous. Scripture says that we reap what we sow (Gal. 6:7-8). Those who run from the Lord by choosing not to believe in His Son will reap eternal separation from Him.

III. Conclusion: When believers rebel against God's will, they bring pain and loss upon themselves as well as other people. The good news is that the Lord often gives a second chance to obey Him. Have you been running from your Creator in some area of your life? If so, return to the Father and give Him complete control. He delights to work through available, obedient servants.

Jonah - History:

It is very probable that God sent Jonah to Nineveh, at this time a very significant city of the great Assyrian Empire, during the years when the nation was relatively weak. During this 37-year period, Assyria had difficulty resisting its neighbors to the north. These invaders pushed the northern border of Assyria south, to within 100 miles of Nineveh. This vulnerable condition evidently made the king and residents of Nineveh receptive to Jonah's prophetic message to them.

Nineveh stood on the eastern bank of the Tigris River. It had walls 100 feet high and 50 feet thick, and the main one, punctuated by 15 gates, was over seven and one-half miles long. The total population was probably about 600,000—including the people who lived in the suburbs outside the city walls (cf. 4:11). The residents were idolaters and worshipped Asur and Ishtar, the chief male and female deities, as did almost all the Assyrians. Assyria was a threat to Israel's security (cf. Hos. 11:5; Amos 5:27). This is one reason Jonah refused to go to Nineveh. He feared the people might repent and that God would refrain from punishing Israel's enemy (4:2).

From the death of Elisha to the prophesying of Amos nearly forty years must have elapsed, during which the only recorded prophetic voice is Jonah's.

Jewish and Christian interpreters believed that the Book of Jonah was historical until the rise of critical scholarship.

Jesus Christ referred to Jonah as a historical person and to his experience as real (Matt. 12:38-42; 16:4; Luke 11:29-32). Jonah is the only Old Testament character with whom Jesus Christ compared Himself directly. Jesus did refer to other prophets, however, namely: Elijah, Elisha, and Isaiah—besides quoting and alluding to many others.

One of the characteristics that marked the Israelites was their exclusivity. During the reign of Jeroboam II, when Jonah ministered, Israel was expanding geographically. She was forming alliances with her neighbor nations. However at the same time, she was more exclusive religiously than she ever had been. The Israelites believed that their privileged relationship with God needed guarding so the Gentiles would not take it from her, as they had taken so many other things. The Israelites projected their hostile attitude toward the Gentiles onto Yahweh. They thought of Him as hostile to their enemies too. Jonah epitomized that attitude. God gave His people this book to teach them that His attitude toward those outside the covenants and promises was quite different from theirs, and theirs should be different too.

Who Was Jonah?
Name means "dove"; father's name means "truthful, loyal" Matt. 12:41
Jonah was a real person preaching to real people; 2 Kings 14:25; ministered during reign of Jeroboam II in N. Kingdom of Israel

Was Jonah's message to Nineveh (Complete, Too Much, Not Enough, Wrong)?
NO, it was incomplete but God still used it.
How does this encourage you to share the message of God's grace with others?

What did Jesus have to say about Jonah? Read Matthew 12: 38-39
Jesus is God's son who came to tell us about God's love. More importantly, Jesus came to save us so that we can become God's children. During Jesus' ministry, He talked with Jewish leaders who did not believe in Jesus. One time, the Jewish leaders (called Pharisees) asked Jesus to give them a miraculous sign. Jesus told them that the sign of the prophet Jonah was the most important miracle.

For as Jonah was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall so the Son of man be to this generation.

From Where and About What is Jonah's Prayer?
The prayer (ch 2) is mainly thanksgiving for deliverance from drowning. It is not thanksgiving for deliverance from the fish. Jonah prayed it while he was in the fish. Evidently he concluded after some time in the fish's stomach that he would not die from drowning. Drowning was a particularly distasteful form of death for an ancient Near Easterner such as Jonah who regarded the sea as a great enemy.

Jonah was in the whale's belly for 3 days and 3 nights.

Who was included in Nineveh's repentance?
Felt so serious about this repentance that they included the animals – they were headed for destruction as well

APPROACHES TO THE STUDY OF JONAH:
1. Striking resemblance between Jonah and Paul. Both were missionaries to the Gentiles; both were shipwrecked; both were witnesses to the sailors on board the ship, and both were used to deliver these sailors from death. There are other striking comparisons which a careful study will reveal. Paul made three missionary journeys, and with his trip to Rome, there were four. The four chapters of the Book of Jonah may be divided into four missionary journeys of Jonah: (1) into the fish, (2) out onto dry land, (3) to Nineveh, and (4) to the heart of God.
2. Timetable approach. When you consult a timetable in a railroad station or airport, there are three important factors you note: (1) destination, (2) departure time, and (3) arrival time. It is possible to construct the four brief chapters of Jonah into the form of a timetable.

Interpretations: Historical (with symbolic and typical teaching)/ Allegorical (representing elements in the historical and religious experience of the Israelites / Parabolic (moral story with a spiritual lesson).

Jonah:
I. HE WAS A MAN FILLED WITH HATE—PREACHING GOD'S LOVE.
II. HE WAS A MAN SEEKING JUDGMENT—PREACHING GOD'S MERCY.
III. HE WAS A FAILURE EVEN IN HIS SUCCESS.

3 Stages in Coming to Grips with the Mercy of God:
I. Stage #1 – God Demonstrated His Mercy (3:10)
II. Stage #2 – Jonah Despised God's Mercy (4:1-4)
III. Stage #3 – God Defends His Mercy (4:5-11)

Jonah was probably the first of the eighth-century writing prophets (ca. 780 B.C.). Other eighth-century prophets who ministered to the Northern Kingdom of Israel, beside Jonah, were Hosea (760 B.C.), who emphasized the love of God, and Amos (760 B.C.), who emphasized the righteousness of God. Isaiah (740 B.C.) stressed the holiness of God, and Micah (735 B.C.) the leadership of God to the residents of the Southern Kingdom of Judah. Jonah reveals the compassion of God primarily. It is an important balancing revelation among these other prophetic messages.

All of God's activities in this book proceeded from this basic attitude. We might conclude that God sent Jonah to preach against Nineveh only because He was angry with it, because of its sin. Certainly it was under His judgment for its sins, but the last verse reveals the underlying motive of God: His compassion.

Seen in this light, the troublesome statement that God changed His mind in 3:10 becomes less problematic. The Hebrew word used here, nacham, carries the connotation of being relieved and comforted. We should hear God sighing in relief when we read this verse. When Nineveh repented, God saw that judgment would not be necessary, and this made Him very glad. When people turn from their sin, God turns from judging them. Of course, God's judgment of sin is a manifestation of His love, but we do not often appreciate that fact.

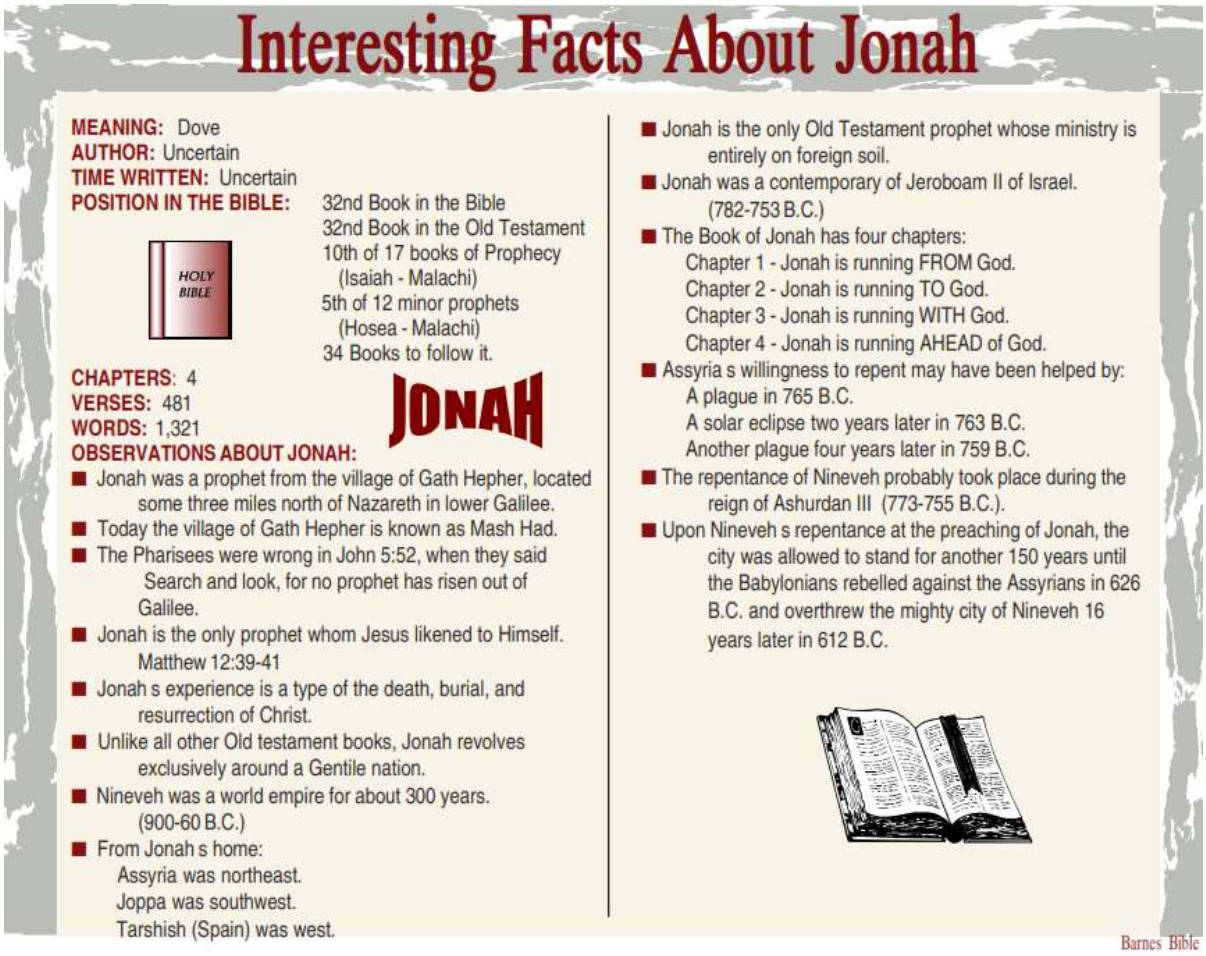
What the book reveals about God's dealings with Jonah (2 things):

First, God needs messengers. In one sense, God needs no one and nothing because He is self-sufficient. However in another sense, He has chosen to send His messages through people. The New Testament expression of this truth is: "How shall they hear without a preacher?" (Rom. 10:14). God has chosen to use human messengers to carry most of His messages to other humans.

The second thing that we see, as we examine God's dealings with Jonah, is that because God needs messengers, He is persistent and patient with the messengers He selects. We see this in God not abandoning Jonah when he boarded the ship to go to Tarshish. We see it in God preparing a fish to preserve and transport him back to dry land. We see it in God re-commissioning Jonah. We see it in His providing a gourd to shelter the prophet. We see it in God's patient teaching when Jonah was burning up with heat and anger. We see it in God's attempts to bring Jonah into sympathy with His merciful purpose. In all these instances, we see God lovingly persuading the prophet to share His fellowship by sharing His attitude.

Notice that when Jonah was disobedient to God, there was still much about him that was commendable. This is often true of us in our disobedience, and it often encourages us in our disobedience. Jonah went down to Joppa and found a ship waiting. Often when we disobey God we find that circumstances seem to accommodate us and cooperate with us. Jonah evidently paid his own fare. If he did, that was commendable responsibility. Nevertheless, all these circumstances that Jonah could have viewed as indications that he was doing right, clearly were not indicating that. He never reached Tarshish. God did not allow him to go that far. God gave him some freedom, but He eventually brought him up short. Likewise, God does not remind us at every turn that we are disobedient, but He will bring us to the point of acknowledging our disobedience (cf. 1:7). He will not take His hand off of us.

The church's failure in evangelism and missions is not due primarily to our failure to know God and His compassion. We know Him. We have even experienced His compassion in our own lives. Our failure is due mainly to our dislike for those under God's judgment: our Ninevites. Perhaps we need to admit that we really do not want to see the world saved. The evidence of this is that we are much happier enjoying the spiritual comforts of being God's chosen people than we are reaching out to the lost. Some Christians hate the lost, just as Jonah did. Why do we not reach out to the city in which we live? Perhaps it is because we do not like the people who live there.



How can we overcome this problem? We will not overcome it by trying to love those whom we hate. That is humanly impossible. What we must do is what Jonah did. We must begin by simply obeying God, by doing what He has told us to do, namely: go to them with the message of deliverance. In other words, we should love our Lord even though we may not love the lost. When we obey Him, as Jonah did, God will begin to deal with our attitude toward those under His judgment (cf. John 21).

The Book of Jonah deals with the problem of exclusivism: the sin of concluding that if we have received God's compassion, it is for ourselves alone. What we need to do is begin obeying the commission that God has given us. Hopefully our obedience will arise out of love for Him, but it may arise out of our learning that disregarding that commission can result in much pain for us. In any case, we need to obey. Then God will begin to teach us love for the unlovely. That, too, may be a painful learning process, but God will be very tender with us as He teaches us. We will also enter into true fellowship with our Savior, who wept over Jerusalem, because we will share His heart of compassion.

The message of Jonah then is that God will give us His heart of compassion for the lost as we execute the commission that He has given us.

HIS MOTHER AND BRETHREN WOULD SPEAK WITH JESUS—FROM SHIP TALKS TO HEARERS ON THE SHORE: THREE PARABLES ON SEEDS, ONE ON THE CANDLE

A.D. 28, Age 31, Capernaum: Sea of Galilee.

Matthew 12: 46-50, 13: 1-30; Mark 3: 31-35, 4: 1-29; Luke 8: 4-18, 19-21.

While Jesus was still talking to the multitudes, behold, his mother and brothers stood outside, seeking to speak with him. Then one said to him, “Look, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, seeking to speak with you.”

But he answered and said to the one who told him, “Who is my mother? and who are my brothers?”

And Jesus looked around in a circle at those who sat about him and stretched out his hand toward his disciples and said, “Behold my mother and my brothers! My mother and my brothers are these who hear the word of God and do it.

“For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and my sister and mother.”

On the same day Jesus went out of the house and sat by the sea. And great multitudes were gathered together to him, so that he got into a boat and sat; and the whole multitude stood on the shore. [See Extra Note 1]

Then he spoke many things to them in parables, saying: $37_{\pm}$

“Behold, a sower went out to sow. And as he sowed, some seed fell by the wayside; and it was trampled down, and the birds of the air came and devoured them.

“Some seed fell on stony ground, where they did not have much earth; and they immediately sprang up because they had no depth of earth. But when the sun was up they were scorched; and because they had no root, withered away. [as per Matt./Mark]

“Some fell on rock; and as soon as they sprang up, they withered away because they lacked moisture. [as abbreviated per Luke]

“And some fell among thorns, and the thorns sprang up with them and choked them, and they yielded no crop.

“But other seed fell on good ground and yielded a crop that sprang up, increased and produced: some thirtyfold, some sixty, and some a hundred.”

And he said to them, “He who has ears to hear, let him hear!”

When Jesus was alone, his disciples came and said to him, “Why do you speak in parables?

He answered, “Because it has been given to you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given: to those who are outside, all things come in parables, 38 * “For whoever has, to him more will be given, and he will have abundance; but whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him.

“Therefore I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear, nor do they understand.

“And in them the prophecy of Isaiah is fulfilled, which says: 38:†

‘Hearing you will hear and shall not understand,
And seeing you will see and not perceive;
For the hearts of this people have grown dull.
Their ears are hard of hearing,
And their eyes they have closed,
Lest they should see with their eyes and hear with their ears,
Lest they should understand with their hearts and turn,
So that I should heal them.’

38‡ “But blessed are your eyes for they see, and your ears for they hear; for truly, I say to you that many prophets and righteous men desired to see what you see, and did not see it, and to hear what you hear, and did not hear it.”

And he said unto them,

Do you not understand this parable? How then will you understand all parables?

“Therefore hear the parable of the sower. Now the parable is this:

“The seed is the word of God. The sower sows the word. When any one hears the word of the kingdom, and does not understand it, then Satan the wicked one, comes immediately and takes away that word, which was sown in their hearts: the devil takes the word out of their hearts, lest they believe and be saved. This is he who received seed by the wayside, where the word is sown.

“But those on the rock received the seed on stony places, they hear the word and immediately receive it with joy, and for a while believe; yet have no root in themselves, and so endure for only a time; and in a time of temptation fall away: for afterward, when tribulation or persecution arises for the word's sake, immediately they stumble. 39*

“And those which received the seed among thorns, they are the one who hear the word, go forth, and are choked with the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches and pleasures of this life; and bring no fruit to perfection: the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful.

“But the ones that received the seed on good ground are those who having heard the word with an honest and good heart, understand it, and keep it, and bear fruit with patience, and produces: some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty.”

Another parable he put forth to them, saying:

“The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field; but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way. But when the grain had sprouted and produced a crop, then the tares also appeared. [See Extra Note 2]

“So the servants of the owner came and said to him, ‘Sir, did you not sow good seed in your field? How then does it have tares?’

“He said to them, ‘An enemy has done this.’

“The servants said to him, ‘Do you want us then to go and gather them up?’

“But he said, ‘No, lest while you gather up the tares you also uproot the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest, and at the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, “First gather together the tares and bind them in bundles to burn them, but gather the wheat into my barn.”’”

And he said unto them, “Is a lamp brought to be put under a basket or under a bed? Is it not to be set on a lampstand?

“No man, when he list a lamp, covers it with a vessel, or puts it under a bed; but sets it on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light.

“For there is nothing hidden, neither is anything kept secret that will not be reveled; but that it should be known and come to light. If any man has ears to hear, let him hear.

“Take heed what you hear. With the same measure you use, it will be measured to you; and to you who hear, more will be given. For whoever has, to him more will be given; but whoever does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him.” 40 *

And he said, “The kingdom of God is as if a man should scatter seed on the ground, and should sleep by night and rise by day, and the seed should sprout and grow, he himself does not know how. For the earth yields crops by itself: first the blade, then 38:‡ Thus Matthew (13:16-17); compare with last paragraph of XLVIII in this book (Luke 10:23-24).

39:* The Revised Version, instead of "they are offended," has "they stumble." Discouraged? Disheartened? Moffatt has it, "repelled."

40:* Thus Mark (4:25). Luke's phrasing of this reads (8:18): Take heed therefore how ye hear: for whosoever hath, to him shall be given; and whosoever hath not, from him shall be taken even that which he seemeth to have. (For Matthew's, turn back to the second footnote of this XXVIII.)

Acoustics aided parable

Visitors look down on Sower's Cove
(© BiblePlaces.com)

About 1km northeast of Tabgha is a small bay with exceptional acoustic qualities. Here it is believed Jesus taught the Parable of the Sower (Mark 4:1-9) from a boat moored in the bay.

The semicircular bay, at the foot of the Mount of Beatitudes, is one of the most attractive places along the shoreline. It is called Sower's Cove or the Bay of the Parables.

The slope of the hill forms a natural amphitheatre, rather like a Roman theatre. Acoustical research has demonstrated that as many as 7000 people could hear a person speaking from a boat in the bay.

Pilgrims who test the acoustics, usually by reading the Gospel account, are amazed at how far the voice carries.

This location was also an appropriate setting for the story of the sower and his seeds. There is fertile black earth, rocky ground and plenty of thorns and thistles.

Extra Note 2:

TARES (See also Chapter XXIX)

Matthew 13:24-29

Satan's malicious intention in sowing tares among the wheat is to cause problems and confusion (James 3:16). The bad seeds grow to become poisonous weeds that allow only the healthiest of the wheat to survive. Tares, like weeds, have never been a marketable product. "Tares" are actually darnel, a seed hardly identifiable from the wheat seed, and immature wheat and darnel look alike. To try to destroy the darnel would mean destroying much of the wheat, and separating one from the other would be beyond the servants' abilities. Only when the wheat has matured can the tares be detected. Then the tares are gathered together in bundles in the field and destroyed by fire.

Many who are not in the process of conversion resemble those who are. Just like true Christians, they go to church, pray, and read the Bible, but they are only religious hobbyists. Jesus calls them "sons of the wicked one" (Matthew 13:38), and being tares, they will be destroyed. The tares are not originally from the wicked one, but they develop character according to his strong influence. They are led by him and so are his children (John 8:44).

Martin G. Collins, Parables of Matthew 13 (Part Three): The Parable of the Wheat and the Tares

Matthew 13:24-30

God has seeded His church with vessels for honor—the wheat—while Satan has sprinkled in his own vessels for dishonor—the tares (see II Timothy 2:20-21). Jesus does not use the imagery of wheat and tares haphazardly to relate this important lesson. Instead, the physical properties of these two different plants reveal a depth to the parable's symbolism that emphasizes how different in quality the wheat is from the tare, and how hard it is to tell them apart.

Wheat, which Christ uses to symbolize His true children, has always been a vital, life-giving substance, possessing both nutrition and healing properties. During most of human history, it has most commonly been used for bread, and it has long been called "the staff of life." Herbert W. Armstrong even proclaimed, "The grain of wheat God causes to grow out of the ground is a perfect food." The matchless quality of wheat serves as a symbol revealing how highly God regards His children.

In contrast, Christ uses the tare to symbolize counterfeits within His church. Tares are weeds diametrically opposite to wheat in all their properties other than appearance. Even the botanical name of the weed, darnel, conveys its detrimental quality. Darnel comes from the French language, meaning "drunkenness," having earned this name as a result of its intoxicating effect when consumed.

When darnel is ground into flour, baked in bread, and consumed while hot, the eater may experience symptoms similar to drunkenness, including trembling, followed by an inability to walk, hindered speech, and vomiting. In addition, darnel is commonly infected by the ergot fungus, which can cause hallucinations when consumed in small doses, but in large doses can do heavy damage to the central nervous system. The Greeks and Romans supposed the darnel and the fungus to cause blindness. The Romans even crafted an insult from darnel, lolio victitare, "to live on darnel," a phrase applied to a dim-sighted or shortsighted person.

The high value and health properties of wheat are opposite to the common and harmful properties of darnel, yet in Christ's parable the owner of the field allows both to grow together. One reason is because wheat and darnel are exact in their appearances during growth. Both plants are lush green and can be distinguished only when they mature and produce fruit: Wheat berries are large and golden, while darnel berries are small and gray. Thus, if the farmer attempted to uproot the tares before maturity, he would wreak havoc on his wheat.

Today, modern harvesting equipment easily sifts between the two because of their different sizes.

Spiritual wheat and tares grow alike within God's church, identical in appearance, and to attempt to uproot the tares would result in uprooting some of the wheat as well. Just as the qualitative difference between the mature fruit of wheat and darnel is different, only by the fruit may the brethren be known (Matthew 7:15-20). Even after maturity, God Himself—and no one else—will have the tares removed and will destroy them in the furnace (Matthew 13:30).

Wikipedia: Lolium temulentum
https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lolium_temulentum

Lolium temulentum, typically known as darnel, poison darnel, darnel ryegrass or cockle, is an annual plant that forms part of the Poaceae family and part of the Lolium genus. The plant stem can grow up to one meter tall, with inflorescence in the ears and purple grain. It has a global distribution.

Darnel usually grows in the same production zones as wheat and was a serious weed of cultivation until modern sorting machinery enabled darnel seeds to be separated efficiently from seed wheat.[1] The similarity between these two plants is so great that in some regions, darnel is referred to as "false wheat".[2] It bears a close resemblance to wheat until the ear appears. The spikes of L. temulentum are more slender than those of wheat. The spikelets are oriented edgeways to the rachis and have only a single glume, while those of wheat are oriented with the flat side to the rachis and have two glumes. The wheat will also appear brown when ripe, whereas the darnel is black.[3]

Darnel can be infected by an endophytic fungus of the genus Neotyphodium, and the endophyte-produced, insecticidal loline alkaloids were first isolated from this plant.[4]

The French word for darnel is ivraie (from Latin ebriacus, intoxicated), which expresses the drunken nausea from eating the infected plant, which can be fatal. The French name echoes the scientific name, Latin temulentus "drunk."

PARABLES: THE MUSTARD SEED, THE LEAVEN, THE MERCHANTMAN, THE NET—PARABLE OF THE TARES EXPLAINED—THE TEMPEST QUELLED

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum: Sea of Galilee.

Mark 4: 30-34, 35-41; Matthew 13: 31-34, 36-52; Luke 13: 18-21, 8: 22-25.

Another parable he put forth to them, saying,

40± "To what shall we liken the kingdom of God? Or with what parable shall we picture it? It is like a mustard seed which, when it is sown on the ground, is smaller than all the seeds on earth; but when it is sown, it grows up and becomes greater than all herbs, and shoots out large branches, so that the birds of the air may nest under its shade."

Then he said, "What is the kingdom of God like? And to what shall I compare it? It is like a mustard seed, which a man took and put in his garden; and it grew and became a large tree, and the birds of the air nested in its branches, in its shade."

Again Jesus said, "What shall I liken to the kingdom of God?"

And he told them another parable

"The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till it was all leavened."

All these things Jesus spoke to the multitude in parables.

Then he sent the multitude away and went into the house. And his disciples came to him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the tares of the field."

He answered and said to them, "He who sows the good seed is the Son of Man. The field is the world, the good seeds are the sons of the kingdom, but the tares are the sons of the wicked one. The enemy who sowed them is the devil, the harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are the angels. 40 *

"Therefore as the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of this age. The Son of Man will send out His angels, and they will gather out of His kingdom all things that offend, and those who practice lawlessness, and will cast them into the furnace of fire. There will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.

“Then the righteous will shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father.

“He who has ears to hear, let him hear!

“Again, the kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which a man found and hid; and for joy over it he goes and sells all that he has and buys that field.

“Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking beautiful pearls, who, when he had found one pearl of great price, went and sold all that he had and bought it.

“Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a dragnet that was cast into the sea and gathered some of every kind, which, when it was full, they drew to shore; and they sat down and gathered the good into vessels, but threw the bad away.

“So it will be at the end of the age. The angels will come forth, separate the wicked from among the just, and cast them into the furnace of fire. There will be wailing and gnashing of teeth.”

Jesus said to them, “Have ye understood all these things?”

They said to him, “Yes, Lord.”

Then he said he to them, “Therefore every scribe instructed concerning the kingdom of heaven is like a householder who brings out of his treasure things new and old.”

And with many such parables he spoke the word to them as they were able to hear it. But without a parable he did not speak to them. And when they were alone, He explained all things to His disciples. [see Extra Note 1]

The same day, when evening was come, Jesus entered into a boat. His disciples followed, and he said to them, “Let us cross over to the other side of the lake.”

They took him along in the boat as he was. And they launched out. (Other little boats were also with him.) [see Extra Note 2]

As they sailed, behold, there arose a great windstorm: the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was covered with the waves.

Jesus was sleeping in the stern of the boat on a pillow and his disciples came to him and awoke him, saying, “Lord, save us! We are perishing!”

But he said unto them, “Why are you fearful, O you of little faith?”

Then he arose and rebuked the winds, and the raging of the water. He said to the sea, “Peace, be still.“

The wind ceased and there was a great calm.

Jesus said to his disciples, “Why are ye fearful? Where is your faith? How is it that you have no faith?”

So the men were afraid and marveled, saying to one another, “Who can this be, that even the winds and the sea obey him?

40:† This parable and the one following may profitably be compared with the similar ones from Luke (13, 18-21) at the end of LIII in this book.

40:* Tares – see Chapter XXVIII [Extra Note 2] for description

Extra Note 1: Jesus used parables to illustrate truths, stimulate thinking and awaken spiritual perception. The people in general were not ready for the full truth of the gospel. When alone with his disciples Jesus taught more specifically, but even they usually needed to have things explained. {Source NIV Study Bible notes]

Privately, Jesus helps his disciples to understand and receive what he is teaching (see vv. 10-12). He did not speak to them without a parable is a broad generalization meaning that he regularly included parables whenever he taught; it does not mean he spoke only in parables.
[Source ESV Study Bible note]

Extra Note 2: [re: Version found in book of Matthew] This is the first ‘nature miracle’ in Matthew, showing Jesus exercising the same power over nature which Ps 107:23-30 ascribes to God. The disciples' reaction (cf. Ps 107:31-32) adds a new level to Matthew's account of Jesus' authority. But while the story is recorded mainly for this purpose, Matthew's mention that his disciples followed him (23), picking up the language of the preceding section, suggests he may also have seen it as an illustration of discipleship: when the storms come, faith in Jesus' saving power will be rewarded. Matthew often warns of the danger of little faith (26; cf. 6:30; 14:31; 16:8; 17:20).

Alternate View:

Storms -- The tempest in Matthew 8:24 is not the same as that recorded in Mark 4:37-41 and Luke 8:22-25 (all above). The former took place before the calling of the twelve; the latter was after that event. In the former it was a tempest (or earthquake, as this Greek word #4578 seismos is always rendered in the other thirteen occurrences); in the later event it was a squall (Greek word#2978 lailaps).

THE MADMAN AND THE SWINE

A.D. 28. Age 31. Sea of Galilee. Decapolis.

Mark 5: 1-20; Luke 8: 26-40; Matthew 8: 28-34.

They came over unto the other side of the sea, and arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, across from Galilee. [see Extra Note 1]

And when Jesus was come out of the boat, immediately there met him, coming out of the tombs, a man 42* from the city with an unclean spirit, who wore no clothes; not living in any house, but among the tombs. He had demons for a long time, and no man could bind him, not even with chains. Day and night he was in the mountains and tombs crying out and cutting himself with stones. He was exceedingly fierce, so that no one could pass that way. [see Extra Note 2]

Jesus said, "Come out of the man, you unclean spirit."

When you saw Jesus, the man he ran and he fell down before him and cried out, "What have I to do with you, Jesus, son of most high God? Have you come here to torment us before the time? I implore you that you do not torment me."

And Jesus asked him, "What is your name?"

He answered, "My name is Legion, for we are many" (for many demons had entered him).

Also he begged Jesus earnestly that he would not send them out of the country. They begged him not to command them out into the abyss.

Now a large herd of swine was feeding a good way off from there near the mountains. So all the demons begged him, saying, "If you cast us out, send us to the swine, that we may enter them." And at once Jesus gave them permission, "Go."

Then the unclean spirits went out and entered the swine (there were about two thousand); and the herd ran violently down the steep place into the sea, and drowned in the sea.

When those who fed the swine saw what had happened, they fled and told it in the city and in the country. And, behold, the whole city came out.

They come to Jesus, and saw the one who had been demon-possessed and had the legion, sitting at the feet of Jesus; clothed, and in his right mind.

They were afraid. And those who saw it told them how it happened to him who had been demon-possessed, and about the swine.

Then the whole multitude of the surrounding region of Gadarenes – seized with fear --- asked Jesus to depart from them, out of their coasts.

Jesus returned to the boat.

Now when he got into the boat, the man from whom the demons had departed begged Jesus that he might be with him. But Jesus sent him away, saying, "Return to your own house, to your friends; tell them what great things God has done for you, and how he had compassion on you." And he went his way and proclaimed throughout the Decapolis what great things Jesus had done for him; and all marveled. [see Extra Note 3]

Jesus crossed over by boat, to the other side, and came to his own city. A great multitude welcomed him, for they had all been waiting for him.

Footnotes

Extra Note 1: The region of the Gadarenes would be in Gentile territory on the southeastern side of the Sea of Galilee across from Galilee. Lk 8:26 and Mk 5:1 record this miracle as occurring "in the region of the Gerasenes." "Irrespective of how one settles this issue, for the [second and] Third Evangelist the chief concern is that Jesus has crossed over into Gentile territory, 'opposite Galilee'" (J. B. Green, Luke [NICNT], 337). The region of Gadara extended to the Sea of Galilee and included the town of Sennabris on the southern shore - the town that the herdsmen most likely entered after the drowning of the pigs. [Source: Net Bible notes]

42:* The narratives of Mark and Luke say one man; Matthew's, two.

Extra Note 2:
Mark and Luke mention only one possessed man, but Matthew here (as in 20:30; cf. 9:27) says there were two, perhaps because the story is recorded as a witness to Jesus' power and in Jewish law two witnesses were needed.

This was Gentile territory (hence the presence of pigs). Matthew mentions no response other than the desire to get rid of this destructive visitor! Nor does he show any concern over the death of the pigs nor the economic loss to their owners. Presumably the liberation of two men was felt to be more important. But the story is told primarily to show Jesus in victorious conflict with an unusually powerful demonic force. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Extra Note 3: the Decapolis. A loose league of free (relatively independent from Roman administration) cities characterized by high Greek culture. All but one, Scythopolis (Beth Shan), were east of the Sea of Galilee and the Jordan River. The league stretched from a point northeast of the Sea of Galilee southward to Philadelphia (modern Amman). JAIRUS' DAUGHTER HEALED—THE WOMAN WHO HAD SPENT HER ALL ON PHYSICIANS— THE TWO BLIND MEN

A.D. 28. Age 31. Capernaum.

Luke 9: 41-42; 49-56; 43-48; Mark 5: 22-24; 35-43; 25-34; Matthew 9: 18-19; 23-26; 27-30.

And behold, one of the rulers of the synagogue came, Jairus by name. And when he saw him, he fell at His feet and begged him earnestly, saying, "My little daughter lies at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, that she may be healed, and she will live."

He had one only daughter; she was about twelve years of age.

Jesus arose and followed him, and so did his disciples: and a great multitude followed and thronged Jesus.

While still speaking, some came from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to Jairus, "Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the teacher any further?

Jesus heard and said, "Do not be afraid, only believe, and she will be made well."

Jesus came to Jairus' house and saw a tumult: the flute players and a crowd wailing loudly.

He allowed no man to go in, except Peter, James, and John, and the father and the mother of the girl. All wept, and mourned for her.

When Jesus was come in, he said to them, "Why make this commotion? Do not weep. Make room. The child is not dead, but sleeping."

They laughed and ridiculed him, knowing that she was dead. But he put them all outside.

Jesus, and the father and mother of the girl, and they that were with them, entered in where the girl was lying.

He took her by the hand, saying, "Little girl, arise." [see Extra Note 1]

She arose immediately and walked. Jesus commanded that something be given her to eat.

And her parents were astonished, but he instructed them to tell no one what had happened. However, the news spread throughout all that land.

[Note: The followed happened while Jesus was walking on the way to Jairus' house to heal the ruler's daughter, along with his disciples and the crowd, as word came from the Jairus' house that his daughter was dead. It is actually found within that Bible passage about restoring life to the little girl.]

Behold, a certain woman, who had a flow of blood [was diseased] for twelve years, and had suffered many things from many physicians. She had spent all that she had and was no better, but rather grew worse. When she heard about Jesus, she came behind him in the crowd [as he was walking to Jairus' house], and touched the hem of his garment: for she said within herself, "If only I may touch his clothes, I will be made whole."

Immediately she felt in her body that she was healed.

Jesus, knowing that power had gone out of him, turned around in the crowd, and said, "Who touched me?"

When all denied it, Peter and those with him said, "Master, the multitude throng and press you, and you say, 'Who touched me?'"

But Jesus said, "Somebody touched me, for I perceived power going out from me."

And he looked around to see her who had done this thing. But the woman, fearing and trembling, knowing what had happened to her, came and fell down before Him and told him the whole truth in the presence of all the people: the reason she had touched him and how she was healed immediately.

He said to her, "Daughter, be of good comfort; you faith has made you whole. Go in peace, and be healed of your affliction."

When Jesus departed [from Jairus' house], two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, "Son of David, have mercy on us." [see Extra Note 2]

When he was come into the house [different/not Jairus'], the blind men came to Jesus and he said unto them, "Do you believe that I am able to do this?"

They said to him, "Yes, Lord." Then he touched their eyes, saying, "According to your faith let it be to you." And their eyes were opened.

And Jesus sternly warned them, saying, "See that no one knows it." But when they had departed, they spread the news about him in all that country.

Extra Note 1: It is safe to assume that Jesus could read and perhaps speak Hebrew (Luke 4:17), but that He usually spoke Aramaic. (His command when raising Jairus's daughter was Talitha Koum, which is Aramaic for "Little girl, I say to you, get up!") He probably also spoke at least some Greek, although there is no proof of this. [Source: Halley's Bible Handbook]

Extra Note 2: "Son of David" – Elijah and Elisha had done extraordinary healing miracles; David is the only recorded Old Testament figure God used in exorcism (1Sa 16:23). Mt 9:33 thus indicates that the crowds were greatly impressed with his miracles. The title links Jesus to the Messianic line.

That the blind man shouts "Son of David" means that he recognizes Jesus as the Messiah. Jesus characterizes his insistent, obstinate (v. 39) plea for mercy as "faith" (v. 42).Lk 18:39-42. Blind people were socially powerless, and Jesus' followers see his loud pleas as an intrusion, the way they had seen the children (18:15). [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

HOME AGAIN: A PROPHET WITHOUT HONOR—MISSION OF THE TWELVE: INSTRUCTIONS, ADMONITIONS, SPARROWS, HAIRS NUMBERED—THEY SET OUT

A.D. 29. Age 32. Nazareth. Capernaum.

Mark 6: 1-6, 7-13; Matthew 13: 54-58, 9: 35-38, 10: 5-42; Luke 9: 1-6.

Jesus went out from there, and came to his own country. When the Sabbath had come, he began to teach in the synagogue. Many hearing him were astonished, saying, “Where did this man get these things? And what wisdom is this which is given to Him, that such mighty works are performed by His hands!

“Is not this the carpenter, the son of Joseph? Is not his mother called Mary? And his brothers, James, Joses (or Joseph), Simon, and Judas? And his sisters, are they not all with us?

“Where then did this man get all these things?” And they were offended at him.

But Jesus said unto them, “A prophet is not without honor except in his own country, among his own relatives, and in his own house.”

And he did not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people.

But when He saw the multitudes, He was moved with compassion for them, because they were weary and scattered, like sheep having no shepherd.

Then He said to His disciples, “The harvest truly is plentiful, but the laborers are few. Therefore pray to the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into His harvest.”

Jesus called his twelve disciples to himself. 45* He began to send them forth by two and two; and gave them power over unclean spirits, and to cure diseases.

These twelve Jesus sent out to preach the gospel of the kingdom; and he commanded them:

“Do not go into the way of the Gentiles, and do not enter a city of the Samaritans. But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as you go, preach, saying, ‘The kingdom of heaven is at hand.’

“Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out demons. Freely you have received, freely give.

“Provide neither gold nor silver nor copper in your money belts, nor bag for your journey, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor staffs 46*; for a worker is worthy of his food.

“Now whatever city or town you enter, inquire who in it is worthy, and stay there till you go out. And when you go into a household, greet it. 46† If the household is worthy, let your peace come upon it. But if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you. And whoever will not receive you nor hear your words, when you depart from that house or city, shake off the dust from your feet. Assuredly, I say to you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that city!

“Behold, I send you out as sheep in the midst of wolves. Therefore be wise as serpents, and harmless as doves.

“But beware of men, for they will deliver you up to councils and scourge you in their synagogues. You will be brought before governors and kings for my sake, as a testimony to them and to the Gentiles.

“But when they deliver you up, do not worry about how or what you should speak. For it will be given to you in that hour what you should speak; for it is not you who speak, but the Spirit of your Father who speaks in you.

“Now brother will deliver up brother to death, and a father his child; and children will rise up against parents and cause them to be put to death.

“And you will be hated by all for my name's sake. But he who endures to the end will be saved. “When they persecute you in this city, flee to another. For assuredly, I say to you, you will not have gone through the cities of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

“A disciple is not above his teacher, nor a servant above his master. “It is enough for a disciple that he be like his teacher, and a servant like his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more will they call those of his household!

“Therefore do not fear them. For there is nothing covered that will not be revealed, and hidden that will not be known. “Whatever I tell you in the dark, speak in the light; and what you hear in the ear, preach on the housetops. And do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul. But rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.

“Are not two sparrows sold for a copper coin? And not one of them falls to the ground apart from your Father's will. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Do not fear therefore; you are of more value than many sparrows.

“Therefore whoever confesses me before men, him I will also confess before my Father who is in heaven. But whoever denies me before men, him I will also deny before my Father who is in heaven.

“Do not think that I came to bring peace on earth. I did not come to bring peace but a sword. For I have come to ‘set a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law’; “and ‘a man's enemies will be those of his own household.’ “He who loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of Me. And he who loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And he who does not take his cross and follow after me is not worthy of me. He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life for my sake will find it.

“He who receives a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward. And he who receives a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

“And whoever gives one of these little ones only a cup of cold water in the name of a disciple, assuredly, I say to you, he shall by no means lose his reward.”

They went out through the towns, and preached that men should repent. Healing every where, they anointed with oil many that were sick, and cast out many unclean spirits.

HEROD THE TETRARCH DESIRES TO SEE CHRIST—CHRIST WITHDRAWS

A D. 29. Age 32. Decapolis: Bethsaida.

Matthew 14: 1-4, 13-14; Luke 9: 7-1; Mark 6: 17-18, 30-33; John 6: 1-3.

Now Herod the Tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus: and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John was risen from the dead, and some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the prophets had risen again.

Herod himself had sent and laid hold of John, and bound him in prison for Herodias', his brother Philip's wife. Because John had said to Herod, “It is not lawful for you to have your brother's wife.” And Herod had married her, and sent an executioner, and beheaded John in the prison. [see Extra Note 1]

Herod said, “John have I beheaded; but who is this of whom I hear such things?”

And he desired to see Jesus.

Jesus’ disciples (who had buried John’s body) went and told him [Jesus]. And he went over the sea of Galilee, by boat.

When the apostles were returned, and were gathered with Jesus, they told all things, both what they had done, and what they had taught.

Jesus said to them, “Come away by yourselves to a desert place, and rest for a while.”

He took his disciples, and went privately, by boat, into a desert place belonging to the city called Bethsaida. He went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

The people saw them departing, and many knew him, and ran there on foot from all the cities. The people arrived there before them, and came together to him. [see Extra Note 2]

FIVE LOAVES AND TWO FISHES SUFFICE FIVE THOUSAND PERSONS

A.D. 29. Age 32. Bethsaida.

John 6: 5-13; Matthew 14: 15-21; Mark 6: 35-44; Luke 9: 12-17.

When Jesus saw a great company come unto him, he said to Philip, “Where shall we buy bread, so that these may eat?”

This he said to test Philip, for he himself knew what he would do.

Jesus’ disciples said, “Shall we go and buy two hundred denarii of bread, and give them to eat?”

Philip answered, “Two hundred denarii worth of bread is not sufficient.” [see extra note 1]

When it was late in the day, the twelve came and said to him, “This is a desert place. Send the multitude away, so that they may go into the surrounding towns and villages and countryside, and find lodging and get provisions, for they have nothing to eat.”

Jesus replied, “They do not need to go away. Give them something to eat. How many loaves do you have? Go and see.”

Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, said, “There is a lad here who has five barley loaves, and two small fishes, but what are they among so many?”

Jesus said, “Bring them to me. Make the men sit down in groups of hundreds and fifties.”

Now there was much green grass in the place. So the men sat down in groups.

Jesus took the loaves, and when looking up to heaven he had given thanks, he blessed and broke them, and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to those who were sitting down; and likewise the fish, as much as they wanted.

They all eat. And when they were filled, Jesus said to his disciples, “Gather up the fragments that remain, so that nothing is lost.”

They filled twelve baskets of leftover fish and bread fragments. Those who had eaten were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

JESUS WOULD NOT BE MADE KING—WALKS ON THE SEA—DOUBTING PETER'S ADVENTURE—JESUS EXALTS FAITH

A.D. 29. Age 32. Sea of Galilee. Gennesaret.

Matthew 14: 22-32; Mark 6: 45-53; John 6, 15-21.

When Jesus perceived that they would take him by force, to make him a king, he made his disciples get into the boat, and go before him to the other side, to Bethsaida, while he sent the multitude away.

He went up again on the mountain to pray. When the evening came, the boat was in the middle of the sea, and he was alone, on land.

His disciples went over the sea toward Capernaum. It was already dark, and Jesus had not come to them. Then the sea arose because a great wind was blowing and the boat, in the midst of the sea, tossed with the waves.

He saw them toiling in rowing; and about the fourth watch [see Extra Note 1] of the night, after they had rowed about three or four miles, they saw Jesus walking on the sea and drawing near the boat. They cried out for fear, saying, “It is a spirit.”

But immediately Jesus talked with them and said, “Be of good cheer; it is I; do not be afraid.”

Peter answered, “Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water.”

Jesus said, “Come.“

And when Peter came out of the boat, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus. But when he saw the strong wind was he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, “Lord, save me!”

Immediately Jesus stretched out his hand, and caught him, and said, ”O you of little faith, why did you doubt?”

When they got into the ship, the wind ceased, and at once the boat was at the shore where they were heading. [see Extra Note 2]

Then those who were in the boat came and worshiped Him, saying, “Truly, You are the Son of God.”

And they were greatly amazed within themselves beyond measure and marveled. For they had not understood about the loaves, because their heart was hardened.

When they had crossed over, they came to the land of Gennesaret and anchored there. [see Extra Note 3]

Extra Note 1: fourth watch. 3:00-6:00 A.M. According to Roman reckoning the night was divided into four watches: (1) 6:00-9:00 P.M., (2) 9:00-midnight, (3) midnight-3:00 A.M. and (4) 3:00-6:00 A.M. The Jews had only three watches during the night: (1) sunset-10:00 P.M., (2) 10:00 P.M.-2:00 A.M. and (3) 2:00 A.M.-sunrise [Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]

The Roman military divided the night into four watches of three hours each, from 6:00 p.m. until 6:00 a.m. The fourth watch would have been between 3:00 and 6:00 a.m., which means the disciples had been battling the storm for over nine hours.
… The sea [lake] would have been 4-5 miles (6.4-8.0 km) wide at this point, depending on exactly where they crossed. [Source ESV Bible Study notes]

Extra Note 2: The most reasonable explanation (i.e., "at once" -- ref: John 6:21) is that the boat was much nearer the shore than the disciples imagined. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

"The land of Gennesaret," Matthew 14:34 Mark 6:53, was a tract of land some three or four miles long on the [north]western border of the Sea of Galilee [also known as the Lake of Tiberius]. It was a lovely and exceedingly fertile region; in it probably lay Capernaum and [possibly] Bethsaida of Galilee [Source ATS Bible Dictionary] It is now called by the Arabs el-Ghuweir ("little ghor or hollow").

City of Gennesaret was known as "Kinnereth" (or Chinnereth) in the Old Testament and was also known Ginasar.

"I AM THE BREAD OF LIFE"—IN THE SYNAGOGUE: TO THE PEOPLE, TO THE DISCIPLES, TO THE TWELVE: "ONE OF YOU IS A DEVIL"—MANY DISCIPLES FALL AWAY

A.D. 29. Age 32. Capernaum.

John 6: 22-71.

On the following day, when the people who were standing on the other side of the sea saw that there was no other boat there, except that one which his disciples had entered, and that Jesus had not entered the boat with his disciples, but his disciples had gone away alone — however, other boats came from Tiberias, near the place where they ate bread after the Lord had given thanks — when the people therefore saw that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they also got into boats and came to Capernaum, seeking Jesus. [see Extra Note 1]

And when they found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, “Rabbi, when did you come here?”

Jesus answered them and said, “Truly, truly, I say to you, you seek me, not because you saw the signs, but because you ate of the loaves and were filled. Do not labor for the food which perishes, but for the food which endures to everlasting life, which the Son of Man will give you, because God the Father has set his seal on him.”

Then they said to Him, “What shall we do, that we may work the works of God?”

Jesus answered and said to them, “This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he sent.”

Therefore they said to him, “What sign will you perform then, that we may see it and believe you? What work will you do? Our fathers ate the manna in the desert; as it is written, ‘He gave them bread from heaven to eat.’ ”

Then Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly, I say to you, Moses did not give you the bread from heaven, but my Father gives you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God is he who comes down from heaven and gives life to the world.”

Then they said to Him, “Lord, give us this bread always.”

And Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. He who comes to me shall never hunger, and he who believes in me shall never thirst. But I said to you that you have seen me and yet do not believe.

"All that the Father gives me will come to me, and the one who comes to me I will by no means cast out.

"For I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of Him who sent me. This is the will of the Father who sent me, that of all he has given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day. And this is the will of him who sent me, that everyone who sees the Son and believes in him may have everlasting life; and I will raise him up at the last day."

The Jews then complained about him, because he said, "I am the bread which came down from heaven." And they said, "Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How is it then that he says, 'I have come down from heaven' ?"

Jesus therefore answered and said to them, "Do not murmur among yourselves. "No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him; and I will raise him up at the last day. "It is written in the prophets, 'And they shall all be taught by God.'

"Therefore everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to me. Not that anyone has seen the Father, except he who is from God; He has seen the Father.

"Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in me has everlasting life.

"I am the bread of life. [see Extra Note 2]

"Your fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, and are dead. This is the bread which comes down from heaven, that one may eat of it and not die. I am the living bread which came down from heaven. If anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever; and the bread that I shall give is my flesh, which I shall give for the life of the world."

The Jews therefore quarreled among themselves, saying, "How can this man give us his flesh to eat?"

Then Jesus said, 51* "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His blood, you have no life in you. Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood has eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is food indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He who eats my flesh and drinks my blood abides in me, and I in him. As the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so he who feeds on me will live because of me. This is the bread which came down from heaven — not as your fathers ate the manna, and are dead. He who eats this bread will live forever." 51*

These things he said in the synagogue as he taught in Capernaum.

Therefore many of His disciples, when they heard this, said, “This is a hard saying; who can understand it?”

When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples complained about this, he said to them, “Does this offend you?

“What then if you should see the Son of Man ascend to where he was before?

“It is the Spirit who gives life; the flesh profits nothing. The words that I speak to you are spirit, and they are life.

“But there are some of you who do not believe.”

For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were who did not believe, and who would betray Him.

And He said, “Therefore I have said to you that no one can come to me unless it has been granted to him by my Father.”

From that time many of His disciples went back and walked with him no more.

Then Jesus said to the twelve, “Do you also want to go away?”

But Simon Peter answered Him, “Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life. Also we have come to believe and know that you are the Christ, the Son of the living God.”

Jesus answered them, “Did I not choose you, the twelve, and one of you is a devil?”

He spoke of Judas Iscariot, 51^ the son of Simon, for it was he who would betray him, being one of the twelve.

Capernaum's synagogue is considered one of the oldest in the world

Capernaum, the name of which means "city of comfort," was located near the northwest corner of the Sea of Galilee (also known as Sea of Tiberias or Lake of Gennesaret), near the borders of Zebulun and Naphtali (land given by God to these Israelite tribes as inheritance after Egyptian slavery). The city was on the great highway from Damascus to Acco and Tyre. It was the metropolis of Galilee and one of the most prosperous and crowded districts in all Palestine. The city itself, however, is not mentioned at all in the Old Testament and can only be found in the four gospel accounts in the New Testament.

PHARISEES QUERULOUS—TRADITION OF THE ELDERS: UNWASHEN HANDS—WASHING OF POTS NOT THE WHOLE OF GODLINESS—BLIND LEADERS OF THE BLIND

A.D. 29. Age 32. Capernaum.

Mark 7: 1-23; Matthew 15: 1-20.

52* Certain scribes and Pharisees, who were from Jerusalem, saw some of Jesus' disciples eat bread with defiled, that is, unwashed hands. They found fault: for the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they wash their hands in a special way, holding the tradition of the elders. When they come from the marketplace, they do not eat unless they wash. And there are many other things which they have received and hold, like the washing of cups, pitchers, copper vessels, and couches.

Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, "Why do your disciples transgress by not walking according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashed hands?"

But Jesus answered, "Why do you also break the commandment of God by your tradition? You skillfully reject the commandment of God, so that you can keep your tradition. For God commanded, saying (Moses said), 'Honor you father and mother and, whosoever speaks evil of his father or mother, must be put the death.'

"But you say, 'If a man says (or Whosoever says) to his father or his mother, "Whatever profit you might have received from me is Corban (that is, a gift to God [see Extra Note 1]), and does not honor his father or mother, he is exempt and no longer under obligation to do anything for his father or mother.

"You revoke God's word by your tradition that you have handed down; and you do many other similar things. Thus you have made the commandment of God of no effect through your tradition which you have handed down.

"Hypocrites! Well did Isaiah [29:13] prophesy about you, saying, 'These people draw near to me with their mouth, and honor me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. In vain they worship me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men.'

"Disregarding the commandment of God, you keep the tradition of men — the washing of pitchers and cups, and many other such things you do."

And he called the crowd, and said to them, “Hear me, everyone, and understand. There is nothing that enters a man from outside which can defile him; but the things which come out of him, those are the things that defile a man.

“If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear.” [see Extra Note 2]

Then his disciples came and said to Jesus, “Do you know that the Pharisees were offended when they heard this saying?”

But He answered and said, “Every plant which my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted. Let them alone. They are blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind leads the blind, both will fall into a ditch.”

When he had entered a house away from the crowd, his disciples asked him about the parable. So he said to them, “Are you also lacking in understanding? Do you not perceive that whatever enters a man from outside cannot defile him? Because it does not enter his heart, but his stomach, and is eliminated, thus purifying all foods.” (i.e., thus he declared all foods [ceremonially] clean).

And he said, “What comes out of a man — that defiles him. For from within, out of the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lewdness, an evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness. All these evil things come from within and defile a man.” [see Extra Note 3]

Footnotes

52:* The two accounts of this episode (Matthew's and Mark's) abound in interesting likenesses and contrasts.

Extra Note 1:
Corban: Many Jewish teachers regarded the commandment to honor father and mother as the most important in the law. Jewish interpreters included in this commandment providing for one's parents when they were old. At the same time, tradition allowed that various items could be sacrificed or dedicated to the use of God's temple. ("Corban" appears on sacrificial vessels and means "consecrated to God"; in popular usage, it could also mean "forbidden to so-and-so.") One school of Jewish teachers in Jesus' day declared that a vow that something was consecrated and forbidden to others applied even to family members, even if those to whom it was forbidden included them only accidentally.

Some apparently religious people had been using this practice to withhold what should have otherwise gone to the support of their parents—against the otherwise firm Pharisaic belief that one should support one's parents. Jesus attacks here not the Pharisees' religious theory but these Pharisees' inconsistency with that theory in practice: their love for the law had led them (like some modern Christians) to such attention to its legal details that it created loopholes for them to violate the spirit of the law. Jesus did not deny that his disciples broke the traditions, but justified it by saying that these traditions were merely of men, and that in the case of the Pharisees, observing them often went along with a rejection of God's plain command. If tradition contradicts Scripture, it must go, no matter how much loved. A stinging quotation from Isaiah proved the point, and then Jesus illustrated it with an example of a Pharisaic way of denying a Mosaic commandment by a typically rabbinic trick. If a man vowed to the temple the money that he would normally have spent on caring for aged parents, he was freed from the obligation of providing for them. As usual, Mark explains the technical word Corban , used to describe this sort of offering-vow. This legalistic trick, done in the name of religion, was sheer hypocrisy, as Jesus showed. Worse still, it was only one example out of many.

[Source: New Bible Commentary]

Corban. A Hebrew/Aramaic word meaning “offering” (see note on Lev 1:2). By using this word in a religious vow an irresponsible Jewish son could formally dedicate to God (i.e., to the temple) his earnings that otherwise would have gone for the support of his parents. The money, however, did not necessarily have to go for religious purposes. The Corban formula was simply a means of circumventing the clear responsibility of children toward their parents as prescribed in the law. The teachers of the law held that the Corban oath was binding, even when uttered rashly. The practice was one of many traditions that adhered to the letter of the law while ignoring its spirit. (that is, a gift devoted to God). By explaining this word, Mark reveals that he is addressing Gentile readers, probably Romans primarily.

[Source: NIV ’08 Study Bible Notes]

Extra Note 2:
Other teachers are occasionally reported to have uttered sayings similar to Jesus' statement here, but only rarely and in private, perhaps to avoid anyone disobeying the literal rules of the law. If Jesus' words are taken literally, they declare the whole clean/unclean distinction emphasized in the law as of only symbolic value. Because this distinction constituted one of the main barriers between Jews and Gentiles (see Ro 14), Jesus' statement opens the way for cultural unity in table fellowship.

[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 3:
Jesus says that food does not affect what a person really is; writing in a day of conflict between the customs of Jewish and Gentile Christians, Mark applies this point to the kosher laws of Lev 11: pigs, dogs, bats, owls and so on are now "clean," ... Mark's understanding of Jesus' teaching would not have been popular among most Jewish people. Liberal Alexandrian Jews who no longer believed in literal observance of the food laws (Lev 11; Dt 14) were particularly despised by their more conservative colleagues in Egypt and certainly found few allies in Palestine.

SYROPHENICIAN'S DAUGHTER HEALED—A DEAF MUTE HEARS AND TALKS

A.D. 29. Age 32. Phoenicia. Decapolis.

Matthew 15: 21-28; Mark 7: 24-36.

From there Jesus arose and went to the region of Tyre and Sidon [on the coast].

He entered a house and did not want anyone to know it, but he could not escape notice.

For behold, a woman of Canaan came from the same region, and began to cry out to him, saying, “Have mercy on me, O Lord, Son of David! My daughter is severely demon-possessed.”

The woman was a Greek, a Syro-Phoenician by birth. She kept asking him to cast the demon out of her daughter. [see Extra Note 1]

But Jesus answered her not a word.

And His disciples came and urged Him, saying, “Send her away, for she cries out after us.”

So he answered and said, “I was not sent except to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.”

But she came and bowed down before him and said, “Lord, help me!”

“It is not right to take the children’s bread and throw it to the dogs,” he said.

“Yes, Lord,” she replied, “but even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters’ table.”

Then Jesus answered her, “Woman, your faith is great! Let what you want be done for you. For this reply, you may go; the demon has gone out of your daughter.”

Her daughter was healed from that very hour.

(And when she had come to her house, she found the demon gone out, and her daughter lying on the bed.)

Departing from the region [coasts] of Tyre and Sidon, he came through the midst of the region of Decapolis to the Sea of Galilee.

Then they brought to him one who was deaf and had an impediment in his speech, and they begged him to put his hand on him.

Jesus took him aside from the multitude, and put his fingers in his ears, and he spat and touched his tongue.

Then, looking up to heaven, he sighed, and said to him, "Ephphatha," that is, "Be opened." [see Extra Note 2]

Immediately his ears were opened, and the impediment of his tongue was loosed, and he spoke plainly.

Jesus commanded them that they should tell no one; but the more he commanded them, the more widely they proclaimed it.

And they were astonished beyond measure, saying, "He has done all things well. He makes both the deaf to hear and the mute to speak."

SEVEN LOAVES, A FEW FISHES—TEST OF FAITH—LEAVEN OF THE PHARISEES—THE BETHSAIDAN'S SIGHT RESTORED

A.D. 29. Age 32. Decapolis. Dalmanutha. Bethsaida.

Mark 8: 1-26; Matthew 15: 32-39, 16: 1-12.

In those days, the multitude being very great and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples to him and said to them, “I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now continued with me three days and have nothing to eat.

“And if I send them away hungry to their own houses, they will faint on the way; for some of them have come from afar.”

Then his disciples answered him, “How can one satisfy these people with enough bread here in the wilderness?”

He asked them, “How many loaves do you have?” And they said, “Seven. And a few little fishes.”

So He commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground. And He took the seven loaves and gave thanks, broke them and gave them to His disciples to set before them; and they set them before the multitude. The few small fish he blessed and commanded to set them also before them.

So they all ate and were filled.

They took up seven large baskets of leftover fragments.

Now those who had eaten were about four thousand men, besides women and children. Then Jesus sent them away. [see Extra Note 1]

Immediately Jesus got into a boat with his disciples, and came into the coasts of Magdala, into the region of Dalmanutha. [see Extra Note 2]

Then the Pharisees with the Sadducees came out and began to dispute with Him, seeking from Him a sign from heaven, testing Him.

But He sighed deeply in his spirit, and said, “Why does this generation seek a sign? Truly, I say to you, no sign shall be given to this generation.

"When it is evening you say, 'It will be fair weather, for the sky is red'; and in the morning, 'It will be foul weather today, for the sky is red and threatening.'

"Hypocrites! You know how to discern the face of the sky, but you cannot discern the signs of the times. A wicked and adulterous generation seeks after a sign, and no sign shall be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah." [see Extra Note 3]

And Jesus left them, got into the boat again, and departed to the other side.

Now when his disciples had come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread; nor did they have more than one loaf in the boat

Then Jesus charged them, "Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and of the leaven of Herod."

And they reasoned among themselves, saying, "It is because we have taken no bread."

But Jesus, being aware of it, said to them, "Why do you reason it is because you have no bread?

"O you of little faith, why do you reason among yourselves because you have brought no bread? Do you not yet perceive nor understand? Is your heart still hardened?

"Having eyes, do you not see? And having ears, do you not hear? And do you not remember?

Do you not yet understand, or remember the five loaves of the five thousand and how many baskets you took up? Nor the seven loaves of the four thousand and how many large baskets you took up?

"When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments did you take up?"

They said to Him, "Twelve."

"Also, when I broke the seven for the four thousand, how many large baskets full of fragments did you take up?"

And they said, "Seven."

So he said to them, "How is it you do not understand?

"How is it you do not understand that I did not speak to you concerning bread? — but to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees."

Then they understood that he did not tell them to beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and Sadducees. 55:*

Then Jesus came to Bethsaida; and they brought a blind man to him, and begged him to touch him.

So he took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the town. And when Jesus had spit on his eyes and put his hands on him, he asked him if he saw anything. And he looked up and said, “I see men like trees, walking.”

Then Jesus put h*is* hands on his eyes again and made him look up. And he was restored and saw everyone clearly.

Then Jesus sent him away to his house, saying, “Neither go into the town, nor tell anyone in the town.” [see Extra Note 4]

"Although both [feeding] miracles are performed in the same way, and are signs that Jesus possesses supernatural power over created things, in the first story [Feeding the 5000, see Chapter XXXIV in this book] He seems to be concerned that the disciples should understand how utterly dependent upon Him they must always be, if they are to do what He would have them do, and in the second story [Feeding the 4000] He seems to be indirectly reproving them for their lack of sympathy with the needs of the Gentile world."

Contrasts between the feeding of the 5000 and the 4000

(Some feel this miracle is the same as the earlier feeding of the 5,000, this is not possible.)

Jesus refers to these as two separate events: Matt 16:9-10 and Mark 8:19-21.

	5000+	4000+
location:	at Bethsaida	in region of the Decapolis (10 Greek cities) season:	spring	summer
scene:	sat on the grass	sit on ground (no grass mentioned – desert)
prior events:	Jesus wanted rest before; followed death of John Baptist	Jesus traveling before – no mention of rest; returned from healing Syrophonecian's daughter events after:	afterward there is a storm	no storm afterward people's origin:	multitude from nearby	multitude from a long distance away
nationality:	Jewish	Gentiles
number fed:	5000 (+) fed	4000 (+) fed
time w/Jesus:	with him 1 day	had been with him 3 days
food on hand:	5 loaves and 2 fish	7 loaves and a few fish supply problem:	not enough money	can't find enough food to satisfy different basket:	hand basket	big basket
leftovers:	12 baskets full	7 baskets full (not tied to Israel's number 12)
people's response:	tried to make Jesus king	no popular response
recorded:	found in all 4 gospels	found only in Matt 15:32-39 and Mark 8:1-10

Charles Ryrie provides an alternative outline for this miracle based on contrast:

I. Contrasting Attitudes

A. Christ's attitude: compassion for the people and their needs = hungry.

B. Disciples' attitude: controlled by circumstances and limitations = helpless.

II. Contrasting Abilities

A. Jesus lacked nothing

B. The disciples lacked faith

C. The crowd lacked food

III. Contrasting Actions

A. The Master supplied bread

B. The men/disciples served the bread

C. The multitude was satisfied by the bread

However one views this miracle, one sees the Lord Jesus, all-sufficient and filled with compassion for the needs of the people.

People may disappoint us, but God never will!

Magadan. (also called Magdala) possibly the home town, along the western shore of the Sea of Galilee, of Mary Magdalene, with the Galilean village of Tarichea, associated with fishing; it apparently imbibed some Greek culture, but had strong Jewish patriotism. Mk 8:10 has "Dalmanutha." The exact locations of which is uncertain. They may be names for the same place or for two places located close to each other. South of the Plain of Gennesaret a cave has been found bearing the name "Talmanutha," perhaps the spot where Jesus landed.

Extra Note 3:
On a brief return to Jewish territory, Jesus again ran into official opposition. For the request for a sign from heaven and the refusal of any except the sign of Jonah [i.e., Jonah and the Whale in the Old Testament]. The contrast between this Jewish skepticism and the enthusiastic response of the Gentile crowds is remarkable. The questioners were a strange combination of Pharisees and Sadducees. The theological views and policies of these groups were markedly different from each other, but they had to cooperate as members of the Jewish supreme court, the Sanhedrin. This combination of parties in opposition to Jesus was to become clearer later, but already it was sufficiently marked for Jesus to comment on the two groups as a united opposition in vs 5-12.

[Source: New Bible Commentary] [See also Chapter XXVII in this book for more background on Jonah]

The Pharisees and Sadducees differed on most matters. The Pharisees had great popular support, whereas the Sadducees held most of the political power. Together they could make a dangerous team. Probably writing after 70, Matthew often links the various leaders together, though by this time the Sadducees and temple establishment had apparently lost power and Pharisees were gaining greater influence. On such testing, cf. 4:3. "From heaven" was sometimes a circumlocution for "from God," but the context may suggest they mean a heavenly sign (16:2-3).

Extra Note 4:
This last example of the powers of the kingdom of God may be a picture of the spiritually blind disciples, so soon to receive their sight. Friends brought a blind man to Jesus; their faith as well as his, would be rewarded. They led the blind man out of the shouting and confusion of the village so that he could listen to Jesus without distraction. To spit on the man's eyes and to lay hands on him are things that a blind man can feel. There is nothing magical about spittle, even if it is the spittle of Jesus; it is only an outward aid to faith and understanding.

Why did this healing take two stages? Was it perhaps because of the man's imperfect faith? Mark does not say. It is enough that Jesus did not leave the man half-healed but persisted until he saw everything clearly. Is this a picture of the way that even Peter would only half-see the truth about Jesus at first? The man was warned to go straight home without going back to the village, where people who saw him might be tempted to follow Jesus only as a healer, not as a savior. There is always a danger where healing miracles take place in the preaching of the gospel that people will come to Christ for the wrong reasons. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

CHRIST DISCLOSES HIS SONSHIP—ADVANCES PETER—FORETELLS HIS OWN FATE—"WHAT SHALL IT PROFIT A MAN"

A.D. 29. Age 32. Cesarea Philippi.

Matthew 16: 13-28; Mark 8: 27-38, 9: 1; Luke 9, 18-27. 56*

Jesus, and his disciples, came into the towns of Caesarea Philippi.

On the way he asked them, 56* "Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am?"

So they answered, "Some say John the Baptist, some Elijah, and others Jeremiah, or that one of the prophets is risen again."

He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?"

Simon Peter answering said, "The Christ of God". 56† (The Son of the Living God.)

Jesus responded to Peter, "Blessed are you, Simon Bar-Jonah, for flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father who is in heaven.

And I also say to you that you are Peter, 56‡ and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it. [see Extra Note 1]

"And I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven."

Then he strictly warned them that they should tell no one about him: that he was Jesus the Christ.

From that time forth Jesus began to show to his disciples that he, the Son of man, must go to Jerusalem, and suffer many things, and be rejected the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised the third day. [see Extra Note 2]

He spoke this word openly.

Then Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, "Far be it from you, Lord; this shall not happen to you!" But Jesus turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan! You are an offense 57* to me, for you are not mindful of the things of God, but the things of men."

When he had called the crowd to himself, with his disciples also, he said to them, “Whoever desires to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

“For whoever desires to save his life will lose it, but whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it. For what will it profit a man, what is he advantaged, if he gains the whole world, and loses himself, loses his own soul? Or be cast away? Or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?

“For the Son of man will come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he will reward every man according to his works.

“For whoever is ashamed of me and my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him the Son of man also will be ashamed when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.”

And he said, “But I tell you of a truth, there be some standing here which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power, the Son of man coming in his kingdom.”

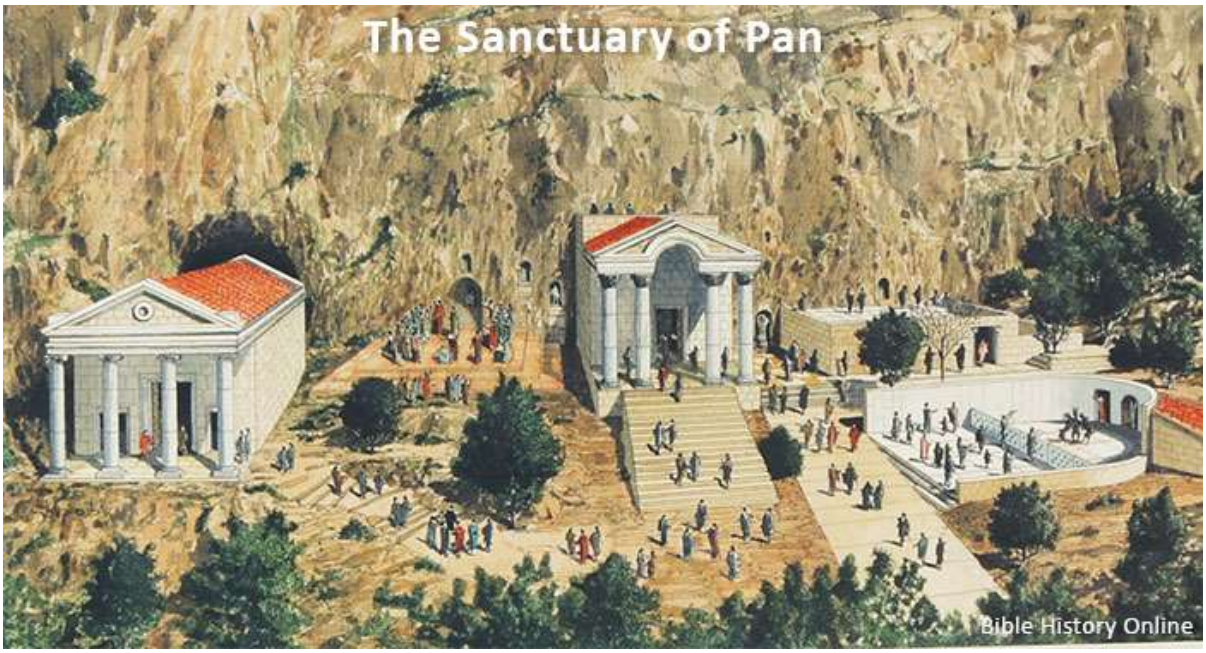
In the winter before His death Jesus Christ brought His disciples to Caesarea Philippi where He revealed to His disciples for the first time that He was indeed the Jewish Messiah. The city of Caesarea Philippi, also known as ancient Paneas was situated way in the north about 30 miles past the Sea of Galilee on a terrace at the foot of Mount Hermon on its southern slope, about 1150 feet above sea level. The area had an unusually beautiful setting, it was very lush and full of life and it has always been one of the main sources of the Jordan River, Josephus saying that it was the chief source. The ancient Canaanites built a sanctuary to Baal at Paneas, the Greeks and Romans both built sanctuaries there because of the cave of Pan. Inside the cave was a seemingly bottomless pit with an unlimited quantity of water which made the pagans marvel.

Paneas was a peculiarly remarkable place in its natural appearance with a sweeping view of the upper Jordan River Valley. Josephus considered it the main source of nthe Jordan River, and the ancient Greeks claimed the water that fed the Jordan actually flowed from the nearby cave. Later Josephus reported that an earthquake altered the area so the water source changed to underground springs in front of the cave. The area produced a lush oasis of life and overlooked the very fertile northern portion of the Jordan River Valley. It was located near the city of Dan 4 miles to the east near a trade road coming from the western Phoenician ports of Tyre and Sidon, to Damascus which was about 40 miles to the northeast.



The Place of Jesus' Great Revelation

Caesarea Philippi was mentioned only twice in the Bible, both referring to the same event where Jesus chose to reveal to His disciples that He was the Messiah. He also announced His coming death in Jerusalem and the end of His earthly ministry and beginning of theirs. It is a mystery why Jesus shose this place to reveal who He was to His disciples, so far north of the Sea of Galilee, yet there are some interesting clues. Caesarea Philippi was the location the Cave of Pan, the place of the pagan Gate of Hades. It was in this area that the first king of Israel (Jeroboam) led the northern kingdom of Israel into idolatry. This was also the same place where the Greeks and Romans received revelations from the god Pan who was mentioned in classical writings as a "seer" or fortune teller and a giver of revelations. At Caesarea Philippi Jesus turned to His disciples and asked them who the multitudes thought He was. They responded that some thought He was John the Baptist, some Elijah, and others Jeremiah or one of the prophets. Then Jesus asked them who they thought He was and Peter answered, "you are the Christ the Son of the living God" (Matthew 16:15-16). Jesus blessed Peter and revealed to them "upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hades shall not prevail against it." Matthew 16:18

The Cave of Pan

The Cave of Pan (or Grotto of Pan) was amazing because of many reasons, the waters flowed out of the cave and fed the Jordan River, there was a bottomless pit inside that contained so much water that it could not be measured. The place was so striking that it impressed Alexander the Great, and the Greeks built a sanctuary there. Natural features not only impressed the Greeks but they believed them to be a dwelling place of the gods, and nothing produced more awe and terror than a place identified as a cave where the god Pan dwelt. He was responsible for the scary noises in the forest and many mysteries were associated with him that brought great fear. The Romans were heavily influenced by the Greeks and they followed many of their religious traditions. Today the cave can be seen by any tourist in Israel.

Josephus on the Cave at Paneas, Caesarea Philippi

"So when he had conducted Caesar to the sea, and was returned home, he built him a most beautiful temple, of the whitest stone in Zenodorus's country, near the place called Panium (Panias, Caesarea Philippi). This is a very fine cave in a mountain, under which there is a great cavity in the earth, and the cavern is abrupt, and prodigiously deep, and full of a still water; over it hangs a vast mountain; and under the caverns arise the springs of the river Jordan. Herod adorned this place, which was already a very remarkable one, still further by the erection of this temple, which he dedicated to Caesar." - Josephus, Antiquities of the Jews 15,10,3

"And when Caesar had further bestowed upon him another additional country, he built there also a temple of white marble, hard by the fountains of Jordan: the place is called Panium (Panias, Caesarea Philippi), where is a top of a mountain that is raised to an immense height, and at its side, beneath, or at its bottom, a dark cave opens itself; within which there is a horrible precipice, that decends abruptly to a vast depth: it contains a mighty quantity of water, which is immovable; and when anybody lets down anything to measure the depth of the earth beneath the water, no length of cord is sufficient to reach it. Now the fountains of Jordan rise at the roots of this cavity outwardly; and, as some think, this is the utmost origin of Jordan." - Josephus, Wars of the Jews 1,21,3

NOTE: An earthquake has shifted the flow of water from the cave itself and diverted it somewhat but it is still remains the main source of water to the Jordan River and Land.

“The Gates of Hades”

Caesarea Philippi and the Gates of Hell https://elliotritzema.com/2016/11/12/caesarea-philippi-and-the-gates-of-hell/

https://www.thattheworldmayknow.com/gates-of-hell-article

Caesarea Philippi, which stood in a lush area near the foot of Mount Hermon, was a city dominated by immoral activities and pagan worship.

Caesarea Philippi stood only twenty-five miles from the religious communities of Galilee. But the city's religious practices were vastly different from those of the nearby Jewish towns.

In Old Testament times, the northeastern area of Israel became a center for Baal worship. In the nearby city of Dan, Israelite king Jeroboam built the high place that angered God and eventually led the Israelites to worship false gods. Eventually, worship of the baals was replaced with worship of Greek fertility gods.

Caesarea Philippi, which stood in a lush area near the foot of Mount Hermon, became the religious center for worship of the Greek god, Pan. The Greeks named the city Panias in his honor.

Years later, when Romans conquered the territory, Herod Philip rebuilt the city and named it after himself. But Caesarea Philippi continued to focus on worship of Greek gods. In the cliff that stood above the city, local people built shrines and temples to Pan.

Interestingly, Jesus chose to deliver a sort of "graduation speech" to his disciples at Caesarea Philippi. In that pagan setting, he encouraged his disciples to build a church that would overcome the worst evils.

The Gates of Hell

To the pagan mind, the cave at Caesarea Philippi created a gate to the underworld, where fertility gods lived during the winter. They committed detestable acts to worship these false gods.

Caesarea Philippi's location was especially unique because it stood at the base of a cliff where spring water flowed. At one time, the water ran directly from the mouth of a cave set in the bottom of the cliff.

The pagans of Jesus' day commonly believed that their fertility gods lived in the underworld during the winter and returned to earth each spring. They saw water as a symbol of the underworld and thought that their gods traveled to and from that world through caves.

To the pagan mind, then, the cave and spring water at Caesarea Philippi created a gate to the underworld. They believed that their city was literally at the gates of the underworld%u2014the gates of hell. In order to entice the return of their god, Pan, each year, the people of Caesarea Philippi engaged in horrible deeds, including prostitution and sexual interaction between humans and goats.

When Jesus brought his disciples to the area, they must have been shocked. Caesarea Philippi was like a red-light district in their world and devout Jews would have avoided any contact with the despicable acts committed there.

It was a city of people eagerly knocking on the doors of hell.

Jesus' Challenge

Jesus presented a clear challenge with his words at Caesarea Philippi: He didn't want his followers hiding from evil: He wanted them to storm the gates of hell.

Standing near the pagan temples of Caesarea Philippi, Jesus asked his disciples "Who do you say that I am?" Peter boldly replied, "You are the Son of the living God." The disciples were probably stirred by the contrast between Jesus, the true and living God, and the false hopes of the pagans who trusted in "dead" gods.

Jesus continued, "You are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overcome it" (see Matt. 16:13-20).

Though Christian traditions debate the theological meaning of those words, it seems clear that Jesus? words also had symbolic meaning. His church would be built on the "rock" of Caesarea Philippi – a rock literally filled with niches for pagan idols, where ungodly values dominated.

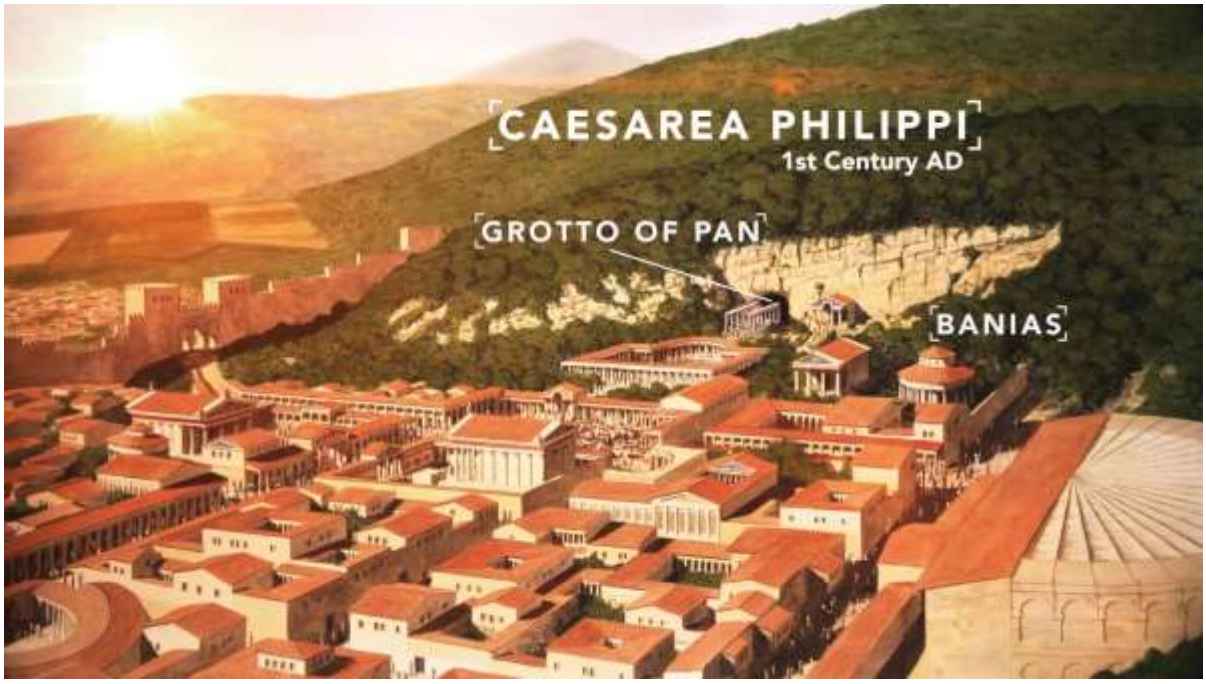
Gates were defensive structures in the ancient world. By saying that the gates of hell would not overcome, Jesus suggested that those gates were going to be attacked.

Standing as they were at a literal "Gate of Hades," the disciples may have been overwhelmed by Jesus' challenge. They had studied under their rabbi for several years, and now he was commissioning them to a huge task: to attack evil, and to build the church on the very places that were most filled with moral corruption.

Jesus presented a clear challenge with his words at Caesarea Philippi: He didn't want his followers hiding from evil: He wanted them to storm the gates of hell.

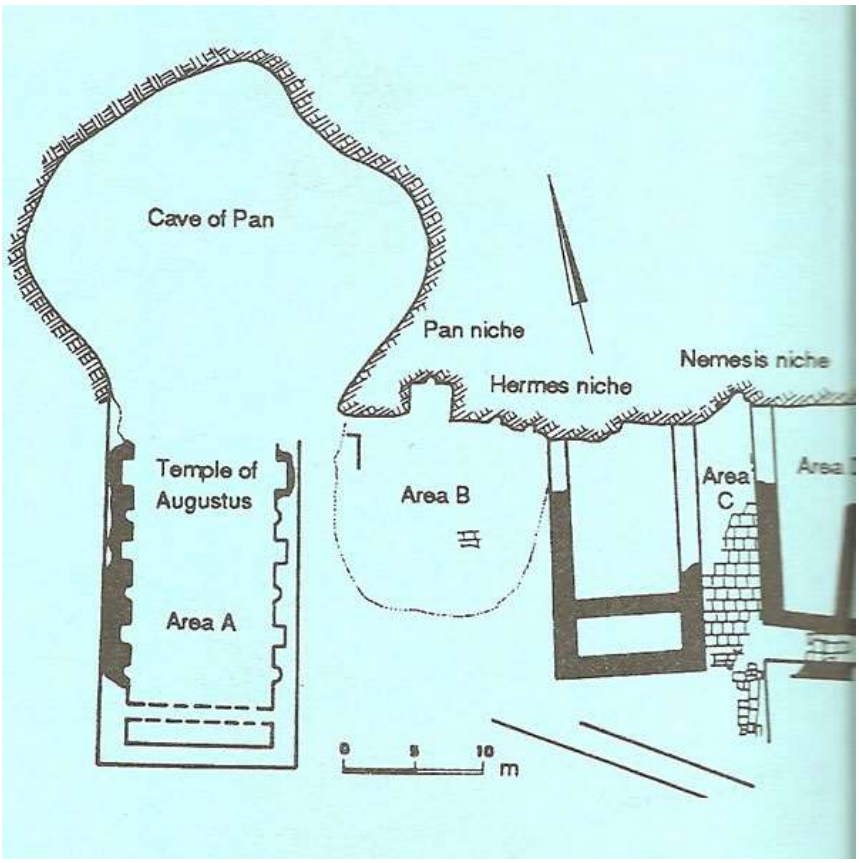
The Gates of Hell -- Caesarea Philippi (Banis)
http://www.discoverthebiblelands.com/resources/the-gates-of-hell/

Through ages past, even before Joshua came into the Land, this was an established pagan place of worship.



The worshippers believed the ancient fertility gods would descend into this cave to hell – and died/slept – until spring. At the end of winter the pagans would gather for orgies and other ceremonies to entice the gods to come back to life again (resurrection) and make the land fertile for the next growing season. This place was known to the early ancients as the “gates of hell.”

In Matthew 16, Jesus is on His way to Jerusalem to be crucified but on the way He makes a stop at Caesarea Philippi. He brings his disciples to the very center of the ancient, Greek, and Roman false pagan worship!



Jesus. brings His disciples to Caesarea Philippi (Banis). He builds a contrast between stone gods and evil… and the LIVING God.

Reversing Hermon by Dr. Michael S. Heiser

The “gates of hell” incident (Matthew 16:13–20) in Jesus’ ministry is familiar to most Bible students. However, the geography is unfortunately ignored, an oversight that prevents us from understanding the impact of what Jesus said and did in a region theologically tethered to the Watchers.

The events of Matthew 16:13–20 took place at Caesarea Philippi, a city located in the northern part of what had been called Bashan, at the foot of Mount Hermon. [173] Jesus asked the disciples a famous question, “Who do people say that I am?” Peter answered, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” Then Jesus followed with this:

> Blessed are you, Simon Bar-Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not be able to withstand it. (Matthew 16:17–18)

This passage is among the most controversial in the Bible, as it is a focal point of debate between Roman Catholics and Protestants. The former argue that Peter is the rock upon which the church is established and thus the passage makes Peter the leader of the original church (and the first pope). Protestants insist the rock is a reference to God on analogy of passages like 1 Corinthians 10:4.

Both of these traditional understandings are incorrect. The reference to the rock is the place where they are standing—Caesarea Philippi at the foot of Mount Hermon. The apostate King Jereboam built an idolatrous worship center there (1 Kings 12) and the city adopted the worship of Baal practiced by the Canaanites since the days of Joshua in their city Baal-Gad (Joshua 11:17; cp. Judges 3:3). In Jesus’ day, Caesarea Philippi was also called Panias, having been dedicated to the worship of Pan.

When viewed from this perspective, the scene takes place on geography considered the gates of hell in Old Testament times, the domain of Baal, the lord of the dead, and at the mountain where the plot of the Watchers was hatched. Hell, of course, wouldn’t be complete without the devil. It is well known to scholars that Baal is the Old Testament counterpart to the devil. In Ugaritic, one of Baal’s titles is baʿal zebulʾar ṣ (“Prince Baal of the Underworld”), from which the New Testament Beelzebul and Beelzebub derive. [174] This isn’t about who gets to be pope (or not). It’s a cosmic confrontation, with Jesus challenging the authority of the lord of the dead.

The theological messaging couldn’t be more dramatic. Jesus says the “gates of hell” will not prevail against the church. We often think of this phrase as though God’s people are in a posture of having to bravely fend off Satan and his demons. This simply isn’t correct. Gates are defensive structures, not offensive weapons. The kingdom of God is the aggressor.

Jesus goes to ground zero in biblical demonic geography to announce that Bashan will be defeated. It is the gates of hell that are under assault—and they will not hold up against the church. Hell has no claim on those who align themselves with Jesus. He will reverse the curse of death and His own will rise on account of Him.

JESUS TRANSFIGURED—MOSES AND ELIAS APPEAR—A LUNATIC CURED: "HELP THOU MINE UNBELIEF"

A.D. 29 Age 32. On, and near, Mt. Hermon.

Luke 9: 28-42; Matthew 17: 1-21; Mark 9: 2-29.

Now it came to pass, about eight $57_{\pm}$ days after these sayings, Jesus took Peter, James, and John his brother, and went up into a high mountain apart to pray; and Jesus was transfigured before them. [see Extra Note 1]

As he prayed, the appearance of his face was altered: his face shone as the sun, and his clothes became white as the light and glistening, shining as snow, exceeding white, so as no launderer $57^{\wedge}$ on earth can white them. And behold, two men talked with him, who were Moses and Elijah, who appeared in glory and spoke of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem.

But Peter and those with him were heavy with sleep; and when they were fully awake, they saw his glory and the two men who stood with him.

Then it happened, as they were parting from him, that Peter said to Jesus, “Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles: one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah” — not knowing what he said.

While he was saying this, a cloud came and overshadowed them; and they were fearful as they entered the cloud. And a voice came out of the cloud, saying, “This is My beloved Son. Hear him!”

And the disciples having heard, did fall upon their face, and were exceedingly afraid, and Jesus having come near, touched them, and said, “Rise, do not be afraid.”

Suddenly, when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man any more, save Jesus only.

And as they are coming down from the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying, 'Don’t tell anyone about the vision, until the Son of man has been raised from the dead.'

They kept his word to themselves, questioning what the rising from the dead meant.

And they asked him, saying, “Why do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?”

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Then he answered and told them, “Indeed, Elijah is coming first and restores all things. And how is it written concerning the Son of man, that he must suffer many things and be treated with contempt?

“But I say to you that Elijah has also come, and they did to him whatever they wished, as it is written of him.”

Likewise the Son of man is also about to suffer by them [at their hands].

Then the disciples understood that he spoke to them about John the Baptist.

But they kept quiet, and told no one in those days any of the things they had seen.

Now it happened on the next day, when they had come down from the mountain:

And when he came to the disciples, he saw a great multitude around them, and scribes disputing with them. [see Extra Note 2]

Immediately, when they saw him, all the people were greatly amazed, and running to him, greeted him.

And he asked the scribes, “What are you discussing with them?”

Then one of the crowd answered and said, “Teacher, I brought you my son, who has a mute spirit. Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is has seizures [see Extra Note 3] and suffers severely. And wherever it seizes him, it throws him down; he foams at the mouth, gnashes his teeth, and becomes rigid. So I spoke to your disciples, that they should cast it out, but they could not.”

He answered him and said, “O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I bear with you? Bring him to me.”

Then they brought him to Jesus. And when he saw Jesus, immediately the spirit convulsed him, and he fell on the ground and wallowed, foaming at the mouth.

So he asked his father, “How long has this been happening to him?” And he said, “From childhood. And often it has thrown him both into the fire and into the water to destroy him. But if you can do anything, have compassion on us and help us.”

Jesus said to him, “If you can believe, all things are possible to him who believes.”

Immediately the father of the child cried out and said with tears, “Lord, I believe; help my unbelief!”

When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it: “Deaf and dumb spirit, I command you, come out of him and enter him no more!”

Then the spirit cried out, convulsed him greatly, and came out of him. And he became as one dead, so that many said, “He is dead.”

But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he arose (the child was cured from that very hour); and Jesus gave him back to the father.

When Jesus had come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, “Why could we not cast it out?”

Jesus answered, “Because of your unbelief; for truly, I say to you, if you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you. [see Extra Note 4]

“However, this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting.”

Note: Matthew and Mark say "after six days," referring to full days while Luke includes parts of days (including the day on which “these sayings” were spoken and that of the Transfiguration).

Peter, James and John — partners before in secular [fishing] business; now the ‘inner circle’ of disciples and sole witnesses of the resurrection of Jairus' daughter (Mk 5:37), the current transfiguration, and the coming agony in the garden (Mk 14:33).

onto a mountain — Although Mount Tabor [10 mi. (16 km) SW of the Sea of Galilee] is the traditional site of the Mount of Transfiguration, its distance from Caesarea Philippi (the vicinity of the last scene), its height (about 1,800 feet) and its occupation by a fortress make it unlikely. Mount Hermon [40 mi. (64 km) NE of the Sea of Galilee] fits the context much better by being both closer and higher (over 9,000 feet; see Mk 9:2). [Source: NIV ’08 Study Bible Notes]

Extra Note 3:
After the glory on the mountain, Jesus returned to a scene of suffering and unbelief. The suffering looks like a case of epilepsy (has seizures translates a rare word meaning lit. 'is affected by the moon', but the symptoms sound like epilepsy), but Jesus clearly treated it as demon-possession. The unbelief was that of the whole generation, but was focused in the disciples' failure to help the sufferer, through their little faith. Indeed, v 20 implies that on this occasion they had no faith at all, since there is nothing smaller than a mustard seed! The 'amount' of faith is not important; even the smallest is enough. What matters is the God in whom that faith is placed, who can achieve the proverbially impossible (moving mountains). [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Extra Note 4:
Moving a mountain was a common metaphor in Jewish literature for doing what was seemingly impossible (cf. Isa 40:4; 49:11; 54:10; Matt 21:21-22). [Source: ESV Study Bible note]
'Moving mountains' was a phrase used by the rabbis to describe overcoming seemingly impossible difficulties... If we pray in this way, we can give thanks for the result before we see it, for the answer is sure in the will and purpose of God.

JESUS FORETELLS HIS DEATH AND RESURRECTION—EXHORTS TO HUMILITY—TRIBUTE: THE FISH AND THE COIN

A.D. 29. Age 32. Galilee. Capernaum.

Mark 9: 30-37; Luke 9: 44-48; Matthew 17: 22-27.

Then they departed from there and passed through Galilee, and Jesus did not want anyone to know it. Now while they were staying in Galilee, he taught his disciples. And they were all amazed at the majesty of God.

But while everyone marveled at all the things which Jesus did, he said to them, "Let these words sink down into your ears: the Son of man shall be betrayed into the hands of men, and they will kill him. And after he is killed, he will rise the third day."

They were exceedingly sorrowful, but they did not understand this saying (it was hidden from them so that they did not perceive it), and were afraid to ask him.

Then he came to Capernaum. And when he was in the house he asked them, "What was it you disputed among yourselves on the road?"

But they kept silent, for on the road they had disputed among themselves who would be the greatest. And he sat down, called the twelve, and said to them, "If anyone desires to be first, he shall be last of all and servant of all."

Then he called a little child and set him in the midst of them. And when He had taken him in his arms, he said to them, "Whoever receives one of these little children in my name receives me; and whoever receives me, receives not me but him who sent me."

When they had come to Capernaum, those who received the temple tax came to Peter and said, "Does your Teacher not pay the temple tax?" He said, "Yes."
[see Extra Note 1]

And when he had come into the house, Jesus anticipated 60* him, saying, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings of the earth take customs or taxes, from their sons or from strangers?"

Peter said to him, "From strangers."

Jesus said to him, "Then the sons are free.

"Nevertheless, lest we offend them, go to the sea, cast in a hook, and take the fish that comes up first. And when you have opened its mouth, you will find a piece of money; 60^ take that and give it to them for me." 60† [see Extra Note 2]

Footnotes

60:* The KJV says …prevented him: anticipated him, in the sense of spoke first.

60:^ piece of money – a Greek stater: a stater was a silver Greek coin worth about four drachmae; thus, the single coin could pay the temple tax (two-drachma) for two people.

60:† For "Render unto Cesar the things which be Cesar's," turn forward to Chapter LXVII in this book.

Extra Note 1:
temple (two-drachma) tax. The annual temple tax required of every male 20 years of age and older. It was worth half a shekel (approximately two days' wages), or two drachmas, and was used for the upkeep of the temple. [Source NIV Study Bible note] the double drachma (temple) tax; a sum equal to two Attic drachmas, and corresponding to the Jewish "half-shekel," payable, towards the maintenance of the temple and its services, by every male Jew of twenty years old and upward… Thus, it will be observed, it was not a civil, but an ecclesiastical tax. The tax mentioned in Matthew 17:25 was a civil one. The whole teaching of this very remarkable scene depends upon this distinction. [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown commentary]

(For the origin of the temple tax see Ex 30:13; 2Ch 24:9; Ne 10:32)

Extra Note 2:
While most Jews resented Roman taxation, the annual payment of the Jewish two-drachma tax for the upkeep of the temple and its services was a matter of national pride. The collectors' question suggests that Jesus now had a reputation for not conforming to social expectations. And Jesus here asserted his independence, in principle: as God's son he was exempt (cf. Matthew 12:5-6: 'one greater than the temple is here'), but he was willing to pay the tax in order to avoid giving offence. Jesus was quite capable of giving offence when the cause warranted it (see Matthew 15:12-14 and especially Ch. 23!), but this was not such an issue. We are not told whether Peter went fishing, or whether he succeeded. The point of the story is not in the proposed miracle but in Jesus' attitude to social conventions. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Drachmae, the standard unit of silver coinage, were minted on different weight standards at different ancient Greek mints. The standard that came to be most commonly used was the Athenian or Attic one. The ancient Roman denarius is a close equivalent.

In the Roman currency system, the denarius (plural: denarii) was a silver coin first minted about 211 BC during the Second Punic War. It became the most common coin produced for circulation but was slowly debased in weight and silver content until its replacement by the double denarius, early in the 3rd century AD. The word denarius is derived from the Latin dēnī "containing ten", as its value was 10 asses, although in the middle of the 2nd century BC it was recalibrated so that it was now worth sixteen asses [the as (plural asses), also assarius was a bronze, and later copper, coin].

Note: The Bible refers to the denarius as a day's wage for a common laborer (Matthew 20:2, John 12:5).

JOHN ANSWERED: "FORBID HIM NOT"— SALT—"HAVE PEACE WITH ONE ANOTHER"

A.D. 29. Age 32 Capernaum.

Mark 9: 38-50; Luke 9: 49-50.

John 60± said, “Teacher, we saw someone who does not follow us casting out demons in your name, and we forbade him because he does not follow us.”
[see Extra Note 1]

But Jesus said, “Do not forbid him, for no one who works a miracle in my name can soon afterward speak evil of me. For he who is not against us is on our side.
[see Extra Note 2]

“For whoever gives you a cup of water to drink in my name, because you belong to the Messiah (Christ), truly, I say to you, he will by no means lose his reward.

“But whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble, it would be better for him if a millstone were hung around his neck, and he were thrown into the sea. If your hand causes you to sin, cut it off. It is better for you to enter into life maimed, rather than having two hands, to go to hell, into the fire that shall never be quenched — where ‘Their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.’ 61^

“And if your foot causes you to sin, cut it off. It is better for you to enter life lame, rather than having two feet, to be cast into hell, into the fire that shall never be quenched — where ‘Their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.’ 61^

“And if your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out. It is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye, rather than having two eyes, to be cast into hell fire — where ‘Their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched.’ 61^

“For everyone will be seasoned with fire, and every sacrifice will be seasoned with salt. Salt is good, but if the salt loses its flavor, how will you season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace with one another.”

Footnotes

60:‡ John: brother of James, and son of Zebedee.

61:^ Their worm does not die, and the fire is not quenched - references Isaiah 66:24, which speaks of the punishment for rebellion against God. As the final word of Isaiah's message, the passage became familiar as a picture of endless destruction. worm does not die. Worms were always present in the rubbish dump. [Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]
Original word for 'worm' could also be translated "maggot'.
Note: some early Greek manuscripts only have the 3rd occurrence of this OT quote (Mark 9:48, and not v44 nor v46).

Extra Note 1:
In this connection John remembered how they had treated a man who was casting out demons in the power of the name of Jesus and yet was not commissioned to do so as one of the Twelve. He was not to be despised, said Jesus, for a person who is not against you is on your side. See 11:23 for another side to this truth. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Extra Note 2:
Many have taken this passage as a rebuke by Jesus against sectarianism of any kind -- approving "Christians" of any group. Yes, to a degree; however: http://www.bibleanswer.com/against.htm

Extra Note 3:
The kingdom of God is a serious matter; that is why to put a spiritual stumbling-block in someone's way will be punished so severely (Mark 9:42). Indeed, the value of the kingdom of God is so great that no sacrifice is too great to make for it. Hand, foot, and eye stand for the most precious of human possessions, yet better lose them than the kingdom of God. Of course, this is meant metaphorically not literally, as some early fathers took it and as some fundamentalist non-Christian religions still understand it. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Extra Note 4:
Jesus spoke strongly about hell (Mark 9:48). It is the opposite of the kingdom of God, and there does not seem to be any 'third option'. Yet Jesus spoke of hell to believers in warning, not to sinners in condemnation. Isaiah 66:24, which Jesus quoted, describes Gehenna, the smouldering rubbish dump of Jerusalem, which was used as a picture of God's judgment on sin. Salt is another metaphor; it purifies, as fire does. If we purify ourselves now (there is no thought of some 'purgatory' after death), we will not come under God's judgment later. This is a very different concept from the hell of popular Buddhism or other faiths. If we are 'salted' like this with the values of the kingdom, we will not argue who is greatest but will live at peace with one another. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

"EXCEPT YE BECOME AS LITTLE CHILDREN"—HUMILITY AND FORGIVENESS— PARABLES: THE NINETY AND NINE, THE WICKED SERVANT—"WHERE TWO OR THREE ARE GATHERED TOGETHER"

A.D. 29. Age 32. Capernaum.

Matthew 18: 1-35.

At that time the disciples came to Jesus, saying, “Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven?”

Then Jesus called a little child to himself, set him in the midst of them, and said, 61* “Truly, I say to you, unless you are converted 62^ and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven.

“Therefore whoever humbles himself as this little child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. Whoever receives one little child like this in my name receives me.

“But whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble, it would be better for him to have a heavy millstone hung around his neck, and to be drowned in the depth of the sea.

“Woe to the world because of offenses! For offenses must come, but woe to that man by whom the offense comes!

“If your hand or foot causes you to sin, cut it off and cast it from you. It is better for you to enter into life lame or maimed, rather than having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the everlasting fire.

“And if your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out and cast it from you. It is better for you to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes, to be cast into hell.

“Take heed that you do not despise one of these little ones, for I say to you that in heaven their angels always see the face of my Father who is in heaven. For the Son of man has come to save that which was lost.

62* “What do you think? If a man has a hundred sheep, and one of them goes astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine and go to the mountains to seek the one that is straying? And if he should find it, truly, I say to you, he rejoices more over that sheep than over the ninety-nine that did not go astray. Even so it is not the will of your Father who is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.

"Moreover if your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone. If he hears you, you have gained your brother. But if he will not hear, take with you one or two more, that 'by the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established.' And if he refuses to hear them, tell it to the church. But if he refuses even to hear the church, let him be to you like a heathen and a tax collector.

"Truly, I say to you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven. 62†

"Again I say to you that if two of you agree on earth concerning anything that they ask, it will be done for them by my Father in heaven. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, I am there in the midst of them."

Then Peter came to him and said, "Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Up to seven times?"

Jesus said to him, "I do not say to you, up to seven times, but up to seventy times seven. [see Extra Note 1]

"Therefore the kingdom of heaven is like a certain king who wanted to settle accounts with his servants. And when he had begun to settle accounts, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents. [see Extra Note 2] But as he was not able to pay, his master commanded that he be sold, with his wife and children and all that he had, and that payment be made. The servant therefore fell down before him, saying, 'Master, have patience with me, and I will pay you all.' Then the master of that servant was moved with compassion, released him, and forgave him the debt.

"But that servant went out and found one of his fellow servants who owed him a hundred denarii; [see extra note 3] and he laid hands on him and took him by the throat, saying, 'Pay me what you owe!' So his fellow servant fell down at his feet and begged him, saying, 'Have patience with me, and I will pay you all.' And he would not, but went and threw him into prison till he should pay the debt.

"So when his fellow servants saw what had been done, they were very grieved, and came and told their master all that had been done. Then his master, after he had called him, said to him, 'You wicked servant! I forgave you all that debt because you begged me. Should you not also have had compassion on your fellow servant, just as I had pity on you?'

"And his master was angry, and delivered him to the torturers until he should pay all that was due to him. "So will my heavenly Father also do to you if each of you, from his heart, does not forgive his brother his trespasses."

61:* It is of interest to note that some of these sayings (from Matthew) addressed by Jesus to the disciples are like some of his sayings addressed to John (as reported by Mark in XLIII just preceding).

62:^ converted = turn, an active and voluntary turning from sin; repent. [The Greek word translated in "be converted," is found in the NT in the active voice in every instance but one, and means to turn. It means something that the subject is to do, not something that is to be done for him.
[Source: Matthew Poole's Commentary]

62:* Compare with similar parable from Luke (15, 4-7) in LVI in this book.

62:† Thus Jesus to the disciples (from Matthew). Turn back to XL in this book, and note the same promise, to Peter (also from Matthew).

Extra Note 1:
Seventy times seven (some interpreters read seventy-seven; cf. Genesis 4:24) does not really specify 490 (or 77) here with mathematical precision; it is a typically graphic, hyperbolic way of saying "Never hold grudges." Because true repentance should involve turning from sin, some later rabbis limited opportunities for forgiveness for a given sin to three times; Peter might have thought his offer of seven times was generous, until hearing Jesus' further expansion.

Extra Note 2:
In OT times, a talent was a unit of weight equaling about 75 pounds (34 kg). In NT times, it was a unit of monetary reckoning (though not an actual coin), valued at about 6,000 drachmas, the equivalent of about 20 years' wages for a laborer. (A common laborer earned about one denarius per day.) In approximate modern equivalents, if a laborer earns $15 per hour, at 2,000 hours per year he would earn $30,000 per year, and a talent would equal $600,000 (USD). Hence, "ten thousand talents" hyperbolically represents an incalculable debt — in today's terms, about $6 billion. [Source: ESV Study Bible note] hundred denarii - This was still a large amount (equivalent to about 20 weeks of common labor, or about $12,000 in today's terms), but compared to the debt that the wicked servant himself owed ($6 billion), it was a relatively small amount. The servant's unwillingness to forgive even this amount, though having been forgiven his own insurmountable debt, reveals the servant's true wicked character (Matthew 18:32) and that he has not in fact been transformed by the forgiveness that his master has extended to him. Extra Note 4:

A talent (Matthew 18:24) was equal to 6000 drachmas (the Greek name) or denarii (the Roman name). Since the drachma was equal to about a day's wages, it would take an average laborer almost 20 years to earn one talent. Ten thousand talents was thus equal to the lifetime earnings of the population of several good-sized villages. The man was forgiven 60 million drachmas but was unwilling to forgive 100. That is how Jesus compares our own sins against God with the sins others commit against us. Notice Jesus' statement that there is no hope of forgiveness unless we forgive (Matthew 18:35). AT THE FEAST OF THE TABERNACLE—OPINIONS DIVIDED

John 7: 1-46, 53, 8: 1.

After this, Jesus 63* traveled in Galilee, since he did not want to travel in Judea because the Jews were trying to kill him.

The Jewish Festival of Tabernacles [see Extra Note 1] was near, so his brothers said to him, “Leave here and go to Judea so your disciples can see your works that you are doing. For no one does anything in secret while he's seeking public recognition. If you do these things, show yourself to the world.” [see Extra Note 2]

(For not even his brothers believed in him.)

Then Jesus said to them, “My time has not yet come, but your time is always ready. The world cannot hate you, but it hates me because I testify of it that its works are evil. You go up to this feast. I am not yet going up to this feast, for my time has not yet fully come.”

When he had said these things to them, he remained in Galilee.

But when his brothers had gone up, then he also went up to the feast, not openly, but as it were in secret.

Then the Jews sought him at the feast, and said, “Where is he?”

And there was much complaining among the people concerning him. Some said, “He is good”; others said, “No, on the contrary, he deceives the people.” However, no one spoke openly of him for fear of the Jews.

Now about the middle of the feast Jesus went up into the temple and taught. And the Jews marveled, saying, “How does this man know letters, having never studied?”

Jesus answered them and said, “My doctrine is not mine, but his who sent me. “If anyone wills [chooses] to do his will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is from God or whether I speak on my own authority. He who speaks from himself seeks his own glory; but he who seeks the glory of the One who sent him is true, and no unrighteousness is in Him.

"Did not Moses give you the law, yet none of you keeps the law? Why do you seek to kill me?"

The people answered and said, "You have a demon. Who is seeking to kill you?"

Jesus answered and said to them, "I did one work, and you all marvel. Moses therefore gave you circumcision (not that it is from Moses, but from the fathers), and you circumcise a man on the Sabbath. If a man receives circumcision on the Sabbath, so that the law of Moses should not be broken, are you angry with me because I made a man completely well on the Sabbath?

"Do not judge according to appearance, but judge with righteous judgment."

Now some of them from Jerusalem said, "Is this not he whom they seek to kill? But look! He speaks boldly, and they say nothing to him. Do the rulers 63^ know indeed that this is truly the Christ [Messiah]? However, we know where this man is from; but when the Christ [Messiah] comes, no one knows where he is from." [see Extra Note 3]

Then Jesus cried out, as he taught in the temple, saying, "You both know me, and you know where I am from; and I have not come of myself, but he who sent me is true, whom you do not know. But I know him, for I am from him, and he sent me."

Therefore they sought to take him; but no one laid a hand on him, because his hour had not yet come.

And many of the people believed in him, and said, "When the Christ [Messiah] comes, will he do more signs than these which this man has done?"

The Pharisees heard the crowd murmuring these things concerning him, and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers to take him.

Then Jesus said to them, "I shall be with you a little while longer, and then I go to him who sent me.

"You will seek me and not find me, and where I am you cannot come." [see Extra Note 4]

On the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, "If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink. He who believes in me, as the scripture has said, out of his heart will flow rivers of living water." [see Extra Note 5]

64* (But this he spoke concerning the spirit, whom those believing in him would receive; for the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus was not yet glorified.)

Therefore many from the crowd, when they heard this saying, said, "Truly this is the Prophet." Others said, "This is the Christ [Messiah]." But some said, "Will the Christ come out of Galilee? Has not the Scripture said that the Christ comes from the seed of David and from the town of Bethlehem, where David was?" [see Extra Note 6]

So there was a division among the people because of Him. Now some of them wanted to take him, but no one laid hands on him.

And everyone went to his own house. But Jesus went to the Mount of Olives.

The Feast of Tabernacles – also known as the Feast of Booths. This was one of the three pilgrimage festivals of the Jewish year, occurring in the autumn after harvest. The Jews dwelt in booths made of the boughs of trees for the seven days of the festival. (See also Extra Note 5 below for more details)

Extra Note 2:
It is not clear whether the brothers claimed some knowledge of Jesus' miracles that other people did not have or were suggesting that any claim to Messiahship must be decided in Jerusalem. Their advice was not given sincerely, for they did not yet believe in Jesus (Matthew 7:5).

This seems to refer to some current opinion that Messiah's origin would be mysterious (not altogether wrong), from which they concluded that Jesus could not be he, since they knew all about his family at Nazareth. [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown]
Some rabbis taught that the Messiah would be wholly unknown until he set out to procure salvation for Israel.
[Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The discussion about the Christ which followed arose directly out of the previous comments. Some of the people were perplexed because the authorities were taking no action. Consequently they queried whether the authorities were concluding that Jesus was the Christ (John 7:26). But this raised another difficulty, for it was commonly supposed that the Messiah's coming would be secret. Jesus's answer was to cry out in the temple in the most public way. He challenged their assumption that they knew his true origin. What they knew about him was only partial. The most important part—that he had been sent —had totally escaped them. Jesus asserted that they did not know the one who sent him (John 7:28). They had not connected the mission of Jesus with God. John impresses on his narrative the impotence of any agency to thwart the timing of God's purposes; he notes the time had not yet come. John 7:30-31 brings out the division between those who were antagonistic and those who believed. The question asked in v 31 need not suppose that those who believed had necessarily grasped the deeper significance of the miraculous signs. Although signs were not generally associated with the expected Messiah, popular opinion seems here to have thought so.

Extra Note 4:
The Bible continues and interjects (John 7:35-36):

Then the Jews said among themselves, “Where does he intend to go that we shall not find him? Does he intend to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks? What is this thing that he said, ‘You will seek me and not find me, and where I am you cannot come’?”
Note: The (above) perplexity of the Jews is understandable, but shows their incapacity to think in spiritual terms. Their minds went to the dispersion, that is, Jews scattered among the Greeks. The irony of the situation is that John records later (John 12:20-22) that some Greeks sought out Jesus, and his readers would have known how the gospel had spread through the Gentile world.

stood and said in a loud voice. Teachers usually sat, so Jesus drew special attention to his message.

Though it is not mentioned in the OT, the Jews had a ceremony of carrying water from the Pool of Siloam and pouring it into a silver basin by the altar of burnt offering each day for the first seven days of the Feast of Booths. On the eighth day this was not done, making Christ's offer of the water of eternal life from Himself even more startling.
[Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]

The seventh (and final) feast given to Israel is called Sukkot or the "Feast of Tabernacles." Sukkot is observed in the fall, from the 15th to the 22nd of Tishri. During this time many Jewish families construct a sukkah, a small hastily built hut in which meals are eaten throughout the festival.

The sukkah is used to remember the huts [plural: sukkot] Israel lived in during their 40 year sojourn in the desert after the exodus from Egypt. Later, after Israel entered the land of promise, Sukkot was associated with the fall harvest and came to be known as Chag ha-Asif (the "Festival of Ingathering" (of the harvest) at the end of the year.

While the Torah states that the Feast of Tabernacles (Sukkot) is a seven day holiday (Lev. 23:34; Deut. 16:13), an additional day called "Shmini Atzeret" is also included (Lev. 23:36; Num. 29:35). And since Sukkot marked the end of the agricultural year, a further holiday called Simchat Torah was added to celebrate the end of Torah reading cycle for the year as well. Sukkot is celebrated for eight days in Israel and nine days in the Diaspora. In Israel the eighth day of Sukkot combines both Shmini Atzeret and Simchat Torah, whereas in the Diaspora, the eighth day of the holiday is Shmini Atzeret and the ninth day is Simchat Torah. During the first and last [eighth] days of Sukkot no normal "work" (melakhah) is permitted (see Lev. 23:39). The intervening days of Sukkot are called Chol Ha-Mo'ed, half-holidays during which usual work activities are permitted. Since it is an eight day festival, there will always be at least one Sabbath that occurs during the festival.

the Christ . . . comes from (Bethlehem). The irony is apparent, for they did not realize that Bethlehem was in fact Jesus' birthplace.
[Source: ESV Bible Study notes]

The immediate result of these sayings of Jesus was further discussion about his identity. There were three views — a prophet, the Christ [Messiah], not the Christ [Messiah]. The latter view was claimed to be supported by Scripture, but the Jews appear to have been ignorant of Jesus' birth in Bethlehem (cf. Micah 5:2). Note: For the third time there is recorded in this chapter (John 7) a desire to arrest Jesus which ended in failure. (Because it was not his time.)

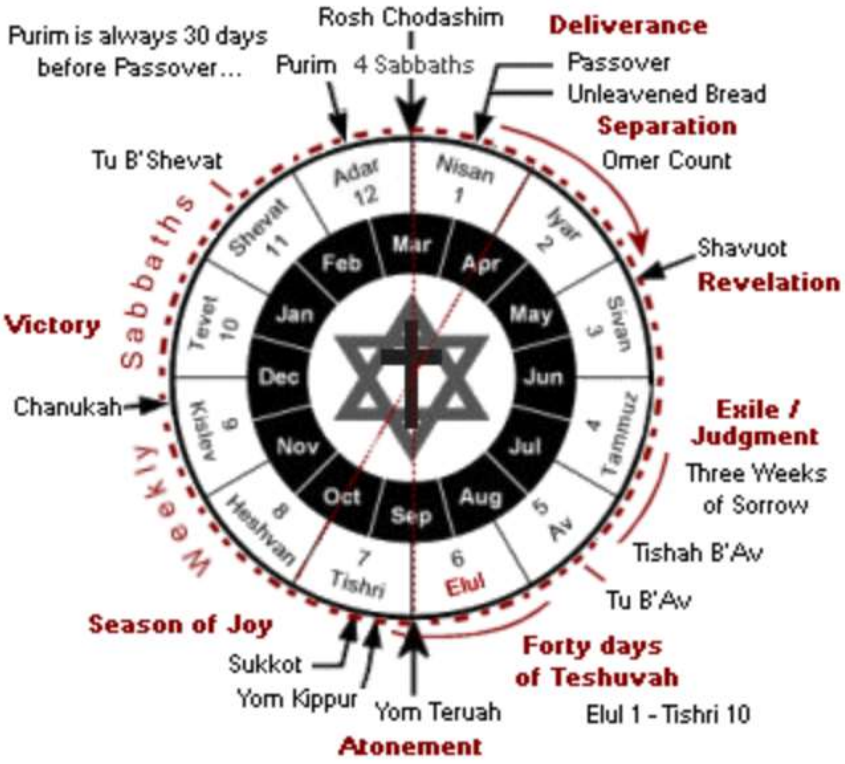
Summary of John, Chapter 7:



Jesus delays going up to Jerusalem for one of Judaism's three required religious festivals. Then He travels incognito (v. 1-13). Halfway through the eight-day festival Jesus begins teaching publicly in the temple courtyard. Jesus attributes His teaching directly to God, rather than rabbinical "seminary training," and insists anyone who chooses to do God's will, will recognize it. When challenged, He bluntly states that the judgment of the religious leaders is flawed and that they do not keep the Law they claim to honor (v. 14-24).

Widespread speculation that Jesus is the Christ angers the leaders even as His sayings puzzle them (v. 25-36). But the crowds also hesitate when, on the last day of the festival, Jesus calls on His listeners to believe in Him (v. 37-44). The religious leaders' fury is intensified when their own guards refuse to arrest Jesus, and Nicodemus, one of their number, hesitantly defends Him. It's clear that the leaders absolutely refuse to believe Jesus could be the Christ (v. 45-52).

A WOMAN'S ACCUSERS SHAMED—CHRIST CONFUTES THE JEWS—"I AM THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD"—"THE TRUTH SHALL MAKE YOU FREE"—"I SEEK NOT MINE OWN GLORY"—"BEFORE ABRAHAM WAS, I AM"—HE ELUDES THE MOB

A.D. 29. Age 32. Jerusalem.

John 8: 2-59.

Now early in the morning Jesus came again into the temple, and all the people came to him; and he sat down and taught them.

Then the scribes and Pharisees brought to him a woman caught in adultery. 65‡

And when they had set her in the midst, they said to him, “Teacher, this woman was caught in adultery, in the very act. Now Moses, in the law, commanded us that such should be stoned. But what do you say?”

This they said, testing him, that they might have something of which to accuse him.

But Jesus stooped down and wrote on the ground with his finger, as though he did not hear. So when they continued asking him, he raised himself up hand said to them, “He who is without sin among you, let him throw a stone at her first.”

And again he stooped down and wrote on the ground. Then those who heard it, being convicted by their conscience, went out one by one, beginning with the oldest even to the last. And Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

When Jesus had raised himself up and saw no one but the woman, he said to her, “Woman, where are those accusers of yours? Has no one condemned you?”

She said, “No one, Lord.” And Jesus said to her, “Neither do I condemn you; go and sin no more.”

Then Jesus spoke to the people again, saying, “I am the light of the world. He who follows me shall not walk in darkness, but have the light of life.” [see Extra Note 1]

The Pharisees therefore said to him, “You bear witness of yourself; your witness is not true.”

Jesus answered and said to them, “Even if I bear witness of myself, my witness is true, for I know where I came from and where I am going; but you do not know where I come from and where I am going.

“You judge according to the flesh; I judge no one. And yet if I do judge, my judgment is true; for I am not alone, but I am with the Father who sent me.

“It is also written in your law that the testimony of two men is true. I am one who bears witness of myself, and the Father who sent me bears witness of me.”

Then they said to him, “Where is your Father?”

Jesus answered, “You know neither me nor my Father. If you had known me, you would have known my Father also.”

These words Jesus spoke in the treasury [see Extra Note 2], as he taught in the temple; and no one laid hands on Him, for his hour had not yet come.

Then Jesus said to them again, “I am going away, and you will seek me, and will die in your sin. Where I go you cannot come.”

So the Jews said, “Will he kill himself, because he says, ‘Where I go you cannot come’?”

And he said to them, “You are from beneath; I am from above. You are of this world; I am not of this world. Therefore I said to you that you will die in your sins; for if you do not believe that I am He, you will die in your sins.”

Then they said to him, “Who are you?”

And Jesus said to them, “Just what I have been saying to you from the beginning.

“I have many things to say and to judge concerning you, but he who sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I heard from him.”

They did not understand that he spoke to them of the Father.

Then Jesus said to them, “When you lift up the Son of man, then you will know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myself; but as my Father taught me, I speak these things. And he who sent me is with me. The Father has not left me alone, for I always do those things that please him.”

As he spoke these words, many believed in him.

Then Jesus said to those Jews who believed him, "If you abide in my word, you are my disciples indeed. And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

They answered him, "We are Abraham's descendants, and have never been in bondage to anyone. How can you say, 'You will be made free'?"

Jesus answered them, "Most assuredly, I say to you, whoever commits sin is a slave of sin. And a slave does not abide in the house forever, but a son abides forever. Therefore if the Son makes you free, you shall be free indeed.

"I know that you are Abraham's descendants, but you seek to kill me, because my word has no place in you. I speak what I have seen with my Father, and you do what you have seen with your father."

They answered and said to him, "Abraham is our father."

Jesus said to them, "If you were Abraham's children, you would do the works of Abraham. But now you seek to kill me, a man who has told you the truth which I heard from God. Abraham did not do this. You do the deeds of your father."

Then they said to Him, "We were not born of fornication; we have one Father — God."

Jesus said to them, "If God were your Father, you would love me, for I proceeded forth and came from God; nor have I come of myself, but he sent me.

"Why do you not understand my speech? Because you are not able to listen to my word. You are of your father the devil, and the desires of your father you want to do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaks a lie, he speaks from his own resources, for he is a liar and the father of it.

"But because I tell the truth, you do not believe me. Which of you convicts me of sin? And if I tell the truth, why do you not believe me? He who is of God hears God's words; therefore you do not hear, because you are not of God."

Then the Jews answered and said to Him, "Do we not say rightly that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?"

Jesus answered, "I do not have a demon; but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. And I do not seek my own glory; there is One who seeks and judges.

"Most assuredly, I say to you, if anyone keeps my word he shall never see death."

Then the Jews said to Him, "Now we know that you have a demon! Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and you say, 'If anyone keeps my word he shall never taste death.' Are you greater than our father Abraham, who is dead? And the prophets are dead. Who do you make yourself out to be?"

Jesus answered, “If I honor myself, my honor is nothing. It is my Father who honors me, of whom you say that he is your God. Yet you have not known him, but I know him. And if I say, ‘I do not know him,’ I shall be a liar like you; but I do know him and keep his word. Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it and was glad.”

Then the Jews said to Him, “You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?”

Jesus said to them, “Most assuredly, I say to you, before Abraham was, I AM.”

Then they took up stones to throw at him; but Jesus hid himself and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.

Footnotes

65:† In the Revised Version the account of this episode is enclosed in brackets. In the margin is this: "Most of the ancient authorities omit John 7:53 thru 8:11. Those which contain it vary much from each other."
- Opinions:
This story, though probably authentic, is omitted in many mss. and may not have been originally a part of this gospel. [Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]
There is considerable doubt that this story is part of John's original Gospel, for it is absent from all of the oldest manuscripts. But there is nothing in it unworthy of sound doctrine. It seems best to view the story as something that probably happened during Jesus' ministry but that was not originally part of what John wrote in his Gospel. Therefore it should not be considered as part of Scripture and should not be used as the basis for building any point of doctrine unless confirmed in Scripture.
[Source: ESV Study Bible note]
Most scholars agree that this section does not belong at this point in John. Most early MSS either omit it or mark it with asterisks to indicate doubt. A few MSS place it at the end of the gospel, and a few others after Lk 21:38. At the same time it has ancient attestation, and there is no reason to suppose that it does not represent genuine tradition. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Note: John 8:20, relating to Jesus being in (or near) the temple treasury, which was in the Court of Women, does add some genuineness as a place that women were brought.

Extra Note 1:
I am the light of the world — As the former references to water (Jn 4:13,14; 7:37-39) and to bread (Jn 6:35) were occasioned by outward occurrences, so this one to light. In "the [temple] treasury" where it was spoken (see John 8:20) stood two colossal golden lamp-stands, on which hung a multitude of lamps, lighted after the evening sacrifice (probably every evening during the feast of tabernacles), diffusing their brilliancy, it is said, over all the city. Around these the people danced with great rejoicing. Now, as amidst the festivities of the water from Siloam Jesus cried, saying, "If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink," so now amidst the blaze and the joyousness of this illumination, He proclaims, " I AM THE Light of the world " — plainly in the most absolute sense. For though He gives His disciples the same title, they are only "light in the Lord " (Ep 5:8); and though He calls the Baptist "the burning and shining light" (or " lamp " of his day, Jn 5:35), yet "he was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light: that was THE TRUE Light which, coming into the world, lighteth every man " (Jn 1:8,9). Under this magnificent title Messiah was promised of old (Isa 42:6; Mal 4:2, &c.). [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown]

Extra Note 2:
The Treasury was located in the section of the Temple called the Court of the Women. Jesus often taught there so that both men and women could hear him (Mk 12:41).
[Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

Treasuries were standard in ancient temples; the Jerusalem temple's wealthy treasury (containing money, expensive garments, and other goods) was said to adjoin the Court of Women, where the lighting ceremony (John 8:12) and dancing took place throughout the nights of the festival. The treasury itself may have been used only for storage, but 8:20 can be read, "near the treasury."

Summary of John, Chapter 8
Jesus is teaching again in the temple courts when the religious leaders drag in a woman caught in the act of adultery and challenge Him to sentence her. He avoids their trap by calling on "any one of you" who is without sin to cast the first stone-and one by one they leave (8:1-11). When Jesus next preaches He calls Himself the "Light of the world." When the Pharisees demand proof, Jesus points out that God, His Father, has already testified-through the miracles He has performed (v. 12-18). The confused Pharisees press the point, and Jesus bluntly warns them they will "die in their sins" unless they believe in Him (v. 19-30). It is foolish to rely on physical descent from Abraham, when spiritual kinship to the great patriarch is the real issue (v. 31-41). Antagonism to Jesus shows that they are in the spiritual line of Satan, not of Abraham, and are unrelated to God (v. 42-47). The furious leaders charge that Jesus is demon-possessed, but He calmly identifies Himself with the "I Am" (Yahweh*)* of the Old Testament (v. 48-58). His enemies realize that Jesus is claiming to be God and pick up stones, intent on stoning Him to death (v. 59). [Source: The Bible Reader's Companion]

JESUS HEALS MAN BORN BLIND—THE JEWS CROSSEXAMINE THE MAN—AGAIN: "I AM THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD"—PARABLE: "I AM THE DOOR. I AM THE GOOD SHEPHERD"—WINTER FEAST OF THE DEDICATION—AGAIN HE ELUDES THE JEWS

A.D. 29. Age 32. Jerusalem.

John 9: 1-41, 10: 1-18, 22-40.

Now as Jesus passed by, he saw a man who was blind from birth.

And His disciples asked him, saying, “Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?”

Jesus answered, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but that the works of God should be revealed in him.

“I must work the works of him who sent me while it is day; the night is coming when no one can work. As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.”

When he had said these things, He spat on the ground and made clay with the saliva; and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay. And he said to him, “Go, wash in the pool of Siloam” (which is translated, Sent).

So he went and washed, and came back seeing.

Therefore the neighbors and those who previously had seen that he was blind said, “Is not this he who sat and begged?” Some said, “This is he.” Others said, “He is like him.”

He said, “I am he.” Therefore they said to him, “How were your eyes opened?”

He answered and said, “A man called Jesus made clay and anointed my eyes and said to me, ‘Go to the pool of Siloam and wash.’ So I went and washed, and I received sight.”

Then they said to him, “Where is he?” He said, “I do not know.”

They brought him who formerly was blind to the Pharisees.

Now it was a Sabbath when Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes. Then the Pharisees also asked him again how he had received his sight. He said to them, “He put clay on my eyes, and I washed, and I see.”

Therefore some of the Pharisees said, “This man is not from God, because he does not keep the Sabbath.” Others said, “How can a man who is a sinner do such signs?” And there was a division among them.

They said to the blind man again, “What do you say about him because He opened your eyes?” He said, “He is a prophet.”

But the Jews did not believe concerning him, that he had been blind and received his sight, until they called the parents of him who had received his sight. And they asked them, saying, “Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?” His parents answered them and said, “We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; but by what means he now sees we do not know, or who opened his eyes we do not know. He is of age; ask him. He will speak for himself.”

His parents said these things because they feared the Jews, for the Jews had agreed already that if anyone confessed that he was Christ [Messiah], he would be put out of the synagogue. Therefore his parents said, “He is of age; ask him.”

So they again called the man who was blind, and said to him, “Give God the glory! We know that this man is a sinner.”

The man answered and said, “Whether he is a sinner or not I do not know. One thing I know: that though I was blind, now I see.”

Then they said to him again, “What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?”

He answered them, “I told you already, and you did not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become His disciples?”

Then they reviled him and said, “You are his disciple, but we are Moses’ disciples. We know that God spoke to Moses; as for this fellow, we do not know where he is from.”

The man answered and said to them, “Why, this is a marvelous thing, that you do not know where he is from; yet he has opened my eyes! Now we know that God does not hear sinners; but if anyone is a worshiper of God and does His will, He hears him. Since the world began it has been unheard of that anyone opened the eyes of one who was born blind. If this man were not from God, he could do nothing.”

They answered and said to him, “You were completely born in sins, and are you teaching us?” And they cast him out.

Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said to him, "Do you believe in the Son of God?"

He answered and said, "Who is he, Lord, that I may believe in him?"

And Jesus said to him, "You have both seen him and it is he who is talking with you."

Then he said, "Lord, I believe!" And he worshiped Him.

Jesus said, "For judgment I have come into this world, that those who do not see may see, and that those who see may be made blind."

Then some of the Pharisees who were with him heard these words, and said to him, "Are we blind also?"

Jesus said to them, "If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you say, 'We see.' Therefore your sin remains.

"Truly, truly, I say to you, he who does not enter the sheepfold by the door, but climbs up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber. But he who enters by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. To him the doorkeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice; and he calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. And when he brings out his own sheep, he goes before them; and the sheep follow him, for they know his voice. Yet they will by no means follow a stranger, but will flee from him, for they do not know the voice of strangers."

Jesus used this illustration, but they did not understand the things which he spoke to them.

Then Jesus said to them again, "Truly, truly, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep. "All who ever came before me are thieves and robbers, but the sheep did not hear them.

"I am the door. If anyone enters by me, he will be saved, and will go in and out and find pasture.

"The thief does not come except to steal, and to kill, and to destroy. I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly.

"I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd gives his life for the sheep. But a hireling, he who is not the shepherd, one who does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and flees; and the wolf catches the sheep and scatters them. The hireling flees because he is a hireling and does not care about the sheep.

"I am the good shepherd; and I know my sheep, and am known by my own. As the Father knows me, even so I know the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep.

“And other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they will hear my voice; and there will be one flock and one shepherd.

“Therefore my Father loves me, because I lay down my life that I may take it again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This command I have received from My Father.”

Therefore there was a division again among the Jews because of these sayings. And many of them said, “He has a demon and is mad. Why do you listen to him?” Others said, “These are not the words of one who has a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?”

Now it was the Feast of Dedication [Hanukkah] in Jerusalem, and it was winter. And Jesus walked in the temple, in Solomon's porch.

Then the Jews surrounded him and said to him, “How long do you keep us in doubt? If you are the Christ [Messiah], tell us plainly.”

Jesus answered them, “I told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me. But you do not believe, because you are not of my sheep, as I said to you. “My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me. And I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish; neither shall anyone snatch them out of my hand.

“My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all; and no one is able to snatch them out of my Father's hand.

“I and my Father are one.”

Then the Jews took up stones again to stone him.

Jesus answered them, “Many good works I have shown you from my Father. For which of those works do you stone me?”

The Jews answered him, saying, “For a good work we do not stone you, but for blasphemy, and because you, being a man, make yourself God.”

Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your law, ‘I said, “You are gods”’?

“If he called them gods, to whom the word of God came (and the Scripture cannot be broken), “do you say of him whom the Father sanctified and sent into the world, ‘You are blaspheming,’ because I said, ‘I am the Son of God’?

“If I do not do the works of my Father, do not believe me; but if I do, though you do not believe me, believe the works, that you may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him.”

Therefore they sought again to seize him, but he escaped out of their hand.

And he went away again beyond the Jordan to the place where John was baptizing at first, and there he stayed. [see Extra Note 1]

(Then many came to him and said, “John performed no sign, but all the things that John spoke about this man were true.” And many believed in him there.)

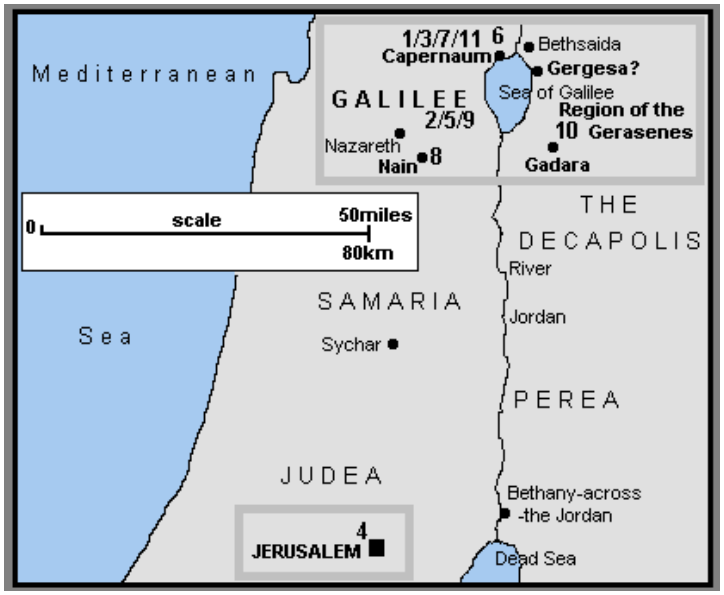
Extra Note 1:
This refers to the city of “Bethany across the Jordan River” (John 1:28; see IV in the book). This Bethany should not be confused with Bethany in Jerusalem, where Mary Magdalene lived and Lazarus was raised from the dead.

"Beyond the Jordan" means Perea, one of the territories controlled by Herod Antipas. Because Josephus tells us that John was later imprisoned in the fortress Machaerus in the same region (Josephus, Jewish Antiquities 18.116-119), it makes sense that this is where he ministers and is later arrested. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]



This is where Jesus had spent eight months at the beginning of his public ministry (John 3:22; see Chapter IX in this book). This time he was there for probably about two months. It was a heavily populated region, with many prosperous Roman cities, under Herod's rule and out of reach of the Jerusalem authorities.

JAMES AND JOHN REBUKED—"HATH NOT WHERE TO LAY HIS HEAD"—THE SEVENTY SENT TWO AND TWO: RETURN REJOICING—EXPLICIT INSTRUCTIONS—A PRAYER

A.D. 29, Age 32. Leaving Galilee. Samaria. Perea.

Luke 9: 51-62, 10: 1-24

Now it came to pass, when the time had come for him to be received up, that he steadfastly set his face 71^ to go to Jerusalem, and sent messengers on ahead. And as they went, they entered a village of the Samaritans, to prepare for him.

But they did not receive him, because his face was set for the journey to Jerusalem. And when His disciples James and John saw this, they said, “Lord, do you want us to command fire to come down from heaven and consume them, just as Elijah did?”

But He turned and rebuked them, and said, “You do not know what manner of spirit you are of. For the Son of man did not come to destroy men's lives but to save them.”

They went to another village.

Now it happened as they journeyed on the road, that someone said to him, “Lord, I will follow you wherever you go.”

And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head.”

Then He said to another, “Follow Me.”

But he said, “Lord, let me first go and bury my father.”

Jesus said to him, “Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and preach the kingdom of God.”

And another also said, “Lord, I will follow you, but let me first go and bid them farewell who are at my house.”

But Jesus said to him, “No one, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.”

After these things the Lord appointed seventy [see Extra Note 1] others also, and sent them two by two before his face into every city and place where he himself was about to go.

Then He said to them, "The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; therefore pray the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest.

72* "Go your way; behold, I send you out as lambs among wolves. Carry neither money bag, knapsack, nor sandals; and greet no one along the road.

"But whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house.' And if a son of peace is there, your peace will rest on it; if not, it will return to you.

"And remain in the same house, eating and drinking such things as they give, for the laborer is worthy of his wages. Do not go from house to house.

"Whatever city you enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you. And heal the sick there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God has come near to you.'

"But whatever city you enter, and they do not receive you, go out into its streets and say, 'The very dust of your city which clings to us we wipe off against you. Nevertheless know this, that the kingdom of God has come near you.'

"But I say to you that it will be more tolerable in that day for Sodom than for that city.

72† "Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes! But it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you.

And you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to heaven? No, you will go down to Hades!

[see Extra Note 1]

Whoever listens to you listens to me. Whoever rejects you rejects me. And whoever rejects me rejects the One who sent me."

Then the seventy [see Extra Note 2] returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name."

And Jesus said to them, "I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven. Behold, I give you the authority to trample on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy, and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Nevertheless do not rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you, but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven."

In that hour Jesus rejoiced in the Spirit and said, "I thank You, Father 73^, Lord of heaven and earth, that You have hidden these things from the wise and prudent and revealed them to babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Your sight. All things have been delivered to me by my Father, and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, and who the Father is except the Son, and the one to whom the Son wills to reveal him."

Then he turned to his disciples and said privately, 73* "Blessed are the eyes which see the things you see; for I tell you that many prophets and kings have desired to see what you see, and have not seen it, and to hear what you hear, and have not heard it."

Extra Note 2:
Many very old and reliable Greek manuscripts have "seventy-two" here and in v. 17 , while many other old and reliable manuscripts have "seventy," and all interpreters agree that it is difficult to decide about which number was in the original of Luke's Gospel. Most modern translations have decided in favor of "seventy-two," based on basic principles for determining manuscript readings. In any case, no doctrinal issue is at stake, and the number probably has symbolic significance representing the number of nations in the world (cf. Genesis 10).

Sending them out two-by-two fulfills the OT requirement for two witnesses (Deuteronomy 17:6; 19:15). [Source: ESV Study Bible note]

This seems to have taken place when Jesus left Galilee for the last time. His purpose was to complete the proclamation to the nation that the Messiah was here. They were sent ahead of Him, down the Jordan valley, four or five months before His death. [Source: Halley's Bible Handbook]

[Comment: From here on, Jesus has a sense of firmness and urgency (not of desperation, but of desire) to reach and attain his objectives within the confines of time. His interactions with the religious leadership [he avoids challenging the government, that is not his focus] appear aimed to produce the maximum reaction (and as the final days progress, he also appears to keep ratcheting it up and stoking the flames until the desired reactions and results are obtained within his time 'constraints'. -LY]

XLIX

THE GOOD SAMARITAN: A LAWYER ANSWERED

A.D. 29, Age 32. Perea.

Luke 10: 25-37.

A certain lawyer stood up and tested Jesus, saying, “Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?”

Jesus said to him, “What is written in the law? What is your reading of it?”

So he answered and said, “‘You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your mind, and your neighbor as yourself.’ ”

And Jesus said to him, “You have answered rightly; do this and you will live.”

But he, wanting to justify himself, said to Jesus, “And who is my neighbor?”

Then Jesus answered and said: “A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, who stripped him of his clothing, wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

“Now by chance a certain priest came down that road. And when he saw him, he passed by on the other side.

“Likewise a Levite, when he arrived at the place, came and looked, and passed by on the other side.

“But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was. And when he saw him, he had compassion. So he went to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on oil and wine; and he set him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. On the next day, when he departed, he took out two denarii, gave them to the innkeeper, and said to him, ‘Take care of him; and whatever more you spend, when I come again, I will repay you.’

“So which of these three do you think was neighbor to him who fell among the thieves?”

And he said, “He who showed mercy on him.”

Then Jesus said to him, “Go and do likewise.”

Extra Notes:

priest … Levite … Samaritan. It is significant that the person Jesus commended was neither the religious leader nor the lay associate, but a hated foreigner. Jews viewed Samaritans as half-breeds, both physically (see note on Mt 10:5) and spiritually (see notes on John 4:20). Samaritans and Jews practiced open hostility, but Jesus asserted that love of the neighbor knows no national boundaries.
[Source: NIV ’08 Study Bible Notes]

Samaritan. The Samaritans were descendants of colonists whom the Assyrian kings planted in Palestine after the fall of the Northern Kingdom in 722 B.C. They were despised by the Jews because of their mixed Gentile blood and their different worship, which centered at Mount Gerizim (John 4:20-22). [Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]

Jericho. The route of the Jericho road, still visible today, included long stretches of rocky terrain that made it a useful base of operations for robbers. The road descended (down) about 3,200 feet (975 m) from Jerusalem to Jericho along this 18-mile (29-km) northeast route.

Two denarii. Two silver coins. Two days' wages, which would keep the man for up to two months in an inn. [Source: NIV ’08 Study Bible Notes]

Which of these...(proved) to be a neighbor...? Jesus' question (Luke 10:36) corrects the lawyer's improper question (Luke 10:29). The question is not “who is my neighbor?” but “how can I be a neighbor?” [Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The lawyer had ‘lost face’ by being given this answer, and he tried to regain the initiative by asking for a more precise definition of the word ‘neighbor’. The parable given in reply is most remarkable. We might have expected a parable telling how a Jew should show love to anybody, even to a Samaritan, but in fact Jesus shows how even a Samaritan may be nearer to the kingdom than a pious, but uncharitable, Jew. For, although the lawyer asked, ‘Who is my neighbor (i.e. the person whom I should help)?’ Jesus suggests that the real question is rather ‘Do I behave as a neighbor (i.e. a person who helps others)?’ Jesus does not supply information as to whom one should help; failure to keep the commandment springs not from lack of information but from lack of love. It was not fresh knowledge that the lawyer needed, but a new heart—in plain English, conversion.
[Source: New Bible Commentary]

This is one of the most superb illustrations of human kindness in all literature. Luke had just told about Jesus' being rejected by Samaritans (Luke 9:52). Here is Jesus' reaction: He makes a Samaritan the example of love for all future ages.

"WHEN YE PRAY, SAY" (LUKE 11, 2)—PARABLES AND PRECEPTS—"BLESSED IS THE WOMB THAT BARE THEE"—"A GREATER THAN SOLOMON IS HERE"—JESUS DINES WITH PHARISEE: CHIDES PHARISEES AND LAWYERS

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea.

Luke 11: 1-13, 27-54.

Now it came to pass, as Jesus was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, that one of his disciples said to Him, “Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.”

So He said to them, 74* “When you pray, say:

Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Your name.
Your kingdom come.
Your will be done, on earth as it is in heaven.
Give us day by day our daily bread.
And forgive us our sins, for we also forgive everyone who is indebted to us.
And do not lead us into temptation [, but deliver us from the evil one].”
[see Extra Note 1]

And he said to them, “Which of you shall have a friend, and go to him at midnight and say to him, ‘Friend, lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine has come to me on his journey, and I have nothing to set before him’; and he will answer from within and say, ‘Do not trouble me; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give to you’?

“I say to you, though he will not rise and give to him because he is his friend, yet because of his persistence he will rise and give him as many as he needs.

“So I say to you, ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you.

“For everyone who asks receives, and he who seeks finds, and to him who knocks it will be opened.

"If a son asks for bread * from any father among you, will he give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will he give him a serpent instead of a fish? Or if he asks for an egg, will he offer him a scorpion?

"If you then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask Him!"

And it happened, as he spoke these things, that a certain woman from the crowd raised her voice and said to him, "Blessed is the womb that bore you, and the breasts which nursed you!"

But he said, "More than that, blessed are those who hear the word of God and keep it!"

And while the crowds were thickly gathered together, he began to say, 75* "This is an evil generation. It seeks a sign, and no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah the prophet. For as Jonah became a sign to the Ninevites, so also the Son of man will be to this generation. [see Extra Note 2]

"The queen of the South will rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation and condemn them, for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and indeed a greater than Solomon is here. [see Extra Note 3]

"The men of Nineveh will rise up in the judgment with this generation and condemn it, for they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and indeed a greater than Jonah is here.

"No one, when he has lit a lamp, puts it in a secret place or under a basket, but on a lampstand, that those who come in may see the light. The lamp of the body is the eye. Therefore, when your eye is good, your whole body also is full of light. But when your eye is bad, your body also is full of darkness. Therefore take heed that the light which is in you is not darkness. If then your whole body is full of light, having no part dark, the whole body will be full of light, as when the bright shining of a lamp gives you light."

And as Jesus spoke, a certain Pharisee asked him to dine with him. So he went in and sat down to eat. When the Pharisee saw it, he marveled that he had not first washed before dinner.

Then the Lord said to him, "Now you Pharisees make the outside of the cup and dish clean, but your inward part is full of greed and wickedness. Foolish ones! Did not He who made the outside make the inside also? But rather give alms of such things as you have; then indeed all things are clean to you.

"But woe to you Pharisees! For you tithe mint and rue and all manner of herbs, and pass by justice and the love of God. These you ought to have done, without leaving the others undone.

"Woe to you Pharisees! For you love the best seats in the synagogues and greetings in the marketplaces.

"Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like graves which are not seen, and the men who walk over them are not aware of them." [see Extra Note 4]

Then one of the lawyers answered and said to him, "Teacher, by saying these things you reproach us also."

And Jesus said, "Woe to you also, lawyers! For you load men with burdens hard to bear, and you yourselves do not touch the burdens with one of your fingers.

"Woe to you! For you build the tombs of the prophets, and your fathers killed them. In fact, you bear witness that you approve the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them, and you build their tombs.

"Therefore the wisdom of God also said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute,' that the blood of all the prophets which was shed from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation, "from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah who perished between the altar and the temple. Yes, I say to you, it shall be required of this generation.

"Woe to you lawyers! For you have taken away the key of knowledge. You did not enter in yourselves, and those who were entering in you hindered."

And as he said these things to them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to assail him vehemently, and to cross-examine him about many things, lying in wait for him, and seeking to catch him in something he might say, that they might accuse him.

God is addressed in terms of intimacy (Father*)*. The original Semitic term here was probably Abba. The term is a little unusual in a personal prayer, especially as it lacks qualification. It is not the exact equivalent of "Daddy" (as is sometimes popularly suggested), but it does suggest a close, familial relationship. [Source: NET Bible note]

And don't let [or lead] us yield to temptation (or "And keep us from being tested".): This is a difficult phrase in the Greek. God does not tempt his people (James 1:13), but since testing is a growth-producing part of our Christian life (James 1:2-4), should believers pray to avoid it? The phrase probably means "protect us during temptation." [Source: NLT Study Bible notes]
The petitioner asks to be preserved from tribulation and testing which would weaken faith and lead to exclusion from God's kingdom. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Shortened versions of this prayer are found in many Bible versions (beside the KJV), for example: "Father, Your name be honored as holy [or, hollowed by Your name]. Your kingdom come. Give us each day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins, for we ourselves also forgive everyone in debt to us [or, sins against us]. And do not bring us into temptation." [Most versions drop "but deliver us from the evil one."]

Most [source] manuscripts add "but deliver us from the evil one," an assimilation to Mt 6:13. The shorter reading has better attestation. Internally, since the manuscripts that have the longer reading here display the same tendency throughout the Lord's Prayer to assimilate the Lukan version to the Matthean version, the shorter reading should be regarded as authentic in Luke.

Extra Note 2:
The sign of Jonah refers first to Jonah's "three days and nights in the belly of the great fish" (cf. note on Matt 12:40), which foreshadows "the Son of Man" being "three days and three nights in the heart of the earth," i.e., a reference to Jesus' death and resurrection (cf. Luke 16:30-31). Additionally, "the sign of Jonah" draws attention to the need for a concrete response of repentance, as was the case of Nineveh in response to Jonah's message. The queen of the South (the queen of Sheba [a kingdom in southern Arabia]; 1 Kings 10:1-13 ; 2 Chron 9:1-12) will condemn this generation because she came a long distance to see Solomon and hear his wisdom (1 Kings 10:1-4 , 7), whereas something greater than Solomon (the Son of God and his wisdom) has come to them and the people reject this and ask for a sign.

Extra Note 5:
It's important for the reader to know about the religious leaders and parties which were active during Jesus' time, as that knowledge will allow you to better comprehend the mindset of the people (including the disciples) and the dynamics directly impacting those people and events of the Gospels.

Extra Note 6:

Two Prayers -- The prayer in Matthew 6 (see previous Chapter XV in this book) is slightly different from the prayer in Luke 11 (above in this chapter). If you look closely at the text, you will see that Jesus taught this prayer on two different occasions and to two different groups of people. Matthew's version was part of the Sermon on the Mount. "Disciples" in this context referred to a rather large group of followers. In Luke's account, Jesus is speaking only to the twelve apostles.

SERMON TO THE INNUMERABLE MULTITUDE: PRECEPTS, PARABLES: THE SPARROWS, THE SELF-CENTERED RICH MAN, THE RAVENS, THE LILIES—"THE HAIRS OF YOUR HEAD ARE NUMBERED"—"LET YOUR LIGHTS BE BURNING"

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea.

Luke 12: 1-40.

In the meantime, when an innumerable multitude of people had gathered together, so that they trampled one another, he began to say to his disciples first of all, "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. For there is nothing covered that will not be revealed, nor hidden that will not be known. Therefore whatever you have spoken in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have spoken in the ear in inner rooms will be proclaimed on the housetops.

"And I say to you, my friends, do not be afraid of those who kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will show you whom you should fear: Fear him who, after he has killed, has power to cast into hell; yes, I say to you, fear him! Are not five sparrows sold for two copper coins? And not one of them is forgotten before God. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Do not fear therefore; you are of more value than many sparrows.

"Also I say to you, whoever confesses me before men, him the Son of man also will confess before the angels of God. But he who denies me before men will be denied before the angels of God. And anyone who speaks a word against the Son of man, it will be forgiven him; but to him who blasphemes against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven.

Now when they bring you to the synagogues and magistrates and authorities, do not worry about how or what you should answer, or what you should say. For the Holy Spirit will teach you in that very hour what you ought to say."

Then one from the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me." But Jesus said to him, "Man, who made me a judge or an arbitrator over you?" And he said to them, "Take heed and beware of covetousness, for one's life does not consist in the abundance of the things he possesses."

Then he spoke a parable to them, saying: "The ground of a certain rich man yielded plentifully. And he thought within himself, saying, 'What shall I do, since I have no room to store my crops?' So he said, 'I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build greater, and there I will store all my crops and my goods. And I will say to my soul, "Soul, you have many goods laid up for many years; take your ease; eat, drink, and be merry."' But God said to him, 'Fool! This night your soul will be required of you; then whose will those things be which you have provided?' So is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

Then he said to his disciples, "Therefore I say to you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat; nor about the body, what you will put on. Life is more than food, and the body is more than clothing.

"Consider the ravens, for they neither sow nor reap, which have neither storehouse nor barn; and God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than the birds?

"And which of you by worrying can add one cubit to his stature? If you then are not able to do the least, why are you anxious for the rest?

"Consider the lilies, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin; and yet I say to you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. If then God so clothes the grass, which today is in the field and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more will He clothe you, O you of little faith?

"And do not seek what you should eat or what you should drink, nor have an anxious mind. For all these things the nations of the world seek after, and your Father knows that you need these things.

"But seek the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added to you.

"Do not fear, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Sell what you have and give alms; provide yourselves money bags which do not grow old, a treasure in the heavens that does not fail, where no thief approaches nor moth destroys. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

"Let your waist be girded and your lamps burning; and you yourselves be like men who wait for their master, when he will return from the wedding, that when he comes and knocks they may open to him immediately. [see Extra Note 2]

"Blessed are those servants whom the master, when he comes, will find watching. Truly, I say to you that he will gird himself and have them sit down to eat, and will come and serve them. And if he should come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants. [see Extra Note 3]

78* But know this, that if the master of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched and not allowed his house to be broken into. Therefore you also be ready, for the Son of man is coming at an hour you do not expect."

78:* This paragraph and the first four paragraphs of LII furnish an interesting comparison with a similar passage near the end of Chapter LXXII in this book (being Matthew 24:43-51).

Extra Note 1:
Speaks a word against . . . will be forgiven versus blasphemes against . . . will not be forgiven . Jesus closes this occasion of teaching his disciples (Luke 12:1) with one of the most enigmatic, debated, and misunderstood sayings of his ministry. Key to understanding this passage is the distinction Jesus makes between, on one hand, the extreme case of blasphemy against “the Holy Spirit” and, on the other hand, the lesser case of speaking in a dishonorable way against “the Son of Man.” One who asks to be forgiven for disrespectful words hastily spoken against Jesus (the Son of Man) will be forgiven. (Note, e.g., Peter's rejection of Jesus [see Luke 22:54-62] and his subsequent restoration [John 21:15-19]) But blasphemy against the Holy Spirit—that is, the persistent and unrepentant resistance against the work of the Holy Spirit and his message concerning Jesus (cf. Acts 7:51) — this, Jesus says, will not be forgiven. The person who persists in hardening his heart against God, against the work of the Holy Spirit, and against the provision of Christ as Savior, is outside the reach of God's provision for forgiveness and salvation. Christians often worry that they have committed this sin, but such a concern is itself evidence of an openness to the work of the Spirit.

Extra Note 2:
Let your waist be girded = be dressed in readiness. The long, flowing outer robe had to be tucked into a belt before traveling or working. The idea is “Be ready.”

when he will return from the wedding feast. The groom first had supper with his friends, then went to the house of his bride to claim her, then returned to his own house. Although it might be quite late, he expected his servants to be waiting and ready for him (the second watch was from 9 P.M. to midnight and the third from midnight to 3 A.M., Luke 12:38). There is no place for slothful ease in the life of a believer while waiting for the return of the Lord. [Source: NIV ’08 Bible Study Notes]

Summary of Luke, Chapter 12
Jesus has openly confronted the Pharisees (Luke 11:37-53). Now He warns against the Pharisees' orientation - hypocrisy. Only by fearing God and not man can a person be free of it (Luke 12:1-12). The story of the rich fool warns against another orientation - materialism (v. 13-21). But it is not only the rich who are trapped into thinking life in this world is the be all and end all. The average person can become so anxious about needed food and clothing that he or she forgets to trust God-and forgets the ultimate value of the treasures that can be ours in heaven (v. 22-34). A series of examples reminds the disciples that the believer's calling is to do God's will now, as a faithful servant (v. 35-48).

What will happen if we take this teaching of Jesus seriously and commit ourselves fully to Him? It will not lead to peace now and may bring suffering (v. 49-53). But how important in this critical time of crisis to read the signs right and make our commitment to Jesus before judgment day arrives (v. 54-59). [Source: The Bible Reader’s Companion]

SERMON CONTINUED: "SPEAKEST THOU THIS PARABLE TO ALL?"—"I AM COME TO SEND FIRE"—THE FACE OF THE SKY—"UNLESS YE REPENT"—THE FIG TREE SPARED

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea.

Luke 12: 41-59, 13: 1-9.

Then Peter said to him, “Lord, do you speak this parable only to us, or to all people?”

And the Lord said, 79* “Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his master will make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of food in due season?

“Blessed is that servant whom his master will find so doing when he comes. “Truly, I say to you that he will make him ruler over all that he has.

“But if that servant says in his heart, ‘My master is delaying his coming,’ and begins to beat the male and female servants, and to eat and drink and be drunk, the master of that servant will come on a day when he is not looking for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in two and appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

“And that servant who knew his master's will, and did not prepare himself or do according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he who did not know, yet committed things deserving of stripes, shall be beaten with few. For everyone to whom much is given, from him much will be required; and to whom much has been committed, of him they will ask the more.

“I came to send fire on the earth, and how I wish it were already kindled! But I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how distressed I am till it is accomplished!

“Do you suppose that I came to give peace on earth? I tell you, not at all, but rather division. For from now on five in one house will be divided: three against two, and two against three. Father will be divided against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law.”

Then he also said to the multitudes, "Whenever you see a cloud rising out of the west, immediately you say, 'A shower is coming'; and so it is. "And when you see the south wind blow, you say, 'There will be hot weather'; and there is. Hypocrites! You can discern the face of the sky and of the earth, but how is it you do not discern this time? Yes, and why, even of yourselves, do you not judge what is right?

"When you go with your adversary to the magistrate, make every effort along the way to settle with him, lest he drag you to the judge, the judge deliver you to the officer, and the officer throw you into prison. I tell you, you shall not depart from there till you have paid the very last mite." 79^

There were present at that season some who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices.

And Jesus answered and said to them, "Do you suppose that these Galileans were worse sinners than all other Galileans, because they suffered such things? I tell you, no; but unless you repent you will all likewise perish.

"Or those eighteen on whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them, do you think that they were worse sinners than all other men who dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, no; but unless you repent you will all likewise perish."

He also spoke this parable: "A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit on it and found none. Then he said to the keeper of his vineyard, 'Look, for three years I have come seeking fruit on this fig tree and find none. Cut it down; why does it use up the ground?'

"But he answered and said to him, 'Sir, let it alone this year also, until I dig around it and fertilize it. And if it bears fruit, well. But if not, after that you can cut it down.'"

Extra Note 1:
This parable symbolizes Israel's last opportunity to repent before experiencing God's judgment. Three years signifies that Israel has had enough time to repent. Sir, let it alone this year . The period of grace and opportunity is extended, but only for a limited time. Dig around it implies loosening the soil so that water can flow easily to the roots; if the fig tree does not respond, it will be cut . . . down (cf. vv. 34-35 ; 19:41-44). The Greek construction suggests that this last attempt will also result in failure. God's graciousness and patience should not be presumed upon.

SABBATH CURE OF CRIPPLED WOMAN: HYPOCRITES SHAMED—PARABLES AND PRECEPTS: THE MUSTARD SEED, LEAVEN

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea.

Luke 13: 10-21.

Now Jesus was teaching in one of the synagogues on the Sabbath. And behold, there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bent over and could in no way raise herself up.

But when Jesus saw her, he called her to him and said to her, "Woman, you are loosed from your infirmity."

And he laid his hands on her, and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

But the ruler of the synagogue answered with indignation, because Jesus had healed on the Sabbath; and he said to the crowd, "There are six days on which men ought to work; therefore come and be healed on them, and not on the Sabbath day."

The Lord then answered him and said, "Hypocrite! Does not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or donkey from the stall, and lead it away to water it? So ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan has bound — think of it— for eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath?"
[see Extra note 1]

And when he said these things, all his adversaries were put to shame; and all the multitude rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him. [see Extra note 2]

81* Then he said, "What is the kingdom of God like? And to what shall I compare it? It is like a mustard seed, which a man took and put in his garden; and it grew and became a large tree, and the birds of the air nested in its branches."

And again he said, "To what shall I liken the kingdom of God? It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal till it was all leavened."

Footnotes

81:* This parable, and the one following, may with interest be compared with the similar ones from Matthew (13, 31-33) at the beginning of Chapter XXIX in this book.

Extra Note 1:
Here again Jesus uses the common Jewish "how much more" (qal va-homer) argument: if one could release an animal from a bond for its own good on the Sabbath (one of the few kinds of tying and loosing permitted then), how much more could one release a "daughter of Abraham" (i.e., an Israelite) from her satanic bonds? [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 2:
Arguments by analogy were accepted in Jewish legal debate; Jesus has skillfully out-maneuvered his opponents. Both Greek and later rabbinic controversy narratives typically culminated in the wise protagonist's response that silenced his opponents, so Jesus' triumph would be obvious to Luke's readers. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 3:
Similar to the mustard seed (preceding; Luke 13:19), a minute quantity of yeast can permeate a large amount of dough to produce a large amount of bread. Three measures [Greek sata, approximately two pecks in all] would have produced enough bread to feed 100 people. Some think these parables teach only the contrast between the small beginning and large end result, and not the gradual growth process of the kingdom between start and finish. Others argue that the growth process is also in view. Both sides agree that the parables contrast the apparently small and unnoticed arrival of the kingdom (the “already now”) with its extensive and glorious consummation when the Son of Man returns (the “not yet”). JOURNEYING TOWARD JERUSALEM—PARABLE: THE SHUT DOOR—WARNED OF HEROD—"O JERUSALEM, JERUSALEM!"—MARTHA AND MARY

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea. Bethany.

Luke 13: 22-35, 10: 38-42; John 10: 39-40.

And Jesus went through the cities and villages, teaching, and journeying toward Jerusalem.

Then one said to him, “Lord, are there few who are saved?”

And he said to them, “Strive to enter through the narrow gate, for many, I say to you, will seek to enter and will not be able.

“When once the Master of the house has risen up and shut the door, and you begin to stand outside and knock at the door, saying, ‘Lord, Lord, open for us,’ and He will answer and say to you, ‘I do not know you, where you are from,’ then you will begin to say, ‘We ate and drank in Your presence, and You taught in our streets.’

“But He will say, ‘I tell you I do not know you, where you are from. Depart from Me, all you workers of iniquity.’

“There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and yourselves thrust out.

“They will come from the east and the west, from the north and the south, and sit down in the kingdom of God.

“And indeed there are last who will be first, and there are first who will be last.”

On that very day some Pharisees came, saying to him, “Get out and depart from here, for Herod wants to kill you.”

And he said to them, “Go, tell that fox, ‘Behold, I cast out demons and perform cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.’

“Nevertheless I must journey today, tomorrow, and the day following; for it cannot be that a prophet should perish outside of Jerusalem. [see Extra Note 1]

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the one who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, but you were not willing! See! Your house is left to you desolate; and truly, I say to you, you shall not see me until the time comes when you say, 'Blessed is He who comes in the name of the LORD!' "

Now it happened as they went that he entered a certain village; 82:* and a certain woman named Martha welcomed him into her house. And she had a sister called Mary, who also sat at Jesus' feet and heard His word.

But Martha was distracted with much serving, and she approached him and said, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to serve alone? Therefore tell her to help me."

And Jesus answered and said to her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and troubled about many things. But one thing is needed, and Mary has chosen that good part, which will not be taken away from her." [see Extra Note 2]

The Jews sought again to seize him, but he went away again across the Jordan to the place where John was baptizing at first, and there he stayed.

Footnotes

82:* Bethany.

Extra Note 1:

Luke 13:32 The idiom in today and tomorrow is to be understood from Exodus 19:10-11 or Hosea 6:2 where 'two days' represents a short period of time before a crisis (the third day). Jesus expresses his determination to carry on his work until either it is complete or the time of his martyrdom comes (cf. 2Ti 4:7). Luke 13:33 The point is repeated, but here a different time-idiom is used.

[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary 2nd Ed.]

The third day is a figurative reference to being further on in time, not a reference to three days from now. Jesus is not even in Jerusalem yet, and the events of the last days in Jerusalem take a good week. [Source: NET Bible note]

Extra Note 2:

Martha was over-occupied with much serving. How busy she was in her service for the Lord, running around and doing this and that! Mary sat at the feet of Jesus, listening to Him speak. She quietly remained there seeking to become better acquainted with her Guest, building a sweet relationship and fellowship with Him. Martha, however, had no time for this. Wouldn't the Lord be so pleased with all of her activity? "And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful*: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her"* (Luke 10:41-42).

Are you a "Mary-like" disciples of the Lord Jesus? In a "Martha world" (so busy and hectic) we need to have a "Mary heart." May God give us Mary's heart to adore; Martha's hands to serve.

Martha in the kitchen, serving with her hands;
Occupied for Jesus, with her pots and pans.
Loving Him, yet fevered, burdened to the brim.
Careful, troubled Martha, occupied for Him.

Mary on the footstool, eyes upon her Lord;
Occupied with Jesus, drinking in His Word.
This the one thing needful, all else strangely dim:
Loving, resting Mary, occupied with Him.

So may we, like Mary, choose the better part:
Resting in His presence--hands and feet and heart;

Mary's heart to worship, Martha's hands to serve;
This the rightful order, as our lamps we trim--
Occupied with Jesus, then occupied for Him!

--Lois Reynolds Carpenter

In every pertinent passage, Mary is found at her Saviour's feet:

Luke 10:39--And she had a sister called Mary, which also sat at Jesus' feet, and heard his Word.

John 11:32--Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw Him, she fell down at His feet, saying unto Him, "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

John 12:3--Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair: and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

"But one thing is needful" (Luke 10:42).

Martha was caught up with "many things" (Luke 10:41).
Mary was lovingly occupied with "one thing" (Luke 10:42).
Are you a "one thing" believer?

David was a "one thing" believer:

> ONE THING have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of m y life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to inquire in His temple. Psalm 27:4.

Paul was a "one thing" believer:

> Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this ONE THING I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God ion Christ Jesus.

In the Christian life, the Lord Jesus Christ is not to be one thing among many things. He is not part of our life; HE IS OUR LIFE! Col. 3:3-4; Phil. 1:21; Gal. 2:20. He is the very hub, the center. In all things, He is to have first place (Col. 1:18).

SABBATH HEALING OF DROPSY—A SERMON IN PARABLES: HUMBLE GUEST, GREAT SUPPER, COUNTING THE COST, THE WARRING KING—EXCUSE-MAKING—SALT

A.D. 29. Age 32. Perea.

Luke 14: 1-35.

Now it happened, as he went into the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees to eat bread on the Sabbath, that they watched him closely.

And behold, there was a certain man before him who had dropsy.

And Jesus, spoke to the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, “Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath?”

But they kept silent. And Jesus took the man and healed him, and let him go.

Then he said, “Which of you, having a donkey or an ox that has fallen into a pit, will not immediately pull him out on the Sabbath day?”

They could not answer him regarding these things.

So he told a parable to those who were invited, when he noted how they chose the best places, saying to them: “When you are invited by anyone to a wedding feast, do not sit down in the best place, lest one more honorable than you be invited by him; and he who invited you and him come and say to you, ‘Give place to this man,’ and then you begin with shame to take the lowest place.

“But when you are invited, go and sit down in the lowest place, so that when he who invited you comes he may say to you, ‘Friend, go up higher.’ Then you will have glory in the presence of those who sit at the table with you.

“For whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted.”

Then he also said to him who invited him, “When you give a dinner or a supper, do not ask your friends, your brothers, your relatives, nor rich neighbors, lest they also invite you back, and you be repaid?

"But when you give a feast, invite the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind. And you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you; for you shall be repaid at the resurrection of the just."

Now when one of those who sat at the table with him heard these things, he said to him, "Blessed is he who shall eat bread in the kingdom of God!"

Then Jesus said to him, "A certain man gave a great supper and invited many, and sent his servant at supper time to say to those who were invited, 'Come, for all things are now ready.' But they all with one accord began to make excuses.

"The first said to him, 'I have bought a piece of ground, and I must go and see it. I ask you to have me excused.' And another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to test them. I ask you to have me excused.' Still another said, 'I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.'

"So that servant came and reported these things to his master. Then the master of the house, being angry, said to his servant, 'Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in here the poor and the maimed and the lame and the blind.'

"And the servant said, 'Master, it is done as you commanded, and still there is room.'

"Then the master said to the servant, 'Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled. 'For I say to you that none of those men who were invited shall taste my supper.'"

Now great multitudes went with Jesus. And he turned and said to them, "If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, yes, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. "And whoever does not bear his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple.

"For which of you, intending to build a tower, does not sit down first and count the cost, whether he has enough to finish it — lest, after he has laid the foundation, and is not able to finish, all who see it begin to mock him, "saying, 'This man began to build and was not able to finish.'

"Or what king, going to make war against another king, does not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand to meet him who comes against him with twenty thousand? Or else, while the other is still a great way off, he sends a delegation and asks conditions of peace. So likewise, whoever of you does not forsake all that he has cannot be my disciple.

"Salt is good; but if the salt has lost its flavor, how shall it be seasoned? It is neither fit for the land nor for the dunghill, but men throw it out.

SERMON IN PARABLES (CONTINUED): THE NINETY AND NINE, THE LOST COIN, THE PRODIGAL SON

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea.

Luke 15: 1-32.

Then all the tax collectors and the sinners drew near to Jesus to hear him. And the Pharisees and scribes complained, saying, “This man receives sinners and eats with them.”

Jesus spake this parable unto them,

84* So he spoke this parable to them, saying: “What man of you, having a hundred sheep, if he loses one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness, and go after the one which is lost until he finds it? And when he has found it, he lays it on his shoulders, rejoicing. And when he comes home, he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, ‘Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep which was lost!’

“I say to you that likewise there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine just persons who need no repentance.

“Or what woman, having ten silver coins, if she loses one coin, does not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? And when she has found it, she calls her friends and neighbors together, saying, ‘Rejoice with me, for I have found the piece which I lost!’

“Likewise, I say to you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.”

Then he said: “A certain man had two sons. And the younger of them said to his father, ‘Father, give me the portion of goods that falls to me. ’ So he divided to them his livelihood.

“And not many days after, the younger son gathered all together, journeyed to a far country, and there wasted his possessions with wild living. But when he had spent all, there arose a severe famine in that land, and he began to be in want.

“Then he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country, who sent him into his fields to feed swine. And he would gladly have filled his stomach with the pods that the swine ate, and no one gave him anything.

"But when he came to himself, he said, 'How many of my father's hired servants have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger! I will arise and go to my father, and will say to him, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you, and I am no longer worthy to be called your son. Make me like one of your hired servants."' 84^

"And he arose and came to his father. But when he was still a great way off, his father saw him and had compassion, and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him.

"And the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and in your sight, and am no longer worthy to be called your son.'

"But the father said to his servants, 'Bring out the best robe and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand and sandals on his feet. And bring the fatted calf here and kill it, and let us eat and be merry; for this my son was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found.' And they began to be merry.

"Now his older son was in the field. And as he came and drew near to the house, he heard music and dancing. So he called one of the servants and asked what these things meant. And he said to him, 'Your brother has come, and because he has received him safe and sound, your father has killed the fatted calf.' But he was angry and would not go in. Therefore his father came out and pleaded with him.

"So he answered and said to his father, 'Lo, these many years I have been serving you; I never transgressed your commandment at any time; and yet you never gave me a young goat, that I might make merry with my friends. But as soon as this son of yours came, who has devoured your livelihood with harlots, you killed the fatted calf for him.'

"And he said to him, 'Son, you are always with me, and all that I have is yours. 'It was right that we should make merry and be glad, for your brother was dead and is alive again, and was lost and is found.'"

SERMON IN PARABLES (CONTINUED): THE UNJUST STEWARD, THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS—"YE CANNOT SERVE GOD AND MAMMON"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea.

Luke 16: 1-31.

Jesus also said to His disciples:

“There was a certain rich man who had a steward, and an accusation was brought to him that this man was wasting his goods. So he called him and said to him, ‘What is this I hear about you? Give an account of your stewardship, for you can no longer be steward.’

“Then the steward said within himself, ‘What shall I do? For my master is taking the stewardship away from me. I cannot dig; I am ashamed to beg. I have resolved what to do, that when I am put out of the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.’

“So he called every one of his master's debtors to him, and said to the first, ‘How much do you owe my master?’ And he said, ‘A hundred measures of oil.’ So he said to him, ‘Take your bill, and sit down quickly and write fifty.’

“Then he said to another, ‘And how much do you owe?’ So he said, ‘A hundred measures * of wheat.’ And he said to him, ‘Take your bill, and write eighty.’

“So the master commended the unjust steward because he had dealt shrewdly. For the sons of this world are more shrewd in their generation than the sons of light.
[see Extra Note 1]

“And I say to you, make friends for yourselves by unrighteous mammon, 89* that when you fail, they may receive you into an everlasting home.

“He who is faithful in what is least is faithful also in much; and he who is unjust in what is least is unjust also in much.

“Therefore if you have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, 89* who will commit to your trust the true riches? 90* And if you have not been faithful in what is another man's, who will give you what is your own?

"No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon." 89*

Now the Pharisees, who were lovers of money, also heard all these things, and they derided Him.

And Jesus said to them, "You are those who justify yourselves before men, but God knows your hearts. For what is highly esteemed among men is an abomination in the sight of God. The law and the prophets were until John. Since that time the kingdom of God has been preached, and everyone is pressing into it. And it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away than for one tittle of the law to fail.

"Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery; and whoever marries her who is divorced from her husband commits adultery. [see Extra Note 2]

"There was a certain rich man who was clothed in purple and fine linen and fared sumptuously every day. But there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, full of sores, who was laid at his gate, desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table. Moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.

"So it was that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels to Abraham's bosom. The rich man also died and was buried. And being in torments in Hades, he lifted up his eyes and saw Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. Then he cried and said, 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.'

"But Abraham said, 'Son, remember that in your lifetime you received your good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted and you are tormented. And besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that those who want to pass from here to you cannot, nor can those from there pass to us.'

"Then he said, 'I beg you therefore, father, that you would send him to my father's house, for I have five brothers, that he may testify to them, lest they also come to this place of torment.'

"Abraham said to him, 'They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them.'

"And he said, 'No, father Abraham; but if one goes to them from the dead, they will repent.'

"But he said to him, 'If they do not hear Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead.'"

Footnotes

89:* mammon = money and other material possessions. We should use money (wisely, never dishonestly) to help win people so that they will welcome us in heaven. [An Aramaic word.]

90:* true riches. i.e., spiritual responsibilities. The things that belong to God's kingdom, in contrast to "worldly wealth."

Extra Note 1:
The measure of olive oil (100 baths, about 850 gallons) represented the yield of nearly 150 olive trees and was worth about 1,000 denarii, no small sum. [Note: One denarius is equivalent to 1 day's wage.]

The measure of wheat (100 cors, about 1,000 bushels) represented the yield of about 100 acres and was worth about 2,500 denarii.

The percentages of debt forgiven differ, but roughly the same amount of money is forgiven in each of the sample transactions (about 500 denarii). These renters are all relatively well-to-do in their own right, and thus might make use of a manager themselves in the future.

In hard times, masters would sometimes forgive part of the debt, writing it off as a loss, in return for being considered benevolent.

All these changes of notes required only small marks on the papers, made by the clients themselves (not incriminating the manager's own, no longer authorized, hand); and if the projected income thereby appears less, it will be harder to recognize that the master's profits affected by the manager's embezzlements are really diminished.

More important, the manager has gained public favor for himself and for the master as a generous benefactor; if the master punishes the manager now, it would appear to the public that he were doing so because of the manager's benevolent act. The criminal manager could be jailed, but he wisely stakes everything on his master's honor as a generous man. Ancient stories often portray powerful persons as appreciating and rewarding cunning, even if it had been used against them ("wisely"—KJV—can mean "shrewdly"—NIV, NASB, etc.; cf. Ex 1:10).

The moral of the story appears to be: Use possessions to serve people, rather than accommodating it for yourself, because you are only God's managers of anything you have.

Some suggest that the amount the estate manager took off the creditor's bill was graft he had dishonestly charged on top of what was due his master. Even if this were the case, it's irrelevant to Jesus' point. The manager is not commended for his dishonesty, but for realizing that he can use money to prepare for his future.

Jesus affirms the continuing authority of the law: For example, adultery was still adultery, still unlawful and still sinful. Matthew's treatment is fuller in that (1) it shows that this law was given because of hardened hearts in regard to divorce, and (2) it includes one exception as permissible grounds for divorce—marital unfaithfulness (Mt 19:9). SERMON IN PARABLES (CONCLUDED): OFFENCES, FORGIVENESS, FAITH, MASTER AND SERVANT, MARTHA, MARY, LAZARUS: "LAZARUS, COME FORTH"—"I AM THE RESURRECTION"—JEWS TAKE COUNSEL TO KILL JESUS

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea. Bethany. Perea.

Luke 17: 1-10; John 11: 1-54.

Then Jesus said to his disciples, 87*

“It is inevitable that stumbling blocks come, but woe to him through whom they come! It would be better for him if a millstone were hung around his neck and he were thrown into the sea, than that he would cause one of these little ones to stumble. 88*

“Be on your guard! If your brother sins, rebuke him; and if he repents, forgive him. And if he sins against you seven times a day, and returns to you seven times, saying, ‘I repent,’ forgive him.”

The apostles said to the Lord, “Increase our faith!”

And the Lord said, “If you had faith like a mustard seed, you would say to this mulberry tree, ‘Be uprooted and be planted in the sea’; and it would obey you.

[see Extra Note 1]

“Which of you, having a slave plowing or tending sheep, will say to him when he has come in from the field, ‘Come immediately and sit down to eat’? But will he not say to him, ‘Prepare something for me to eat, and properly clothe yourself and serve me while I eat and drink; and afterward you may eat and drink’?

“He does not thank the slave because he did the things which were commanded, does he? (I think not.)

“So you too, when you do all the things which are commanded you, say, ‘We are unworthy slaves; we have done only that which we ought to have done.’ ”

[see Extra Note 2]

Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha. (Mary was one who anointed the Lord with fragrant oil and wiped His feet with her hair. 88†) It was her brother Lazarus who was sick. Therefore the sisters sent to Jesus, saying, “Lord, the one you love is sick.”

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

When Jesus heard that, He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified through it."

Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus. So, when he heard that he was sick, he stayed two more days in the place where he was.

Then after this he said to the disciples, "Let us go to Judea again."

The disciples said to Him, "Rabbi, lately the Jews sought to stone you, and are you going there again?"

Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours in the day? If anyone walks in the day, he does not stumble, because he sees the light of this world. But if one walks in the night, he stumbles, because the light is not in him."

These things he said, and after that he said to them, "Our friend Lazarus sleeps, but I go that I may wake him up."

Then his disciples said, "Lord, if he sleeps he will get well."

However, Jesus spoke of his death, but they thought that he was speaking about taking rest in sleep.

Then Jesus said to them plainly, "Lazarus is dead. And I am glad for your sakes that I was not there, that you may believe. Nevertheless let us go to him."

Then Thomas, who is called Didymus [i.e., the Twin], said to his fellow disciples, "Let us also go, that we may die with him."

So when Jesus came, he found that he had already been in the tomb four days.

Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about two miles away. And many of the Jews had joined the women around Martha and Mary to comfort them concerning their brother.

Then Martha, as soon as she heard that Jesus was coming, went and met him, but Mary was sitting in the house. Now Martha said to Jesus, "Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died. But even now I know that whatever you ask of God, God will give you."

Jesus said to her, "Your brother will rise again." Martha said to Him, "I know that he will rise again in the resurrection at the last day."

Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life. He who believes in me, though he may die, he shall live.

"And whoever lives and believes in me shall never die. Do you believe this?"

She said to Him, "Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Christ [Messiah], the Son of God, who is to come into the world."

And when she had said these things, she went her way and secretly called Mary her sister, saying, "The Teacher [or Master] has come and is calling for you." As soon as she heard that, she arose quickly and came to Him.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Now Jesus had not yet come into the town, but was in the place where Martha met Him. Then the Jews who were with her in the house, and comforting her, when they saw that Mary rose up quickly and went out, followed her, saying, “She is going to the tomb to weep there.”

Then, when Mary came where Jesus was, and saw him, she fell down at his feet, saying to Him, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.”

Therefore, when Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping, he groaned in the spirit and was troubled. And he said, “Where have you laid him?” They said to him, “Lord, come and see.”

Jesus wept.

Then the Jews said, “See how he loved him!” And some of them said, “Could not this man, who opened the eyes of the blind, also have kept this man from dying?”

Then Jesus, again groaning in himself, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone lay against it.

Jesus said, “Take away the stone.”

Martha, the sister of him who was dead, said to him, “Lord, by this time there is a stench, for he has been dead four days.”

Jesus said to her, “Did I not say to you that if you would believe you would see the glory of God?”

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead man was lying. And Jesus lifted up His eyes and said, “Father, I thank You that You have heard me. And I know that you always hear me, but because of the people who are standing by I said this, that they may believe that you sent me.”

Now when he had said these things, he cried with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come forth!”

And he who had died came out bound hand and foot with grave clothes, and his face was wrapped with a cloth.

Jesus said to them, “Loose him, and let him go.”

Then many of the Jews who had come to Mary, and had seen the things Jesus did, believed in him. [see Extra Note 3]

But some of them went away to the Pharisees and told them the things Jesus did. Then the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered a council and said, “What shall we do? For this man works many signs. If we let him alone like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place and nation.”

And one of them, Caiaphas, being high priest that year, said to them, “You know nothing at all, nor do you consider that it is expedient for us that one man should die for the people, and not that the whole nation should perish.” [see Extra Note 4]

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Now this he did not say on his own authority; but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation, and not for that nation only, but also that he would gather together in one the children of God who were scattered abroad.

Then, from that day on, they plotted to put him to death.

Therefore Jesus no longer walked openly among the Jews, but went from there into the country near the wilderness, to a city called Ephraim, and there remained with his disciples.

millstone. a heavy stone for grinding grain and olives.
The milling of grain was done by grinding it between two stones, each about 18 in (46 cm) in diameter and 3-4 in (7.6-10.2 cm) thick. The upper millstone, probably weighing hundreds of pounds, was turned by a donkey walking in a circle. [Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]
The term here refers to the heavier kind of millstone (grinding stone) turned by a donkey for the community mill, rather than the lighter kind a woman would use for household grinding. Jewish people considered barbaric the Roman punishment of drowning someone in a bag or with a heavy weight; the image is thus all the more dreadful. [Source: Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

88:† Some weeks later, as told in LXXIV of this book (in part from John 12:3-4).

Extra Note 1:
Ancient Jewish writers sometimes observed that the roots of the black mulberry (this tree's usual identification) are spread out (have a vast root system), which makes it a very difficult tree to uproot. It is a strong tree that grows slowly but lives a long time (can live for hundreds of years). Mustard seeds were proverbially small.
[Source: Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 2:
Except during harvest, field work might end, and the afternoon meal begin, some time after 3 p.m. Most slaveholders had few slaves; thus the slaves did both fieldwork and food preparation. Masters regarded this work as their slaves' duty, not an option. Nor was it considered honorable for masters to eat with their slaves, and it was virtually never done; even a master eating at the same table with his freedpersons (former slaves) was rare and noteworthy. The point of the illustration seems to be: Faith grows as one uses it as a servant; its end is service, and it is never an end in itself.
[Source: Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Extra Note 3:

(John 11:17) There is some evidence that the later Jewish rabbis believed that the spirit of a person who had died lingered over the corpse for three days, or until decomposition of the body had begun.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

They believed that the spirit then abandoned the body because any hope of resuscitation was gone. They apparently felt that there was still hope that the person might revive during the first three days after death. Other scholars question whether this is what the Jews believed as early as this event. In either case, the fact that Jesus raised Lazarus after he had been dead for "four days" would have left no question that Jesus had truly raised the dead. Customarily, the Jews buried a corpse the same day the person died, due to the warm climate and the relatively rapid rate of decay it caused (cf. Acts 5:5-6, 10).

(John 11:18-19) "Bethany" was about "15 stadia" (approximately one and three-quarters miles) east of Jerusalem. John implied that "many" family friends came from Jerusalem "to console" Mary and Martha. Prolonged grieving often lasting several days was customary in the ancient Near East. Therefore many people from Jerusalem either witnessed or heard about Jesus' miracle.

(John 11:20) This picture of Martha as the activist, and Mary as the more passive of the two sisters, harmonizes with Luke's presentation of them (Luke 10:38-42).

Caiaphas. High priest c. A.D. 18–36. He was the son-in-law of Annas, who had been deposed from the high priesthood by the Romans in A.D. 15. Caiaphas managed to retain control of the high priesthood for nearly 18 years (c. A.D. 18-36) — longer than anyone else in the first century (cf. Josephus, Jewish Antiquities 18.35, 95). He was certainly the high priest during Jesus' ministry, although he also consulted frequently with his father-in-law Annas (John 18:13; cf. Luke 3:2).
He was appointed High Priest of the Jews by the Roman procurator Valerius Gratus in about A.D. 18, according to Josephus, a first century Jewish historian (Ant., XVIII, ii, 2). Gratus was the predecessor of Pontius Pilate. [Source: AboutBibleProphecy.com]

Jewish Encyclopedia.com: CAIAPHAS or CAIPHAS, JOSEPH

(καϊάφας, a Greek word; in the Hebrew original, probably not כיפא, but קיף; compare Mishnah Parah iii. 5; Derenbourg, "Essai sur l'Histoire de la Palestine," p. 215, note 2; Schürer, "Gesch." 3d ed., ii. 218; Josephus, "Antiquities of the Jews," xviii. 2, § 2): Son-in-law of the high priest Ananas or Annas, mentioned in John xviii. 13; held that office himself through appointment of Valerius Gratus, about 18-36, hence for a longer period than several of his predecessors and successors. Luke iii. 2 speaks of two high priests, Annas and Caiaphas. The mention of the two at one and the same time has been a great stumbling-block to the commentators. John made a curious error (xi. 49, xviii. 13) in speaking of Caiaphas as the high priest "in that year," as if he interchanged every year with Annas. It appears that even while Caiaphas performed the duties of the office, the power of high priest lay in the hands of Annas.

Caiaphas' historic importance lies in the fact that he is expressly mentioned by Matt. xxvi. 3, 57, and John xi. 49, xviii. 13, 24, 28, in connection with the crucifixion of Jesus, though not by Mark and Luke. After his arrest, however, Jesus was taken not to Caiaphas but to Annas (John xviii. 13 et seq.), who questioned him only privately. The actual trial took place on the next day, the eve of the Passover, before the twenty-three members of the Sanhedrin over whom Caiaphas presided (Matt. xxvi. 57). Caiaphas is reported to have said on that occasion that it was expedient that one man should die for the people (John xviii. 14), a saying found also among the Rabbis (Gen. R. xciv. 9). The fact that Jesus was taken not to Caiaphas but to Annas is explained on the ground that the latter's palace was nearer the place of arrest than that of the former. Through the travels of Theodosius Archidiaconus, 530, it is known that there were 100 paces between the house of Caiaphas and the hall of judgment ("Nuovo Bull. di Arch. Crist." vi. 184, Rome, 1900). Peter and other disciples, however, being ignorant of the state of affairs, went to Caiaphas' house in the night.

After Pontius' recall Caiaphas was removed by the new governor, Vitellius (Josephus, "Ant." xviii. 4, § 3), and was succeeded by Jonathan, who was the son of Anan (36) and perhaps a brother-in-law of Caiaphas. It was probably at this time that the meeting with the apostles took place, at which Caiaphas is mentioned as belonging to the high-priestly family (Acts iv. 6). It was said later in the Syrian Church that he had been converted to Christianity, and was identical with the historian Josephus Flavius (Assemani, "Bibl. Orient." ii. 156, iii. 522; Solomon of Bassora, "The Book of the Bee," ed. Budge, tr. p. 94). His house outside Jerusalem is still (1902) shown.

[LY NOTE: The above is included so you can see how he is dealt with from Jewish perspectives. It's interesting to see critiques of Bible passage "errors" that do not comprehend the Bible writers true understanding; for example that Annas was the real religious power behind the Roman appointed Caiaphas (which COULD change annually / at whims of Roman government) and Gospel writers were acknowledging the real situation.]

ONE GRATEFUL SAMARITAN AMONG TEN LEPERS HEALED—"THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS WITHIN YOU"—"THE SON OF MAN MUST SUFFER"—"REMEMBER LOT'S WIFE"—PARABLE: THE UNJUST JUDGE WAVERS—"SHALL THE SON OF MAN FIND FAITH ON THE EARTH?"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Galilee. Samaria. Perea.

Luke 17: 11-37, 18: 1-8.

As Jesus went to Jerusalem, he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee.

Then as he entered a certain village, there met him ten men who were lepers, who stood afar off. And they lifted up their voices and said, “Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!”

So when he saw them, he said to them, “Go, show yourselves to the priests.”

And so it was that as they went, they were cleansed. And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, returned, and with a loud voice glorified God, and fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks. And he was a Samaritan.

So Jesus answered and said, “Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine? Were there not any found who returned to give glory to God except this foreigner?”

And he said to him, “Arise, go your way. Your faith has made you whole.”

[see Extra Note 1]

Now when Jesus was asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God would come, he answered them and said, “The kingdom of God does not come with observation; nor will they say, ‘See here!’ or ‘See there!’ For indeed, the kingdom of God is within you.” [see Extra Note 2]

Then he said to the disciples, “The days will come when you will desire to see one of the days of the Son of man, and you will not see it. And they will say to you, ‘Look here!’ or ‘Look there!’ Do not go after them or follow them. For as the lightning that flashes out of one part under heaven shines to the other part under heaven, so also the Son of man will be in his day.

“But first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation.

“And as it was in the days of Noah, so it will be also in the days of the Son of man: They ate, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all.

“Likewise as it was also in the days of Lot: They ate, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they built; but on the day that Lot went out of Sodom it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all.

“Even so will it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed. In that day, he who is on the housetop, and his goods are in the house, let him not come down to take them away. And likewise the one who is in the field, let him not turn back.

“Remember Lot's wife.

“Whoever seeks to save his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life will preserve it.

“I tell you, in that night there will be two men in one bed: the one will be taken and the other will be left. Two women will be grinding together: the one will be taken and the other left. “Two men will be in the field: the one will be taken and the other left.” 91*

And they answered and said to him, “Where, Lord?”

So he said to them, “Wherever the body is, there the eagles will be gathered together.”

Then he spoke a parable to them, that men always ought to pray and not lose heart, saying:

“There was in a certain city a judge who did not fear God nor regard man. Now there was a widow in that city; and she came to him, saying, ‘Get justice for me from my adversary.’

“And he would not for a while; but afterward he said within himself, ‘Though I do not fear God nor regard man, yet because this widow troubles me I will avenge her, lest by her continual coming she weary me.’”

Then the Lord said, “Hear what the unjust judge said. And shall God not avenge his own elect who cry out day and night to him, though he bears long with them? I tell you that he will avenge them speedily.

“Nevertheless, when the Son of man comes, will he really find faith on the earth?”

Footnotes

91:* Thus Luke (17:34-36). Compare with Matthew 24:40-41, in Chapter LXXII of this book.

your faith has made you whole [KJV]; others translate the same Greek word for whole, as well ["sozo" - which literally means to heal, preserve, save, do well, be (or make) whole]. See Mt 9:22.

The phrase may also be [better?] rendered "your faith has saved you" (Luke 7:50). The fact that the Samaritan returned to thank Jesus, who then acknowledged his faith, may indicate that he had received salvation in addition to the physical healing all ten had received (cf. Luke 7:50; 8:42,48,50).

If we are talking about being saved [as the context seems to indicate], then the rendering by the KJV as "whole" (possibly encompassing body, mind and soul; though you could argue it is functionally the same as "well") is probably better than "well" (usually understood today to be referencing physical and/or mental health).

However, several translations based on Aramaic Bible manuscripts [Peshitta] yield: "Your faith has given you life." [The healing was not the goal; just the bonus, and an outward sign to others.]

Extra Note 2:
"within" or "in your midst"?* – Luke 19:21

KJV, NKJV, NIV, NKJV, WEB and YLT versions, always (2x's) translate the Greek word "entos" as "within". NASB, ESV, NET, NABRE and other versions, translate "entos", in this situation, as "in your midst" or "among" [e.g. HSCB, NLT, BBE, AMP] – the other time (Matthew 23:26) they translate it as "within" (inside).

From the context, "within" [inside] would work; meaning the Kingdom of God is not a physical place nor man-made entity (not outward), but of one's heart (inward). When Jesus is talking to the Pharisees, he's addressing the plural 'you' – general (universal).

"In the midst" (or "among") can also be seen to work as the Kingdom of God exists in the midst of those with faith in Christ; in addition, Christ (the King) and his followers are among (or in the midst of) the Pharisees -- as the Kingdom of God was surely was not "within" the Pharisees at that moment in time.

Note: Aramaic (Peshitta) texts usually render translations of "within" or "inside".

PARABLE: PRESUMPTUOUS PHARISEE, PENITENT PUBLICAN (Tax Collector) — "SUFFER LITTLE CHILDREN"—THE POOR RICH YOUNG RULER—PARABLE: THE VINEYARD-MEN'S WAGES

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea.

Luke 18: 9-30; Mark 10: 13-31; Matthew 19: 13-30, 20: 1-16.

Jesus spoke this parable to some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:

“Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector [publican].

“The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, ‘God, I thank You that I am not like other men — extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this tax collector. ‘I fast twice a week; I give tithes of all that I possess.’

“And the tax collector, standing afar off, would not so much as raise his eyes to heaven, but beat his breast, saying, ‘God, be merciful to me a sinner!’

“I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other; for everyone who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted.”

Then they also brought infants to him that he might touch them; but when the disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

But Jesus called them to him and said, “Let the little children come to me, and do not forbid them; for of such is the kingdom of God.

“Truly, I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will by no means enter it.”

And he took them up in his arms, laid his hands on them, and blessed them; and departed from there.

Now as he was going out on the road, one came running, a ruler, and knelt before him, and asked him, "Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?"

93* So Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but One, that is, God. But if you want to enter into life, keep the commandments."

The ruler said, "Which ones?"

Jesus said, "You know the commandments: 'Do not commit adultery,' 'Do not murder,' 'Do not steal,' 'Do not bear false witness,' 'Do not defraud,' 'Honor your father and your mother.' "

And he answered and said to him, "Teacher, all these things I have kept from my youth. What do I still lack?"

Then Jesus, looking at him, loved him, and said to him, "You lack one thing. If you want to be perfect, go your way, sell whatever you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, take up the cross, and follow me."

But he was sad at this word, and went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions.

Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it is for those who have riches to enter the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." 93† [see Extra Note 1]

And the disciples were astonished at his words.

But Jesus said again, "Children, how hard it is for those who trust in riches to enter the kingdom of God! Truly, I say to you, that it is hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. And again I say to you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." 93† [see Extra Note 1]

The disciples were greatly astonished, saying among themselves, "Who then can be saved?"

But Jesus looked at them and said, "With men it is impossible, but not with God; for with God all things are possible."

Then Peter said to him, "See, we have left all and followed you. Therefore, what shall we have?"

So Jesus answered and said, "Truly I say to you, that in the regeneration, when the Son of man sits on the throne of his glory, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

"Truly, I say to you, there is not a man who has left houses, or father, or mother, or brothers, or sisters, or wife, or children, or lands, for the kingdom of God's sake, for my sake and the gospel's, who shall not receive a hundredfold now in this time — houses and brothers and sisters and mothers and children and lands, with persecutions — and in the age to come, eternal life.

“But many who are first will be last, and the last first.

“For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire workers for his vineyard. After agreeing with the workers on one denarius for the day, he sent them into his vineyard.

“When he went out about nine [the 3rd hour] in the morning, he saw others standing in the marketplace doing nothing. To those men he said, ‘You also go to my vineyard, and I'll give you whatever is right.’ So off they went.

“About noon [6th hour] and at three [the 9th hour], he went out again and did the same thing.

“Then about five [the 11th hour] he went and found others standing around, and said to them, ‘Why have you been standing here all day doing nothing? ’

“‘Because no one hired us,’ they said to him. ‘You also go to my vineyard,’ he told them, ‘and whatever is right you will receive.’

“When evening came, the owner of the vineyard told his foreman, ‘Call the workers and give them their pay, starting with the last and ending with the first.’

“When those who were hired about five came, they each received one denarius.

“So when the first ones came, they assumed they would get more, but they also received a denarius each. When they received it, they began to complain to the landowner: ‘These last men worked only one hour, and you made them equal to us who bore the burden and burning heat of the day!’

“He replied to one of them, ‘Friend, I'm doing you no wrong. Did you not agree with me on a denarius? Take what's yours and go your way. I want to give this last man the same as I gave you. Don't I have the right to do what I want with my own things? Is your eye evil because I'm good [generous]?’ [see Extra Note 2]

“So the last will be first, and the first last.” [for many are called, but few chosen.] 93^

93:* The interested reader will be repaid who will compare closely, noting the likenesses and contrasts, all three accounts of this episode: Luke 18:18-30; Mark 10:17-31; Matthew 19:16-30 and 20:1-16. [In the above (Chapter LX of this book), the similar texts found in each of the synoptic Gospels (Luke, Mark, Matthew) have been merged in a way that hopefully retains the meaning, intent and impact of the originals]

93:† Needle's Eye: According to some commentators a certain gate, narrow and quite low, in Jerusalem's wall, was called Needle's Eye, or Eye of a Needle.
Note: However, there is no widely accepted evidence for the existence of such a gate.
ref: http://www.straightdope.com/columns/read/1560/whats-the-meaning-of-jesus-teaching-about-the-camel-going-through-the-eye-of-a-needle
Otherwise, needle = sewing needle

93:^ There is a great deal of considered opinion that “for many are called, but few chosen” is not original text.

Extra Note 1:
Cyril of Alexandria: By "camel" here he means not the living thing, the beast of burden, but the thick rope to which ... "This interpretation — "rope" (kamilos) and not "camel" (kamelos) — rests on the homonymic character of the two [in the original language]..."
[If “rope” is indeed the correction translation, it symbolically works well in context; as a rope (which is made up of many small strings twisted together) could not pass through the eye of the needle without unraveling and removing the (strands of) strings until only one strand was small enough to pass through – in the case of the rich, young ruler: he had to get rid of his possessions one-by-one in order to be able to pass through.]

Note: Aramaic (Peshitta) versions of the NT also have similar problems with original word (for camel / rope): gamal, which means “camel”, and gamala, which means “thick heavy rope”: both appear as G-M-L-A in the actual text. In order for a rope to get through the eye of a needle, you first need to unravel the rope one strand at a time. So, answering the question, “Can a rich man enter the Kingdom of God?”: “Yes, if he is not so rich by the time he dies.” (i.e., he has divested of his wealth by the time he dies.)

Extra Note 2:
At vintage time, as Webster and Wilkinson remark, labor was scarce, and masters were obliged to be early in the market to secure it. Perhaps the pressing nature of the work of the Gospel, and the comparative paucity of laborers, may be incidentally suggested, Matthew 9:37,38. The "laborers," as in Matthew 9:38, are first, the official servants of the Church, but after them and along with them all the servants of Christ, whom He has laid under the weightiest obligation to work in His service.

a denarius for the day. A good and normal wage for a rural worker. Additional workers were hired at about 9 A.M., noon, 3 P.M., and 5 P.M. (i.e., 3rd, 6th and 11th hours.) [See also: “Commerce: Money / Currency” in the APPENDIX]

*Friend, I am doing you no wrong. The landowner addresses the worker gently, explaining the fairness of his actions.

Don't I have the right to do what I want with my business [my own things]? Are you jealous [is your eye evil] because I'm generous [good]?’
Do you begrudge [ESV] or are you jealous [HSCB]. Literally, “Is your eye evil?” - The laborer failed to be thankful for his own wage because he was blinded by his self-interested lack of compassion for his fellow worker.

DIVORCE DENOUNCED: JESUS ANSWERS PHARISEES

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea.

Mark 10: 1-12; Matthew 19: 1-12.

Then he arose from there and came to the region of Judea by the other side of the Jordan. Great multitudes followed him, and he healed them there. And as was his custom, he taught them.

The Pharisees also came to him, testing him, and saying to him, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for just any reason?” 95*

He answered, “What did Moses command you?”

They said, “Moses permitted a man to write a certificate of divorce, and to dismiss her.”

Jesus answered and said to them, “Because of the hardness of your heart he wrote you this precept. [6] “But from the beginning of the creation, God ‘made them male and female.’ * [7] ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife.

“Have you not read that he who made them at the beginning ‘made them male and female,’ and said, ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh’? So then, they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let not man separate.”

They said to Him, “Why then did Moses command to give a certificate of divorce, and to put her away?”

He said to them, “Moses, because of the hardness of your hearts, permitted you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so. And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for sexual immorality, and marries another, commits adultery; and whoever marries her who is divorced commits adultery.”

In the house his disciples also asked him again about the same matter. So he said to them, “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her. “And if a woman divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.”

His disciples said to Him, “If such is the case of the man with his wife, it is better not to marry.”

But he said to them, “All cannot accept this saying, but only those to whom it has been given: For there are eunuchs who were born thus from their mother's womb, and there are eunuchs who were made eunuchs by men, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake.

JESUS TELLS OF IMMINENT BETRAYAL, DEATH, RESURRECTION—THE MOTHER OF JAMES AND JOHN VOICES THEIR AMBITION— "THE CHIEFEST SHALL BE SERVANT"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Perea.

Matthew 20: 17-28; Mark 10: 32-45; Luke 18, 31-34.

Now they were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was up ahead and they were amazed; as they followed him they were afraid. [see Extra Note 1]

Then he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves on the way, and began to tell them the things that would happen to him, saying, “Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all the things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man will be accomplished.

“And the Son of man will be betrayed to the chief priests and to the scribes; and they will condemn him to death, and deliver him to the Gentiles.

“He will be mocked and insulted and spit upon. They will scourge him and crucify and kill him. And the third day He will rise again.”

But they (the twelve) understood none of these things; this saying was hidden from them, and they did not know the things which were spoken.

Then the mother of James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came to him with her sons, kneeling down and asking something from him. 96*

He said to her, “What do you wish?”

She said to Him, “Grant that these two sons of mine may sit, one on your right hand and the other on the left, in your kingdom.”

But Jesus answered and said, “You [plural] do not know what you ask. Are you able to drink the cup that I am about to drink, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?”

They said to him, “We are able.”

So he said to them, “You will indeed drink my cup, and be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with; but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give, but it is for those for whom it is prepared by my Father.”

When the ten heard it, they became greatly displeased with the two brothers.

But Jesus called them to himself and said, “You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those who are great exercise authority over them.

“Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave — just as the Son of man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.”

Footnotes

96:* Thus Matthew. Mark puts the plea into the mouths of the sons themselves. The two accounts are: Matthew 20:20-28: Mark 10:35-45. [See also Extra Note 2 below]

Extra Note 1:
This last journey to Jerusalem began in a city called Ephraim (see John 11:54) and took Jesus into Galilee (Luke 17:11), south through Perea to Jericho (Luke 18:35), then to Bethany (Luke 19:29) and finally to Jerusalem (Luke 19:41). [Source: NIV ’08 Study Bible Notes] and as they followed, they were afraid —for their own safety. These artless, lifelike touches — not only from an eye-witness, but one whom the noble carriage of the Master struck with wonder and awe — are peculiar to Mark, and give the second Gospel a charm all its own; making us feel as if we ourselves were in the midst of the scenes it describes. Well might the poet exclaim:

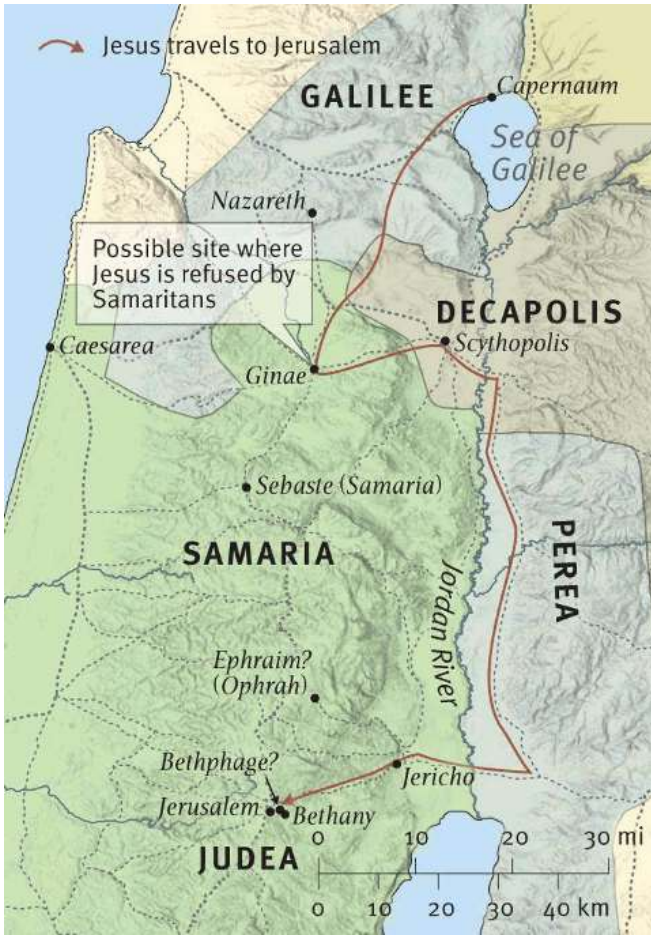
"The Saviour, what a noble flame
Was kindled in His breast,
When, hasting to Jerusalem,
He march'd before the rest!" [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown]



Jesus is aware of his impending death (cf. Luke 8:31; Luke 9:31; Isaiah 53:1-12) but proceeds resolutely toward Jerusalem, like the servant of the Lord in Isa 50:7 who set his face “like a flint” (cf. Luke 9:53, “his face was set”). The Twelve were amazed to see Jesus' solemn determination in light of what he had already told them about his forthcoming suffering and death (Mark 8:31; 9:31). In addition to the Twelve, others followed along, but Mark says that they were afraid. This fear might have arisen from their belief that Jesus was a political messiah; if so, they might be facing fierce battles in Jerusalem, as in the earlier Maccabean revolt. It is more likely that the larger group of followers saw Jesus' sober, deliberate progress toward Jerusalem, and had heard from the Twelve something of his predictions of suffering, and thus concluded that by following Jesus they might face a similar fate.

Jesus' Final Journey to Jerusalem

Though John mentions several trips to Jerusalem [covering approximately a three year span] by Jesus during his ministry, Matthew, Mark, and Luke recount only one [focusing on Jesus' final year], which occurred as Jesus prepared for his triumphal entry and subsequent death and resurrection. Beginning at Capernaum, Jesus was apparently diverted from the more direct route when Samaritans refused him access (Luke 9:51-56), so he may have crossed the Jordan and traveled through Perea. Jesus then passed through Jericho and proceeded to Jerusalem.

Jesus is aware of his impending death (cf. Mark 8:31; 9:31; Isaiah 53:1-12) but proceeds resolutely toward Jerusalem , like the servant of the Lord in Isa 50:7 who set his face "like a flint" (cf. Luke 9:53 , "his face was set"). The Twelve were amazed to see Jesus' solemn determination in light of what he had already told them about his forthcoming suffering and death (Mark 8:31; 9:31). In addition to the Twelve, others followed along, but Mark says that they were afraid. This fear might have arisen from their belief that Jesus was a political messiah; if so, they might be facing fierce battles in Jerusalem, as in the earlier Maccabean revolt. It is more likely that the larger group of followers saw Jesus' sober, deliberate progress toward Jerusalem, and had heard from the Twelve something of his predictions of suffering, and thus concluded that by following Jesus they might face a similar fate.

Extra Note 2:

Matthew (20:20) says their "mother came to Him with her sons, worshipping Him and desiring," (Compare Matthew 27:56, with Mark 15:40). Salome was her name (Mark 16:1). We cannot be sure with which of the parties the movement originated; but as our Lord, even in Matthew's account, addresses Himself to James and John, taking no account of the mother, it is likely the mother was merely set on by them. The thought was doubtless suggested to her sons by the recent promise to the Twelve of "thrones to sit on, when the Son of man should sit on the throne of His glory" (Matthew 19:28); but after the reproof so lately given them (Mark 9:33) they get their mother to speak for them.

[Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown]

Salome (cf. 27:56; Mark 15:40; 16:1) was not only the mother of the sons of Zebedee, she was also in all probability the sister of Mary, Jesus' mother (cf. John 19:25), so that James and John were in fact Jesus' cousins. She was among the women who stayed with Jesus at the cross and later witnessed the empty tomb.

"with her sons". Mark 10:35-37 focuses on the sons themselves and reports her request as their words. Two solutions to this apparent inconsistency are possible: (1) Based on the principle that an agent of a person counts as the person himself, Mark may be reporting the mother's words as the words of James and John, who had told her to ask this; or (2) Matthew and Mark may be reporting different aspects of a longer conversation, in which the mother first asked Jesus the question and then Jesus asked the brothers if that was actually what they wanted. In either case, beginning in Matt 20:22, the plural "you" shows that Jesus is speaking directly to James and John, as well as to their mother.

"kneeling". Salome shows respect to Jesus as her messianic Master, but she also evidently hopes to use her and her sons' earthly kinship with Jesus to her sons' advantage.

The indirect intercession of a motherly woman (cf. Mt 15:22) was often more effective than a man's direct petition for himself, in both Jewish and Roman circles (see also 2Samuel 14:2-20; 1Kings 1:15-21; cf. 2Samuel 20:16-22). Women also could get away with making some requests that men could not. In this case, however, it does not work.

James and John want the status of viceroys in an earthly kingdom; this desire again reflects a popular conception of the Messiah and God's kingdom that Jesus has repeatedly repudiated (see comment on 8:31-38)…The positions on either side of a king's throne (especially the right side) were the most prestigious in a kingdom. (Jesus might, however, be alluding instead to those crucified on his right and his left; 15:27.) James was later the first of the twelve martyred (Ac 12:2), but according to church tradition John lived into the nineties. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

drink the cup I drink. A Jewish expression that meant to share someone's fate.

Extra Note 3:

This is the last time that Jesus, as He approached Jerusalem, told His disciples He would die and rise again. Each time, Jesus gave them more information than He had given before. The first time, the disciples reacted violently (Mark 8:32). The second time, they did not understand what He meant, and were afraid to ask Him for an explanation (Mark 9:32). Now, the third time, Mark recorded no reaction to Jesus' announcement, except that an argument about who would be the greatest in the kingdom followed immediately. Clearly the disciples did not comprehend what was coming, because they continued to focus increasingly on the coming physical kingdom and their roles in it. Nevertheless Jesus continued to teach them lessons of discipleship that they needed.

SIGHT RESTORED TO TWO BLIND BEGGARS—PARABLE: THE NOBLEMAN, THE SERVANTS, AND THE MONEY (POUNDS)

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jericho.

Luke 18: 35-43, 19: 1-27; Mark 10: 46-52.

A multitude followed Jesus. Then it happened, as he was coming near 97* Jericho, that a certain blind man sat by the road begging. And hearing a multitude passing by, he asked what it meant. So they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

And he cried out, saying, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!”

Then those who went before warned him that he should be quiet; but he cried out all the more, “Son of David, have mercy on me!”

So Jesus stood still and commanded him to be brought to him.

And when he had come near, he asked him, saying, “What do you want me to do for you?”

He said, “Lord, that I may receive my sight.”

Then Jesus said to him, “Receive your sight; your faith has made you whole.”
[see Extra Note 1]

And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God. And all the people, when they saw it, gave praise to God.

As he went out 97* of Jericho with his disciples and a great multitude, blind Bartimaeus, the son of Timaeus, sat by the road begging.

And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out and say, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!”

Then many warned him to be quiet; but he cried out all the more, “Son of David, have mercy on me!”

So Jesus stood still and commanded him to be called. Then they called the blind man, saying to him, “Be of good cheer. Rise, he is calling you.”

And throwing aside his garment, he rose and came to Jesus. So Jesus answered and said to him, "What do you want me to do for you?"

The blind man said to Him, "Rabboni, 97^ that I may receive my sight."

Then Jesus said to him, "Go your way; your faith has made you whole."
[see Extra Note 1]

And immediately he received his sight and followed Jesus on the road.

Then after Jesus entered and passed through Jericho; behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus who was a chief tax collector, and he was rich. And he sought to see who Jesus was, but could not because of the crowd, for he was of short stature. So he ran ahead and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him, for he was going to pass that way.

When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and saw him, and said to him, "Zacchaeus, make haste and come down, for today I must stay at your house."

So he made haste and came down, and received Jesus joyfully. But when they saw it, they all complained, saying, "He has gone to be a guest with a man who is a sinner."

Then Zacchaeus stood and said to the Lord, "Look, Lord, I give half of my goods to the poor; and if I have taken anything from anyone by false accusation, I restore fourfold."

Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, because he also is a son of Abraham; for the Son of man has come to seek and to save that which was lost."
[see Extra Note 2]

Now as they heard these things, Jesus spoke another parable, because he was near Jerusalem and because they thought the kingdom of God would appear immediately.

98* Therefore he said: "A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. So he called ten of his servants, delivered to them ten minas, and said to them, 'Do business till I come.'
[see Extra Note 3]

"But his citizens hated him, and sent a delegation after him, saying, 'We will not have this man to reign over us.'

"And so it was that when he returned, having received the kingdom, he then commanded these servants, to whom he had given the money, to be called to him, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

"Then came the first, saying, 'Master, your mina has earned ten minas.' And he said to him, ‘Well done, good servant; because you were faithful in a very little, have authority over ten cities.’

“And the second came, saying, ‘Master, your mina has earned five minas.’ Likewise he said to him, ‘You also be over five cities.’

“Then another came, saying, ‘Master, here is your mina, which I have kept put away in a handkerchief. For I feared you, because you are an austere man. You collect what you did not deposit, and reap what you did not sow.’

“And he said to him, ‘Out of your own mouth I will judge you, you wicked servant. You knew that I was an austere man, collecting what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow. Why then did you not put my money in the bank, that at my coming I might have collected it with interest?’

“And he said to those who stood by, ‘Take the mina from him, and give it to him who has ten minas.’ (But they said to him, ‘Master, he has ten minas.’)

‘For I say to you, that to everyone who has will be given; and from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken away from him.

‘But bring here those enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, and slay them before me.’”

Footnotes

97:* Luke 18:35-42: "As Jesus was come nigh unto Jericho [KJV]." Mark 10:46-52: "As Jesus went out of Jericho..." The two narratives are enough alike to imply but one blind beggar. Matthew, however, has two blind men, but sitting side by side; pleading at the same time, and cured at the same time, the dialogue being strikingly similar (Matthew 20:30-34).

97:^ Rabboni. Hebrew for Lord; or My Great Master (or Teacher). [see also John 20:16] your faith has saved you (1st blind man); your faith has made you whole [KJV]; others translate the same Greek word for whole, as well [“sozo" - which literally means to heal, preserve, save, do well, be (or make) whole]. See Mt 9:22.

The phrase may also be [better?] rendered “your faith has saved you” (Luke 7:50). The fact that the Samaritan returned to thank Jesus, who then acknowledged his faith, may indicate that he had received salvation in addition to the physical healing all ten had received (cf. Luke 7:50; 8:42,48,50).

If we are talking about being saved [as the context seems to indicate], then the rendering by the KJV as “whole” (possibly encompassing body, mind and soul; though you could argue it is functionally the same as “well”) is probably better than “well” (usually understood today to be referencing physical and/or mental health).

However, several translations based on Aramaic Bible manuscripts [Peshitta] yield: “Your faith has given you life.” (for the 1st blind man; and “whole” for the second) [The healing was not the goal; just the bonus, and an outward sign to others.]

Extra Note 2:
Being a border city, Jericho had a customs station. Because it was also one of the wealthiest cities of Palestine, in the most fertile part of Judea and boasting a Herodian palace, the residence of many wealthy priestly families, other tax income would also be extensive. The "chief” tax gatherers would be the one who contracted for sales and customs taxes and hired collectors under him. Given this role, Zacchaeus could have become rich without cheating; but it seems that he had cheated anyway (Luke 19:8).

For Zacchaeus to be "short" by ancient Mediterranean standards could mean that he was shorter than five feet tall. People often paid more attention to tall people (though Zaccheus by virtue of his office commanded attention). With its pleasant climate year-round, Jericho was especially noted for its palm trees but supported many other trees as well, including the well-known sycamore tree. The kind of "sycamore" tree described here is related to the fig tree and was easy to climb, with large limbs spreading from fairly low on the tree; it is not the North American sycamore or European-Asian sycamore maple. Old Testament Jericho had many tightly packed houses, but the prosperous city of the New Testament period had spacious villas and parks, where one could more easily climb a tree than get on a rooftop.

son of Abraham. A true Jew — not only of the lineage of Abraham but one who also walks “in the footsteps” of Abraham's faith (Romans 4:12). Jesus recognized the tax collector as such, though Jewish society excluded him. [Source NIV ’08 Study Bible note]

Half of my goods - includes Zacchaeus's possessions (cf. Luke 12:15, 33), not just his salary.
I (shall) give to the poor - (cf. Luke 11:41; 12:33; 18:22).
if I have defrauded . . . I (shall) restore it fourfold - (cf. Exodus 22:1; 2 Samuel 12:6). Zacchaeus's actions reveal that his repentance and faith are genuine (see Luke 3:8). The example of Zacchaeus, who gave away half of his goods, underscores the kind of openhanded generosity that characterizes those whose hearts have been transformed by the gospel. To seek and to save that which was lost - summarizes Jesus' mission.

Minas were about three months' wages for a laborer, about 100 drachmas.

The Parable of the Ten Minas. This parable concludes Luke's account of Jesus' journey to Jerusalem (begun in 9:51). It is distinct from the parable of the talents in Matt 25:14-30, since most of the key elements are different, but there are also some similarities in wording. Jesus would sometimes modify his teachings to fit different situations and emphasize slightly different truths.

going to receive is not the far country to which he is traveling but the land from which he started out. Into a “far country” implies that the return of the nobleman (i.e., the second coming of the Son of Man) will not take place immediately [as mentioned in a preceding verse (Luke 19:11): many were under the false assumption, as they approached Jerusalem, of an immediate appearing of the kingdom of God]. Luke's readers should not be troubled over this delay, because Jesus had already taught that he would not return immediately. From here to the end of the Gospel, Luke frequently emphasizes the kingship of Jesus.

“Until I come” refers to the time between Jesus' ascension and return at the end of the age. Engage in business [KJV uses equivalent, “occupy”] until I come” is one of several examples where Jesus uses business activity in a positive way in his parables and teachings (however, Gk. pragmateuomai, “do business, trade, be engaged in a business,” occurs only here in the NT). Though the main point of the parable is stewardship rather than business per se, the NT in general (as is the case here) views work and business activity in a positive way (see Matt 25:14-30; Luke 10:7; 19:13-23; Col 3:23-4:1; James 4:13-15), but also as an area where there are substantial temptations to sin (see Matt 6:19-21; 1 Tim 6:9-10) and to exploit others (James 5:1-6).

FARING TOWARD JERUSALEM AMIDST HOSANNAS—JESUS WEEPS FORETELLING JERUSALEM'S FATE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Bethphage. Jerusalem.

John 11: 55-57, 12:12-19; Matthew 21: 1-6; Mark 11: 1-11; Luke 19: 28-44.

Then Jesus went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went from the country up to Jerusalem before the Passover, to purify themselves. They were looking for Jesus, and spoke among themselves as they stood in the temple, “What do you think — that he will not come to the feast?”

Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a command, that if anyone knew where he was, he should report it, that they might seize Him.

Now when they drew near Jerusalem, to Bethphage and Bethany [see Extra note 1], at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples, saying to them, “Go into the village opposite you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt [young donkey, foal] with her, 99* on which no one has sat. Untie them and bring them to me.

“And if anyone says to you, ‘Why are you doing this?’ say, ‘The Lord has need of it,’ and immediately he will send it here.”

So the [two] disciples went and did as Jesus commanded them, and found the donkey and a colt tied by the door outside on the street, and they loosed it.

But some of those [the owners] who stood there said to them, “What are you doing, loosing the colt?” And they spoke to them just as Jesus had commanded, “The Lord has need of them”. So they let them go.

They brought the donkey and the colt, laid their clothes on them, and sat Jesus on the coats [laid on the colt]. [see Extra note 2]

As he went, many spread their clothes on the road, and others cut down leafy branches from the trees and spread them on the road.

Then, as he was now drawing near the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works they had seen, saying:

"Hossana to the Son of David!
Blessed is the kingdom of our father David!
'Blessed is the King who comes in the name of the LORD!'
Peace in heaven and Hosanna [glory] in the highest!" [see Extra note 3]

And some of the Pharisees called to him from the crowd, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples."

But he answered and said to them, "I tell you that if these should keep silent, the stones would immediately cry out."

Now as he drew near, he saw the city and wept over it, saying, "If you had known, even you, especially in this your day, the things that make for your peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes.

"For days will come upon you when your enemies will build an embankment around you, surround you and close you in on every side, and level you, and your children within you, to the ground; and they will not leave in you one stone upon another, because you did not know the time of your visitation."

And when he had come into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, "Who is this?" So the multitudes said, "This is Jesus, the prophet from Nazareth of Galilee."

And Jesus went into Jerusalem and into the temple. So when He had looked around at all things, as the hour was already late [Sunday evening], he went out to Bethany with the twelve.

Extra Note 1:
Jerusalem at the Time of Jesus
By the time of Jesus, Jerusalem had grown from a modest military fortress to a world-class city with a newly renovated temple that rivaled nearly any in the ancient world. Public pools were fed by the Gihon Spring and by two aqueducts that brought water to the city from as far as 7 miles (11 km) away. The towns of Bethphage [means, “house of figs” and is only mention this once] and Bethany were located on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives, which lay to the east of Jerusalem. See also Jerusalem in the Time of Jesus.

Extra Note 2:
Only Matthew mentions the colt as well as the donkey . While the poetic language of Matthew 21:5 does not refer to separate animals, Matthew sees in the presence of the colt a suggestive echo of its wording. The second them (Matthew 21:7) does not, of course, mean that Jesus rode both animals, but refers to the cloaks [coats].

‘Foal’ would be a better word to use than colt here, as the gospels make clear that Jesus rode on a young donkey, not a horse. This fulfilled the words of the OT prophet, telling of the meek and humble king, riding on a donkey (Zechariah 9:9). Taking the donkey may refer to an arrangement already made with the owner by Jesus, or it may be an example of his supernatural insight. If the NIV and other translations are right in translating the corresponding Greek text as The Lord needs it, then it might be a rare use by Mark of the later title for Jesus. Usually in Mark the disciples simply call Jesus ‘master’; after the resurrection they all called him ‘Lord’. But the verse could equally mean ‘The owner needs it’, and then the second half would mean ‘he [the bystander] will send it here at once’.

Among the crowds of Galilean pilgrims arriving on foot in Jerusalem for the Passover festival, Jesus chose to make a conspicuous entry on a donkey. Since we have no other record of Jesus riding, this must have been a deliberate act, meant to be noticed. The instructions in the beginning verses suggest that it had been carefully prepared. It was, as Matthew makes clear, an acted allusion to Zechariah's prophecy (Zechariah 9:9-10) of the coming of the Messianic King.

The disciples and the Galilean crowd recognized the allusion, and turned the arrival into a triumphal procession. Their shouts in made no secret of their belief that Jesus was the long-awaited Messiah, now coming to set up his reign in Israel's capital.

Jesus' triumphal entry, with people waving palm branches to greet him, is celebrated in Christian tradition as “Palm Sunday.” His riding into Jerusalem mounted on a donkey fulfills OT Scripture (Zechariah 9:9; see also Psalms 118:25-26). The waving of palm branches, which symbolically conveyed the notion of victory over one's enemy, probably indicates that the people (mistakenly) thought that Jesus would then and there bring national deliverance from Israel's political enemies, the Romans. Yet Jesus' popular acclaim would not last; the same people who hailed him here as the victor would call for his crucifixion just a few days later.

The people of Jerusalem were, however, taken aback, and the whole city was stirred, not with enthusiasm but with concern: ‘Who is this?’ Jesus was to them an unknown countryman, little better than a foreigner, from the remote Northern Province. But the Galilean crowds responded by asserting the claim of ‘their’ prophet, from Nazareth in Galilee. So we see set up: the polarization of attitudes to Jesus which during the next week would have some supporting Jesus (Matthew 21:46), while others shouted for his crucifixion (Matthew 27:20 ff.). [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Another perspective:

Mark's [11:1-11] version is very similar to Matthew's [21:1-8] with one exception appearing toward the end of the account: "When they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks over it, he sat on it" (Mark 11:7). Luke's version is also very similar.

Professor Jackson (from the chapter on the Filter of Antisupernaturalism) made a big deal about Matthew's description. In the case of the donkey and colt, Dr. Jackson observed that Matthew reports that Jesus sat on "them," meaning that he somehow awkwardly rode on the two animals simultaneously. Apparently, according to my professor, this dual-riding experience would have strengthened Jesus' Messianic claims. With all due respect, Dr. Jackson worked a bit too hard to interpret the pronoun "they." Read Matthew 21:7 again: "They [the disciples] brought the donkey and the colt, placed their cloaks on them, and Jesus sat on them." As the NIV Study Bible simply clarifies in a footnote, "He sat on the cloaks," not some odd combination of the donkey and the colt as my professor suggested.

There is more than one way to address this problem, however, and even Bible advocates differ about how to best solve some difficulties. Walter Kaiser and the other authors of Hard Sayings of the Bible disagree with the NIV Study Bible footnote and, instead, discuss Matthew's clear linkage back to the prophet Zechariah as seen in Matthew 21:4–5.

Kaiser suggests two possible explanations:

• Matthew mentions the donkey even though she wasn't there because, obviously, the colt had a donkey for its mother. By including the reference to the donkey, Matthew reinforces the prophetic linkage back to Zechariah.

• Since the foal was young enough not to have been ridden, the donkey may still have been there with it, perhaps to allow it to continue nursing. If Mark and Luke knew that the donkey was there, it apparently didn't matter much to them. Matthew included this detail because of his interest in Jewish prophecy, even if it made his story read a bit more awkwardly.

In the case of the donkey ride, I have provided three possible reconciliations. According to Principle 2 [i.e., settle for one reasonable explanation], all we need is one reasonable explanation in order to consider the challenge tamed.

Another perspective #2:
"Jesus' Subversive Donkey Ride – A Progressive Christian…Commentary"

Mark devotes 115 verses to the Tuesday of Jesus' last week, a statistic which is helpful to keep in mind when considering the relatively paltry eleven verses Mark affords to Palm Sunday. And Mark spends more than half of those eleven verses detailing the odd procurement of Jesus' donkey.

Anyone familiar with the book of Zechariah would immediately recognize why Mark spent so many precious verses on the simple act of getting the donkey. Zechariah 9:9 says,

> Rejoice greatly, O daughter Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter Jerusalem! Lo, your king comes to you; triumphant and victorious is he, humble and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey. He will cut off the chariot from > Ephraim and the war horse from Jerusalem; and the battle bow shall be cut off, and he shall command peace to the nations; his dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the River [Euphrates] to the ends of the earth.

Many commentators have speculated that Mark emphasizes the details of retrieving the donkey to give his readers time to have "ears to hear" the allusion to Zechariah's prophecy: the one who comes riding on a donkey will nonviolently bring peace.

This connection between Zechariah and Mark is not merely the speculation of modern scholars. Remember that both Matthew and Luke had a copy of Mark on their desks when they wrote their respective Gospels a decade later. And when Matthew copied Mark's account of Palm Sunday, he adds in Matthew 21:4 that, "This took place to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet." Then Matthew quotes Zechariah to make clear Mark's allusion.

But here's where the story gets strange. Whereas Mark simply has Jesus riding a donkey colt, Matthew curiously switches into the plural. In Matthew 21:6-7 if you read closely, you'll notice that it says, "The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them; they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their cloaks on them, and he sat on them." Matthew's version sounds like Jesus rode in on both beasts at the same time, straddling two animals like a circus act.

In Matthew's defense, Zechariah said that the prophesied one would come "on donkey, and on a colt, the foal of a donkey." But any Hebrew scholar would tell you that Zechariah was simply speaking poetically using Semitic parallelism, which was commonly used to describe the same object in two different ways. But Matthew, reading the Greek translation of Zechariah (in the Septuagint), may have misread the prophet as speaking literally, and then changed Mark's account to conform to Matthew's understanding of Zechariah's prophecy. In other words, many scholars have maintained that Matthew must have thought, "If Zechariah said two animals, then Jesus must have ridden two animals no matter how odd that seems."

This alteration is one of those cases that some scholars gleefully point out to show inconsistencies in the Bible. My goal is not to claim that the Bible is inerrant. Rather, the more I study the Bible, the more I am convinced not that the biblical writers were infallible or perfect, but that the biblical authors are operating at a much more sophisticated and challenging level than is typically recognized today.

The historical Jesus scholar John Dominic Crossan has sought to debunk the argument that Matthew was a scriptural literalist who altered Mark's story to the absurd length of Jesus riding in on two animals at the same time to conform to Matthew's misreading of Zechariah. Crossan proposes what I believe to be a much more compelling interpretation of Matthew. Crossan writes that Matthew [my emphasis]:

> wants two animals, a donkey with her little colt beside her, and that Jesus rides "them" in the sense of having them both as part of his demonstration's highly visible symbolism. In other words, Jesus does not ride a stallion or a mare, a mule or a male donkey, and not even a female donkey. He rides the most unmilitary mount imaginable: a female nursing donkey with her little colt trotting along beside her.

I find Crossan's reading compelling because Jesus riding an unmilitary mount matches the rest of the Zechariah prophecy — that the one who comes riding on a humble donkey into Jerusalem will nonviolently bring peace. Remember the language from Zechariah about "cutting off the chariot, war horse, and bow into to command peace."

This interpretation is even more convincing when you consider that historically triumphal entries into Jerusalem would have been exactly the opposite of what Mark, Matthew, and Zechariah described. The triumphant military leader would not have come nonviolently on a humble donkey to cut off the chariot, war horse, and bow; but would have come riding a chariot and war horse and wielding a bow or other weapons.

Crossan notes that in 332 BCE, three centuries before Jesus' Palm Sunday entrance, Alexander the Great, having conquered "Tyre and Gaza after terrible sieges . . . Jerusalem opened its gate without a fight." And we can "Imagine the victorious Alexander entering Jerusalem on his famous war-horse, the black stallion Bucephalus."

Jesus Looked Round

Mark 11:16 informs us that Jesus 'looked round about upon all things' after he had entered the temple. This action was highly symbolic. Jesus was treating the temple as a house which had been declared as leprous.

Event	Law of Leprosy	Jesus
first look	Leviticus 14:34-38	John 2:13-14
7 days later	Leviticus 14:39	Mark 11:11
If still leprous remove stones	Leviticus 14:42	Mark 11:16
destroy house	Leviticus 14:44-45	Destruction of Jerusalem

The law of Moses was quite specific in instructing Israel how they should deal with a house which had leprosy. If it is suspected that the house is stricken with leprosy the priest is advised of the problem and [Leviticus 14:36-38], 'Then the priest shall command that they empty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is in the house be not made unclean: and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house: And he shall look on the plague, and, behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house with hollow strakes, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall; Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days:' After seven days the priest was to return and re assess the situation. If the house was still leprous [Leviticus 14:40-41], 'Then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city: And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place:'. If this remedy did not work [Leviticus 14:44-45], 'Then the priest shall come and look, and, behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is a fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean. And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house; and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.'

So we see that there was a threefold inspection by the priest. On the first occasion the condition is confirmed. The second visit examines the condition and the third visit condemns the house which is still plagued with the fretting leprosy'.

On the occasion of the first Passover during the ministry of Jesus he cleansed the temple. for we read [John 2:13-16] 'And the Jews' Passover was at hand, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem, And found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting: And when he had made a scourge of small cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the sheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables; And said unto them that sold doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.'

On this fifth day before the Passover Jesus [Mark 11:11] 'entered into Jerusalem, and into the temple: and when he had looked round about upon all things, and now the eventide was come, he went out unto Bethany.' This visit answered to the second visit of the priest. On this occasion Jesus was assessing whether his first cleaning three years earlier had achieved the desired effect. His inspection confirmed that the house was still leprous. There was nothing left to do. Jesus knew that the house had to be destroyed.

He returned the next day and [Mark 11:15] 'Jesus went into the temple, and began to cast out them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves;' On this occasion we are informed that he [Mark 11:16] 'would not suffer that any man should carry any vessel through the temple'; which answers to the injunction [Leviticus 14:36] 'Then the priest shall command that they empty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague, that all that is in the house be not made unclean: and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house:'

The destruction of the temple by the Romans in AD 70 when not one stone was to be left upon another answers to the breaking down of the leprous house.

The phrase 'looked round' is unique to Mark's Gospel account and is found in the following places: - Mark 3:5,34; 5:32; 9:8; 10:23; 11:11.

Alternate View:

The Two Entries Into Jerusalem

Most "Harmonies" assume that because each Gospel records an entry of the Lord into Jerusalem the four accounts must be identical because they are similar; and therefore conclude that because they differ in certain particulars there are "discrepancies." Whereas, if we treat them in their chronological sequences, and have regard to the antecedent and consequent circumstances, the supposed discrepancies will disappear, and the similar, but diverse, expressions will be seen to be necessary to the different events.

In this present case, one entry (Matthew 21:1-9) takes place before the other, which is recorded in Mark 11:1-10, Luke 19:30-34, and John 12:12-15.

1. In Matthew the Lord had actually arrived at Bethphage. In Luke He "was come nigh" (engisen); in Mark "they were approaching" (engizousin).

2. In Matthew the village lay just off the road (apenanti); in Luke and Mark it was below them, and opposite (katenanti).

3. In the former, two animals were sent for and used; in the latter, only one.

4. In the former, the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9, which required the two animals is said to have been fulfilled; in the latter, the prophecy was not said to be fulfilled, and only so much of it is quoted (John 12:15) as agrees with it.

5. The former seems to have been unexpected, for "all the city was moved, saying, 'Who is this?'" (Matthew 21:10, 11), while, if there was only one entry, the two accounts are inexplicable, seeing that the later and subsequent entry was prepared for: much people in the city "heard that He was coming", and "went forth to meet Him" (John 12:12, 13).

The latter therefore, was the great formal entry of the Lord, called "the Triumphal Entry", which took place on what is called "Palm Sunday".

What can we observe and learn from these events that happened at this significant place?

- The Triumphal Entry took place on a Sunday, exactly one week before Christ's resurrection.
- It is called Palm Sunday because of the palm branches that were laid on the road as Jesus rode the donkey into Jerusalem.
- The Triumphal Entry was a prophesied event from the Old Testament.
- The Triumphal Entry took place on lamb selection day for the Passover and Christ was proclaiming that He was the Passover Lamb who would give His life for all mankind.
- Christ descended the Mt. of Olives riding a donkey, which was a symbol of peace.
- On His decent down the Mount of Olives, Christ pauses His triumphal entry and weeps over Jerusalem. At this moment Christ weeps for those who don't know Him!
- In the other account where Jesus wept, at the death of Lazarus, Christ wept for those who suffer!

In Eastern culture a ruler riding into town on an ass's colt entry of Jesus Christ into Jerusalem on an ass's colt was indicative of judgment. The Old Testament speaks as a judge coming in judgment regarding this.

> Judges 5:10:
> Speak, ye that ride on white asses [she-asses], ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.
> Judges 10:3 and 4:
> And after him arose Jair, a Gileadite, and judged Israel twenty and two years.
> And he had thirty sons that rode on thirty ass colts, and they had thirty cities, which are called Havoth-jair unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.
> Judges 12:13 and 14:
> And after him Abdon the son of Hillel, a Pirathonite, judged Israel.
> And he had forty sons and thirty nephews, who rode on threescore and ten ass colts: and he judged Israel eight years.

At one time Israel was ruled by judges who rode on white asses' colts. Riding white asses showed that they were judges. To be a judge meant much more then than it does now. A judge during the time between Joshua and Kings was a man who set at right the situation of his people and then proceeded to rule over them. The first entry of Jesus Christ into Jerusalem on an ass's colt was as a judge coming in judgment.

NOTE: Asses, especially pure white she-asses, were highly prized in the East. Only the very wealthy could afford to own one. Princes or "those that sat in judgment" rode on them. White is Biblically significant of righteous judgment, purity, and cleansing, When Christ returns in judgment, John, in Revelation 19:11, describes him as coming on a white horse.

There was a reason why Jesus requested this specific animal, an ass's colt. As the sons of judges in the Old Testament each rode an ass's colt, so Jesus rode in on one because he rode into Jerusalem to judge as the representative of his Father, who is the Supreme Judge, God.

There was a reason why Jesus requested this specific animal, an ass's colt. As the sons of judges in the Old Testament each rode an ass's colt, so Jesus rode in on one because he rode into Jerusalem to judge as the representative of his Father, who is the Supreme Judge, God.

The Gospel accounts tell of Jesus' beginning his trip to Jerusalem by ascending the Mount of Olives. At one point he sent two disciples into a nearby village to get an ass's colt.

Some people teach that since Jesus wanted an ass to ride he sent his disciples to take a colt away from the first man they saw. Would the Son of God simply help himself to private property? Biblical research shows that there was a great reason for Jesus' command to his disciples and that he had a perfect right to request such an animal, This can only be understood if we understand the culture of that time. In the East, animals were donated to the Temple for God's service and were kept in a special place.

These Temple animals were usually stabled on the outskirts of town where they were always ready for Temple use. They could be used by any holy man in service to the Lord, as they were gifts to God according to Biblical culture.

The symbolism of the donkey may also refer to the Eastern tradition that it is an animal of peace, versus the horse, which is the animal of war. Therefore, a king came riding upon a horse when he was bent on war and rode upon a donkey when he wanted to point out that he was coming in peace. Therefore Jesus' entry to Jerusalem symbolized his entry as the Prince of Peace, not as a war waging king.

The word "visitation" is "episkop" in the Greek meaning "inspection, overlooking," as in judgment. Jerusalem and its inhabitants did not realize that this was the day Jesus would assess and pass judgment. That was the significance of his first entry into the city.

> Mark 11:11:

Thus concluded the first entry of Jesus Christ into Jerusalem. It occurred on Friday, the ninth of Nisan, five days before the Passover. At the end of the day, thjudgment of Jerusalem's destruction having been passeand Jesus Christ having "looked round about on althings" in the Temple, he returned to Bethany with hiapostles where he was abiding at this time.

There is some question about the number of animals involved. In the oracle in Zechariah the normal understanding would be that the two lines, one mentioning the donkey, and the other the colt, were Hebrew parallelism referring to one animal and not two. In the New Testament Matthew alone of the four gospels mentions that there were two animals. It is possible that Matthew did this to make the distinction that Jesus rode on the colt, for Mark said Jesus rode on an animal which no one had ever ridden. The point is that Matthew gives a little more detail of the animals to be found tied up, to make it clear that Jesus rode on the colt. So then, in the midst of the excitement of the crowd, a young, unbroken animal remained calm when Jesus rode it, a sign that Jesus controlled nature. This symbolism pointed to the peace of the Messianic kingdom. Matthew, in mentioning the two animals, stresses that Jesus fulfilled the detail of this prophecy--he rode the colt.

A donkey usually carried a wooden frame that could be used either as a saddle or a base for a load. In this gospel story the donkey is a colt, unused to the framework or to a rider. So the disciples threw their cloaks over its back to make a kind of informal saddle for Jesus

Until the time of Solomon (960 BC), horses were not used in Palestine. From that time on, the horse was ridden by warriors; the donkey was used by those who were traveling peaceably.

The donkey was held in high regard by the Jews and was considered an economic asset. An individual had to have a donkey for minimum existence (Job 24:3), and wealth was frequently counted by the number of donkeys one possessed (Genesis 12:16; 24:35). The donkey was considered an acceptable gift (Genesis 32:13-15). It was allowed to rest on the Sabbath (Deuteronomy 5:14).

The donkey was a humble animal, and riding on a donkey signaled that its rider came in peace (see Mt 21:5; Jn 12:15).
[Source: NLT Study Bibile Note]

The coming king is to be righteous and having salvation (lit. 'saved'). The RSV gives the wrong impression with 'triumphant and victorious'. This king has been declared righteous and saved by God. This suggests a situation in which the king is both accused and attacked by his enemies but is vindicated and saved by the Lord. Clearly this fits Jesus very well! (Cf. Ps 118, especially vs 22-23, also applied to the Lord Jesus).

In earlier times the ass or donkey was not thought of as a lowly beast, but important men rode on them (Jdg 10:4; 12:14). Even the king of Israel only rode on a mule (1Kings 1:33; cf. 2Sa 13:29; 18:9). A horse or chariot would have been the normal conveyance for the king in a victory procession. The emphasis here is on humility and peacefulness. He will reign from sea to sea (i.e. the Mediterranean in the west and the sea known only vaguely to be in the east [the Dead Sea—NIV mg.] as in 14:8), and from the River Euphrates in Mesopotamia to the ends of the earth. In other words he will reign over all the world.

These qualities are surprising, so surprising that this prophecy was largely neglected by those who waited eagerly for the Messiah.

Note. The expression donkey and colt, the foal of a donkey are parallel; they are two descriptions of one animal. In Mt 21:1-7, Matthew mentions two animals, and 'sat on them' is best taken to mean 'on the cloaks'! Ephraim was the largest of the northern tribes of Israel, and is often used, as here, to mean the whole of Israel.

So Jesus rode into Jerusalem, as David or Solomon might have entered the capital, with branches and clothes spread on the road before him (like a red carpet at an airport today, or palm and banana leaves at a village festival in the Third World). We are used to the cheering crowds on these occasions, but these were not summoned by government decree; they were coming of their own free will. Their chanted slogans were taken from the Psalms and hailed a coming king of the family of David who would restore the kingdom of Israel to its old glory. They were expecting a political and nationalist leader, perhaps a violent social reformer, as many do today. Was this not exactly what Jesus had feared from the start, that all would misunderstand if he claimed to be God's Messiah? Nevertheless, on this day Jesus rode on in triumph into the capital that he would soon weep over (Lk 19:41) to inspect the temple.

There appear to be two different crowds mentioned in vs John 12:17-18. One group had seen the miracle of Lazarus's restoration, and the other group had only heard of it. The events caused despair on the part of the Pharisees because they would not so easily be able to carry out their plan. There is despairing exaggeration on their part in claiming the whole world has gone after him (see vs 42-43). For a parallel instance of exaggeration cf. 11:48.

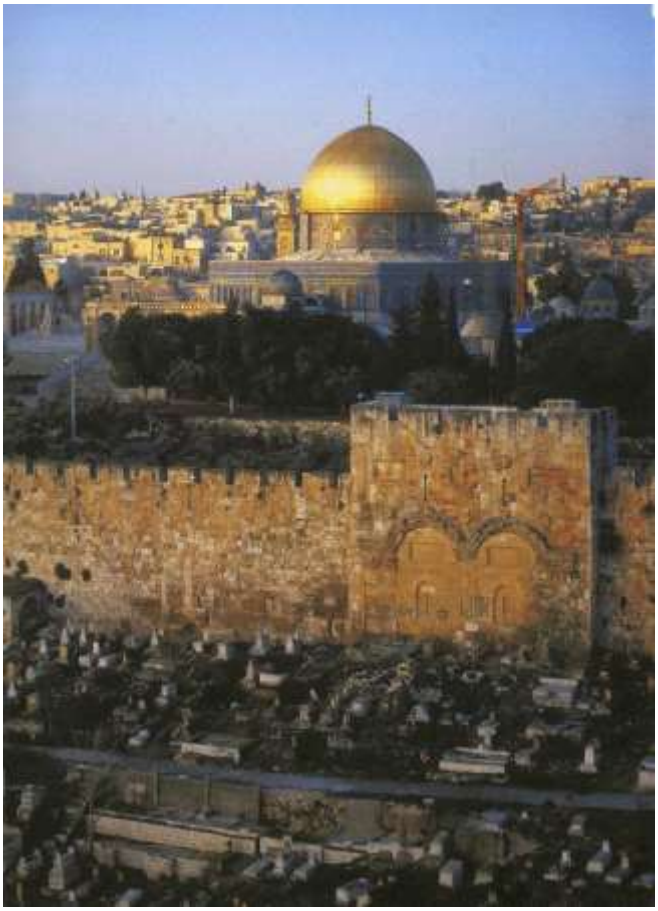
The Golden Gate



During the time of the First Temple the Eastern Gate (also called Shushan or HaKohan gate) was the main entrance into the Temple area. It was also the gate that Jesus entered on a humble donkey in His triumphal entry. If one were to stand on the Mount of Olives he could look over this Eastern Gate into the huge area presently north of the Dome of the Rock and see all the gates (at different levels) in a perfect line: the East (Shushan) Gate --Outer Court Gate --Inner Court Gate --Temple Entrance. The Talmud makes an interesting observation:

"All the walls which were there were high, except the wall in the east, so that the priest who burned the heifer, standing on the top of the Mount of Olives, and directing himself to look, saw through the gateway of the sanctuary, at the time when he sprinkled the blood." [Mishnah, Middot 2:4].

The Golden Gate (Eastern Gate) in the eastern wall of Jerusalem gave access to the courtyards of the Temple from the Kidron valley.

Tradition

According to Jewish tradition the Messiah (Mashiach) will enter Jerusalem from the east. The gate has a special holiness; legend has it that the Shechinah (Divine Presence) used to appear through this gate and will appear again, and that in the meantime it must be left untouched.

The Arabs (Moslems) call this gate The Mercy Gate (Bab el Rahmeh) and according to the Koran, the just will pass through this gate on the Day of Judgment.

The Sealed Gate

It is interesting that this gate is the only one of the eight gates in Jerusalem that is sealed. The Arabs believe that since the Jews expect that Messiah would come through this gate (Sha'ar harachamim) they would try to prevent any possibility of His return.

The East gate was walled up by its Muslim conquerors (the Ottoman Turks) with great stones in 1530 A.D. and a cemetery was planted in front of it thinking that the Jewish Messiah could not set foot in a cemetery and therefore would not be able to come. Many believe this was done to prevent the entrance of the Jewish Messiah through that gate as was foretold by known Old Testament prophecies. However, Ezekiel prophesied the shutting of this gate itself around 600 B.C. -- that it would be shut "because the LORD (Jehovah or Yahweh), the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut."

When He came the first time, Jesus rode a donkey from the Mount of Olives down into the Kidron Valley and up to the Eastern Gate where He entered the Temple Mount for His last days of teaching. As He made that ride, the Valley of Kidron was filled with thousands of admirers who had heard about the resurrection of Lazarus. They waved palm branches and chanted, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" Within a few days that same fickle crowd was shouting, "Crucify Him!"

True or False

1. According to the Gospels, the people waved palm branches when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday.

False (Matt. 21:6, Mark 11:8, Luke 19:36, John 12:13). None of the four Gospels say the people “waved” branches, but that they spread garments and branches in Jesus’ path. Only John mentions palm branches, a tree not native to Jerusalem.

2. The date of Jesus’ triumphal entry-five days before Passover-was a special holiday in his time.

True. It wasn’t called Palm Sunday in Jesus’ day, but each Israelite family chose the lamb they would sacrifice for Passover on the tenth day of the month. As the people shouted “Hosanna,” they didn’t realize they were choosing the Lamb of God as their sacrifice.

3. By their actions, the people were publicly proclaiming Jesus as the Messiah.

True. When Solomon was anointed king, he rode into the city on a mule, to the shouts and praises of the people (1 Kings 1:43-45). Zechariah prophesied the Messiah would arrive the same way “gentle and riding on a donkey” (Zech. 9:9).

4. The fact that Jesus rode a donkey portrayed him as a warrior king.

False. Conquering kings would ride war horses; the donkey symbolized peace and humility (Zech. 9:9, 10). Jesus’ entry was a stark contrast to the war-like Romans, whose military presence was very visible.

5. The shouts of “Hosanna!” meant “Praise the Lord!”

False. The Hebrew word Halleluia means “praise the Lord;” Hosanna means “save us!” or “save!” The Palm Sunday crowd falsely assumed that Jesus would bring political liberation.

How many times did Jesus visit Jerusalem during his ministry?
https://www.answers.com/Q/How_many_times_did_Jesus_visit_Jerusalem_during_his_ministry

The answer depends on which gospel account you are reading.

In Matthew, there is only ONE (1) mention of Jesus entering Jerusalem: chapter 21 (triumphal entry).

In Mark, there is only ONE (1) mention of Jesus entering Jerusalem: chapter 11 (triumphal entry).

In Luke, there are FOUR (4) mentions of Jesus entering Jerusalem: Luke 2:22 (presentation at temple, Jesus is approx. 41 days old); 2:41ff. (feast at Passover, Jesus is 12 years old); 4:9 (temptation by Satan); chapter 19 (triumphal entry).

In John, there are FOUR (4) mentions of Jesus entering Jerusalem: John 2:13 (Passover, cleanses temple); 5:1 (feast of the Jews, healing at the pool); 7:14-10:39f. (Feast of Booths-Feast of Dedication); 12:12ff. (triumphal entry).

Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John each mention Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem. There are, therefore, SEVEN (7) unique mentions of Jesus going to/entering Jerusalem in the Bible.

The synoptic gospels (Matthew, Mark and Luke) say that Jesus travelled from Galilee to Jerusalem only once, at the time of the Passover. In fact some scholars say that in the synoptic gospels, the ministry of Jesus appeared to have lasted less than one year.
This is one position where the Gospel According to St John differs inexplicably from the others. It says that Jesus went from Galilee to Jerusalem three times during his ministry (John 2:13; 5:1; 12:12). By John's account, the ministry of Jesus lasted for at least three years.

THE FIG TREE WITHERED—FAITH EXALTED— PRAYER WITH FAITH EXTOLLED

A.D. 30. Age 33. Near Bethany. Jerusalem.

Mark 11: 12-26; Matthew 21: 12-13, 18-22; Luke 19: 45-48.

Now the next day [Monday], when they had come out from Bethany, as Jesus return into the city, he was hungry. And seeing from afar a fig tree having leaves, he went to see if perhaps he would find something on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs.

In response Jesus said to it, "Let no one eat fruit from you ever again." And his disciples heard it.

Immediately the fig tree withered away. [see Extra Note 1]

And when the disciples saw it, they marveled, saying, "How did the fig tree wither away so soon?"

So Jesus answered and said to them, "Truly, I say to you, if you have faith and do not doubt, you will not only do what was done to the fig tree, but also if you say to this mountain, 'Be removed and be cast into the sea,' it will be done. And whatever things you ask in prayer, believing, you will receive."

101* They came into Jerusalem and Jesus went into the temple of God and drove out all those who bought and sold in the temple, and overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves.

And he said to them, "It is written, 'My house shall be called a house of prayer,' but you have made it a 'den of thieves.' " [see Extra Note 2]

The scribes and chief priests heard it, and sought how they might destroy Jesus: for they feared him, because all the people were attentive to hear him.

And he was teaching daily in the temple. Then the blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them.

But when the chief priests and scribes saw the wonderful things that he did, and the children crying out in the temple and saying, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" they were indignant and said to him, "Do you hear what these are saying?"

And Jesus said to them, "Yes. Have you never read, 'Out of the mouth of babes and nursing infants You have perfected praise'?"

But the chief priests, the scribes, and the leaders of the people sought to destroy him, and were unable to do anything; for all the people were very attentive to hear him.

When evening had come, he went out of the city. [see Extra Note 3]

Now in the morning [Tuesday], as they passed by, they saw the fig tree dried up from the roots. And Peter, remembering, said to Him, "Rabbi, look! The fig tree which you cursed has withered away."

So Jesus answered and said to them, "Have faith in God. For truly, I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, 'Be removed and be cast into the sea,' and does not doubt in his heart, but believes that those things he says will be done, he will have whatever he says.

"Therefore I say to you, whatever things you ask when you pray, believe that you receive them, and you will have them.

"And whenever you stand praying, if you have anything against anyone, forgive him; that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your trespasses. But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive your trespasses." 101^ found nothing but leaves. Since the fruit of the fig tree begins to appear about the same time as the leaves (or a little after), the appearance of leaves in full bloom should have indicated that fruit (in the form of green figs) was already growing. Jesus' actions here have symbolic importance, signifying the hypocrisy of all who have the appearance that they are bearing fruit but in fact are not. The specific reference, though, is to Israel, since in the OT the fig tree often serves as a metaphor for Israel and its standing before God (e.g., Jeremiah 8:13 ; Hosea 9:10, 6; Joel 1:7). Here the cursing of the fig tree signifies the judgment of God on the "fruitless" Jewish people (cf. Mark 7:6), who had turned away from God into empty ritual and legalism (cf. Hosea 9:10-17). It is a visual parable to

At this time of year, edible figs were still about six weeks away, but the bland fruit had recently appeared on the tree in late March; they would become ripe by late May. These were the early figs that preceded the main crop of late figs, which were ripe for harvest from mid-August into October. If only leaves appeared, without the early figs, that tree would bear no figs that year—whether early or late. Because everyone would know that it was "not yet the season for [real] figs," Jesus seems to be making a point about trees that only pretend to have good fruit (cf. Jeremiah 24). In some Jewish stories, exceptionally holy men could curse others or objects and so destroy them; Jesus exerts genuine authority to curse only here, as an acted parable to his disciples. The Tree and Its Fruit

Growing to nearly 20 feet (6 m) in height and with large leaves, the fig tree provides pleasant shade. Minute wasps cultivate these trees, and the fig is produced before the leaves emerge. The flower of the tree is never seen, as its many tiny flowers are housed within the fruit bud. Two crops are produced each year. The first crop is eaten fresh, while the second crop is dried for winter.

Extra Note 2:

The provocative nature of Jesus' arrival in the city was matched by his arrival in the temple area. This was a huge open space of some 33 acres (13.5 hectares), within which stood the temple itself and associated buildings. In the porticos surrounding this area (not in the temple building) were the stalls of those who changed money for the temple offerings and sold sacrificial animals (including doves). They were there with the permission of the priestly authorities and performed a useful, even necessary, function for pilgrims coming from a distance. But the whole thing had got out of proportion, and worship and prayer were being squeezed out by commercialism. Jesus' violent onslaught on all concerned (buyers as well as sellers) expressed his conviction that the temple was no longer fulfilling the purpose for which it had been built.

the great day of the Lord. This, together with his healing of the blind and the lame, was enough to provoke not only popular acclamation but also official resentment. But Jesus offered no apology and made matters worse by justifying the cries of the children who hailed him as Son of David by quoting Psalm 8:2, which is about the praise of God!

When Jesus confronted the merchants in the temple court, it was not that he, in irritation, was striking dead a healthy tree; he was giving a sad assessment of the tree's true condition. God's judgment on Israel would be the same. That is why the story of the clearing of the temple is ‘sandwiched’ by Mark between the two halves of the story of the fig-tree, to make the solemn warning to Israel plain.

When Jesus entered the temple, he probably came into the Court of the Gentiles, the only place in the whole complex where non-Jews were allowed to enter and worship. But worship had become impossible; the court had been turned into a typical bazaar area, with buyers and sellers and stalls everywhere. Birds and animals for sacrifice were sold there, and foreign money could be changed into the only currency accepted in the temple, one without the hated figures of Roman emperors and heathen gods. In one sense, all this was a service to the worshippers, but the noise and bustle made worship impossible. To make matters worse, this court was used as a shortcut by merchants bringing goods from the Mount of Olives to the city itself.

We know from other sources that the worshippers in the Jewish temple were exploited by the merchants, who charged high prices for the sacrificial animals, and the money-changers, who offered unfair exchange rates. We also know that this trade was controlled by the priestly aristocracy who profited greatly at the expense of ordinary pilgrims.

Jesus justified his action of driving out the stall-holders and their customers by showing that God's plan was for his temple to be a center of worship for all nations, not just the Jews (17). That must have brought great encouragement to Mark's non-Jewish readers.

Jesus' disruption of the temple trade must have increased the chief priests' hatred for him, and they began looking for a way to kill him (Mark 11:18). They, above all others, should have recognized their king by what he did. All good kings of Judah had purified the temple, as Mal 3:1-4 says that the coming one would do. If Jesus acted like this to the old earthly temple, how will he act towards the new temple that is his body, the Christian church?

[Source: New Bible Commentary]

Went into the temple. The event here narrated seems to have taken place on the day following the triumphal entry; i.e. on the Monday of the Holy Week. This can be gathered from Mark's narrative, where it is stated that, on the day of triumph, Jesus was escorted to the temple, but merely "looked round about on all things," and then returned for the night to Bethany, visiting the temple again on the following morning, and driving out those who profaned it. Matthew often groups events, not in their proper chronological order, but in a certain logical sequence which corresponded with his design. Thus he connects the cleansing with the triumphal entry, in order to display another example of Christ's self-manifestation at this time, and his purpose to show who he was and to put forth his claims publicly. In this visit of Christ we see the King coming to his palace, the place where his honor dwelled, the fitting termination of his glorious march. This cleansing of the temple must not be confounded with the earlier incident narrated by John (John 2:13, etc.). The two acts marked respectively the beginning and close of Christ's earthly ministry, and denote the reverence which he taught for the house and the worshiper God. The part of the temple which he now visited, and which was profaned to secular use, was the court of the Gentiles, separated from the sanctuary by a stone partition, and considered of lesser sanctity, though really an integral part of the temple.

Cast out all them that sold and bought. In this large open space a market had been established, with the connivance, and much to the pecuniary emolument, of the priests. These let out the sacred area, of which they were the appointed guardians, to greedy and irreligious traders, who made a gain of others' piety. We find no trace of this market in the Old Testament; it probably was established after the Captivity, whence the Jews brought back that taste for commercial business and skill in financial matters for which they have ever since been celebrated. In the eyes of worldly-minded men the sanctity of a building and its appendages was no impediment to traffic and trade, hence they were glad to utilize the temple court, under the sanction of the priests, for the convenience of those who came from all regions to celebrate the great festivals. Here was sold all that was required for the sacrifices which worshippers were minded to offer - animals for victims, meal, incense, salt, etc. The scandalous abuse of the holy precincts, or the plain traces of it (if, as it was late in the day, the traffickers themselves had departed for a time), Christ had observed at his previous visit, when he "looked round about upon all things" (Mark 11:11), and now he proceeded to remedy the crying evil The details of the expulsion are not given. On the first occasion, we are told, he used "a scourge of small cords;" as far as we know, at this time he effected the purification unarmed and alone. It was a marvelous impulse that forced the greedy crew to obey the order of this unknown Man; their own consciences made them timid; they fled in dismay before the stern indignation of his eye, deserted their gainful trade to escape the reproach of that invincible zeal.

Money changers. These persons exchanged (for a certain percentage) foreign money or other coins for the half shekel demanded from all adults for the service of the temple (see on Matthew 17:24). They may have lent money to the needy. The sellers also probably played into their bands by refusing to receive any but current Jewish money in exchange for their wares. It is also certain that no coins stamped with a heathen symbol, or bearing a heathen monarch's image, could be paid into the temple treasury.

The seats of them that sold (the) doves. These birds were used by the poor in the place of costlier victims (see Leviticus 12:6; Leviticus 14:22; Luke 2:24). The sellers were often women, who sat with tables before them on which were set cages containing the doves.

The Tyrian shekel weighed four Athenian drachmas, about 14 grams, more than earlier 11-gram Israeli shekels, but was regarded as the equivalent for religious duties at that time. Because Roman coinage was only 80% silver, the purer (94% or more) Tyrian shekels were required to pay the temple tax in Jerusalem. The money changers referenced in the New Testament Gospels (Matt. 21:12 and parallels) exchanged Tyrian shekels for common Roman currency.

Extra Note 3:
Jesus and his disciples seem to have spent the nights during their time in Jerusalem in their 'safe house' at Bethany. That is why Peter pointed out the withered fig-tree on the way back to the city next morning. Mark does not stress the application of this acted parable to Israel; the structure of his gospel has made that plain enough already. Instead, he shows how Jesus used the withering of the fig-tree as an example of the results of believing prayer (Mark 11:23). But it also shows that we cannot pray in faith for anything that we like. In this matter, Jesus was 'thinking God's thoughts after him' and willing his father's will. That sort of prayer, if asked in faith, will always be answered, for it is praying that God's will may be done (as Jesus prayed in Gethsemane). We can only move the mountains that God wants removed, not those that we want moved. 'Moving mountains' was a phrase used by the rabbis to describe overcoming seemingly impossible difficulties... If we pray in this way, we can give thanks for the result before we see it, for the answer is sure in the will and purpose of God.

withered from the roots. This detail indicates that the destruction was total (cf. Job 18:16) and that no one in the future would eat fruit from the tree. It served as a vivid warning of the judgment to come in A.D. 70 (see Mark 13:2; Matthew 24:2). [Source NIV '08 Study Bible note]

Extra Note 4:

The Fig Tree Incident—A Contradiction?

https://www.christiancourier.com/articles/790-fig-tree-incident-a-contradiction-the

> "Can you explain the apparent contradiction between Matthew and Mark? In Matthew's account, Jesus drove the moneychangers out of the temple, and then cursed the fig tree the next day. (Mt. 21:10-22). Yet in Mark's account he cursed the fig tree first, and then drove the moneychangers out – on the same day (Mk 11:11-26)."

The problem of an alleged "contradiction" between Matthew and Mark, in this particular situation, lies in the fact that the Bible critic does not understand the perspective from which each of the Gospel writers approached the incidents.

The sequence of events on that Monday and Tuesday of the Lord's "Passion Week," before his crucifixion on Friday, was as follows.

(1) On Monday morning (following the Triumphal Entry on Sunday), Jesus and his disciples made their way from Bethany, east of Jerusalem (where they had spent the night), back toward Jerusalem.Along the way, the Lord saw a leafed-out fig tree that was barren of any fruit. In Palestine fig trees ordinarily bore the fruit first, then they subsequently leafed out. The oddity of this tree afforded Jesus the opportunity to teach a lesson that was applicable to the Jewish nation. The nation feigned spiritual piety, but there was no "fruit" demonstrating such. In fact, many of the Jews were poised to crucify their own Messiah before the week was over.[We have discussed this episode elsewhere. See: "Why Did Jesus "Curse" the Fig Tree?". For the present, we are concerned only with the chronological sequence of the events. It is this issue that has been questioned by skeptical critics.]

Observing this fruitless tree, Jesus pronounced a "curse" (i.e., a withering judgment) upon the tree as a symbolic preview of that punishment which ultimately would befall the Hebrew nation (A.D. 70).Immediately the fig tree began to wither away.

The Lord and his disciples then proceeded on to the capital city. They entered the temple compound, and Christ observed the moneychangers plying their wares. With righteous indignation he cast them out from the sacred area, charging them with defaming the house of God. Finally, the Savior and his men returned to Bethany to spend the night there.

(2) On Tuesday morning, the little band again made their way toward Jerusalem. It was at this point, according to Mark's record, that the disciples noticed the withered fig tree. They marveled about the matter and Christ used the occasion to encourage them to strengthen their faith.

The "Problem"

This is where the so-called "problem" occurs – with reference to Matthew's Gospel.It is alleged that the apostle places the "cursing" of the tree, and the disciples exchange with the Lord about this incident, on the same day, and following the cleansing of the temple, thus creating a conflict with Mark. But does he?

Competent scholars have long recognized that some accounts in the Scriptures are topically arranged at various points, rather than conforming to a strict chronological sequence. For example, Genesis 1 is a chronological arrangement of the events of the first six days of the creation week. Genesis 2 also deals with the creation events, but the record is topically arranged, with a major emphasis on mankind. There is no conflict; there is merely a different purpose in the narratives.

Many writers have noted that some portions of Matthew's Gospel are arranged topically, rather than chronologically.D.E. Hiebert observes: "The contents of Matthew, while revealing careful arrangement, are not readily arranged in a systematic outline. The arrangement of the material is largely topical and the central portion of the gospel revolves around five discourses by Jesus" (p. 67). Thiessen provides the following breakdown. "The first four chapters of Matthew are chronological; chs. 5-13 are topical; and chs. 14-28 are again chronological, with the exception of 21:18, 19" (p. 138).Of course Matthew 21:18-19 is the very text that is questioned, chronologically speaking, by the critics.

First observe that Matthew does not say that the "cursing" of the fig tree was on the day following the cleansing of the temple. He simply says that it was "in the morning as he returned to the city" (21:18). Mark's account makes it clear that the "morning" was Monday morning, following his visit on Sunday. Second, Matthew, for convenience sake, combines the "cursing of the tree" and the subsequent "discussion with the disciples," without affirming that these events occurred on the same day. One must not read specificity into an account when it is not there.

William Hendricksen has a very succinct discussion of the matter.In his commentary on Matthew, he writes:

> "That the Gospel writers were not mere copyists but independent authors, each using his own method, appears very clearly in the present instance [21:18-22]. Since part of the Fig Tree story occurred on Monday and part on Tuesday (Mark 11:11,12,19,20), with the cleansing of the temple taking place (on Monday) between these two parts, it is clear that this story could be handled in two ways: (a) chronologically or; (b) topically. Mark follows the first method, describing the first part of the Fig Tree story, the part that took place on Monday morning, in 11:12-14; then, the cleansing of the temple, later that same day, in 11:15-19; and finally, the second part of the Fig Tree story, the part that happened on Tuesday morning, in 11:20-24.Matthew, on the other hand, uses the second method. He wishes to tell the entire story all at once, in one connected and uninterrupted account. In doing this he does not come into real conflict with Mark, for his (Matthew's) time indications are very indefinite" (p. 773).

D.A. Carson comments similarly: "If the Triumphal Entry was on Sunday, then, according to Mark, the cursing of the fig tree was on Monday; and the disciples' surprise at the tree's quick withering, along with Jesus' words about faith, were on Tuesday.Matthew has simply put the two parts together in a typical topical arrangement" (p. 444).See also R.C.H. Lenski (p. 811).

There is one final circumstance that deserves comment. Some have wondered why the disciples did not notice the withered tree as they departed Jerusalem on Monday afternoon, in returning to Bethany. Mark's Gospel makes it clear that they did not observe that detail until Tuesday morning.R.C. Foster has clarified the matter.When the Jews traveled eastward, from Jerusalem to Bethany, they took a more winding route, facilitating an easier climb around the Mount of Olives. The westerly route, from Bethany to Jerusalem, however, was a steeper (downhill) and quicker passage. And so the return to Bethany on Monday evening almost certainly was by a different road (Foster, p. 1104).

A consideration of all the relevant data, as to the respective purpose and style of each writer, clearly shows that Matthew and Mark do not conflict with reference to this event in the Lord's ministry.

Why Did Jesus Curse the Fig Tree?

https://www.olivetree.com/blog/jesus-curse-fig-tree/

[Source: Zondervan's The Expositior's Commentary]

Toward the beginning of Mark 11, Jesus goes to eat from a fig tree. However, the fig tree has not bore any fruit and he curses it. Then, after clearing out the temple, Peter sees that the cursed fig tree is now withered. But why did Jesus curse the fig tree? Walter W. Wessel and Mark L. Strauss examined this passage in the revised Expositor's Bible Commentary. They have some insight to bring, and we've shared the excerpt below.

OVERVIEW

The first three verses of this section form the second part of the story of the fig tree (11:12–14), which sandwiches the account of the cleansing of the temple. (For the theological significance of this "intercalation," see Overview, 11:15–19.)

SCRIPTURE: MARK 11:20-25

In the morning, as they went along, they saw the fig tree withered from the roots. Peter remembered and said to Jesus, “Rabbi, look! The fig tree you cursed has withered!”

“Have faith in God,” Jesus answered. “I tell you the truth, if anyone says to this mountain, ‘Go, throw yourself into the sea,’ and does not doubt in his heart but believes that what he says will happen, it will be done for him. Therefore I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours. And when you stand praying, if you hold anything against anyone, forgive him, so that your Father in heaven may forgive you your sins.’”

COMMENTARY ON WHY JESUS CURSED THE FIG TREE

Mark 11:20-21

The next morning (presumably Tuesday of Passion Week) Jesus and his disciples, on returning to Jerusalem from Bethany, again passed the fig tree. It was totally destroyed (“withered from the roots”). Jesus had predicted that no one would ever eat fruit from it again (v.14); and Peter, remembering what Jesus had said, called his attention to the withered tree (v.21). Jesus does not explicitly interpret the event, yet the meaning seems clear: Jesus’ predicted judgment on the temple will come to pass as surely as did his prediction that the fig tree would wither.

NOTE: Matthew refers to the cursing of the fig tree only after the cleansing of the temple and says the tree withered “at once” (Mt 21:19). These differences fit his tendency to abbreviate and condense episodes (cf. Mt 8:5–13; 9:18–26).

Mark 11:22

We have noted that Jesus cursing the fig tree is closely related to the cleansing of the temple, with both symbolizing God’s judgment against Israel. Yet oddly, Jesus does not make this connection explicit. Instead, in this verse and in the teaching that follows, he links the miracle of the fig tree’s destruction to the power of faith and prayer.

This feature suggests to some commentators that the sayings of vv.22–25 have no historical connection with what precedes and that Mark (or the tradition before them) has added them out of a misunderstanding of the symbolism of the fig tree’s destruction. While this is possible, it is more likely that Jesus took this opportunity to draw a second application from the miracle and that Mark (and Matthew, who follows him) has retained this application.

Jesus uses the incident of the fig tree to teach critical lessons on faith and prayer. The source of the power for performing the miracle is God. He must be the object of our faith.

NOTE: The variant reading that inserts εἰ (ei, “if”) before ἔχετε (echete, “you have”) has rather strong MS support. But it is probably not original, for (1) the solemn “I tell you the truth” is never preceded by a conditional clause, and (2) the introductory “if” probably arose by assimilation to the saying in Luke 17:6 (cf. Mt 21:21).

Mark 11:23

As with previous pronouncements of Jesus, this one is preceded by the solemn introductory formula “I tell you the truth” — a way of indicating its importance. Since Jesus was standing on the Mount of Olives, from which the Dead Sea can be seen on a clear day, he may have been referring specifically to that mountain. Of course, the image of throwing a mountain into the sea is figurative for something that is humanly impossible (Zec 4:7). Jesus is saying that the greatest possible difficulties can be removed when a person has faith (cf. Jas 1:6). A similar image of the power of faith to move mountains appears in the saying concerning the mustard seed in Matthew 17:20 (cf. Lk 17:6).

Mark 11:24

There is a close connection between the kind of faith Jesus speaks of here and prayer. E. Stauffer (New Testament Theology [London: SCM, 1955], 169) clearly brings out this connection: “The ‘faith’ of Mark 11:23f. is a faith that prays. . . . Prayer is the source of its power, and the means of its strength — God’s omnipotence is its sole assurance, and God’s sovereignty its only restriction.” Jesus elsewhere affirms the unlimited power of prayer to accomplish results (Mt 7:7; 18:19; Lk 11:9).

Mark 11:25

Admittedly the transition between v.24 and v.25 is abrupt (with v.24 speaking of faith, v.25 of forgiveness). Still there is a connection. To be effective, prayer must be offered in faith — faith in the all-powerful God, who works miracles. But it must be offered in the spirit of forgiveness. Faith and the willingness to forgive are the two conditions of efficacious prayer. Matthew omits this verse, perhaps because of the abrupt change in subject or because he has provided a parallel saying in the Sermon on the Mount (Mt 6:14), immediately following the Lord’s Prayer.

Mark 11:26

This verse does not occur in the NIV or most other modern versions because it is not found in the best and most ancient MSS of the NT. It represents an insertion from Matthew 6:15.

Why Did Jesus Curse That Fig Tree?

[Source: Preaching the Word Series]

Remember that story in Mark 11, where Jesus cursed a fig tree for not providing fruit? Over the years, some scholars have been troubled by this action, which seemed "out of character" for Jesus. The story made perfect sense to Hughes, and he explains this episode with elegance and clarity. I've pasted in below, just the first part of Hughes' comments on this. It's typical of his scholarship and a style of writing that delivers understanding.

THROUGH THE YEARS, overly critical minds have found reasons to reject the account of Jesus' cursing of the fig tree in 11:12-14 as spurious. In recent history the celebrated New Testament scholar T. W. Manson wrote: “It is a tale of miraculous power wasted in the service of ill-temper (for the supernatural energy employed to blast the unfortunate tree might have been more usefully expressed in forcing a crop of figs out of season); and as it stands, it is simply incredible.” William Barclay agrees, adding, “The story does not seem worthy of Jesus. There seems to be a petulance in it.”

So these minds reject the story because it seems to them that Jesus is acting like a spoiled child who did not get his way. Still others have rejected Jesus' cursing the tree because it is unthinkable to them that Jesus would blast a poor, innocent tree simply because it was fruitless.

What do we say to these objections? To the last we answer that such an objection comes from an unhealthy eagerness to find fault. If we assume that lower creation has no soul and is there for our use (as we do every day), then where is Jesus' sin?

The same thinking applies to an earlier description of a herd of swine (Mark 5). Turn them into pork sausage and we think how nicely they have fulfilled their destiny. But sacrifice them for the salvation of a poor lunatic's soul – use them up in order to restore him to health, and the wholle thing is shocking! Here in Mark 11, if the fig tree continued to be barren and useless, it would be cut down for firewood and no one would object. But when Jesus withers the tree with a word to teach an eternal spiritual lesson, the critics cry out.

This is where the essential answer lies: Jesus did not spitefully curse the tree because he was hungry and it didn't provide what it promised. He could do without food, as for example when he refused to satisfy his hunger by turning stones into bread even though he had been fasting forty days in the wilderness (Matthew 4:1-4). Jesus was a man who would forego food and rest to minister to a soul, as he did at Jacob's well (John 4:1-9).

The reason Jesus cursed the barren fig tree was because he wanted it to become a visual parable of what was happening to Israel. In actuality he honored that tree, making it the most useful tree that ever grew! It was, and is, a tree from which thousands have learned about themselves and turned back to God. If one soul has been made to consider its life through that tree, it did not wither in vain.

CHRIST'S AUTHORITY CHALLENGED—PARABLES: THE SONS WHO WERE OF TWO MINDS; THE LORD OF THE VINEYARD, HIS SON, AND THE MURDEROUS HUSBANDMEN

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem, in the Temple.

Matthew 21: 23-46; Mark 11: 27-33, 12: 1-12; Luke 20, 1-19.

102* On one of those days, as Jesus was walking in the temple, teaching and preaching the gospel, the chief priests, and the scribes [teachers of the law], came with the elders, saying, “Tell us, by what authority are you doing these things? Who is it who gave you this authority?” [see Extra Note 1]

Jesus answered, “I will ask you one question; answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things. Was the baptism of John from heaven or from man? Answer me.”

And they discussed it with one another, saying, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’ But if we say, ‘From man’?” — the people will stone us.” They were afraid of the people, for they all held that John really was a prophet.

So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.”

And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

Then he began to speak to them in parables.

“But what do you think? A man had two sons, and he came to the first and said, ‘Son, go, work today in my vineyard.’ He answered and said, ‘I will not,’ but afterward he regretted it and went.

“Then he came to the second and said likewise. And he answered and said, ‘I go, sir,’ but he did not go.

“Which of the two did the will of his father?”

They said to Him, “The first.”

Jesus said to them, “Truly, I say to you that tax collectors and harlots enter the kingdom of God before you. For John came to you in the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him; but tax collectors and harlots believed him; and when you saw it, you did not afterward relent [repent] and believe him.

“Hear another parable:

“There was a certain landowner who planted a vineyard and set a hedge around it, dug a place for a winevat, dug a winepress in it and built a tower. And he leased it to vinedressers and went into a far country. [see Extra Note 2]

“Now when vintage-time drew near, he sent his a servant to the vinedressers, that they might receive the fruit of the vineyard from the vinedressers.

And they took him and beat him and sent him away empty-handed.

“Again he sent them another servant, and at him they threw stones, wounded him in the head, and sent him away shamefully treated.

“And again he sent another, and him they killed; and they cast him out.

“Again he sent many other servants, more than the first, and they did likewise to them – beating some, and killing some.

“Still having one son, his well-beloved, the owner of the vineyard then said, ‘What shall I do? I will send my beloved son.’ Therefore he also sent him to them last, saying, ‘Probably they will respect him when they see him.’

“But those vinedressers saw the son, they said among themselves, ‘This is the heir. Come, let us kill him; and let us seize the inheritance and the inheritance will be ours.’

“So they caught him and killed him and cast him out of the vineyard.

“Therefore, when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those vinedressers?

“He will destroy those wicked men miserably, and lease his vineyard to other vinedressers who will render to him the fruits in their seasons.”

And when they heard it they said, “May it never be!”

Then Jesus looked at them and said, “What then is the meaning of this that is written? Have you not read the Scripture:

‘The stone which the builders rejected, has become the chief cornerstone.
‘This was the LORD's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes’?” 103*

“Therefore I say to you, the kingdom of God will be taken from you and given to a nation bearing [bringing forth] the fruits of it. And whoever falls on this stone will be broken; but on whomever it falls, it will grind him to powder.”

Now when the chief priests and Pharisees heard his parables, they perceived that he was speaking of them. And they sought to lay hands on him, but feared the multitudes, because the people took him for a prophet and knew he had spoken against them. So they left him and went away.

Footnotes

102:* The text itself, as phrased by the three narrators of these episodes, furnishes interesting likenesses and contrasts (book, chapter, and verse indicated above [under subtitle].)

103:* Psalms 118:22-23. Note: LORD (all caps) in the OT = YHWH (Yahweh).

Extra Note 1:
The Sanhedrin, which was in effect the Jewish 'parliament', was composed of representatives from each of the three groups named here, the chief priests, teachers of the law (scribes) and elders, totaling seventy-one members under the chairmanship of the high priest. The chief priests were members of the leading high-priestly families and holders of various offices (e.g. the ruler of the temple, the leaders of the weekly and daily groups of priests, the captains and the treasurers); the elders were the lay representatives of the people.

The events of Luke 20:1-21:36 all occurred on Tuesday of Passion Week — a long day of controversy.

One day. Not specified, but Mark's parallel accounts (Mark 11:19-20,27-33) indicate that this day (Tuesday) followed the clearing of the temple (Monday), which followed the Triumphal Entry (Sunday).

*chief priests (*see Luke 19:47), *teachers of the law (*see Luke 5:30), elders.
Each of these groups was represented in the Jewish council, the Sanhedrin (see Luke 22:66).

Extra Note 2:

Jesus now moved into the attack with a transparent parable. Jews who knew their Scriptures would be reminded of the opening words of Isaiah 5:1-7, where a vineyard represented Israel. In the owner's absence, the tenants decided first to withhold the fruits from him and then to ensure that they would take over the vineyard. In certain conditions the property of a Gentile or a proselyte who died without making a will would pass to the first person who gained possession of it. The tenants may have been relying on some such custom, or simply hoping that the landlord would not follow up on their action. So they killed the heir and sat tight on the property. The story reflects the situation of the time when large estates in Galilee were owned by distant landlords. It also portrays allegorically the history of Israel and its leaders who had continually rejected the messengers of God. For Christians the owner's son clearly represents Jesus, but whether the first hearers would have recognized this is not certain. They might have seen in the word son a way of referring to the Messiah, or they might have known that on occasion Jesus claimed that God was his Father in a special way. But, although Jesus himself was aware of his own identity and fate, he did not speak openly about them to the crowds or his opponents.

The picture is entitled simply "Treading Winepress." At once, you can understand why it is called "treading" as you see the people stomping on the grapes to release the juice. (As a side note, the juice then drained out of the winepress through a hole on one end of the vat.) [Source: BiblePlaces.com]

It was obvious what a landlord would do with such tenants, and everybody would have accepted that he was in the right to do so. Yet the hearers said May this never be. This shows that they must have recognized that Jesus was applying the story to 'the vineyard of the Lord', and they were appalled at the thought of others taking possession of it. Jesus, however, claimed scriptural support for what he said. What else, he asked, could be the meaning of the metaphor of the stone rejected by the builders but given the chief place in the building? Did it not mean that the person whose authority they had refused (Luke 20:1-7) was the person of God's choice? Anybody who rejected him, therefore, would suffer judgment (see Isaiah 8:14- 15; Daniel 2:34-35).

Landowners always had power, socially and legally, to enforce their will on the tenants; a few even reportedly had hit squads to deal with troublesome tenants. Here the tenants act as if they are the ones with power, and they exploit it mercilessly (as opposed to the ancient ideal of a benevolent patron or landowner). This description fits the Jewish tradition that Israel martyred many of the prophets God sent to it. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

PARABLE: THE KING'S GUESTS FOR HIS SON'S WEDDING—FUTILE WILES: CESAR'S TRIBUTE, THE SEVEN BROTHERS' WIDOW

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem, in the Temple.

Matthew 22: 1-32; Mark 12: 13-27; Luke 20: 20-38.

Jesus spoke again to them by parables and said:

"The kingdom of heaven is like a certain king who arranged a marriage for his son, and sent out his servants to call those who were invited to the wedding; and they were not willing to come. [see Extra Note 1]

"Again, he sent out other servants, saying, 'Tell those who are invited, "See, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and fatted cattle are killed, and all things are ready. Come to the wedding."' But they made light of it and went their ways, one to his own farm, and another to his business. And the rest seized his servants, treated them spitefully, and killed them. But when the king heard about it, he was furious. And he sent out his armies, destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city.

"Then he said to his servants, 'The wedding is ready, but those who were invited were not worthy. Therefore go into the highways, and as many as you find, invite to the wedding.' So those servants went out into the highways and gathered together all whom they found, both bad and good. And the wedding hall was filled with guests.

"But when the king came in to see the guests, he saw a man there who did not have on a wedding garment. "So he said to him, 'Friend, how did you come in here without a wedding garment?' And he was speechless.

"Then the king said to the servants, 'Bind him hand and foot, take him away, and cast him into outer darkness; there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

"For many are called, but few are chosen."

Then the Pharisees went and plotted how they might entangle him in his talk. So they watched him, and sent spies who pretended to be righteous, that they might seize on his words, in order to deliver him to the power and the authority of the governor. And they sent to him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, "Teacher, we know that you are true, and teach the way of God in truth; nor do you care about anyone, for you do not regard the person of men [show partiality]. us, therefore, what do you think? Is it lawful to pay taxes to Caesar, or not?" [see Extra Note 2]

Jesus perceived their craftiness, and said,

"Why do you test me, you hypocrites? Show me the tax [tribute] money. Bring me a denarius, that I may see it. Show it to me." [see Extra Note 3]

So they brought it. And he said to them, "Whose image and inscription does it have? Whose is this image and inscription?"

They said to him, "Caesar's."

And Jesus answered and said to them, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."

When they had heard these words, they marveled and kept silent; then left him and went their way.

The same day the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and asked him, saying: "Teacher, Moses wrote to us, that if a man dies, and leaves his wife behind, having no children, his brother shall marry his wife and raise up offspring for his brother. 105* [see Extra Note 4]

"Now there were with us seven brothers. The first died after he had married, and having no offspring, left his wife to his brother. Likewise the second also, and the third, even to the seventh. Last of all the woman died also. Therefore, in the resurrection, whose wife of the seven will she be? For all seven had her as wife."

Jesus answered and said to them, "Are you not therefore mistaken, because you do not know the Scriptures nor the power of God? You are mistaken, not knowing the Scriptures nor the power of God.

"The sons of this age marry and are given in marriage. But those who are counted worthy to attain that age, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; nor can they die anymore, for they are equal to the angels of God in heaven; and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection.

"But concerning the dead, that they rise; have you not read in the book of Moses, what was spoken to you by God: how in the burning bush passage Moses showed that the dead are raised when God spoke to Moses, saying, 'I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob'?

"For He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living, for all live to Him."

"You are therefore greatly mistaken."

(And when the multitudes heard this, they were astonished at his teaching. Then some of the scribes answered and said, “Teacher, You have spoken well.” But after that they dared not question him anymore.) 105^

Footnotes

105:^ It’s interesting that, in all the questioning and challenges by the religious “elite”, they are not able to respond and/or are silenced and/or have to walk away. Most of us would be open and asking serious, heartfelt questions, desiring to learn as much as possible about what Jesus had to ‘offer’; instead of just trying to treat Jesus as a threat to their social, financial and political status, their weak beliefs and practices, while trying to defend their pride and stubbornness and arrogance. a man who had no wedding garment. Everyone was invited, but proper wedding attire was still expected. There are two possibilities for what this means: (1) There is some evidence in the ancient world for a king supplying garments for his guests (cf. Genesis 45:22; Ester 6:8-9), and, more broadly, there is the story of God clothing his unworthy people in beautiful garments (Ezekiel 16:10-13). Jesus could thus be alluding to imputed righteousness, which Paul elaborates later (e.g., Romans 3:21-31; 4:22-25). Thus by not wearing the garments provided, this guest has highly insulted the host. (2) The wedding garment may refer to a clean garment, symbolizing evidence of righteous works (see note on Matthew 5:20). In either case, the man lacks something that is essential for being accepted at the wedding feast.

(Recorded in Mark 12:13-27; Matthew 22:15-22; Luke 20:20-26.) This was an effort to trap Jesus into making a statement of some kind that could be used as evidence of disloyalty to the Roman government and thus give His opponents an excuse to hand Jesus over to Pilate. Jesus, with a master stroke, proclaimed the separation of church and state. Christians must be obedient to their government; but the government has no right to dictate the religion of its subjects.

flattery, they sprang their question: “Is it right to pay taxes to Caesar or not?”. If he said “No,” the Herodians would report him to the Roman governor and he would be executed for treason. If he said “Yes,” the Pharisees would denounce him to the people as disloyal to his nation.

pay taxes to Caesar. Subject peoples were required to pay a poll tax to the Roman emperor. The tax was highly unpopular, and some Jews flatly refused to pay it, believing that payment was an admission of Roman right to rule.
Give to Caesar what is Caesar's. See Matthew 22:21. There are obligations to the state that do not conflict with our obligations to God (see Romans 13:1-7; 1Timothy 2:1-3; Titus 3:1-2; 1Peter 2:13-17). That a denarius belonged to Caesar was plainly marked in that on one side it bore a portrait of the emperor and on the other side an inscription that identified him. [It was his coin.] to God what is God's. Humans, who bear the image of God, owe to him their whole lives.
[Source: NIV ‘08 Study Bible note]

Jesus rightly labels his opponents' kind words as “hypocrisy” (Mark 12:15). Since Jesus purports to be teaching the way of God, they figure that he must have an opinion on whether it is lawful to pay poll taxes or property taxes to the oppressive Roman emperor. A rejection of paying taxes would seem to entail rebellion against Caesar; a willingness to pay taxes appears to compromise devotion to God (on civic duties and the relationship between church and state.
The likeness (of Tiberius Caesar) and inscription on the denarius (valued as the wage of a day's labor) represent the person of Caesar and his authority. By carrying the coin, Jesus' opponents show that they already participate in the Roman social order.
the things that are Caesar's . . . the things that are God's. Jesus does not discuss the question of whether the current Roman governance is just or unjust, but he does imply that it is right to pay taxes to Caesar. God's kingdom, however, transcends all of these “things.” Jesus is not establishing a political kingdom in opposition to Caesar, so his followers should pay taxes and obey civil laws. There are matters that belong to the realm of civil government, and there are other matters that belong to God's realm. Jesus does not here specify which matters belong in which realm, but many Christian ethicists today teach that, in general, civil government should allow freedom in matters of religious doctrine, worship, and beliefs about God, and the church should not attempt to use the power of government to enforce allegiance to any specific religious viewpoint. All forms of the Christian church throughout the world today support some kind of separation between matters of church and matters of state. By contrast, totalitarian governments usually try to suppress the church and subsume everything under the realm of the state. And some extreme Islamic movements have tried to abolish independent civil government and subsume everything under the control of Islamic religious leaders. (Historically, when the church and state have become too closely aligned, the result most often has been the compromise of the church.)

Roman denarius coins around the time of Jesus.

Tiberius (14 - 37 AD)

Most likely coin that Jesus held in his hand when he said "Give to Caesar's…"

[Source: http://www.romancoins.info/12C-Empire.HTML]

The most common silver coin in circulation was the Roman denarius. In some Bible versions [e.g., the KJV], it is called a "penny" though its value was the equivalent of a day's wage for a laborer. It was translated by the word "penny" because the standard Roman abbreviation for a denarius is "d."-the same abbreviation was used centuries later by the British for "penny." Another indication of the value of the denarius is found in the story of the Good Samaritan: The innkeeper was paid two denarii for caring for the wounded man for several days. Jesus' opponents used a denarius to trap him with their question about taxation (Matthew 22:19). The denarius of that day had the head of the Roman Emperor Tiberius on one side, and on the other side a likeness of his, mother, Livia, shown holding an olive branch and a scepter, personifying Rome.

Extra Note 4:
Having silenced the Pharisees, Jesus was approached by the Sadducees, the wealthy nobles who controlled both temple and Sanhedrin, the great religious council of Israel. They simply came to mock his belief in resurrection by giving an obviously ridiculous illustration of a much-married wife, probably not drawn from real life. The Pharisees had already ruled that such a wife would belong to her first husband at the resurrection (which they interpreted in a very material way, rather as popular Islam does today). The Sadducees approved, of course, of the Mosaic custom mentioned here, which was designed to keep property in the widow's family, but they rejected any idea of resurrection altogether. To them, this life was all that there was; no wonder that they were hard, materialistic and often rich. We all know of people like that. First, Jesus undercut the whole argument by rejecting crudely materialistic ideas of the resurrection, in which he, like the Pharisees, believed. As Paul says, our resurrection body will be of a different kind (1Corinthians 15:44). Jesus compares it here to that of angels. Questions like sex and bodily relationships do not arise. So too we must reject crudely materialistic ideas of the meaning both of resurrection and of 'Son of God', as though it meant simple physical fatherhood. These things are stumbling-blocks in the way of receiving the good news.

From the books of Moses, which the Sadducees accepted, Jesus showed them that the idea of resurrection could be proved from the patriarchs' relationship with the living God. They 'caught' eternal life from God, as we do from Christ today, but it is a new sort of life, demonstrating the power of God.

book of Moses. Exodus, one of the books of the Pentateuch (the first five books of the Old Testament (OT), all of which tradition ascribed to Moses). Account [passage] of the bush. A common way of referring to Exodus 3:1-6. [Source: NIV '08 Study Bible note]

Sadducees drew mainly or exclusively on the Pentateuch for doctrine (see Jewish Groups at the Time of the New Testament (NT)), so they did not believe in the resurrection, a theme developed more clearly in later OT books (cf. Isaiah 26:19; Daniel 12:2). They asked him a question in order to trap him theologically. They assumed that those who believe in a resurrection life think it is like the present life, suggesting that a woman who has been married more than once will be found guilty of incest after the resurrection. They hope hereby to show that the idea of resurrection is really absurd. Jesus first demonstrates the flaw of equating the coming age with this age. Whereas the sons of this age (cf. "sons of this world," 16:8) marry, those considered worthy to attain to that age and to the resurrection from the dead (cf. Acts 4:2 and 1 Peter 1:3 for another description of "that age") neither marry nor are given in marriage. Marriage is not a permanent fixture in God's eternal purpose. Equal to angels explains why resurrected believers cannot die (since angels are immortal). sons of God . . . sons of the resurrection. The believer's relationship as a child of God becomes fully realized at the resurrection after Christ's return (cf. Romans 8:23; 1 Corinthians 15:53-54).
Citing the OT "Scriptures," Jesus explains the full "power of God" when it comes to *the dead being raised. Exodus 3:6 cannot mean that God makes himself known to Moses as the *God of the dead. Rather, as the God of Abraham. . . Isaac, and. . . Jacob (i.e., the faithful, covenant-keeping God), he is the God of the living (Exodus 3:15-16; 4:5). Abraham therefore continues to exist and to enjoy the blessings of God's covenant (cf. Romans 8:35-39), and hence will also be raised from the dead.

but are as the angels which are in heaven — In Luke (Luke 20:36) it is "equal unto the angels." But as the subject is death and resurrection, we are not warranted to extend the equality here taught beyond the one point — the immortality of their nature. A beautiful clause is added in Luke (Luke 20:36)—"and are the children of God" — not in respect of character, which is not here spoken of, but of nature —"being the children of the resurrection," as rising to an undecaying existence (Romans 8:21,23), and so being the children of their Father's immortality (1Timothy 6:16). Question About the Resurrection: (Recorded Mark 12:18-27; Matthew 22:23-33; Luke 20:27-40.) The Sadducees were the materialists of that day. They were not numerous, but were educated, wealthy, and influential. They did not believe in the resurrection. The question with which they tried to baffle Jesus involved a case that would require polygamy in heaven. Jesus settled the matter instantly and simply: there will be no marrying in heaven. [Source: Halley's Bible Handbook]

The Sadducees' question to Jesus concerns the custom called levirate marriage (Deuteronomy 25:5-6), which was meant to protect widows economically. In various forms, both ancient Middle Eastern cultures and many traditional societies today employ levirate marriage. It helps widows in societies where women cannot earn adequate wages. (Mark 12:20-23): The Sadducees take this story line from the Jewish apocryphal book of Tobit, where seven successive husbands of pious Sarah die (though they were not brothers). (Mark 12:24-27): Jesus' response resembles standard Pharisaic responses. When Pharisees debated this issue with Sadducees, they argued for the resurrection from the law of Moses, and typically read a text for all they could get out of it. Standard Jewish interpretive technique would have read Exodus 3:6 as present tense, "I am the God of the patriarchs" — implying that the patriarchs still lived (cf. similarly 4Ma 7:18-19; 16:25; Philo, Abraham 50-55). Phrases such as "in the passage about the bush" were standard, because the Bible had not yet been divided into chapters and verses. [Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Jesus' response had two elements. First, he rebuked the Sadducees' ignorance of the Scriptures (i.e., the OT), where the resurrection of the dead is referred to most clearly in the Prophets (Isaiah 26:19; Ezekiel 37:1-14) and the Writings (Job 19:26; Psalms 16:9-11; 49:15; 73:23-26; Daniel 12:2; see "Introduction to the Old Testament: The Order of the Hebrew Bible.") However, the Sadducees accepted only the Torah (Genesis — Deuteronomy), so Jesus answered them from the Torah. The reference to God as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob (see Exodus 3:6, 15-16) showed that God's covenant with the patriarchs could not be broken by death. They were still alive (Matthew 8:11-12; 13:17; Luke 16:19-31; John 8:56), for God is the God of the living, not the dead. God's covenant relationship with his people extends beyond their physical death, which means that the afterlife must be a reality. Second, Jesus' challenged the Sadducees' ignorance of God's power. They thought that life in the resurrection would have to be an extension of mortal life. Instead, it is life raised to an entirely new level. In this new existence, there is no need for sexual reproduction because there is no more death. The intimacy of marriage is superseded by fellowship with a multitude of fellow believers and with God (Mark 10:29-30; Matthew 19:28-29; Luke 18:29-30; Revelation 21:1-4). It is in this respect that resurrected believers will be like the angels in heaven. Jesus' argument demonstrates his wisdom before his opponents and affirms the hope of the resurrection for his followers. Jesus is "the resurrection and the life" (John 11:25); he has conquered death and assured those who believe in him that they will "not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

Summary of Mark, Chapter 12

Jesus' confrontation with the religious authorities continues. He tells a story that is clearly directed against them but, unable to arrest Him, they skulk away (v. 1-17). Then the Sadducees, members of a religious party that denies the supernatural, try to ridicule Christ's affirmation of the resurrection (v. 18-23). They fail utterly, as Jesus shows, to understand the Scriptures they supposedly honor (v. 24-27). One teacher of the Law, with more insight and openness than the others, asks Jesus about the most important of the commandments. Jesus' answer, and the man's response, reminds us that not all teachers of Scripture in first-century Judaism were like the authorities who hated the Lord (v. 28-34). Jesus shows up these so-called "teachers of the Law" and warns the common people against them. They mask their greed in piety and defraud the very widows whose commitment the Lord honors (v. 35-44). What a stunning turnaround for Jesus to call us to honor the poor and scorn the rich!

THE FIRST GREAT COMMANDMENT: AND THE SECOND—"WHOSE SON IS CHRIST?"—WIDOW'S MITE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem, in the Temple.

Matthew 22: 34-46; Mark 12: 28-44; Luke 20: 41-47, 21: 1-4.

But when the Pharisees heard that Jesus had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together. Then one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him a question, testing him, and saying, "Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law? Which is the first commandment of all?"

Jesus answered him, "The first of all the commandments is: 'Hear, O Israel, the LORD our God, the LORD is one; And you shall love the LORD your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your mind, and with all your strength.' This is the first commandment. And the second is like it, and is this: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets. There is no other commandment greater than these." 106*

So the scribe said to Him, "Well said, Teacher. You have spoken the truth, for there is one God, and there is no other but He. And to love Him with all the heart, with all the understanding, with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love one's neighbor as oneself, is more than all the whole burnt offerings and sacrifices."

Now when Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, "You are not far from the kingdom of God."

But after that no one dared question him.

While the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them, saying, "What do you think about the Christ? Whose son is He?" [see Extra Note 1]

They said to Him, "The son of David."

He said to them, "How then does David in the Spirit call Him 'Lord,' saying:
'The LORD said to my Lord,
"Sit at My right hand, till I make Your enemies Your footstool'"? 106^

"If David then calls him 'Lord,' how is he his son?"

And no one was able to answer him a word, nor from that day on did anyone dare question him anymore.

And the common people heard him gladly.

While he taught in the temple, he said, "How is it that the scribes say that the Christ is the son of David? For in the book of Psalms David himself said by the Holy Spirit:
'The LORD said to my Lord,
"Sit at My right hand, till I make Your enemies Your footstool."'
Therefore David himself calls Him 'Lord'; how is He then his son?" 106^

Then, in the hearing of all the people, he said to his disciples, "Beware of the scribes, who desire to go around in long robes, love greetings in the marketplaces, the best seats in the synagogues, and the best places at feasts, who devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers. These will receive greater condemnation."

[see Extra Note 2]

Now Jesus sat opposite the treasury 107* and saw how the people put money into the treasury. And many who were rich put in much.

Then one poor widow came and threw in two mites, which make a quadrans. 107^

So he called his disciples to himself and said to them, "Truly, I say to you that this poor widow has put in more than all those who have given to the treasury; for they all put in out of their abundance, but she out of her poverty put in all that she had, her whole livelihood."

106:^ Psalm 110:1 (for related, see also: Acts 2:34-35; 1Corinthians 15:25; Hebrews 1:13; 10:13) This is the OT verse most quoted in the NT. Since David authored the psalm, the statement The Lord [God] said to my [David's] Lord [the Messiah] indicates that the Messiah is David's Lord. Thus, he could not simply be David's son. He is the Son of God, the Messiah, who sits at God's right hand (Mark 14:62) and will come to judge the world. [The Lord: Hebrew Yahweh, the name of God (see Exodus 3:6-14; 6:2-8; 20:2). My Lord (Hebrew adoni) means "my master" or "my superior." The psalmist viewed God's messianic ruler as his superior.]

107:* treasury. A chest (collection box) located in the Temple area, designed to receive coins dropped in a spout. The original Greek word can refer to a building within the Temple compound in which Temple money was stored, but here it refers to one of thirteen money chests into which gifts were placed. As Jesus watched, many rich people put in large sums.

Extra Note 1:
Now it was Jesus' turn to ask a question. Israel was looking for a Messiah, a king of David's line, to restore an earthly kingdom. As we have seen, it was probably because of this false hope that Jesus did not claim openly to be Messiah. It was also because of this that, as soon as Peter had recognized him as Messiah, he explained that God's Messiah must suffer and die. How was he to show that the Jewish earthly expectation was wrong?

All Jesus' audience would have agreed that Psalm 110 was written by David; they would also have agreed that 'my Lord' in the Psalm must refer to God's anointed, the Messiah. How then could David, the honored ancestor, possibly call his descendant, the Messiah, 'my Lord', so giving him a superior position? Any one from a culture which reveres ancestors will see the point at once here. It would be unthinkable, unless this Messiah was more than human and thus far superior to his ancestor. (Whether or not this particular Psalm was written by David, and whether or not this was the original meaning, is quite beside the point; Jesus was speaking in a way his contemporaries would have understood.) [Source: New Bible Commentary]

The Lord said to my Lord. With David being the speaker, this indicates his respect for his descendant (referred to as my Lord). Jesus was arguing, as the ancient exposition assumed, that the passage is about the Lord's anointed. The passage looks at an enthronement of this figure and a declaration of honor for him as he takes his place at the side of God. In Jerusalem, the king's palace was located to the right of the temple to indicate this kind of relationship. Jesus was pressing the language here to get his opponents to reflect on how great Messiah is. [Source: NET Bible note]

Extra Note 2:
The synagogue was a place for Jewish prayer and worship, with recognized leadership (cf. Luke 8:41). Though its origin is not entirely clear, it seems to have arisen in the postexilic community during the intertestamental period (the time between the writing of the OT and NT). A town could establish a synagogue if there were at least ten men.

In normative Judaism of the NT period, the OT scripture was read and discussed in the synagogue by the men who were present. (See the Mishnah, m. Megillah 3-4; m. Berakhot 2.) First came the law, then the prophets, then someone was asked to speak on the texts.

Jesus undoubtedly took the opportunity on this occasion to speak about his person and mission, and its relationship to Old Testament fulfillment. [Source: NET Bible note]

"WOE UNTO YOU, SCRIBES AND PHARISEES!"—HYPOCRISY AND CANT CONDEMNED—"O JERUSALEM, JERUSALEM!"—"BLESSED IS HE THAT COMETH IN THE NAME OF THE LORD"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem, in the Temple.

Matthew 23: 1-39.

To the multitudes and to his disciples, Jesus spoke, saying:

“The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses’ seat. Therefore whatever they tell you to observe, that observe and do, but do not do according to their works; for they say, and do not do. For they bind heavy burdens, hard to bear, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers.

“But all their works they do to be seen by men. They make their phylacteries 108^ broad and enlarge the borders of their garments. They love the best places at feasts, the best seats in the synagogues, greetings in the marketplaces, and to be called by men, ‘Rabbi, Rabbi.’ But you, do not be called ‘Rabbi’; for one is your Teacher, the Christ [Messiah], and you are all brethren.

“Do not call anyone on earth your father; for One is your Father, He who is in heaven. “And do not be called teachers [or Masters KJV]; for One is your Teacher [or Master KJV], the Christ [Messiah].

“But he who is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted.

“But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; for you neither go in yourselves, nor do you allow those who are entering to go in.

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows’ houses, and for a pretense make long prayers. Therefore you will receive greater condemnation.

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you travel land and sea to win one proselyte, and when he is won, you make him twice as much a son of hell as yourselves.

“Woe to you, blind guides, who say, ‘Whoever swears by the temple, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gold of the temple, he is obliged to perform it. ’

“Fools and blind! For which is greater, the gold or the temple that sanctifies the gold? And, ‘Whoever swears by the altar, it is nothing; but whoever swears by the gift that is on it, he is obliged to perform it. ’

“Fools and blind! For which is greater, the gift or the altar that sanctifies the gift? Therefore he who swears by the altar, swears by it and by all things on it. He who swears by the temple, swears by it and by Him who dwells in it. And he who swears by heaven, swears by the throne of God and by Him who sits on it.

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faith. These you ought to have done, without leaving the others undone.

“Blind guides, who strain out a gnat and swallow a camel!

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you cleanse the outside of the cup and dish, but inside they are full of extortion and self-indulgence.

“Blind Pharisee, first cleanse the inside of the cup and dish, that the outside of them may be clean also.

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs which indeed appear beautiful outwardly, but inside are full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness. Even so you also outwardly appear righteous to men, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.

“Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! Because you build the tombs of the prophets and adorn the monuments of the righteous, and say, ‘If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets.’

“Therefore you are witnesses against yourselves that you are sons of those who murdered the prophets. “Fill up, then, the measure of your fathers’ guilt.

“Serpents, brood of vipers! How can you escape the condemnation of hell?

“Therefore, indeed, I send you prophets, wise men, and scribes: some of them you will kill and crucify, and some of them you will scourge in your synagogues and persecute from city to city, that on you may come all the righteous blood shed on the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah, son of Berechiah, whom you murdered between the temple and the altar.

“Truly, I say to you, all these things will come upon this generation.

108* “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the one who kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to her! How often I wanted to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, but you were not willing!

“See! Your house is left to you desolate; for I say to you, you shall see me no more till you say, ‘Blessed is He who comes in the name of the LORD!’ ”

108:^ phylacteries (tefillin) - The tefillin (translated phylacteries) consist of two small black boxes, containing small scrolls of parchment upon which are written four Biblical passages [Exodus 13:1-10; 13:11-16; Deut. 6:4-9; and 11:13-21]. These four passages from the Torah [five books of Moses] all include the commandment to don tefillin as a sign, as a symbol of Jewish faith and devotion. Each of the black boxes comes with leather straps (Hebrew: retzuot) so designed as to enable one to be bound upon the left forearm and hand, and for the other to be worn above the forehead. (Exodus 13:1-10; 13:11-16; Deuteronomy 6:4-9; 11:13-21). tassels. See note on Nu 15:38 .

tassels / borders / fringes (tzitzit) - Tassels with a blue cord that were attached to the four corners of a man's garment.
The commandment in [Numbers 15:37-40 (see also Deuteronomy 22:12)] calls for the attachment of fringes (tzitzit) to four-cornered garments as a reminder of all the commandments of the Lord... Garments not possessing four or more corners are not required to have the special fringes. .... Although in ancient times four-cornered garments or robes were common, the development of clothing not having four corners would have rendered this mitzvah [Heb. for commandment] totally obsolete, with the full sanction of the law. To prevent the total disappearance of a mitzvah that possessed such great symbolic significance (since it serves as a reminder to observe all the commandments), the Sages encouraged the wearing of a specially-made four-cornered garments so as to provide the opportunity to observe and implement this commandment. Says Maimonides: "Although one is not obligated to buy a garment and wrap himself in it just so as to provide it with fringes, it is not proper for a devout or pious person to exempt himself from observing this precept. He should strive to wear a garment that requires fringes so as to perform this precept. And during times of prayer, one should take special care to do so" (Hil. Tzitzit 3:11)

The tallit, a four-cornered robe with the required tzitzit, has thus become the garment traditionally worn by men during morning prayer services. In English, it is commonly called a "prayer shawl." (pp. 155-6)

[Source: To Be a Jew, Rabbi Hayim Halevy Donin]

Today: The Torah commands the wearing of tzitzit (fringes) at the corners of garments as a reminder of the mitzvot, kind of like the old technique of tying a string around your finger to remember something. The passage also instructs that the fringe should have a thread of "techeilet," believed to be a blue or turquoise dye, but the source of that dye is no longer known, so tzitzit are today are all white. There is a complex procedure for tying the knots of the tzitzit, filled with religious and numerological significance.

The mitzvah to wear tzitzit applies only to four-cornered garments, which were common in biblical times but are not common anymore. To fulfill this mitzvah, adult men wear a four-cornered shawl called a tallit (pictured above) during morning services, along with the tefillin. In some Orthodox congregations, only married men wear a tallit; in others, both married and unmarried men wear one. In Conservative, Reform and Reconstructionist synagogues, both men and women may wear a tallit, but men are somewhat more likely than women to do so. A blessing is recited when you put on the tallit. [Comment: As mentioned in my previous comment (in Chapter XLVIII): Jesus with a sense of strong determination to complete his mission (in order to bring about salvation for the world and a new Kingdom of God during Passover), is increasing his focus and pressure on the religious leaders who have subverted God's word (while preparing his disciples for what is to come). It's Tuesday, and he doesn't have long to wait until the leaders finalize and follow through on their plans to rid themselves of their threat. -LY]

Extra Note 1:
Matthew 23 was spoken just prior to Jesus leaving Jerusalem to go to the Mount of Olives three days before his death. However it was a distillation of what he had already said to the scribes and Pharisees on different occasion commencing from the time of his baptism.

The major criticism of the scribes and Pharisees centered on their self-centered life style. They were concerned that what they did would be 'seen of men' [Matthew 23:5]. They loved the 'uppermost seats' [Matthew 23:6] and 'greetings in the market place' [Matthew 23:7]. Even their motivation in prayer was 'for a presence ...' [Matthew 23:14]
[Source: http://www.biblestudymanuals.net/last_week_of_Jesus_life2.htm]

A recurring theme in the Scriptures is the fact that Yahweh does not want animal sacrifices. This is not to be taken to indicate that he had not instituted sacrifices. He did, but they were added to remind Israel of their sinfulness, and not primarily as a means of pleasing Yahweh. 'Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Put your burnt offerings unto your sacrifices, and eat flesh. For I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt offerings or sacrifices: But this thing commanded I them, saying, Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people: and walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well unto you.' [Jeremiah 7:21 - 23]

However Israel saw the offering of sacrifices as a virtue in themselves and forgot that the offering of the sacrifice was an advertisement of their sinfulness. Samuel had to reprove Saul on this point. Saul spared the Amalakites, in direct contravention of the word of Yahweh on the flimsy pretext that the people saved the animals alive to offer to the Lord. Saul, because he did not appreciate the value of obedience was reproved by Samuel with the words 'hath the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.' [1 Samuel 15:22] This principle can be seen in other parts of Scripture:

Psalm 51:16 17, Proverbs 21:3, Isaiah 1:11 - 17, Hosea 6:6, Amos 5:21 - 24.

Jesus reinforced this point by appealing to some of those Scriptures to show that the leaders of his day had also missed the point.

Notice that Jesus's words in Matt 23:37 are identical to those he used in Luke 13:34

Matthew 23:37 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them
Luke 13:34 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!

as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!

This is a very powerful example of the way in which Jesus is drawing on the way he had spoken to the religious leaders in the past. He is making the same points again at this point in his ministry because his earlier words had not been heeded.

The use of Psalm 118 in the last week - a Passover Psalm:

On the way in to Jerusalem	Matthew 21:9-10	Psalm 118:25-26
Have ye never read?	Matthew 21:42	Psalm 118:22
Ye will not see me until	Matthew 23:39	Psalm 118:26

Of the first occasion when the Psalm is sung we read 'And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen;' [Luke 19:37]. They 'cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord:' [Mark 11:9] 'Hosanna' quotes 'save now' [Psalm 118:25] 'blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord' quotes Psalm 118:26. From Luke's account of the 'triumphal entry' we learn that it was not just the people but 'the whole multitude of his disciples.' [Luke 19:37] Maybe this incident gives us a little insight into the enthusiasm and expectation of the disciples at this time. The Psalm was sung by Jews at Passover time as they looked for redemption through Messiah. The religious leaders were incensed that the people and disciples were calling out the words of the Psalm and applying them to Jesus for this reason. For this reason 'some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.' [Luke 19:39]

Two days later Jesus [Matthew 21:33-44] tells the parable of the wicked husbandmen. In response to the parable the religious leaders condemn themselves saying 'He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons'. [Matthew 21: 41]. Against the background of the triumphal entry into Jerusalem the use of Psalm 118 again is most powerful, By observing 'Did ye never read in the scriptures, (quoting Psalm 118:22) The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes? Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof.' [Matthew 21:42-43] Jesus re-focuses their minds on the same Psalm that the common people and the disciples used as Jesus entered the city two days earlier.

The leaders have their attention directed to the Psalm again when Jesus, after castigating them for their hypocrisy says 'Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.' [Matthew 23:39], quoting Psalm 118:26.

Thus it can be seen that rather than casual quotations from the Psalms we have a systematic use of Scripture to force the leaders to see that Jesus is, indeed, the Messiah spoken of in the Psalm. Furthermore, by appealing to 'the stone which the builders rejected' Jesus warns the leaders that they are about to reject the man of God's provision. The Messiah was here - but he did not fit in to their mold and so they did not recognize him.

The exhortation is clear. We are looking for Jesus to 'appear the second time [Hebrews 9:28]. However, through our own perceptions of what he should be like, we may not be ready for him. Whilst the establishment of the kingdom will be powerful and earth shattering it is clear from Jesus' teaching that there will be some of his disciples who will not be prepared for it. To those he will say 'Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels ...' [Matthew 25:41]. Just as the religious leaders thought they were serving God and yet did not recognize The Messiah. We might think we are doing His will and yet actually rejected by our Lord at his appearing.

re: Four Days of Inspection

According to the Mosaic instructions on the observance of the Passover, the lamb was to be inspected by the High Priest and cohanim for four days before the Passover slaying of the lamb. For four days, Jesus was also inspected, interrogated, accosted, intimidated, and challenged by the Pharisees, scribes and lawyers.

From the 11th to the 14th of Nisan, the Passover lamb stood in the inner Temple arena and was scrutinized by the High Priest and Sadducees. On these same four days, Yahshua stood in the outer courts of the temple, ministering to the populous and repeatedly responding to the inspecting challenges by the rabbinic masters of law, halakhah, temple authority, and religious dogma, or eventually in the judgment hall of Pilate listening to the slanderous accusations against Him.

What was the Nature of these Challenges by the Pharisees, Herodians, Sadducees, and Scribes

The first challenge against Yahshua was on the authority of Jesus, and who gave Him his authority? (Matt 21:23-27, Mark, 11: 27-33, Luke 20:1-8)

Jesus' rebuttal was initiated by telling the parable of the landowner of the vineyard, whose tenants slew the land owner's son. (Matt 21:33-46, Mark 12:1-12, Luke 20:9-19)

Yahshua then spoke a parable of the king preparing a wedding feast for his son, the heir apparent. The invitees to the feast either ignored the invitation or killed the servants who brought the invitation. A guest without a wedding garment is cast out. (Matt 22:1-14)

The second challenge was concerning three questions by the Pharisees, Herodians, and scribes to Jesus and the one question by Jesus to His challengers.

The first question was by the Pharisees and Herodians concerning paying taxes to Caesar. (Matthew 22: 15-22, Mark 12:13-17, Luke 20:20-26)

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

The second question was from the Sadducees concerning the resurrection (Matthew 22:23-33, Mark 12:18-27, Luke 20:27-38)

The third question was from the scribes about the great commandment. (Matthew 2:34-40, Mark 12:2

Yahshua then sent the challenge to the Pharisees, scribes and Herodians concerning the messiah's ancestry. (Matthew 22:41-46, Mark 12:35-37, Luke 20:41-44) In a final rebuttal, Jesus proclaimed the "Woes" upon the Scribes and Pharisees. (Matt 23:1-39, Mark 12:38-40, Luke 20:45-47)

And so while the selected Pesach lamb was being examined by the temple authorities, during these same three days Yahshua was scrutinized on whether His teaching were according to the halakhah of the Torah. He was challenged on His spiritual and ancestral authority plus His civil responsibility as a dependant of Rome. Here He met face to face with His accusers which included the: the temple lawyers, the scribal codifiers of the law, the Pharisees of the House of Shammai who controlled the Synagogues in Judea in this era, the controlling Sadducean authorities of the House of Ananus and the Herodians who ruled parts of Judea as administrative representatives of Rome.

Note: In the inner courts, the High Priest could find no fault with the selected Passover Lamb and on the 14th of Nisan, Passover, slew him on the altar of the Lord. On the outer courts of the Temple, the religious leaders and the civil governor could find no fault in Yahshua, and hung Him on one of two sites: the Mount of Olives at the site of where the "red heifer" was burnt and the ashes were collected or on Mount Moriah where Abraham slew the goat in substitution for his son, Isaac on the altar to the Lord.

He was later incarcerated in the "barracks" (Acts 21:37). A very good case can be made that the "barracks" referred to was part of the Antonia at the northwest corner of the Temple Mount.

GREEKS DESIRE TO SEE JESUS—HE FORESEES HIS DEATH: “NOW IS MY SOUL TROUBLED”—FAITH EXALTED, PRAYER EXTOLLED—“I AM COME A LIGHT INTO THE WORLD. . . . TO SAVE THE WORLD”

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem, in the Temple.

John 12: 20-36, 42-50.

Now there were certain Greeks among those who came up to worship at the feast. They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and asked him, saying, “Sir, we wish to see Jesus.” [see Extra Note 1]

Philip came and told Andrew, and in turn Andrew and Philip told Jesus.

But Jesus answered them, saying, “The hour has come that the Son of man should be glorified.

“Truly, truly, I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the ground and dies, it remains alone; but if it dies, it produces much grain. He who loves his life will lose it, and he who hates his life in this world will keep it for eternal life. If anyone serves me, let him follow me; and where I am, there my servant will be also. If anyone serves me, him my Father will honor.

“Now My soul is troubled, and what shall I say? ‘Father, save me from this hour’? But for this purpose I came to this hour.

“Father, glorify Your name.”

Then a voice came from heaven, saying, “I have both glorified it and will glorify it again.” [see Extra Note 2]

Therefore the people who stood by and heard it said that it had thundered. Others said, “An angel has spoken to Him.”

Jesus answered and said, “This voice did not come because of me, but for your sake.

“Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be cast out. And I, if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to myself.”

This he said, signifying by what death he would die.

The people answered Him, “We have heard from the law that the Christ [Messiah] remains forever; and how can you say, ‘The Son of man must be lifted up’? Who is this Son of man?”

Then Jesus said to them, “A little while longer the light is with you. Walk while you have the light, lest darkness overtake you; he who walks in darkness does not know where he is going. While you have the light, believe in the light, that you may become sons of light.”

These things Jesus spoke, and departed, and was hidden from them.

Nevertheless even among the rulers many believed in him, but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God.

Then Jesus cried out and said, “He who believes in me, believes not in me but in him who sent me. And he who sees me sees Him who sent me.

“I have come as a light into the world, that whoever believes in me should not abide in darkness. And if anyone hears my words and does not believe, I do not judge him; for I did not come to judge the world but to save the world.

“He who rejects me, and does not receive my words, has that which judges him — the word that I have spoken will judge him in the last day. For I have not spoken on my own authority; but the Father who sent me gave me a command, what I should say and what I should speak. And I know that His command is everlasting life. Therefore, whatever I speak, just as the Father has told me, so I speak.”

Jesus answered them, “The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified” [KJV] — that is, They would see Jesus, would they? Yet a little moment, and they shall see Him so as now they dream not of. The middle wall of partition that keeps them out from the commonwealth of Israel is on the eve of breaking down, “and I, if I be lifted up from the earth, shall draw all men unto Me”; I see them “flying as a cloud, and as doves to their cotes”—a glorious event that will be for the Son of man, by which this is to be brought about. It is His death He thus sublimely and delicately alluded to. Lost in the scenes of triumph which this desire of the Greeks to see Him called up before His view, He gives no direct answer to their petition for an interview, but sees the cross which was to bring them gilded with glory.

These Greeks may have been Greek proselytes; if so they would have been able to join the Jews in the temple worship. But it is not certain that they were so committed. At least they were religious seekers since they had come to worship. Many Gentiles were attracted to Judaism's ideas because of its higher moral emphasis compared with paganism. These men had probably come from the Decapolis and may even have known Philip who came from nearby Bethsaida. It may be assumed that their quest to see Jesus was prompted by a desire to learn from him rather than mere curiosity. Maybe John sees them as examples of the 'world' going after Jesus.

It is difficult to imagine how they would have understood the opening words of Jesus. They would hardly have been so well informed as John's readers about the significance of the hour (John 12:23). The Greeks may have thought in terms of the triumphal entry. But from the context it can be seen that for Jesus his 'hour' was his approaching passion. This is clear from the glorification theme and from the grain of wheat illustration. The formula I tell you the truth (John 12:24) points out the importance of the announcement. The principle in nature that death is essential for further life was applied by Jesus to himself by inference. Wheat reproduces its own kind, and Jesus regarded his passion in the same light. His death would produce life for many. The contrast between loving and hating (John 12:25) brings out in sharp relief the choice and consequence involved in personal reaction to Jesus. Loving and hating are here relative terms, standing in opposition to each other.

It is at this point that John records Jesus' awareness of the arrival of the hour to which his gospel has been leading. There is a clear connection between the soul-trouble of Jesus here (John 12:27) and the agony in the Garden of Gethsemane as recorded in the synoptic gospels

When Jesus *hid himself from them, he indicated God's imminent judgment and the completion of his revelatory work to the people of Israel [Source: ESV Study Bible note]

It is not stated when this happened, but it may have been on Tuesday, in the temple. The determined hostility of the rulers of His own people was becoming increasingly obvious. The request from these Greeks (either Greek Jews or proselytes) became the occasion for a sort of soliloquy-prayer-conversation on the necessity of His death. How He dreaded it! Summary of John, Chapter 12

[The entire chapter of Bible's Book of John – not all of these events are covered in this chapter, LXX, of this book (they are covered in other chapters/sections of this book).]

As the Passover week approaches Jesus stays with Mary, Martha, and Lazarus in Bethany. One night a woman slips in and pours expensive perfume on His feet. Judas objects, angry that the gift wasn't sold and the funds turned over to the group's treasurer-Judas himself (John 12:1-8). Still things seem to be looking up: many hearing of the Lazarus miracle are openly expressing allegiance to Jesus (v. 9-11). When Jesus is gladly acclaimed by Jerusalem's crowds, His enemies are near despair (v. 12-19). But Jesus is not deceived. He tells His disciples (v. 20-28a) and then the crowds that He is about to be killed (v. 28b-36). Through it all the leaders refuse to believe and the prominent few who refuse to acknowledge Him do so because they fear being ostracized (v. 37-43). But Jesus is still the One God has set forward as the object of our faith. Everyone must hear His words and display faith by keeping those words, or fall short of finding eternal life (v. 44-50).

THE TEMPLE DOOMED—NATION TO RISE AGAINST NATION—"I WILL GIVE YOU WISDOM"—"IN YOUR PATIENCE POSSESS YE YOUR SOULS"—THE SON OF MAN COMING WITH POWER

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem. Mt. of Olives.

Matthew 24: 1-31; Mark 13: 1-27; Luke 21: 5-28.

Then Jesus went out and departed from the temple, and his disciples came up to show him the buildings of the temple. Some spoke of the temple, how it was adorned with beautiful stones and donations. One said to him, "Teacher (or Master [KJV]), see what manner of stones and what buildings are here!"

110* And Jesus said to them, "Do you not see all these things? Truly, I say to you, as for these things which you see, the days will come, when not one stone shall be left here upon another that shall not be thrown down."

Now as he sat on the Mount of Olives, Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately, "When will these things be? And what sign will there be when these things are about to take place?" And what will be the sign of your coming, and of the end of the age?" [see Extra Note 1]

And Jesus answering them began to say, "Take heed that no one deceives you. For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Christ [Messiah],' and 'The time has drawn near.' Therefore do not go after them.

"But when you hear of commotions,110^ of wars and rumors of war, do not be troubled nor terrified; for these things must happen first, but the end is not yet (will not come immediately).

"For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. And there will be famines, troubles, pestilences, and earthquakes in various places; and fearful sights and great signs from heaven. All these are the beginning of sorrows.

"But watch out for yourselves: for before all these things, they will lay their hands on you, and persecute you, delivering you up to the councils and prisons, and you will flogged and beaten in the synagogues. You will be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, but it will turn out for you as an occasion for testimony. Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and kill you, and you will be hated by all nations for my name's sake.

"But the gospel must first be preached to all the nations.

"And when they arrest you and deliver you up, do not worry beforehand, or premeditate what you will speak. But whatever is given you in that hour, speak that; for it is not you who speak, but the Holy Spirit. Therefore settle it in your hearts not to meditate beforehand on what you will answer; for I will give you a mouth and wisdom which all your adversaries will not be able to contradict or resist.

"And then many will be offended,111* will betray one another, and will hate one another. You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers, relatives and friends; and they will put some of you to death. Now brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child; and children will rise up against parents and cause them to be put to death. And you will be hated by all for my name's sake.

Then many false prophets will rise up and deceive many. And because lawlessness will abound, the love of many will grow cold.

But he who endures to the end shall be saved.

And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached 111+ in all the world as a witness to all the nations, and then the end will come."

"Therefore when you see the *'abomination of desolation,'*111^ spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place where it ought not (whoever reads, let him understand) – when you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation is near; then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. Let those who are in the midst of her depart, and let not those who are in the country enter her. Let him who is on the housetop not go down, nor enter, to take anything out of his house. And let him who is in the field not go back to get his clothes.
[see Extra Note 2]

"For these are the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

"But woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing babies in those days! For there will be great distress in the land and wrath upon this people. And pray that your flight may not be in winter or on the Sabbath. "For then there will be great tribulation, such as has not been since the beginning of the world until this time, no, nor ever shall be. And unless those days were shortened, no flesh would be saved; but for the elect's sake those days will be shortened. [see Extra Note 3]

"And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and be led away captive into all nations. And Jerusalem will be trampled by Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled.

“Then if anyone says to you, ‘Look, here is the Christ!’ or ‘Look, he is there!’ do not believe it. For false christs [messiahs] and false prophets will rise and show great signs and wonders to deceive, if possible, even the elect.

“But take heed; see, I have told you all things beforehand.

“Therefore if they say to you, ‘Look, he is in the desert!’ do not go out; or ‘Look, he is in the inner rooms!’ do not believe it. For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes to the west, so also will the coming of the Son of man be. For wherever the carcass is, there the eagles will be gathered together.

“Immediately, after the tribulation of those days, there will be signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars: the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light; the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken; and on the earth [shall be] distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men’s hearts failing them from fear and the expectation of those things which are coming on the earth, for the powers of the heavens will be shaken.

“Then the sign of the Son of man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.

“And he will send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they will gather together his elect from the four winds, from the farthest part of earth to the farthest part of heaven; from one end of heaven to the other. [see Extra Note 4]

Now when these things begin to happen, look up and lift up your heads, because your redemption draws near.”

the abomination that causes desolation. The detestable thing causing the desolation of the holy place. The primary reference in Daniel was to 168 B.C., when Antiochus IV Epiphanes erected a pagan altar to Zeus in the temple of Jerusalem. According to some, there were still two more stages in the progressive fulfillment of the predictions in Daniel and Matthew: (1) the Roman destruction of the temple in A.D. 70, and (2) the setting up of an image of the antichrist in Jerusalem (see 2Th 2:4; Rev 13:14-15; see also notes on Da 9:25–27 ; 11:31).

Daniel 9:27 tells of the abomination of desolation. Several times in Jewish history it was thought that this prophecy was being fulfilled—most notably during the days of the Maccabees when Antiochus IV Epiphanes, the Seleucid king, ordered that an altar to the Greek god Zeus be constructed in the temple (167 B.C.). He also decreed that swine and other unclean animals were to be sacrificed there, that the Sabbath was to be profaned, and that circumcision was to be abolished. But Jesus clarifies that the complete fulfillment of Daniel's prophecy will be found in (1) the Roman destruction of the temple in A.D. 70 and (2) the image of the Antichrist being set up in the last days (cf. 2 Thessalonians 2:4 ; Revelation 13:14). [Source: ESV Study Bible note] abomination of desolation. This is the man of sin (2Thessalonians 2:4), the Antichrist, who at this midpoint in the Tribulation breaks the covenant he made with the Jewish people at the beginning of the Tribulation (Daniel 9:27) and demands that they and the world worship him. Those who resist will be persecuted, and many will be martyred; that is the reason for the urgency of the instructions in verses Mathew 24:16-22. [Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]

The reference to the abomination of desolation is an allusion to Daniel 9:27. Though some have seen the fulfillment of Daniel's prophecy in the actions of Antiochus IV (or a representative of his) in 167 B.C., the words of Jesus seem to indicate that Antiochus was not the final fulfillment, but that there was (from Jesus' perspective) still another fulfillment yet to come. Some argue that this was realized in A.D. 70, while others claim that it refers specifically to Antichrist and will not be fully realized until the period of the great tribulation at the end of the age (cf. Mark 13:14,19,24; Revelation 3:10). [Source: NET Bible note]

One prerequisite for Christ's return was the series of events fulfilled in A.D. 66-70, events accurately predicted by Jesus.

Matthew 24:15. The "abomination that brings about desolation" in Daniel 9:27 occurs after the cutting off of the Messiah (a passage subject to various interpretations); Daniel 11:31 sounds as if it should have occurred in the second century B.C., and 12:11 at the time of the end, so some interpreters have felt that the prophecy was accomplished in stages. Some interpreters believe that parts of Daniel's prophecy remain to be fulfilled; others believe that all of it was fulfilled in the first century.

The first-century Jewish historian Josephus felt that Daniel was fulfilled when revolutionaries slaughtered the priests in the temple in A.D. 66, committing a sacrilege for which God brought about the desolation of the temple (human bloodshed in the temple desecrated it). This sacrilege would have been the signal for Christians to flee Jerusalem (Matthew 24:16); early Christian historians tell us that Christian prophets warned the Jewish Christians to flee Jerusalem at this time.

Three and a half years later, the temple was left "desolate" in 70 AD, when the Romans destroyed it with fire and then erected their own standards on the site. As Jewish people knew (it is lamented in the Dead Sea Scrolls), these standards bore the insignia of the Roman emperor, who was worshiped as divine in the Eastern Mediterranean; they would thus have sealed the site's desecration. Jerusalem's citizens had felt that even bringing these standards into Jerusalem temporarily (as Pilate had done roughly three and one-half years before Jesus uttered this warning) defiled the holy city. On several occasions the Jerusalemites had shown that they preferred death to their temple's defilement.

Matthew 24:16. The mountains were the easiest place in Judea to hide; armies had often used them for waging guerrilla warfare (cf., e.g., 1Samuel 23:26; 1Maccabees 2:28). Early Christian tradition indicates that the Jerusalem Christians fled to Pella at the base of mountains to the north; although the Judean hill country lay all about Jerusalem, the route northward to Pella would be through the Jordan Valley. Both the mountains and the route to Pella could have provided places of refuge, but the flight to Pella shows that the mountain saying in Matthew 24:16 was not made up after the event.

Daniel…spoke about a profaning or desolating of the Temple (see Daniel 8:13; 9:27; 11:31; 12:11). the sacrilegious object that causes desecration (literally the abomination of desolation; see Daniel 9:27; 11:31; 12:11): Attempts to identify a specific fulfillment include:
(1) a false priest assuming the priesthood (see Josephus, Wars 4.3.6-10);
(2) the presence of unlawful images of God or humans, or certain humans themselves (such as Antiochus Epiphanes, Caligula, Vespasian, or Titus) who were not to be allowed within the Temple precincts (see Josephus, Wars 4.4.1-4.7.1);
(3) the presence of the Antichrist in the Temple (cp. 1 Maccabees 1:54-64; 2 Maccabees 8:17).
Reader, pay attention! (whoever reads, let him understand / let the reader understand), This covert statement reflects a special bond between writer and reader, based on a shared understanding that the events being described fulfill the prophecies of Daniel 9,11, and 12.

[Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

The "abomination of desolation" is a Hebrew idiom, meaning "the abomination that maketh desolate." St. Luke (Luke 21:20) does not use the expression; it would have sounded strange to his Gentile readers. He says, "When ye see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then know that her desolation is at hand." This reference to the Roman armies by St. Luke has led some commentators to suppose that "the abomination of desolation" meant the Roman eagles. But this was a sign from without; whereas "the abomination of desolation" was a sign from within, connected with the ceasing of the daily sacrifice of the temple. It is alluded to by the Prophet Daniel in three places, namely, Daniel 9:27; Daniel 11:31; Daniel 12:11. We must seek for its explanation in something within the temple. "standing in the holy place" (Matthew 24:15) – some profanation of the temple, on account of which God's judgments would fall on Jerusalem. Now, Daniel's prophecy had already received one fulfillment (B.C. 168), when we read (1 Maccabees 1:54) that they set up "the abomination of desolation upon the altar." This was when Antiochus Epiphanes set up the statue of Jupiter on the great altar of burnt sacrifice. But that "abomination of desolation" was the forerunner of another and a worse profanation yet to come, which our Lord, no doubt, had in his mind when he called the attention of his disciples to these predictions by Daniel. There is a remarkable passage in Josephus ('Wars of the Jews,' 4:6), in which he refers to an ancient saying then current, that "Jerusalem would be taken, and the temple be destroyed, when it had been defiled by the hands of Jews themselves." Now, this literally took place. For while the Roman armies were investing Jerusalem, the Jews within the city were in fierce conflict amongst themselves. And it would seem most probable that our Lord had in his mind, in connection with Daniel's prophecy, more especially that at Daniel 9:27, the irruption of the army of Zealots and Assassins into the temple, filling the holy place with the dead bodies of their own fellow-citizens. The Jews had invited these marauders to defend them against the army of the Romans; and they, by their outrages against God, were the special cause of the desolation of Jerusalem. Thus, while St. Luke points to the sign from without, namely, the Roman forces surrounding the city, St. Matthew and St. Mark refer to the more terrible sign from within, the "abomination of desolation " – the abomination that would fill up the measure of their iniquities, and cause the avenging power of Rome to come down upon them and crush them. It was after these two signs – the sign from within and the sign from without – that Jerusalem was laid prostrate. Therefore our Lord proceeds to warn both Jews and Christians alike, that when they saw these signs they should flee unto the mountains – not to the mountains of Judaea, for these were already occupied by the Roman army (Josephus; lib. 3 cap. 12.), but those further off, beyond Judaea. Eusebius (3:15) that the Christians fled to Pella, on the other side of the Jordan. The Jews, on the other hand, as they saw the Roman army approaching nearer, betook themselves to Jerusalem, as to an asylum, thinking that there they would be under the special protection of Jehovah; but there, alas, they were imprisoned and slain. Matthew 24:20 In winter the roads would be impassable, and on the Sabbath gates would be shut and provisions unobtainable. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Extra Note 4:

24:31 A trumpet call is associated in Jewish end-time thought (Isaiah 18:3; 27:13) and also in Christian writings (1 Corinthians 15:51-52; 1 Thessalonians 4:16) with the appearance of the Messiah. His angels . . . will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other . The involvement of angels probably indicates that, when Jesus returns, he will not only gather to himself all believers alive on the earth but will also bring with him all the redeemed who are in heaven (cf. 1 Thessalonians 4:14; Revelation 19:11-16).

Matthew 24:29-35 The climax of the coming crisis (see Mark 13:24-31; Luke 21:25-33).

These verses are often understood as referring to the 352arousia , and thus as moving to the second part of the disciples' question. But immediately after does not leave room for a long delay, nor does the explicit time scale given in v 34. The word 352arousia does not occur in this section but is prominently reintroduced in the new paragraph which begins at v 36, where its unknown time is contrasted with the clear statement that the events of this paragraph will take place within this generation. This section is therefore in direct continuity with what has gone before, the account of the siege of Jerusalem. Here we reach its climax.

The words of vs 29-31 are almost entirely woven together from OT prophetic texts. V 29 is drawn from Isa 13:10 and 34:4, where the language of cosmic upheaval symbolized the political fall of pagan nations. The language about the Son of Man coming on the clouds is drawn from Daniel 7:13-14, which, as we have already seen (on 10:23; 16:28; 19:28) points to the vindication and enthronement of Jesus (rather than to his 352arousia). V 31 is based on passages which refer to the promised return of Israelites from exile.

In this context, therefore, this poetic language appropriately refers to the great changes which were about to take place in the world, when Jerusalem and its temple were destroyed. It speaks of the Son of Man entering into his kingship, and his angels gathering in his new people from all the earth. The fall of the temple is thus presented, in highly allusive language, as the end of the old order, to be replaced by the new régime of Jesus, the Son of Man, and the international growth of his church, the new people of God.

All this would happen very soon, once the preliminary signs of vs 15-21 have occurred, just as summer inevitably follows quickly once the leaves appear on the fig-tree. Within this generation it would all be over; we have Jesus' word for it!

Matthew 24:31. Trumpets were used to announce the accession of kings and other great events. In the Old Testament they were especially used to gather God's people (most frequently for war); the prophets often used the trumpet as a symbol warning of impending battle and devastation (e.g., Jeremiah 4:5,9,21; Zephaniah 1:16). The trumpet had already been used for the gathering of God's people in the end time (Isaiah 27:13), a gathering associated with Israel's salvation (Isaiah 11:12; 43:5; 49:5; 56:8; and commonly in Jewish tradition) and God's final war (Zechariah 9:14-16). A regularly recited Jewish prayer from this period mentions this future gathering of Israel at the sound of the trumpet; various other ancient Jewish texts agree. It was thus a natural image for the gathering of believers (cf. 1Corinthians 15:52; 1Thessalonians 4:16).

Matthew Chapter 24 Summary
Jesus stimulates three questions concerning the end of the age by announcing that the second temple will be destroyed (Matthew 24:1-3). The disciples' questions are answered in reverse order:
When will this happen? Is answered in v. 36.
What will be the sign of Your coming? Is answered in v. 30-35.
What will be the sign of the end of the age? Is answered in v. 4-29.
But more important than questions about the future is Jesus' word of advice to the disciples and to us: "Watch, because you do not know on what day your Lord will come" (v. 42).
Our challenge is not to solve the mysteries of prophecy, but to be faithful in our service to our Lord until He comes (v. 36-51).

"Taken as a whole, the Olivet discourse is one of the great prophetic utterances of Scripture and provides facts nowhere else given in quite the same way. In it, Christ, the greatest of the prophets and the master Teacher, described the end of the age as the climax of the troubles of earth in a great tribulation. The time of unprecedented trouble will be terminated by the second coming of Christ. The saved and the unsaved will be separated, and only the saved will enter the millennial kingdom. This is the final word, which Matthew brings in answer to the leading question of this first gospel, concerning the fulfillment of the prophecies of the Old Testament of a glorious kingdom on earth. Matthew states clearly that while Christ, in His first coming, suffered and died and was rejected as both King and Saviour by His own people, He will come again and, in triumph, will bring in the prophesied kingdom literally, just as the Old Testament prophecies had anticipated. There is postponement but not annulment of the great prophecies of the kingdom on earth."

An additional question is whether Daniel's prophecy allows for a gap between the sixty-ninth and seventieth weeks. Dispensational interpreters understand Daniel 9:26 to allow for the entire church age, and v. 27 to describe the seventieth week, which includes the seven-year great tribulation and the appearance of the Antichrist. Dispensationalists argue that Daniel's vision appears to be dealing primarily with the events regarding the nation of Israel, not the Gentiles. Other interpreters have thought that no such gap is implied by Daniel's words.

There are many difficulties in deciding between these interpretations, which also involve questions of the proper approach to interpreting biblical prophecy. In all of this it is crucial not to miss Daniel's message for his audience, namely, that God has allotted the amount of time for these events, and therefore his people should trust and endure.

The Apocalyptic Discourse and the Passion Narrative

The Gospel reading this Sunday comes from Mark 13. Scholars have noted numerous connections between the apocalyptic discourse, which, as Leroy shows, relates to the destruction of the temple and the passion narrative.

PARABLES: THE FIG TREE IN LEAF, ABSENT HOUSEHOLDER AND THE HOUSE SERVANTS, VIRGINS WISE AND VIRGINS FOOLISH— "WATCH AND PRAY"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Mount of Olives.

Matthew 24: 32-51; 25: 1-13; Mark 13: 28-37; Luke 21: 29-36.

112* "Now learn this parable from the fig tree: When its branch has already become tender and puts forth leaves; and look at all the trees when they are already budding – you see and know for yourselves that summer is near. [see Extra Note 1]

"So you also, when you see all these things happening, know that the kingdom of God is near — at the doors! Truly, I say to you, this generation will by no means pass away till all these things take place. Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will by no means pass away. [see Extra Note 2]

"But take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be weighed down with carousing, drunkenness, and cares of this life, and that Day come on you unexpectedly. For it will come as a snare on all those who dwell on the face of the whole earth.

"Watch therefore, and pray always that you may be counted worthy to escape all these things that will come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man."

"But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, but my Father only.

"Take heed, watch and pray; for you do not know when the time is.

"But as the days of Noah were, so also will the coming of the Son of man be. 113* For as in the days before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered the ark, and did not know until the flood came and took them all away, so also will the coming of the Son of man be. Then two men will be in the field: one will be taken and the other left. Two women will be grinding at the mill: one will be taken and the other left.

"Watch therefore, for you do not know what hour your Lord is coming.

evening, at midnight, at the cock crow, 113^ or in the morning — lest, coming suddenly, he find you sleeping.

“And what I say to you, I say to all: Watch!

113† “But know this, that if the master of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched and not allowed his house to be broken into. Therefore you also be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect.

“Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his master made ruler over his household, to give them food in due season?

“Blessed is that servant whom his master, when he comes, will find so doing. Truly, I say to you that he will make him ruler over all his goods.

“But if that evil servant says in his heart, ‘My master is delaying his coming,’ and begins to beat his fellow servants, and to eat and drink with the drunkards, the master of that servant will come on a day when he is not looking for him and at an hour that he is not aware of, and will cut him in two and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

“Then the kingdom of heaven shall be likened to ten virgins who took their lamps and went out to meet the bridegroom. Now five of them were wise, and five were foolish. Those who were foolish took their lamps and took no oil with them, but the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps.

“But while the bridegroom was delayed, they all slumbered and slept. And at midnight a cry was heard: ‘Behold, the bridegroom is coming; go out to meet him!’

“Then all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps. And the foolish said to the wise, ‘Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.’

“But the wise answered, saying, ‘No, lest there should not be enough for us and you; but go rather to those who sell, and buy for yourselves.’ [see Extra Note 3]

“And while they went to buy, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went in with him to the wedding; and the door was shut.

“Afterward the other virgins came also, saying, ‘Lord, Lord, open to us!’ But he answered and said, ‘Truly, I say to you, I do not know you.’

“Watch therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour in which the Son of Man is coming.

Matthew 24:32-33. This is the first of seven future-kingdom parables, paralleling the seven parables on the presence of the kingdom in Matthew chapter 13.

Unlike most Palestinian trees, fig trees lose their leaves in winter; they would have been in leaf by this time of year, however, predicting the fruit that should appear on them in the summer. Jesus had earlier used this tree as a parable for the temple's destruction (see Mark 11:12-25). But the meaning is ultimately decided by the context: when the signs he had listed (including the temple's destruction) were fulfilled, his coming would be imminent.

Extra Note 2:

Matthew 24:34. The temple was destroyed roughly forty years after Jesus spoke these words (which refer to the temple's demise rather than to the Second Coming—see comment on 24:3). The Dead Sea Scrolls anticipated a final, forty-year generation of tribulation before the end; Jesus apparently leaves the period between the final earthly sign (the temple's demise) and his return indeterminate.
[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Matthew 24:34 this generation. No one living when Jesus spoke these words lived to see "all these things" come to pass. However, the Greek word can mean "race" or "family," which makes good sense here; i.e., the Jewish race will be preserved, in spite of terrible persecution, until the Lord comes.

Matthew 24:32-41 The Nearness and Time of Jesus' Coming. Jesus moves from describing future events to dealing with the attitudes that should characterize his followers as they prepare for the end (vv. 32-35), knowing that his return is imminent (vv. 36-41).

Matthew 24:34 this generation will not pass away until all these things take place. Several interpretations have been offered for this difficult passage: (1) Some think "this generation" refers to the disciples who were alive when Jesus was speaking, and "all these things" refers to the beginning but not the completion of the sufferings described in vv. Matthew 24:4-25. (2) Others see in "all these things" a prediction with multiple fulfillments, so that Jesus' disciples will be both "this generation" that sees the destruction of the temple in A.D. 70 and also those at the end of the age who see the events surrounding the "abomination of desolation" (v. 15). (3) Since "the generation of . . ." in the OT can mean people who have a certain quality (cf. Psalms 14:5; 24:6; cf. Gk. Genea in Luke 16:8), others understand “this generation” to refer either (a) to “this generation of believers” throughout the entire present age, or (b) to “this evil generation” that will remain until Christ returns to establish his kingdom (cf. Matthew 12:45; Luke 11:29). (4) Others, particularly some dispensational interpreters, understand “generation” to mean “race” (this is another sense of Gk. Genea) and think it refers to the Jewish people, who will not pass away until Christ returns. (5) Others understand “this generation” to mean the generation that sees “all these things” (Mathew 24:33), namely, the generation alive when the final period of great tribulation begins. According to this view, the illustration of the fig tree (v. 32) shows that when the final events begin, Christ will come soon. Just as “all these things” in v. 33 refers to events leading up to but not including Christ’s return, so in v. 34 “all these things” refers to the same events (that is, the events described in vv. 4-25).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

[Source: ESV Study Bible notes]

Matthew 24:34 This is one of the hardest verses in the gospels to interpret. Various views exist for what generation means. (1) Some take it as meaning “race” and thus as an assurance that the Jewish race (nation) will not pass away. But it is very questionable that the Greek term γενεά (genea) can have this meaning. Two other options are possible. (2) Generation might mean “this type of generation” and refer to the generation of wicked humanity. Then the point is that humanity will not perish, because God will redeem it. Or (3) generation may refer to “the generation that sees the signs of the end” (v. 30), who will also see the end itself. In other words, once the movement to the return of Christ starts, all the events connected with it happen very quickly, in rapid succession.

[Source: NET Bible note]

Matthew 24:36 In response to the disciples asking, “when will these things be?” (v. 3), Jesus says no one knows, not even. . . the Son, but the Father only. In his incarnate life, Jesus learned things as other human beings learn them (cf. Luke 2:52; Hebrews 5:8). On the other hand, Jesus was also fully God, and, as God, he had infinite knowledge (cf. John 2:25; 16:30; 21:17). Here he is apparently speaking in terms of his human nature. This is similar to other statements about Jesus which could be true of his human nature only, and not of his divine nature (he grew and became strong, Luke 2:40; increased in stature, Luke 2:52; was about 30 years old, Luke 3:23; was weary, John 4:6; was thirsty, John 19:28; was hungry, Matt 4:2; was crucified, 1 Corinthians 2:8). Taking account of these verses, together with many verses that affirm Christ’s deity, the Council of Chalcedon in A.D. 451 affirmed that Christ was “perfect in Godhead and also perfect in manhood; truly God and truly man.” Yet it also affirmed that Jesus was “one Person and one Subsistence.” With regard to the properties of his human nature and his divine nature, the Chalcedonian Creed affirmed that Christ was to be “acknowledged in two natures, inconfusedly, unchangeably, indivisibly, inseparably; the distinction of natures being by no means taken away by the union, but rather the property of each nature being preserved.” That meant the properties of deity and the properties of humanity were both preserved. How Jesus could have limited knowledge and yet know all things is difficult, and much remains a mystery, for nobody else has ever been both God and man. One possibility is that Jesus regularly lived on the basis of his human knowledge but could at any time call to mind anything from his infinite knowledge.

the kingdom is like. Weddings were held toward evening and torches were used as part of the celebration, which focused on a procession leading the bride to the groom’s house. It is unlikely that “lamps” refers to the small Herodian oil lamps, which could be carried in the hand; all the evidence to meet the bridegroom. There were two phases to Jewish weddings. First, the bridegroom goes to the bride's home to obtain his bride [attended by her bridesmaids, who go out to meet the bridegroom with lamps and escort him back] and observe certain religious ceremonies. Then, he takes his bride [escorted by the bridesmaids] to his own home for a resumption of the festivities.

Christ will take His bride, the church, to heaven before the tribulation period begins; then He will return with His bride at His second coming to the marriage supper on earth. The virgins represent the professing Jewish remnant on earth at His return.
[Source: Ryrie Study Bible note]

Being a bridesmaid was a great honor; to be insultingly unprepared and shut out of the feast was the stuff of which young women's nightmares were made. (Matthew 24:13).

Ten virgins. Ten is the number of perfection; such a number of persons was required to form a synagogue, and to be present at any office, ceremony, or formal benediction. Talmudic authorities affirm that the lamps used in bridal processions were usually ten. The "virgins" here are the friends of the bride [i.e., bridesmaids], who are arranged to sally forth to meet the bridegroom as soon as his approach is signaled. "The Church, in her aggregate and ideal unity, is the bride; the members of the Church, as individually called, are guests; in their separation from the world, and expectation of the Lord's coming, they are his virgins" (Lange). The bride herself is not named in the parable, as she is not needed for illustration, and the virgins occupy her place. These virgins represent believers divided into two sections; evidently they are all supposed to hold the true faith, and to be pure and undefiled followers of the Lord (2 Corinthians 11:2; Revelation 14:4), to be waiting for his coming, and to love his appearing; but some fail for lack of grace or of perseverance, as is shown further on.

Their lamps (τὰς λαμπάδας αὐτῶν, better ἑαυτῶν, their own lamps). They all made separate and personal, independent preparation for the meeting. These lamps (for they were not torches) were, as Dr. Edersheim notes, hollow cups or saucers, with a round receptacle for the wick, which was fed with pitch or oil. They were on these occasions fastened to a long wooden pole, and borne aloft in the procession.

not be enough. Torches required large amounts of oil in order to keep burning, and the oil had to be replenished about every 15 minutes.
[Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]

An important part of the story is the delay: the church must be prepared to wait for the 361arousia. All ten virgins fell asleep during the wait, so the point (as with the two servants in Matthew 24:45-51) is not that we should be on constant alert but that we must have the necessary provision for when the time comes. This parable does not spell out what that provision is, but the next one [the Parable of the Talents; see Chapter LXXIII coming next in this book] offers a hint.
[Source: New Bible Commentary]

This parable teaches that the Lord expects his servants to be faithful to the task given to them while waiting for his return. The delay of Christ's return will cause some to turn to evil deeds (Matthew 24:48-49), some to inactivity (Matthew 25:3), and some to fearful passivity (Matthew 25:18).

At the end of the parable, the story takes on the color of its application: the possibility of ultimate exclusion from the kingdom of heaven; Matthew 25:12 ominously echoes the words of Matthew 7:23.

Great Discourse on the End, Matthew 24 and 25
(Told also in Mark 13 and Luke 21.) This discourse was delivered after Jesus had left the temple for the last time. It was about the destruction of Jerusalem, His coming, and the end of the world. Some of His words seem so mixed up that it is difficult to know to which event they refer. Perhaps it was intentional.

It seems plain that Jesus had in mind two distinct events, separated by an interval of time, indicated by "these" in Matthew 24:34 and "that day" in Matthew 24:36. Some would explain "this generation" (Matthew 24:34) to mean "this nation," that is, the Jewish race shall not pass away until the Lord comes. The more common view is that He meant that Jerusalem would be destroyed within the lifetime of those then living.

When we look at two distant mountain peaks, one behind the other, they seem close together, though they may be far apart. So in Jesus' perspective these two events, the one in some respects typical of the other, stood in close proximity, although there is a long interval between them. What He said in a sentence may refer to an age, and what happened in the one event may be the beginning of the fulfillment of what will happen in the other.

His words concerning Jerusalem were fulfilled, literally, in less than 40 years. The magnificent buildings of marble and gold were so completely demolished by the Roman army in A.D. 70 that Josephus said it looked as if its site had never been inhabited. (See further on Hebrews 13.)

In 1st century AD Jerusalem, as in all the cities of the Roman Empire, the nighttime hours were divided into 4 time periods called “Watches”:

#1: Evening watch	Sundown to 9PM
#2: Midnight watch	9 PM to Midnight
#3: Cockcrow watch	Midnight to 3 AM
#4: Dawn watch	3 AM to Dawn

The end of each watch, and the beginning of the next was signaled by a trumpet blast. The Third Watch was from Midnight to 3 AM. At the close of the Third Watch a signal was given by the Roman guards at the Antonia Fortress next to the Temple. A trumpet was blown to signal the end of the Watch and the change of the guard. The Romans called the trumpet blast at the end of the Third Watch the “gallicinium,” in Latin, “cockcrow.” If Jesus was identifying the time of Peter’s last denial at the time a rooster crow was heard, it could not be a specific time “roosters are notoriously unpredictable in their crowing. There was also a rabbinic ordinance against keeping chickens within the walls of the Holy City because it was feared that their scratching would produce “unclean things,” thereby violating the purity laws (J. Jeremias*, Jerusalem in the Time of Jesus,* page 47, note 44). However, if Jesus was referring to the gallicinium in Latin or alektorophonia in Greek, His time reference was to the trumpet signal of the “cockcrow” that was a precise military signal, and Peter denied Christ at 3 a.m. in the morning (Anchor Bible: The Gospel According to John, page 828). Jesus spoke of the four night watches in Mark 13:35: *So stay awake, because you do not know when the master of the house is coming: evening, midnight, cockcrow or dawn … (NJB).

PARABLE: THE MASTER, THE SERVANTS, THE MONEY (TALENTS)—ON THE LAST JUDGMENT: "WHEN THE SON OF MAN SHALL COME"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Mount of Olives.

Matthew 25: 14-46.

114* "For the kingdom of heaven is like a man traveling to a far country, who called his own servants and delivered his goods to them. And to one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to each according to his own ability; and immediately he went on a journey. [see Extra Note 1]

"Then he who had received the five talents went and traded with them, and made another five talents. And likewise he who had received two gained two more also. But he who had received one went and dug in the ground, and hid his lord's money.

"After a long time the lord of those servants came and settled accounts with them.

"So he who had received five talents came and brought five other talents, saying, 'Lord, you delivered to me five talents; look, I have gained five more talents besides them.' His lord said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; you were faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things. Enter into the joy of your lord.'

"He also who had received two talents came and said, 'Lord, you delivered to me two talents; look, I have gained two more talents besides them.' His lord said to him, 'Well done, good and faithful servant; you have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things. Enter into the joy of your lord.'

"Then he who had received the one talent came and said, 'Lord, I knew you to be a hard man, reaping where you have not sown, and gathering where you have not scattered seed. And I was afraid, and went and hid your talent in the ground. Look, there you have what is yours.'

"But his lord answered and said to him, 'You wicked and lazy servant, you knew that I reap where I have not sown, and gather where I have not scattered seed. So you ought to have deposited my money with the bankers, and at my coming I would have received back my own with interest.

'Therefore take the talent from him, and give it to him who has ten talents.

“And the King will answer and say to them, ‘Assuredly, I say to you, inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these My brethren, you did it to Me.’

“Then He will also say to those on the left hand, ‘Depart from Me, you cursed, into the everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels: ‘for I was hungry and you gave Me no food; I was thirsty and you gave Me no drink; ‘I was a stranger and you did not take Me in, naked and you did not clothe Me, sick and in prison and you did not visit Me.’

“Then they also will answer Him, *saying, ‘Lord, when did we see You hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not minister to You?’

“Then He will answer them, saying, ‘Assuredly, I say to you, inasmuch as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to Me.’ “And these will go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into eternal life.”

Why did shepherds in Bible times separate sheep from goats?
https://www.jw.org/en/publications/magazines/wp20150101/eunuchs-shepherds-in-bible-times/

When describing a future time of judgment, Jesus said: "When the Son of man comes in his glory, . . . he will separate people one from another, just as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats." (Matthew 25:31, 32) Why would literal shepherds separate these animals?

Normally, sheep and goats were herded and allowed to graze together during the day. At night they would be gathered into enclosures that protected them from wild animals, thieves, and the cold. (Genesis 30:32, 33; 31:38-40) The two types of animals would be placed in separate enclosures to protect the relatively docile sheep, particularly the ewes and the lambs, from harm that could be inflicted on them by the more aggressive goats. The shepherd also separated the sheep from the goats when "breeding, milking, and shearing," says the book All Things in the Bible. Jesus' illustration thus drew on practices and imagery that would be familiar to listeners in a pastoral environment like that of ancient Israel.

JESUS SUPS IN BETHANY: MARTHA SERVES, MARY'S DEVOTION, JUDAS' DUPLICITY, JESUS LAUDS MARY'S HOMAGE—CHIEF PRIESTS ASTIR

A.D. 30. Age 33. Bethany.

John 12: 1-11; Matthew 26: 6-13; Mark 14: 3-9.

Six days before the Passover, Jesus came to Bethany, where Lazarus was who had been dead, whom he had raised from the dead. [See Extra Note 2]

There they made Him a supper; and Martha served, but Lazarus was one of those who sate at the table with Him.

Then Mary, having an alabaster box 116^ took a pound of very costly, fragrant oil of spikenard 116+, and poured it on Jesus' head as he was reclining at the table, anointed his feet, and wiped his feet with her hair. 116*

And the house was filled with the fragrance of the oil.

One of his disciples, Judas Iscariot (Simon's son, who would betray him), said, "Why was this fragrant oil not sold for three hundred denarii and given to the poor?"

(This Judas said, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief, and had the money box; and he used to take what was put in it.)

But Jesus said, "Let her alone; she has kept this for the day of My burial. For the poor you have with you always, but Me you do not have always."

Now a great many of the Jews knew that he was there; and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might also see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead.

But the chief priests plotted to put Lazarus to death also, because on account of him many of the Jews went away and believed in Jesus.

Two days before Passover, in the house of Simon ["the leper", 115*], as Jesus sat at the table, a woman came having an alabaster flask of very costly oil of spikenard. 116+ Then she broke the flask and poured it on His head.

But some of the disciples were indignant among themselves, and said, “Why was this fragrant oil wasted? For it might have been sold for more than three hundred denarii and given to the poor.” And they criticized her sharply.

But when Jesus was aware of it, he said to them, “Let her alone. Why do you trouble her? She has done a good work for Me. For you have the poor with you always, and whenever you wish you may do them good; but Me you do not have always. She has done what she could. She has come beforehand to anoint My body for burial. 116%

“Truly, I say to you, wherever this gospel is preached in the whole world, what this woman has done will also be told as a memorial to her.”

116.+ Spikenard,from which the ointment was made, was an aromatic herb of the valerian family (Nardostachys jatamansi). It was imported from an early age from Arabia India and the Far East. The costliness of Marys offering (300 denarii) may best be seen from the fact that a denarius was in those days the day-wages of a laborer. (Matthew 20:2) In our day this would equal at least $300 or $400.-ED. Ref: https://www.biblestudytools.com/dictionaries/smiths-bible-dictionary/spikenard.html.

116.% Matthew leaves off “Let her alone.” At the beginning of the quote, whereas Mark includes it.

Extra Note 1:
If Simon “the Leper”, was an actual leper at the time this event occurred, he would not be allowed by Jewish law to associate with anyone. However, if he was a former leper, especially someone that Jesus had healed, the writers are identifying him to the reader.

Given John 18:28 and John 19:14, this meal may be Saturday evening after sundown (after Sabbath; hence allowing Martha to serve). Just possibly this could portray Jesus as entering Jerusalem (John 12:12) when the Passover lambs were set aside (Exodus 12:3,6), but this interpretation is not clear.

(Told also in Matthew 26:6-13; John 12:1-8.) This seems to have occurred on the Saturday evening before the Triumphal Entry (John 12:2,12). But Matthew and Mark tell it in connection with the plot of the priests, as providing a motivation for Judas's betrayal.

The Supper and the Anointing at Bethany Six Days before the Passover (Mark 14:3-9). The time of this part of the narrative is four days before what has just been related. Had it been part of the regular train of events which John designed to record, he would probably have inserted it in its proper place, before the conspiracy of the Jewish authorities. But having come to the treason of

One typically "sat" at normal meals; one "reclined" on couches at special meals like feasts or banquets. Unless the Gospel writers simply adopt Greek language for the meals consistently (Greeks normally reclined), Jesus was invited to many banquets — this one probably in his honor. Early traveling teachers were often invited to lecture at meals in return for free meals and lodging. In that culture, women often served at table.
[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Although it was the normal procedure to anoint the head (as recorded in Mt 26:7; Mk 14:3) it may be significant that John records the anointing of the feet, in view of the feet-washing incident narrated in the next chapter. In the parallel case of anointing in Luke 7:38, it was also the feet that were anointed. However, in spite of some similarities between the two narratives, there are sufficient differences to make it unlikely that the two incidents are the same. In Luke's record the woman is described as a sinful woman who is deeply penitent, whereas Mary of Bethany is seen as a woman deeply devoted to Jesus, and John's picture of her agrees completely with Luke's portrait of the same person (Luke 10:38-42). In both instances the woman wiped the feet of Jesus with her hair. It would have been against Jewish convention for a woman to appear in the presence of men with her hair untied, but in Mary's case love was stronger than convention. John's mention of the odor filling the house is a vivid eyewitness detail.

"a pound" (that is, a Roman pound, about 325 grams or 12 ounces or ¾ pound).

Nard or spikenard. (muron) was usually made of myrrh (from which the English word is derived) but here it is used in the sense of ointment or perfumed oil. The adjective πιστικῆς (pistikēs) is difficult with regard to its exact meaning; some have taken it to derive from πίστις (pistis) and relate to the purity of the oil of nard. More probably it is something like a brand name, "pistic nard," the exact significance of which has not been discovered.

Nard or spikenard is a fragrant oil from the root and spike of the nard plant of northern India. This aromatic oil, if made of something like nard, would have been extremely expensive, costing up to a year's pay (300 denarii, assuming Sabbaths and holidays off) for an average laborer.

[Source NET Bible note]

Nard: a precious spice imported from North India, was sweet, red, and smelled like gladiola perfume. Twelve ounces of nard cost a year's wages (John 12:5). According to Mark, Mary also anointed Jesus' head (Mark 14:3).
[Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

The "alabaster vial" refers to a cruise or flask made of white, semi-transparent stone which was used as a container for precious perfumes and ointments. It was full of "very costly perfume of pure nard." This was a highly perfumed ointment used for (1) cosmetic use for hot climates, (2) for anointing the dead for burial, (3) for ritual uses for anointing priests and kings, and (4) was considered a wonderful gift for a king because of its value.
Source: http://bible.org/article/anointing-bethany

When one examines the tradition of the "pound of nard" in the Bible historically and archeologically, it leads to an interesting set of facts. The pound box of this costly oil likely came in the form of a box which was itself not made of alabaster, but was a box that contained a pound of nard in several smaller vessels known as alabasters or alabastron. Although many were actually made from alabaster, they could have been made from any semi-precious stone available in the region at the time, or from glass for which Rome has become somewhat well known.

Mary Magdalene has become known as the "Woman with the Alabaster Jar", thus demonstrating the notion that she owned and used these vessels. However, if you accept the idea that the box of nard was actually a box containing a pound's worth of these vessels, would that mean that one alabastron would have contained a pound of oil? That would have made for a pretty large vessel while most alabastron were relatively small, containing only a few ounces each. Further investigation into the "pound" of nard also yields an interesting point. In 1st century Hebrew terms, such items were measure in weight instead of volume, and a pound would have been 12 ounces, not the modern 16 ounces.

It was customary to provide olive oil to anoint the heads of important guests, but this woman's action is extreme. Whatever her economic status, this perfume (an oil from a root probably imported from India or South Arabia) was worth a year of a common laborer's wages; her family had probably kept it as a status symbol. ("Myrrh" was technically a resin from a shrub-like balsam in north Somaliland and south Arabia, but Mark uses the term more generically and specifies it as spikenard, a pleasant-smelling oil from the root of the nard plant native to mountains in north India.) Many people preferred semi-transparent alabaster bottles for expensive ointments; sealing it in such a container would preserve its fragrance, but once the bottle was broken, one would need to use up the perfume immediately. Her anointing of Jesus represents a major sacrifice and indicates the depth of her love, but given the great numbers of landless or tenant-farming peasants, some people present think the worth of the perfume could have been put to better use.
[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

The aromatic and pure nard oil is extracted from an Indian or Arabian root. The sale of such costly oil would have yielded more than 300 days' wages of a laborer. Some disciples are indignant over such "waste" (but see John 12:4-6). This story is also reported in Mark 14:3-9, Matthew 26:6-13 and in John 12:1-8, where the woman is identified as Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus. The story in Luke 7:36-50 is a different event, occurring at a different time in Jesus' ministry, with a different woman, different actions, different critics, and a different response from Jesus.

In Eastern culture ointment was kept in a small, tapering vase called an "alabaster." This vessel was originally made of a kind of soft, white marble noted for preserving the aroma of its contents. The Greek name alabastra was derived from the town of Alabastron, Egypt, where these vessels were designed for perfumes and fragrant ointments. Later, all such perfume vessels were called "alabasters" regardless of the material from which they were made. Normally, these containers would hold about a half pint of fluid. See Murdock, The Syriac New Testament Translated, p. 191; J. Payne Smith, ed., A Compendious Syriac Dictionary (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1903), p. 573; and Freeman, Manners and Customs, pp. 379-380.
[Souce: Jesus Christ Our Passover, Victor Paul Wierwille, They Way International]

A pound (or half a liter) is a very large amount of fragrant oil or perfume. Pure and expensive nard was imported from northern India and used by the Romans for anointing the head. The Synoptics indicate that the perfume was kept in an alabaster jar (Matthew 26:7; Mark 14:3). It is recorded here that Mary anointed the feet of Jesus, while Matt 26:7 and Mark 14:3 mention that she anointed Jesus' "head." Considering the large quantity of ointment, Mary apparently anointed both Jesus' head and his feet. Attending to the feet was the work of servants (cf. John 1:27; 13:5), so Mary's actions show humility and devotion. Her wiping of Jesus' feet with her hair is also remarkable, since Jewish women rarely unbound their hair in public. Mary's action indicates an expression of intense personal devotion to Christ, but no hint of immoral thoughts or conduct should be read into her actions.

Mary's act of devotion was costly. It was also an unusual act, both because she poured the oil on Jesus' feet (normally it was poured on the head) and because she used her hair to wipe them (a respectable woman did not unbind her hair in public). Further, it showed her humility, for it was a servant's work to attend to the feet (see notes on John 1:27; 13:5).

Jerusalem was crowded during the feast, with perhaps five times its usual population. Riots were known to occur; Josephus (who often inflated figures) reported that at one Passover several decades after the events of this verse, thirty thousand persons were crushed or trampled during a stampede in the temple. For this reason, extra Roman troops were garrisoned in Jerusalem during the feast, and the Roman governor came from Caesarea to be on hand in case of trouble. The danger of arresting Jesus at the feast (i.e., during the festal time, in public) reflects an important concern for the temple leadership.
[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Jesus' statement in verse 8, You will always have the poor among you, but you will not always have me, must be understood in its context both within Judaism and salvation history. On one level Jesus is simply reminding Judas and the others of priorities as understood within Judaism. He is alluding to the Scripture "There will always be poor people in the land" (Deut 15:11) and perhaps also to the notion that acts of kindness, such as burial, are higher than works of charity, which would include giving alms to the poor (b. Sukka 49b). This view is based, in part, on the fact that kindness can be shown to the living and the dead (through funerals and burials), whereas charity can only be shown to the living (cf. Brown 1966:449; Barrett 1978:415). So the fact that Jesus is about to die (cf. 12:35-36) justifies Mary's action. But on another level, the identity of Jesus also justifies this action. In the Synoptics even the burying of one's father is put second to responding to Jesus and the call of the kingdom (Matthew 8:22 par. Luke 9:60). So this anointing also makes sense given who Jesus is and the awesome events unfolding in salvation history.
[Source: IVP NT Commentaries]

The crowd's faith in Jesus makes prominent the authorities' rejection of Jesus. It also points up the weakness of the authorities' control at this point. Things were getting out of hand for them because their control was slipping. "In not going directly to the chief priests, the crowd was defying the Sanhedrin and protecting two fugitives rather than one" (Michaels 1989:216). But this slip in their control is in fact quite true to the circumstances, for the whole effort of the Sanhedrin is quite futile. They seek to kill Lazarus, but if Jesus raised him once why could he not do it again (cf. Augustine In John 50.14)? Their great weapon of control is useless against the Lord of life and his followers.

The statement many of the Jews were going over to Jesus (v. 11) in the Greek is simply "many were going." But the NIV captures the correct sense that "many Jews left their former Jewish allegiance and way of life to become disciples" (Barrett 1978:415). Jesus' alternative community continues to grow as people shift their allegiance from the Jewish authorities to him.
[Source: IVP NT Commentaries]

The similarities here are expected in light of historical constraints. Ointment or nard (a type of ointment) was usually kept in alabaster bottles that were specially sealed to prevent evaporation. The neck of the container was broken and the ointment expended all at once. The feet and the head were the normal targets for such attention, so that we have the same report in that regard is not surprising.

The only oddity is that John mentions feet only, whereas Matthew and Mark report the head only, and both report the woman's use of her hair whereas Matthew and Mark do not. However, Witherington notes [John commentary, 207] that the differing focus would serve a symbolic purpose in line with each writer's theology: the anointing of the head symbolizes kingship, while the anointing of the feet symbolizes Jesus' being glorified in death.

The wiping of the feet with the hair is not unusual either as it reflects "the ancient practice of diners' wiping excess oil or other potable substances from their hands onto a servant's hair." [208] It is not clear whether this was done by Jesus' own request or by the women's' initiative.

Jesus (Mat 26:10-16).

Jesus immediately came to the defense of Mary, for He always protects His own. He rebuked Judas and the other disciples and praised Mary for her loving act of devotion. Nothing given to Jesus in love is ever wasted. Her act of worship not only brought joy to the heart of Jesus and fragrance to the house, but also blessing to the whole world. Her devotion encourages us to love and serve Christ with our very best. Such service brings blessings to others that perhaps we will know nothing about until we see Him.

Jesus did not criticize the disciples because they were concerned about the poor. He was concerned about the poor, and we should be too. He was cautioning them against missing their opportunity to worship Him. They would always have opportunities to help the poor. But they would not always have the opportunity to worship at His feet and prepare Him for burial.

Alternate View:

The Three Suppers

That there were three suppers, and not only two, at the close of our Lord's ministry, will be clear from a careful comparison of the three Scriptures.

1. There was the supper recorded in John 12:1-9. This was probably in the house of Lazarus (for all the family were present; and "Martha served" - Luke 10:40-42), and was "six days before the Passover." At this supper there was an anointing of the Lord [feet] by Mary.
2. The second supper, recorded in Matthew 26:6-13, took place "two days before the Passover" at the house of Simon the leper, which was also in Bethany (Mark 14:1-9). At this supper there was also an anointing [head] by a woman unknown.
3. The supper recorded in John 13:1-20 is the same as that recorded in Matthew 26:20, Mark 14:17, and Luke 22:14. It was "the last supper", "the hour was come", and when supper was begun, or going on, the Lord first washed the disciples' feet; and later, the events took place as recorded in all four Gospels. John's Gospel adds some antecedents; but gives the same consequence. The rendering of genomenou in John 13:2, by "ended" [KJV] instead of by "taking place", or "beginning", has been the cause of much confusion.

Supplemental Note #1

Matthew 26:6-7 – Simon the Leper

One detail should leap out at even the casual Bible student: WE HAVE A LEPER LIVING IN A SUBURB OF JERSUALEM ALONG WITH THE REGULAR POPULATION!

Such a situation is clearly impossible:

> "The person who has such an infectious disease must wear torn clothes, let his hair be unkempt, cover the lower part of his face and cry out, 'Unclean! Unclean!' As long as he has the infection he remains unclean. He must live alone; he must live outside the camp."
> Leviticus 13:45-46

It also requires very little effort to point out that lepers cannot:

1) Own property.
2) Live in or near Jerusalem, except in a leper colony.
3) Employ servants.
4) Own expensive jars of perfume.
5) Have feasts that Jews will legally be able to attend.

Furthermore, it simply goes beyond credulity to suggest that a lifelong Aramaic speaker like Matthew could possibly make this mistake in Greek translation, especially since this goes against well known Torah provisions.

Now to be fair, the Greek School has seen the difficulty here and offered up a scenario in response. They say that perhaps the man was no longer a leper because Y'shua cured him and that, like Lazarus in John 12, he was giving a feast in Y'shua's honor to express gratitude for the miracle. "Simon the Leper" would then have been a name that just kind of stuck with him afterwards due to this occasion. However, there are at least three serious problems with this suggestion.

First, the text does not tell us this is the case, and the only reason John 12 is compared to it is because such a distinction is made there. Second, lepers, as a matter of law, are never called that again once they are healed. They are always pronounced "clean" by the priests and re-enter society upon recovery, (Leviticus 14:11). Third, consider the ramifications to this man's personal life if he did as these scholars suggest. To keep being referred to as Simon the Leper would no doubt drive away business from him and create confusion when other Israelites from outside of his town came to visit there. It would also be considered a legal slander to refer to someone so cleansed as still possessing that impurity.

Finally, because garba and garaba have distinctive verbal inflections from each other that reveal their different meanings, the likelihood is extremely high that oral sources were not used. The scribe simply looked at the paper and made the wrong choice.

Leviticus 13:45-46
And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean. All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his habitation be.

Garibo' can easily be confused with Garobo' since Aramaic at that time was written without vowel markers.

Garibo' means POTTER or JAR MERCHANT where,
Garobo' means LEPER or SKIN DISEASE

But both are spelled with the same consonants: Gomal - Reesh - Beyth – Olaf

In addition, why was there no record of Jesus healing Simon? If he were a leper, it would be very dangerous for His disciples and other people in the house. Leprosy is a very contagious disease and not worth the risk of catching. Here the Aramaic sheds some light on a story whose host was a non sequitur of the circumstances.

Since ancient Hebrew and Aramaic were written without vowels, there was no distinction between the Aramaic words. Since in this story a woman pours oil from a jar it is apparent that Simon was a jar merchant or jar maker and not a leper.

Supplemental Note #2: Challenges with Anointing Passage(s)

Source: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Anointing_of_Jesus

Summary of the accounts:

All four have a setting in a house for a meal, a woman, and expensive perfume poured on Jesus, to which someone objects.

Location: All except Luke identify Bethany

Host or house: Matthew and Mark say "in the home of Simon the Leper"; John does not offer a definitive host or house; Luke says the house of a Pharisee named Simon.

Description of woman: John identifies Mary of Bethany, Luke "a woman in that town who lived a sinful life", which has usually been taken to mean a prostitute. Matthew and Mark just say "a woman".

Where poured: over the head according to Mark and Matthew, or feet according to John and Luke. Wiping with hair mentioned for both accounts giving feet.

Jesus's comments: Matthew, Mark and John are very similar, recording slightly different wordings of "The poor you will always have with you" and "She poured perfume on my body beforehand to prepare for my burial". These are not in Luke, who instead records comments on hospitality and forgiveness of sins that are not in the other accounts.

"Perhaps a little something has been lost in translation….I would like to recapture what has been lost. Why? Because I, as a Christ-worshipping agnostic, have seen so much un-Christian impatience with the poor encouraged by the quotation "For the poor always ye have with you."…If Jesus did in fact say that, it is a divine black joke, well suited to the occasion. It says everything about hypocrisy and nothing about the poor. It is a Christian joke, which allows Jesus to remain civil to Judas, but to chide him for his hypocrisy all the same. 'Judas, don't worry about it. There will still be plenty of poor people left long after I'm gone.'" -- Kurt Vonnegut

IN DEFENSE OF TWO DINNERS AT BETHANY DURING JESUS' LAST WEEK IN JERUSALEM:

There is controversy among Bible scholars over how many times Jesus was anointed and the apparent discrepancy over what day St. John recorded Jesus' dinner in Bethany as opposed to the Synoptic Gospels. The accounts agree if there were two different dinners at Bethany the last week of Jesus' life recorded in the Gospels and 3 different anointing's at 3 different times by 3 or possibly 2 different women (Mary of Bethany may have anointed Christ twice: once on Saturday and a second time on Wednesday of the last Passover holy week). Each anointing of Christ symbolized the 3 holy offices He fulfilled as God's supreme Prophet, High Priest, and Davidic King:

- Anointing # 1: Early in Jesus' ministry an unnamed sinful woman at the home of the Simon, a wealthy Pharisee, anointed His feet with ointment and wiped His feet with her hair (Luke 7:36-38).

- Anointing #2: Mary of Bethany anointed Jesus' feet and wiped His feet with her hair on Saturday, Nisan the 9th. The next day on the 10th of Nisan, the day the sacrificial lambs or kids were to be chosen (Exodus 12:3), Jesus rode into Jerusalem-the sacrificial Lamb of God, there for all to see and judge His perfection (John 12:1-3).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

- Anointing #3: An unnamed woman anointed Jesus' head at the home of Simon the Leper in Bethany two days before the Passover. As the ancients counted this is Wednesday, Nisan the 13th (Matthew 26:1-16: Mark 14:1-11)

There are similarities and differences between the two accounts of Jesus being anointed His last week in Jerusalem in the Gospels of Matthew and Mark during the dinner at Bethany two days before the Passover sacrifice compared with the Gospel of John's account of the dinner at Bethany six days before the Passover:

There are similarities and differences between the two accounts of Jesus being anointed His last week in Jerusalem in the Gospels of Matthew and Mark during the dinner at Bethany two days before the Passover sacrifice compared with the Gospel of John's account of the dinner at Bethany six days before the Passover:

The Timing of the Anointing of Jesus and the Meal in Bethany (An attempt at resolving contradiction)

… John spoke of the raising of Lazarus – indeed he is the only writer who does. Also he is the only writer to tell us that Lazarus was at the meal in Bethany saying [John 12:2] "… but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him." Another link between the raising of Lazarus in John 11 and John's account of the meal in Bethany is the mention by name of "Martha" and "Mary" [John 12:2,3]. By contrast neither woman is named in Matthew 26 or Mark 14.

So John places the account of the meal at the point of entry into Bethany because of the thematic link with the raising of Lazarus in the previous chapter.

With this in mind a consideration of John 12:1-12 will enable us to conclude that the reference to “six days before the Passover” is a comment upon when Jesus arrived in Bethany. The account of the meal in placed in parenthesis because of its thematic link with the previous chapter. Matthew and Mark, on the other hand, place the event where, chronologically, it occurred as they had no reason to recount it elsewhere. So if we wish to ‘harmonize’ John 12 with Matthew 26 and Mark 14 we would realize that John 12:2-11 is inserted as a digression. The ‘chronological’ way to read John would be John 12:1 then continue at John 12:12.

John has already digressed in a similar way when speaking of the raising of Lazarus for [John 11:1-2] “Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha. It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick”. The section in italics is the section which is the digression here. Now whichever gospel record we review it is clear that the raising of Lazarus occurred before Jesus’ was anointed in Bethany. Therefore we have evidence to support the suggestion that John does digress in his gospel. This lends weight to the suggestion that the comment about the meal in Bethany recorded in John 12 is a digression.

We should realize that we have not arrived at the conclusion that John 12:2-11 is a digression in order to allow us to read John in a way which makes it consistent with Matthew 26 and Mark 14. The realization that John is structured differently because of the thematic link with the raising of Lazarus is just the outcome of the study we have undertaken so far. Now we have to probe a little further to try to understand this thematic approach which John takes.

Alternate View:

The Two Anointings

There can be no doubt that, during the last week, the Lord was anointed on two separate occasions.

1. The former is recorded in John 12:3-8, "six days before the Passover", in the house of Lazarus, at Bethany.
   The latter is recorded in Matthew 26:7-13, and Mark 14:3-9, "two days before the Passover", in the house of Simon the leper, also in Bethany. Thus the times and places distinct.

2. In the former case it was "a pound of ointment" that was used (John 12:3).
   In the latter case it was an alabaster vessel (Matthew 26:7).

3. In the former case it was "the feet" of the Lord that were anointed (John 21:3).
   In the latter case it was His "head" (Matthew 26:7)

4. In the former case the term used is "anointed" (John 12:3).
   In the latter case the term is "poured" (Matthew 26:7. Mark 14:3)

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

5. In the former case it was Judas who asked the question why it was not sold, as there was plenty of time to do so during the six days (John 12:4).
   In the latter it was the disciples who "had indignation" (Matthew 26:8) "among themselves" (Mark 14:4); and their words (not necessarily spoken aloud to all) seem to refer to what Judas had said before.

6. In the former the Lord directs the ointment to be reserved for His burial; and not sold (John 12:4).
   In the latter He declared that it had been kept for that purpose (Matthew 26:12. Mark 14:8)

7. In the former case the Lord said, "Let her alone," in order that she may keep it (John 12:7).
   In the latter He declared that she had well used it (Matthew 26:10-13).

8. In the former case the woman is named "Mary" (John 21:3).
   In the latter case the woman is unnamed.

Thus on each occasion both the antecedents and consequences are different.
Instead of wondering that there should be two anointings, the wonder should be that there were only two, seeing that examples are so easily followed.

To understand the significance of these anointings, we first must understand that the word Messiah in Hebrew, and Christ in Greek both mean 'the anointed one.' In other words, Jesus Christ would actually mean Jesus the anointed. In the Old Testament, there were three groups of people referred to as being anointed, that of prophets, priests, and kings.

CONSPIRACY AT THE HIGH PRIEST'S PALACE—JUDAS HIRED—THE LAST SUPPER—CHRIST'S HUMILITY: HE WASHES THE FEET OF THE TWELVE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Bethany. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

Luke 21: 37-38, 22: 1-18; Matthew 26: 1-5, 14-20; Mark 14: 1-2, 10-17; John 13: 2-17.

Now the Feast of Unleavened Bread drew near, which is called Passover. And in the daytime Jesus was teaching in the temple, but at night he went out and stayed on the mountain called Olivet. Then early in the morning all the people came to him in the temple to hear Him.

Two days before the feast, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders of the people assembled at the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas, and plotted to take Jesus by trickery and kill him, for they feared the people. But they said, "Not during the feast, lest there be an uproar among the people. [see Extra Note 1]

Then Satan entered Judas Iscariot and he went to the chief priests and officers of the temple guard 117* and said, "What are you willing to give me if I deliver him to you?" They were glad, and promised 117^ to give Judas thirty pieces of silver. So Judas promised and sought opportunity to conveniently betray Jesus to them in the absence of the multitude. [see Extra Note 2]

Now before the Feast of the Passover, when Jesus knew that his hour had come that he should depart from this world to the Father, he told his disciples, "You know that after two days the Feast of Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified."

Then came the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover must be killed. And Jesus sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare the Passover for us, that we may eat." [see Extra Note 4]

So they said to him, "Where do you want us to prepare it?"

And he said to them, "Go into the city; behold, when you have entered the city, a man will meet you carrying a pitcher of water; 118* follow him into the house which he enters. Wherever he goes in, then you shall say to the master of the house, 'The Teacher says to you, "My time is near; I am celebrating the Passover at your place with my disciples. Where is the guest room where I may eat the Passover with My disciples?"

“Then he will show you a large upper room, furnished and ready. Make the preparations for us there.”

So the disciples went out, entered the city, and found it just as he had told them, and they prepared the Passover.

When evening came, he arrived with the Twelve. [see Extra Note 3]

When the hour had come, he reclined at the table, and the twelve apostles with him.

Then he said to them, “With fervent desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer; for I say to you, I will no longer eat of it until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God.”

Then he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, “Take this and divide it among yourselves; for I say to you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes.”

Jesus rose from the supper and laid aside his garments, took a towel and girded himself [tied it around his waist). After that, he poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples’ feet, and to wipe them with the towel with which he was girded.

Then he came to Simon Peter. And Peter said to Him, “Lord, are you washing my feet?”

Jesus answered and said to him, “What I am doing you do not understand now, but you will know after this.”

Peter said to Him, “You shall never wash my feet!”

Jesus answered him, “If I do not wash you, you have no part with me.”

Simon Peter said to Him, “Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head!”

Jesus said to him, “He who is bathed needs only to wash his feet, but is completely clean; and you are clean, but not all of you.”

For he knew who would betray him; therefore he said, “You are not all clean.”

So when he had washed their feet, taken his garments, and sat down again, he said to them, “Do you know what I have done to you?

“You call me Teacher and Lord, and that is well said, for I am.

“If I then, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another’s feet. For I have given you an example, that you should do as I have done to you.

According to Strong's: the original Greek word, histēmi,(from prim. Root στα – sta- : to make to stand, to stand) can mean the following: abide, appoint, bring, continue, covenant, establish, hold up, lay, present, set (up), stanch, stand (by, forth, still, up).
— it's translated in the following ways in the NASB version: brought(1), bystanders(1), bystanders*(1), came(1), came to a halt(1), come(1), confirmed(2), establish(3), fixed(1), hold(1), lying(1), make…stand(2), placed(1), put(1), put forward(2), set(4), stand(27), stand firm(4), standing(53), standing firm(1), stands(6), stood(27), stood still(1), stood upright(1), stop(1), stopped(5), taking his stand(1), weighed(1).

118:* a man … carrying a pitcher of water. He would be easily identifiable, since women usually performed this task.

See also "Jesus' Last / Final Week Timelines" in the APPENDIX for additional information regarding sequence of events and possible dates.

Extra Note 1:
Jerusalem was crowded during the feast, with perhaps five times its usual population. Riots were known to occur; Josephus (who often inflated figures) reported that at one Passover several decades after the events of this verse, thirty thousand persons were crushed or trampled during a stampede in the temple. For this reason, extra Roman troops were garrisoned in Jerusalem during the feast, and the Roman governor came from Caesarea to be on hand in case of trouble. The danger of arresting Jesus at the feast (i.e., during the festal time, in public) reflects an important concern for the temple leadership.

thirty silver coins (thirty pieces of silver). Equivalent to 120 denarii. Laborers customarily received one denarius for a day's work (ch. Mark 20:1-16); the price of a slave among the Israelites in ancient times. (See reference to this amount in Zechariah 11:12.)

thirty shekels, This was the price an Israelite had to pay his neighbor if his ox accidentally gored his neighbor's slave to death (Exo_21:32).[a freeman was double] This [relatively] small amount of money shows the light esteem with which the chief priests and Judas regarded Jesus (cf. Isa_53:3).
[Source: Dr. Constable – Expository Notes]

The word used in Matthew 26:15 (arguria) simply means "silver coins," and scholars disagree on the type of coins that would have been used. Donald Wiseman suggests two possibilities. They could have been tetradrachms of Tyre, usually referred to as Tyrian shekels (about 0.5 troy ounces), or staters from Antioch, which bore the head of Augustus. Alternatively, they could have been Ptolemaic tetradrachms… The Tyrian shekel weighed four Athenian drachmas, about 14 grams, more than earlier 11-gram Israeli shekels, but was regarded as the equivalent for religious duties at that time. Because Roman coinage was only 80% silver, the purer (94% or more) Tyrian shekels were required to pay the temple tax in Jerusalem. The money changers referenced in the New Testament Gospels (Matt. 21:12 and parallels) exchanged Tyrian shekels for common Roman currency.

Then entered Satan. — but not yet in the full sense. The awful stages of it were these: (1) Covetousness being his master — passion, the Lord let it reveal itself and gather strength by entrusting him with "the bag" (John 12:6), as treasurer to Himself and the Twelve. (2) In the discharge of that most sacred trust he became "a thief," appropriating its contents from time to time to his own use. Satan, seeing this door into his heart standing wide open, determines to enter by it, but cautiously (2Corinthians 2:11); first merely "putting it into his heart to betray Him" (John 13:2), suggesting the thought to him that by this means he might enrich himself. (3) This thought was probably converted into a settled purpose by what took place in Simon's house at Bethany. (See Matthew 26:6, and see note on John 12:4-8.) (4) Starting back, perhaps, or mercifully held back, for some time, the determination to carry it into immediate effect was not consummated till, sitting at the paschal supper, " Satan entered into him " (see note on John 13:27), and conscience, effectually stifled, only rose again to be his tormentor. What lessons in all this for every one (Ephesians 4:27; Jas 4:7; 1Peter 5:8,9)! [Source: Jamieson, Fausset and Brown Commentary]

St Mark, like St Matthew, connects the treachery of Judas with the scene in Simon's house. His worldly hopes fell altogether at the thought of "burial." It is a striking juxtaposition: as Mary's is the highest deed of loving and clear-sighted faith, Judas' is the darkest act of treacherous and misguided hate.

The motive that impelled Judas was probably not so much avarice as disappointed worldly ambition. Jesus said of him that he was a "devil" (diabolus or Satan), the term that was on a special occasion applied to St Peter, and for the same reason. Peter for a moment allowed the thought of the earthly kingdom to prevail; with Judas it was the predominant idea which gained a stronger and stronger hold on his mind until it forced out whatever element of good he once possessed. "When the manifestation of Christ ceased to be attractive it became repulsive; and more so every day" (Neander, Life of Christ, Bohn's trans., p. 424).

Jewish literature reports that the high priests bullied those who opposed them; against some popular misconceptions, the Gospels are no more anti-Jewish for their reports of high-level corruption and abuses than are the ancient rabbis, Dead Sea Scrolls and Josephus who report the same sort of behavior by the priestly aristocracy. (Indeed, many scholars today believe that Josephus even mentions the Jewish aristocrats alongside the Romans as involved in Jesus' execution; despite later Christian editing, much of Jewish Antiquities 18.63-64 is original.) The aristocratic priests who dominated Jerusalem's municipal elite would certainly not tolerate someone who claims that God has directed him to attack their temple cult. But they have to be cautious due to Jesus' popularity.

Judas (Mat_26:8-9).

The disciples did not know the true character of Judas. His criticism of Mary sounded so "spiritual" that they joined him in attacking her. We know the real reason Judas wanted the ointment sold: The money would go into the treasury and he would be able to use it (Joh_12:6).

Judas is a tragic figure. He was called to be one of Christ's disciples and was named an apostle along with the others (Mar_3:13-19). He received power to heal (Mat_10:1-4), and he probably used this power. It is not the power to do miracles that is proof of salvation (Mat_7:21-29), but obedience to God's Word.

In spite of his affiliation with the band of disciples, and his association with Christ, Judas was not a true believer. When Jesus washed the disciples' feet, He made it clear that one of them (Judas) was not cleansed (Joh_13:10-11). Like many professing Christians today, Judas was "in" the group of believers but not "of" them.

Notice that every time Mary sought to do something for Jesus, she was misunderstood. Her sister Martha misunderstood her when Mary sat at Jesus' feet to hear Him teach the Word. Judas and the other disciples misunderstood her when she anointed Jesus. Her friends and neighbors misunderstood her when she came out of the house to meet Jesus after Lazarus had been buried (Joh_11:28-31). When we give Jesus Christ first place in our lives, we can expect to be misunderstood and criticized by those who claim to follow Him.

Why did Judas follow Jesus for three years, listen to His Word, share His ministry, and then turn traitor? One thing is certain: Judas was not the victim of circumstances or the passive tool of providence. It was prophesied that one of Messiah's close associates would betray Him, (Psa_41:9; Psa_55:12-14), but this fact does not relieve Judas of responsibility. We must not make him a martyr because he fulfilled this prophecy.

While we can never fully understand the mind and heart of Judas, we do know that he had every opportunity to be saved. He was often warned by Jesus: in the Upper Room, Jesus even washed Judas' feet. Probably, Judas saw in Jesus the hope for Israel's political freedom. If Jesus established His kingdom, Judas, as treasurer, would have had an important position. When Jesus repeatedly refused to become a political Messiah, Judas turned against Him. Satan found a willing tool in Judas. Satan put the ideas into Judas' mind (Joh_13:2) and then entered into Judas to use him to betray Jesus to the enemy (Joh_13:27).

Judas' life is a warning to those who pretend to serve Christ but whose hearts are far from God. He is also a warning to those who waste their opportunities and their lives. "Why this waste?" asked Judas when he saw that expensive ointment poured out on Jesus. Yet Judas wasted his opportunities, his life, and his soul! Jesus called him son of perdition (John 17:12) which literally means "son of waste."

Once the Jewish leaders had decided to do away with Jesus (see Luke 23:2 for their pretexts), their main problem was to do so without creating an uprising by his supporters. Jesus had many supporters among the common people (cf. Luke chapters 19-20), and it was feared that many of them would be ready to fight on his behalf. What Judas did was to provide an opportunity for Jesus to be arrested quietly. Since there could be around 100,000 people in and around Jerusalem at the Passover season, the chances of tracking down an individual who wished to remain hidden were slight without inside information.

The Feasts of Unleavened Bread and the Passover were originally separate festivals, but were regarded as one in practice. The Passover was celebrated on the 14th and 15th of the month Nisan (roughly March-April). During the afternoon of the 14th, the Passover lambs were slaughtered at the temple. Since the new Jewish day began at sunset, the evening of that same day (by our reckoning) was the beginning of the 15th, and the actual meal was held then. The days of Unleavened Bread lasted from the 15th to the 21st of the month. In Luke 22:7 the 14th is described as the day of Unleavened Bread possibly because the feasts were closely linked, or possibly for readers who used a calendar with the day starting at midnight.

Luke agrees with Mark that Jesus held the Passover at the appointed time. For the chronology in John, which appears to put everything one day earlier, see on Matthew 26:17 and John 13:1.

Luke 22:7-13 Preparation for the supper (see Matthew 26:17-19; Mark 14:12-16).

To prepare for the Passover meal the disciples needed to secure a suitably furnished room within the city itself, and also the food — a lamb, bread, bitter herbs and wine being the essential requirements. The instructions suggest that Jesus had already made a secret arrangement with a friend in Jerusalem [or it was a miraculous work of God] whereby he could avoid being disturbed. The room may have been that mentioned in Acts 1:13, possibly in the house of Mary, the mother of John Mark (Acts 12:12). The sight of a man carrying a jar of water would have been rather unusual; it looks like a prearranged means of identification.

Since Jesus did not identify ahead of time just where he would observe Passover, Judas was unable to inform the enemy, who might have interrupted this important occasion.

Extra Note 3:

Banquet Customs During Jesus' Time:
Before the banquet, diners would normally wash a hand, eat appetizers, and then recline (John 13:12) and wash both hands for the main meal. (Because they reclined and had only one hand free, those preparing the food sliced it before the meal.) Meals could be accompanied by music, lectures, other entertainment, or deep discussion; Jesus here provides a teaching session.

The couches would be arranged around tables containing the food, with the upper part of each person's body facing the food and their feet away from the table. Jesus would go to the outside of this circle to wash each person's feet. A wealthy home might recline three or four people on each of three large couches; whether couches were available here (or mats, or cloaks), the arrangement may be similar. The person would lean on the left elbow, leaving the right hand free to reach food on the table.

After travelers had come a long distance, the host was to provide water for their feet as a sign of hospitality, as exemplified by Abraham (Genesis 18:4). Yet loosing sandals and personally washing someone else's feet was considered servile, most commonly the work of a servant or of servile or submissive persons (cf. 1Samuel 25:41). Travelers' sandals need not be covered in dung, as some scholars have suggested (although in Rome people were known to occasionally empty chamber pots from their windows, sometimes to the misfortune of passersby below). Side roads were very dusty; the main streets of Jerusalem, however, would have been kept clear of human waste, especially in the Upper City, where Jesus likely ate this Passover meal historically. (Finding an upper room sufficiently large to host all the disciples would have been more difficult in the poorer Lower City.) In any case, travelers and people walking in the streets normally washed their feet when entering a home. Jesus' removing his outer garments to serve them would also appear as a sign of great humility before them.

By so serving, Jesus prefigures his death as the suffering servant of Isaiah 53 on behalf of the many. Jesus' milieu celebrated honor and feared shame. Unlike most elite men in Greco-Roman society, Judaism valued humility; but like other societies, it also upheld societal roles. Jesus overturns even positions of social status. Rabbi Judah ha-Nasi (about A.D. 220) was said to be so humble that he would do anything for others — except relinquish his superior position; seating according to rank was crucial. Jesus goes beyond even this.

Ancient evidence suggests that Jesus may have poured water over the feet into a basin. Sometimes one would pour cold water into the basin first, and then hot water. Possibly Jesus uses a basin used for handwashing before the meal.

Jesus' act violates cultural status boundaries so thoroughly that Peter finds it unthinkable.

Disciples normally served their teachers, after the model of Elisha serving Elijah and Joshua serving Moses. One expression of service, however, was not required even of disciples: dealing with the teacher's feet; Jesus goes beyond the service expected even for disciples. Although people often sat on chairs, they normally "reclined" (as here) for banquets (like Passover).

[Source: IVP Bible Background Commentary, 2nd Ed.]

Foot washing, common in the Hellenistic and Jewish cultures as a daily routine and as a gesture of hospitality (see Luke 7:36-50), was a lowly, menial task reserved for servants. When Jesus began to wash the disciples' feet, he took the posture of a slave.

Based on the depth of his devotion to Jesus, it is understandable that Peter protested. But Jesus was not simply giving Peter a model of service; this was a symbolic pre-enactment of his greater act of sacrifice on the cross (John 13:7). Receiving Jesus' spiritual cleansing is a condition for discipleship, so if Peter could not accept this act, he could not be Jesus' disciple at all.

wash my hands and head as well: Peter misunderstood Jesus (cp. John 2:19-20; 3:3-4). Peter thought that to have more water was to have more of Jesus. Only when Peter received the Spirit did everything become clear (e.g., see Acts 2:14-36).
[Source: NLT Bible Study notes]

Looking at John's gospel we note that it is John who alone tells us that Jesus' feet were anointed. It is John who alone speaks of the washing of the disciples' feet. We must recognize that John, by the Spirit, is wishing us to see this link between the two events. When considering the reaction of individuals at the anointing of Jesus at Bethany and the washing of the disciples' feet in the upper room some interesting features are seen.

Anointing of Jesus' feet	Washing the disciples feet
John 12:3 feet anointed	John 13:5 feet washed
John 12:4 Judas indignant	John 13:8 Peter indignant
Matthew 26:10 Judas rebuked	John 13:10 Peter rebuked
Matthew 26:16 Judas betrayed Jesus	John 13:9 Peter contrite

These details invite us to compare Judas and Peter. Both Judas and Peter are indignant at the anointing. Both were reproved by Jesus. Judas was invited to consider that the poor were always with them. Peter had to realize that he had to learn humility and accept the consequences of his unwillingness to be the servant. Judas did not learn the lesson. Peter was of a totally different make up. He was willing to accept the rebuke of the Lord. This marks the difference between Judas and Peter. They both figure prominently in the last two meals that Jesus shared, and both miss the point of what is happening. Judas could not respond to the Lord. Peter did.

Judas demonstrated that he was not at one with Jesus and the disciples during the meal in Bethany or the meal in the upper room. Judas left the meal in Bethany to go and arrange the betrayal with the chief priest. [Mark 14:10]. As the meal would be in the evening we have to conclude that Judas left 'at night' even though the record does not say as much. Likewise he also left the upper room to go to the chief priests 'and it was night' [John 13:30]

On two occasions, during intimate meals, Judas demonstrated that his mind was elsewhere. He was more concerned to receive the 'reward of iniquity' [Acts 1:18] than have fellowship with his Lord and the other disciples.

Parallels between the Meal in Bethany and the Meal in the Upper Room:

We have demonstrated that the meal in Bethany and the meal in the upper room, which we call "The Last Supper' took place on consecutive evenings. The meal in Bethany was to celebrate the raising of Lazarus. The meal in the upper room was to memorialize Jesus' death. There are striking parallels between the two meals.

	Two Days Before The Passover in Bethany	One Day Before The Passover in the Upper Room
	Jesus is with friends at Bethany	Jesus was with his disciples
John 12:1	along with the disciples	- his friends	John 15:14
John 12:2	Martha Served	I … serve	Luke 22:27
Matthew 26:7	Poured	poureth	John 13:5
John 12:3	wiped his feet	wash … feet	John 13:5
John 12:3	wiped his feet	Wiped [feet]	John 13:5
John 12:4	should betray	one will betray	Matt. 26:21
John 12:7	Day of burying	Blood … shed	Matt. 26:28
John 12:10	Consulted to kill Lazarus	Counsel to kill Jesus	John 11:53
Mark 14:10	Judas went out	Judas went out	John 13:30
John 12:11	Many believed on Jesus	Many believed on him	John 12:42
	[because of the raising of Lazarus]	[because of the raising of Lazarus]

The similarities are interesting – but we must be able to benefit from what we see.

The raising of Lazarus incited many to believe on Jesus [John 12:11]. This 'belief' extended to the 'chief rulers' of whom 'many believed' [John 12:42] though on both occasions the leaders wanted to kill Lazarus [John 12:10] and Jesus [John 11:53]. We have already noticed that the leaders did not act because 'they feared the people' [Mark 12:12]. This behavior is the behavior of one who is unwilling to live a life consistent with his beliefs. We can be just the same. We can see a situation in ecclesial life about which we should speak. However we keep silent because we are concerned how others will react to what we say.

The two meals were both intimate events. On both occasions Jesus and his friends and some family members were together. We can imagine the warmth at the meal in Bethany. Jesus and the disciples had endured a tiring three days in Jerusalem. The friendship and warmth of that family in Bethany would have been a pleasant respite from the barbs and deceit of Jesus' opponents. Jesus was amongst friends. One would envisage that there would be no threat there.

The following night, in the upper room, he was with his friends – the disciples. Whilst there was rivalry amongst them as to who was to be the greatest [Luke 22:24] there was not open hostility against Jesus as there had been in the city during the days leading up to the meal in Bethany. Even though the disciples did not know what was going to happen to their Lord and were puzzled about some of the things he had said, they bore him no animosity. However at both intimate meals a betrayer was there [In Bethany John 12:4 / Matthew 26:14]

[in the upper room Matthew 26:21-25]

Judas behavior on both occasions demonstrated that he did not want to be with Jesus. His mind and heart were elsewhere. When he left the meal in Bethany to go to the chief priest in Jerusalem he walked some three miles, in the dark, into the city. So unhappy was he about the 'waste'…

By contrast to Judas, who presented his concern as being 'for the poor' [John 12:5], the woman anointed Jesus feet because of her love for him. The cost of the ointment was not an issue to her. Her response, by contrast to Judas, focused on Jesus rather than on herself. We learn of Judas' motives when we read 'This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.' [John 12:6]. Mary's thoughts were totally different for Jesus tells us that 'against the day of my burying hath she kept this ointment'. [John 12:7]

Extra Note 4:

"The Dative of Reference"

The Three Major Greek Keys that Unlock the Gospels

There are three Greek language keys that unlock the truth of the Gospels while solving the apparent contradiction between John and the other Gospel writers as to whether the Last Supper was the Passover or not. There is no question that the English translations of Matthew, Mark, and Luke seem to state that the Last Supper was the Passover. But one must remember that the Gospels were not originally written in English but in Greek. When Jewish idioms and Passover laws are considered along with original Greek scriptures, it's evident that the story told, after Rome disconnected from these Jewish understandings, is inaccurate. These language keys will help us get back to the truth.

The first key is the Greek subjunctive mood, which can imply doubt and uncertainty. The subjunctive mood is used every time Jesus refers to his actual eating of the Passover in the Greek language, but its use does not always carry over into the English translations of the Gospels. This seemingly small change has huge implications for accurately determining whether the Last Supper was the Passover or not.

The second key is the Greek dative of reference, which affects the meaning of Greek articles (a common article in English is "the"). In the English language, these Gospel accounts seem straightforward; yet in the original Greek language, the dative case brings additional shades of meaning. This is important because, as Greek scholar Daniel B. Wallace noted in Greek Grammar Beyond the Basics, one in seven words in the Greek scriptures is an article.

The third key is the Greek aorist tense, which Greek scholar Buist M. Fanning suggests is like a "snapshot" that "presents an occurrence in summary."[1]We will examine how such a snapshot helps us interpret Luke 22:7 in the proper light.

The Dative of Reference

We will pay particular attention to the Greek article translated as "on the" in these vital scriptures, where the disciples came to Jesus and asked him their question about preparing for the Passover:

> NAS Matthew 26:17 Now on the first day of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Where do You want us to prepare for You to eat the Passover?"
> NIV Matthew 26:17 On the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Where do you want us to make preparations for you to eat the Passover?"
> YLT Matthew 26:17 And on the first day of the unleavened food came the disciples near to Jesus, saying to him, 'Where wilt thou that we may prepare for thee to eat the passover?'

Although the following King James translation of this verse does not say "on the," it still doesn't bring out the true meaning of the Greek dative article here, leaving the reader to think the question was actually posed on this day:

> KJV Matthew 26:17 Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

Furthermore, the English translations of Mark seem to make the exact day even clearer, saying that the disciples came to Jesus on the first day of the unleavened bread, when they sacrificed the Passover (which would have been the 14th day):

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

> NLT Mark 14:12 On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread (the day the Passover lambs were sacrificed), Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go to prepare the Passover supper?"
> NAS Mark 14:12 And on the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb was being sacrificed, His disciples said to Him, "Where do You want us to go and prepare for You to eat the Passover?"
> NIV Mark 14:12 On the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, when it was customary to sacrifice the Passover lamb, Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go and make preparations for you to eat the Passover?"

It's important to know that the words "Festival," "Feast," and "Bread" have been added to certain English translations of Matthew 26:17 and Mark 14:12; these words are not in the original Greek. What the Greek says is, "the first day of the unleavened," which was the day to sacrifice the lamb. This was also the "first" of these eight unleavened days (as is fully explained in the chapter "The Template Challenge" under the subsection "The 13th-Day Question"). However, the insertion of those words into the English translations could even change the meaning from referring to the "first day of the unleavened" (the 14th day) to the "first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread" (which could have other meanings).

It couldn't be more obvious to those familiar with first-century Jewish idioms and laws that the day to sacrifice the Passover was the 14th day of Nisan between noon and sundown (see the chapter "Between the Evenings"). Yet, if we accept these English translations as accurate, Jesus would have eaten the Passover with his disciples that night at the Last Supper, after sacrificing it on the proper 14th day. Jesus would then have been arrested, tried, and crucified on the 15th Jewish day—the special high Sabbath that always follows the 14th-day slaying of the Passover. This is what most commentators have accepted from the time of the Jewish disconnect in Rome. And this is some of what we wrestled with in class in the master's program in Bible college 30 years ago, as mentioned in this book's introduction. These two scriptures (along with the others now explained by the three keys in this chapter) clearly seemed to prove that the Last Supper was the Passover.

However, on the other side, more than 50 reasons exist (see the next chapter) why the Last Supper could not have been the Passover. An understanding of Jewish laws would prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that crucifying Jesus on the 15th-day special Sabbath would have been impossible. This special rest day commanded by God to commemorate the Jews' deliverance from slavery in Egypt was not a legal time to carry clubs and swords to arrest Jesus and then push for his crucifixion to occur (Matthew 26:55). Nor would that 15th-day Sabbath have been a legal time for his Jewish burial. Then there would be the conundrum of Jesus and his disciples eating regular "bread" at what we are told was the Passover (see Course 1).

A few of these points have been debated by scholars for years, with many coming to the conclusion that the Gospel of John (which tells of Jesus being crucified as the true Passover lamb) contradicts the other three Gospels that so clearly seem to show Jesus eating the Passover.

The article τη ("to the") is in the Greek dative case, as are the words "first" and "day." Here, this dative of reference means "with reference to the" first day, or "concerning the" first day; it does not say it was "on the" first day. Despite my initial excitement when I first saw "to the," I was uncertain as to its full meaning, since the dative of reference had never been taught in any Greek class I had attended. After searching a few Greek grammar books to no avail on what "to the" might mean, I eventually found this explained in Daniel Wallace's Greek Grammar Beyond the Basics. His excellent book elaborates on this aspect of the dative under the subheading "Dative of Reference/Respect [with reference to]," where he explains:

> Instead of the word to, supply the phrase with reference to before the dative. (Other glosses are concerning, about, in regard to, etc.)[13]

Here is a paraphrase of what the Greek actually means in these scriptures, using the dative of reference and considering the Jewish idioms, God's laws, and the ritual preparations needed for this Festival:

> Matthew 26:17 Now with reference to the first of the unleavened the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the Passover?
> Mark 14:12 With reference to the first day of the unleavened (the day the Passover lambs were sacrificed), Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go to prepare the Passover?"

Or, we could just as correctly translate this dative of reference as "concerning the":

> Mark 14:12 Concerning the[14] first day of the unleavened (the day the Passover lambs were sacrificed), Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go to prepare the Passover?"

Translating these scriptures using "with reference to the" or "concerning the"—instead of "on the"—retains the true meaning of this Greek dative here. It was "with reference to" these Jewish ritual purification requirements that the disciples came to Jesus asking where they should ritually prepare so that they may have a legal place to eat the Passover on the following 14th day.

Greek scholar William D. Mounce points out that "to" is the primary word when considering the meaning of the dative.[15] So if you were trying to communicate that Sam went to the store, then "to the" would be a Greek article in the dative case. If you wanted to convey that Sam sat "on the" store, then another Greek construction would be used. And Wallace's Greek work delves deeper by identifying the dative of reference as a separate category within the dative. Thus the dative of reference gives another nuance, such that if Sam visited the store "with reference to" his bounced check, then it would be evident that the Greek article in the dative case was bringing out that aspect of "with reference to."

Wallace also states that the King James Version is weak regarding nuances of the Greek article:

> As a side note, it should be mentioned that the KJV translators often erred in their treatment of the article. They were more comfortable with the Latin than with the Greek. Since there is no article in the Latin, the KJV translators frequently missed the nuances of the Greek article.[16]
>
> Most translators follow the same belief held by the King James translators (namely that Jesus ate the Passover at the Last Supper) and therefore they translate this Greek article as "on the."

The Greek scholar A. T. Robertson also comments on the inaccuracy of the King James Version:

> The translators of the King James Version, under the influence of the Vulgate,[17] handle the Greek article loosely and inaccurately.[18]

He continues:

> The vital thing is to see the matter from the Greek point of view and find the reason for the use of the article.[19]

I would add to his statement that, when translating the Greek article, we also need to understand and accept the first-century idioms and laws of the almost exclusively Jewish writers of the Greek New Testament. If commentators believe in the tradition of Jesus eating the Passover at the Last Supper, then they would have an existing bias that would affect their English translations accordingly.

The Three Suppers

That there were three suppers, and not only two, at the close of our Lord's ministry, will be clear from a careful comparison of the three Scriptures.

4. There was the supper recorded in John 12:1-9. This was probably in the house of Lazarus (for all the family were present; and "Martha served" - Luke 10:40-42), and was "six days before the Passover." At this supper there was an anointing of the Lord [feet] by Mary.
5. The second supper, recorded in Matthew 26:6-13, took place "two days before the Passover" at the house of Simon the leper, which was also in Bethany (Mark 14:1-9). At this supper there was also an anointing [head] by a woman unknown.
6. The supper recorded in John 13:1-20 is the same as that recorded in Matthew 26:20, Mark 14:17, and Luke 22:14. It was "the last supper", "the hour was come", and when supper was begun, or going on, the Lord first washed the disciples' feet; and later, the events took place as recorded in all four Gospels. John's Gospel adds some antecedents; but gives the same consequence. The rendering of genomenou in John 13:2, by "ended" [KJV] instead of by "taking place", or "beginning", has been the cause of much confusion.

CHRIST INSTITUTES HIS HOLY SUPPER—JUDAS THE BETRAYER—PETER'S THREE DENIALS PREDICTED—"YET A LITTLE WHILE I AM WITH YOU: LET NOT YOUR HEART BE TROUBLED"—MANY MANSIONS

A.D. 30 Age 33. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

I Corinthians 11: 23-25 (Paul); Matthew 26: 21-29; Mark 14: 18-25;
Luke 22: 19-38; John 13: 18-38, 14: 1-4.

THE same night in which he was [to be] betrayed, the Lord Jesus took bread 119^, and gave thanks, and blessed it, and broke it, and gave it to his disciples, and said,

"Take, eat; this is my body, which is given 119* for you: do this in remembrance of me."

As they sat and ate, Jesus said, "Truly I say to you, that one of you will betray me."

Then the disciples looked at one another, perplexed about whom he spoke.

"I do not speak concerning all of you. I know whom I have chosen; but that the Scripture may be fulfilled, 'He who eats bread with me has lifted up his heel against me.'

"Now I tell you before it comes, that when it does come to pass, you may believe that I am he.

"Truly, truly, I say to you, he who receives whomever I send receives me; and he who receives me receives Him who sent me."

When Jesus had said these things, he was troubled in spirit, and testified and said, "Truly, truly, I say to you, one of you will betray me."

Then they began to question among themselves, which of them it was who would do this thing.

And they were exceedingly sorrowful, and each of them began to say to him, "Lord, is it I?"

He answered and said, "It is one of the twelve, who dips his hand with me in the dish, the same will betray me.

"The Son of man indeed goes just as it is determined and written of him, but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! It would have been good for that man if he had not been born."

Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.[119†] Simon Peter therefore motioned to him to ask who it was of whom he spoke. Then, leaning back on Jesus' breast, he said to him, "Lord, who is it?"

Jesus answered, "It is he to whom I shall give a piece of bread when I have dipped it."

And having dipped the bread, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

Judas, who was betraying him, said, "Rabbi, is it I?" Jesus said to him, "You have said it."

Now after the piece of bread, Satan entered him. Then Jesus said to him, "What you do, do quickly."

But no one at the table knew for what reason he said this to him.

For some thought, because Judas had the money box, that Jesus had said to him, "Buy those things we need for the feast," or that he should give something to the poor.

Having received the piece of bread, Judas then went out immediately. And it was night.

So, when he had gone out, Jesus said, "Now the Son of man is glorified, and God is glorified in him. "If God is glorified in him, God will also glorify him in himself, and glorify him immediately.

"Little children, I shall be with you a little while longer. You will seek me; and as I said to the Jews,[120*] 'Where I am going, you cannot come,' so now I tell to you.

"A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another; as I have loved you, that you also love one another. By this all will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Simon Peter said to Him, "Lord, where are you going?"

Jesus answered him, "Where I am going you cannot follow me now, but you shall follow me afterward."

Peter said to him, "Lord, why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for your sake."

Jesus answered him, "Will you lay down your life for my sake? Truly, truly, I say to you, before the cock crows you will have denied me three times."

Now there was also a dispute among them, as to which of them should be considered the greatest.

And Jesus said to them, "The kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them, and those who exercise authority over them are called 'benefactors.'

"But not so among you; on the contrary, he who is greatest among you, let him be as the younger, and he who governs as he who serves.

"For who is greater, he who sits at the table, or he who serves? Is it not he who sits at the table? Yet I am among you as the One who serves.

"But you are those who have continued with me in my trials. And I bestow upon you a kingdom, just as my Father bestowed one upon me, that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

And the Lord said, "Simon, Simon! Indeed, Satan has asked for you, that he may sift you as wheat. But I have prayed for you, that your faith should not fail; and when you have returned to me, strengthen your brethren."

But Simon said to Him, "Lord, I am ready to go with you, both to prison and to death."

Then he said, "I tell you, Peter, the cock with not crow this day before you will deny three times that you know me."

And He said to them, "When I sent you without money bag, knapsack, and sandals, did you lack anything?"

They said, "Nothing."

Then he said to them, "But now, he who has a money bag, let him take it, and likewise a knapsack; and he who has no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one.

"For I say to you that this which is written must still be accomplished in me: 'And he was numbered with the transgressors.'

*"*For the things concerning me have an end."

So they said, "Lord, look, here are two swords." And he replied, "It is enough."

After supper, Jesus took the cup in the same manner [as he had done previously with the bread], and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying,

"Drink from it, all of you. For this is my blood of the new covenant, which is shed for many for the remission of sins. This do, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me."

“But I say to you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in the kingdom of God, my Father's kingdom.

“Let not your heart be troubled; you believe in God, believe also in me.

“In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you to myself; that where I am, there you may be also. And where I go you know, and the way you know.”

Footnotes

119:^ bread, the Greek word is arton (αρτον, form of artos) (singular) – which is regular daily leavened bread or raised loaf [Strong’s Gr#740: bread (as raised) or a loaf.]; and which is derived from a Greek word (airō) meaning to “lift up” or “bear up”. That is, NOT unleavened bread. The same word is used in ALL Gospel and 1 Corinthian references to the bread of the Last Supper in the Upper Room. [Unleaved bread is matzah in Hebrew (azumos in Greek).] (See additional details in Extra Notes below.)

119:* Paul has it, “broken.”

119:† “whom Jesus loved” – is supposed to be John, the brother of James and son of Zebedee.

120:* Told in Chapter XLVI of this book.

Extra Note 1:

[the first day of the feast of unleavened bread] This was the 14th of Nisan, which commenced after sunset on the 13th; it was also called the preparation (paraskeué) of the Passover. The feast of unleavened bread followed the Passover, and lasted seven days, from the 15th to the 21st of Nisan. Hence the two feasts are sometimes included in the term “Passover,” sometimes in that of “unleavened bread.” On the evening of 13th of Nisan every head of the family carefully searched for and collected by the light of a candle all the leaven, which was kept and destroyed before midday on the 14th. The offering of the lamb took place on the 14th at the evening sacrifice, which on this day commenced at 1.30; or if the preparation fell on a Friday, at 12.30. The paschal meal was celebrated after sunset on the 14th, i. e. strictly on the 15th of Nisan.

The events of the Passover are full of difficulty for the harmonist. It is however almost certain that the “Last Supper” was not the paschal meal, but was partaken of on the 14th, that is after sunset on the 13th of Nisan. It is quite certain, from John 18:28, that Jesus was crucified on the preparation, and although the synoptic narratives seem at first sight to disagree with this, it is probably only the want of a complete knowledge of the facts that creates the apparent discrepancy.

The order of events in the "Passion" was as follows: when the 14th commenced, at sunset, Jesus sent two disciples to prepare the feast for that evening, instead of for the following evening. A sign of hastening on the meal may be detected in the words "my time is at hand," Matthew 26:18, cp. Luke 22:15, "with desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." The supper follows, which bears a paschal character, and follows the paschal ceremonial. Early in the morning of the 14th of Nisan the irregular sitting of the Sanhedrin took place. Then followed the formal sitting of the Sanhedrin, and the trial before Pilate, the "remission" to Herod, and, finally, the Crucifixion. This view meets the typical requirements of our Lord's death completely. During the very hours when our Great High Priest was offering Himself as a sacrifice for our sins upon the cross, the Jewish people were engaged in slaying thousands of lambs in view of the paschal feast about to commence. [Source: Cambridge Bible for Schools and Colleges note]

For 14 centuries the Passover had been pointing forward to the coming of Jesus, the Passover Lamb. Jesus ate the Passover, replaced it with His own supper, and then was Himself slain as the Passover Lamb. Jesus died on the cross on the very day on which the Passover lambs were being killed in the temple. The Passover had served its purpose and had now made way for the new memorial Supper that was to be kept in loving remembrance of Jesus until He comes again (1Corinthians 11:23-26). ??????? As the Passover pointed back to Israel's deliverance from Egypt and forward to Jesus' coming in grace, so this memorial points back to His death and forward to His coming in glory. Matthew 26:17-30
Betrayal and Death in the Passover

See comments on Mk 14:12-26 for further details.

Mt 26:17. By this period "the Feast of Unleavened Bread," which immediately followed Passover in the Bible, had been extended in popular parlance to include the Passover itself. Representatives from each family would "prepare the Passover" (i.e., have the priests slaughter a lamb for them in the temple), then return with it for the later meal, eaten after sundown. Others would prepare the other dishes.

Mt 26:18-19. Because the Passover was supposed to be eaten within Jerusalem's walls (or its immediate environs), most homes included guests during the night of the feast. Bethany (21:17) lay outside the city's larger boundaries.

Mt 26:20. The Passover was to be eaten at night. In April, at the time of the Passover, sundown in Jerusalem came by 6 p.m., so their meal could have started then. Table fellowship was intimate at the feast; one or two families normally shared the meal (later sources, probably reflecting at least an average minimum, stipulated a minimum of ten persons); here Jesus and his closest disciples make up the family unit. The usual posture at meals was sitting, but reclining on couches (if available), originally a Greek practice, was customary for feasts.

Mt 26:21-23. Bitter herbs were dipped into a mixture of nuts, fruit and vinegar to lessen their bitterness. That someone who was betraying a person would "dip in the bowl" with that person would have horrified ancient readers, who saw hospitality and the sharing of table fellowship as an intimate bond establishing a covenant of friendship. Based on the Dead Sea Scrolls, some suggest that if "with me" refers to timing, Judas's dipping would have also been a deliberate mark of rebellion, since the group's leader should dip first.

Mt 26:24-25. Those lamenting in Greek tragedies and in the Bible often mourned the day of their birth (Job 3; Jeremiah 20:14-18). Such laments were rhetorical expressions of deep grief, but Jesus here uses the same language as a statement of fact. Other Jewish teachers also observed that it would have been better for a person never to have been born than to have denied the eternal God, been unfaithful to the law , or the like; it seems to have been a common statement of Jewish wisdom (rabbis ; 4 Ezra 7:69 ; 1 Enoch 38:2 ; 2 Enoch 41:2).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Mt 26:26. It was customary for the head of the household to give thanks for the bread and wine before any meal, but special blessings were said over bread and wine at the Passover meal. We should not understand "This is my body" literally, in a chemical sense, just as Jesus' contemporaries did not take literally the standard Jewish interpretation spoken over the Passover bread: "This is the bread of affliction our ancestors ate when they came from Egypt." (Taken literally, that bread would have been centuries old, and it had already been eaten anyway.) Rather, Jewish people were in a sense reenacting Passover so as to participate in the experience. The lifting up and explanation of the unleavened bread took place after the first cup.

Mt 26:27. Adapting some Greek banquet customs, four cups of red wine came to be used in the annual Passover celebrations, and if these were in use by the first century (as is likely), this cup may be the third or fourth. The leader of the group would take the goblet in both hands, then hold it in his right, a hand-breadth above the table.

Mt 26:28. In the Old Testament, covenants were ratified by the blood of sacrifice; God had also redeemed his people from Egypt by the blood of the Passover lamb. The language alludes especially to Exodus 24:8, when Moses sprinkled the people with sacrificial blood at Mount Sinai. "On behalf of the many" probably alludes to Isaiah 53 (see comment on Matthew 20:28). Passover ritual interpreted the cup but did not interpret it as blood, because Jewish law and custom were revolted by the idea of drinking any creature's blood—especially human blood.

Mt 26:29. Jewish people often offered vows of abstinence: "I will not eat any such and such until this happens," or "I vow that I will not use this until that happens." Jesus vows not to drink wine again until the kingdom comes, and he apparently abstains from the fourth cup. Jewish tradition commonly portrayed the time of the kingdom as a banquet (based on texts like Isaiah 25:6), when the Bible had promised an unending supply of wine (cf. Amos 9:13-14).

Mt 26:30. Jewish tradition suggests that after the meal, it was customary to sing psalms antiphonally from the Hallel, which consisted of Psalms 113-118. The walk to the Mount of Olives took at least fifteen minutes.

Mark 14:12-26

14:18 reclining at the table eating. Originally the Passover meal was eaten standing (see Exodus 12:11), but in Jesus' time it was customary to eat it while reclining (cf. v. 3).

14:21 Son of Man. Jesus' most common title for himself, used 81 times in the Gospels and never used by anyone but Jesus there. Elsewhere it is used by Stephen (Acts 7:56) and in John's vision (Revelation 1:13). In Daniel 7:13-14 the Son of Man is pictured as a heavenly figure who in the end times is entrusted by God with authority, glory and sovereign power. That Jesus considered "Son of Man" to be a Messianic title is evident by his use of it here in juxtaposition to Peter's use of "Christ" (v. 29).
as it is written about him. Jesus may have had the "suffering servant" passage of Isaiah 53 in mind.

14:22 The NT gives four accounts of the Lord's Supper (here in Mark; Matthew 26:26-28; Luke 22:19-20; 1Corinthians 11:23-25). Matthew's account is very much like Mark's, and Luke's and Paul's have similarities. All the accounts include the taking of the bread; the thanksgiving or blessing; the breaking of the bread; the saying, "This is my body"; the taking of the cup; and the explanation of the relation of blood to the covenant. Only Luke and Paul record Jesus' command to continue to celebrate the Supper.
this is my body. The bread represented his body, given for them (see 1Corinthians 11:24).

14:23 gave thanks. The word "Eucharist," often used to refer to the Lord's Supper, is derived from the Greek term used here.

14:24 my blood of the covenant. The cup represents the blood of Jesus, which, in turn, represents his poured-out life (i.e., his death). God'' commitments to his people in the new covenant are possible only through Christ'' atoning death (see Exodus 24:6,8; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Luke 22:20; Hebrews 8:8-12).
for many. See Romans 15:15.

With his crucifixion imminent, Jesus washes his disciples' feet as a final proof of his love for them, setting an example of humility and servanthood and signifying the washing away of sins through his death. In a striking demonstration of love for his enemies, Jesus washes all of his disciples' feet, including those of Judas. Jesus' act is all the more remarkable, as washing people's feet was considered to be a task reserved for non-Jewish slaves. In a culture where people walked long distances on dusty roads in sandals, it was customary for the host to arrange for water to be available for the washing of feet. Normally, this was done upon arrival, not during the meal.

Summary of the Second Day Before the Passover

We learn little of the events of the daytime activities of Jesus. The record focuses on the meal in Bethany which was to celebrate the raising of Lazarus from the dead.

The anointing of Jesus in Bethany and the washing of the disciples feet in the upper room have striking similarities. Likewise the behavior of Judas on both occasions is a powerful warning. During both meals he ''ent out''because he preferred his own plans to the fellowship of Jesus and his fellow disciples. Lesson about ourselves are clear to be seen. We can be like Judas and Peter in our life in Christ

Various difficulties have surrounded the reckoning of Easter from the first origin of the Christian Church. The three synoptic Gospels are unanimous [Matthew 26:17-19, Mark 14:12-16, Luke 22:7-9] in their statement that our Lord instituted the Holy Eucharist at his last Paschal Supper. St. John is equally precise in saying that the Jews would not enter the judgment hall 'lest they should be defiled' through blood pollution, and be precluded from eating the Passover in the evening [John 18:28]. How came it then that our Lord should have celebrated the Passover on one evening and that the Jews should have deferred the memorial feast till the corresponding period of the next day? This is a real difficulty, but the following is probably the solution.

Jews would not enter the judgment hall 'lest they should be defiled' through blood pollution, and be precluded from eating the Passover in the evening [John 18:28]. How came it then that our Lord should have celebrated the Passover on one evening and that the Jews should have deferred the memorial feast till the corresponding period of the next day? This is a real difficulty, but the following is probably the solution.

Since the appearing of the new moon determined the Jewish calendar, an assembly was held in the Temple, on the closing day of each month, to receive intelligence respecting the first [sighting] of the new moon. If nothing was announced, a day was intercalated; yet if the appearance of the moon was afterwards authenticated the intercalation was cancelled. This naturally caused much confusion, especially in the critical month of Nisan. Hence (Talmud, Rosh Hashanah Gemara 1) it was permitted that in doubtful cases the Passover might be observed on two consecutive days. For the intercalation of a day at Jerusalem could hardly be known in Galilee; and according to Maimonodies, in these more distant parts of Judaea, the Passover was in some years kept one day, at Jerusalem on another. Our Lord coming in from the country followed the letter of the Law, but the main body of the Jews observing the 'tradition of the elders', sacrificed the Passover on the following day, in consequence of the intercalation of a day in the preceding month. Thus our Lord ate the Passover on the evening of the 14th Nisan, and was upon the same day the 'very Paschal Lamb' by the death of the cross.

This day, like the previous day, is one on which we are told very little about what Jesus and the disciples did during the daylight hours. All we learn about the events of the day time is that the disciples went to make ready for the evening meal. Rather like yesterday the emphasis is on the events which took place in the evening:

Judas – A Player in the Drama of the Cross

“On the first day of Unleavened Bread when the Passover lamb was being sacrificed, His disciples,” that would be the first day meaning Passover which was really kind of synonymous with the feast that followed, “His disciples said to Him, ‘Where do You want us to go and prepare for You to eat the Passover?’” Where do You want us to have this? They’re, you know, they all are without a home. Where do we do this?

The Lord has a plan. There has to be a Passover on Thursday night, the Lord knows that. Jerusalem is crowded. They need a private room where twelve of them, plus Jesus, can go. I think this is something Judas excitedly anticipated because this would be a perfect place to have Jesus arrested. Why? It’s at night, private room, only the twelve…plus Jesus. No one in the streets late that night. The fixed, specific place, a location, easy to tell the leaders, easy to let them in and easy for Judas to get his cash.

Our Lord knows Judas’ thoughts. So verse 12 (Mark 14:12), they asked the question, “Where are we going to have this?” Judas is listening, I’m sure. Once he knows where they’re going to have it, that’s it. That’s just too good to pass up. He wouldn’t know what the future is and he wants the money and he wants it now because he wants out fast. Though he had fear of the crowd, this was a way to waylay that fear, do it at night, do it in a private room.

Our Lord knows this so He sent two of His disciples, this is Peter and John, by the way, two of them and said to them, “Go into the city and a man will meet you carrying a pitcher of water, follow him.”

Now that’s pretty sneaky. First of all, carrying a pitcher of water was women’s work. So to find a man carrying a pitcher of water would be rather unusual and that’s what they needed, they needed a sign and a signal that was unusual, go and find a man carrying a pitcher of water. He sends His two most intimate confidants, Peter and John and this is very, very important. He must have the Passover with His disciples. Why? Because He must transform the Passover into the Lord’s table. Furthermore, He has a lot of intimate teaching that He needs to do with them and all of it is recorded in John 13 to 17. He must die, listen, Friday, around three o’clock when the Passover lambs are being slaughtered, but He must also celebrate the Passover with His disciples so that He can give them final instruction, His last will and testament, if you will, and so that He can institute His table, playing off the Passover. And it has been suggested that He must also fulfill all righteousness and therefore He must celebrate the Passover commanded by God because it hasn’t been negated and it won’t be negated until this Passover is finished. For that to happen, He must not be arrested that night. He can’t be arrested until afterwards.

So this is how He did it. “He sent two of His disciples and said, ‘Go into the city and a man will meet you carrying a pitcher of water, follow him.’” Just go where he goes. And that’s exactly what they did. Wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, “The teacher says where is My guest room in which I may eat the Passover with My disciples.”

What does that tell you? It tells you that the man was familiar with Jesus, the teacher. They don’t even say the word Jesus in case somebody is listening. They don’t want anybody to know where this is going to be. You just follow the man with a pitcher on his head. This tells us that our Lord had prearranged this, either actually, or supernaturally. He says, “Follow the man and when you get to the house, the owner of the house, say, ‘The Teacher says, where is My guest room where I may eat the Passover with My disciples?’”

Now this is a believer, the Teacher, ha didaskalos, the teacher. It has to have been someone who knew Him, loved Him, believed in Him. So go find Mr. So-and-so, follow him. Verse 15, “And he himself will show you a large upper room furnished and ready. Prepare for us there.”

Why all the secrecy? Why all the mystery? Why all the intrigue? Why not just say, “Hey guys, we’re all going to meet over on Sixth Street and such time, it’s easily recognizable, the address number is so-and-so and we’re all going to be there.” Can’t do that. Why? Because Judas will know and Judas is hungry for the money even though he’s trying to avoid the crowds, he’s not going to postpone this any longer than he has to, he just wants the money. He wants it fast. This is perfect, a perfect place away from the crowd and the leaders can capture Jesus who will be alone with His helpless disciples. Jesus cannot let that happen…cannot let it happen. And so that’s why there’s all the intrigue.

And by the way, the disciples went out and came to the city. Just a footnote, apparently Peter and John never came back. On this Thursday, this is Thursday, they went, followed the man, got to the house, were shown the room and they made the preparation so that the rest of the disciples went out from where they were, came to the city, probably back in Bethany where they’ve been every night, and found it just as He had told them and they prepared the Passover.

They didn’t know where they were going until they got there. And by the time they got there, listen, Judas couldn’t leave. He couldn’t go and report where they were or he would have been revealed. The Lord covers every single detail because of the urgency and importance of His time with His own.

There is a very interesting footnote, and I’m not going to drag it out cause it’s a little bit of scholarly work. There actually were two different evenings when the Passover was celebrated. I’ll just leave it at this. The northern people in Galilee celebrated it on Thursday evening while the Judeans, the Sadducees and the people in the south celebrated it on Friday evening. This is perfect, so that Jesus could celebrate the Passover with His friends in Galilee when they celebrated it on Thursday and still die as the Passover lamb on Friday at the time when the southern Judeans were slaughtering their lambs for their Passover. So there are actually two times; on Thursday for those in the north, and on Friday for those in the south. And that's an important reckoning because there are texts in John's gospel, in particular, that make it necessary to understand that.

It's an absolutely astounding array of persons that are all moving around in the scene, right? All these people doing what they're doing, and our Lord moving inexorably to the cross as God directs everything. Maybe in summation we could say He borrowed human life for 33 years. He was born in a borrowed manger. He lived in borrowed houses all through His ministry. He entered Jerusalem on a borrowed animal. Borrowed lodgings from friends in Bethany. Borrowed a room for Passover, borrowed a Roman cross for a few hours and borrowed a grave while He actually owned everything. That's His condescension, isn't it?

NOTE: Notice that Jesus never accuses Judas directly (i.e., "you have said", or something similar), only acknowledging what Judas himself knew he had decided to do and what he was deciding to continue doing (i.e., betraying Jesus).

Regarding a discrepancy of the timeline between Luke and the other three Gospel writers…

In Luke's gospel, several incidents are recounted according to subject matter rather than being presented in the order in which they actually occurred. [For example,] This is clear in the narrative of the baptism of Christ. Luke mentions the story of John the Baptist, his sermons, his preaching for repentance by baptism, and his baptizing of the multitude in the Jordan River. He then mentions that King Herod arrested John the Baptist and shut him up in prison, because John had rebuked him for his marriage to Herodias, his brother Philip's wife. It is well known, as mentioned in the gospels, that Christ was baptized by John in the Jordan before he was shut up in prison, and before John's martyrdom which followed his imprisonment. However, Luke, after mentioning the imprisonment of John, continues saying, "When all the people were baptized, it came to pass that Jesus also was baptized; and while He prayed, the heaven was opened. And the Holy Spirit descended in bodily form like a dove upon Him." (Luke 3:21-22).

It is evident that Saint Luke wanted it to be understood that Jesus was baptized in the presence of the multitude, who were baptized by John before John's imprisonment. However, he mentions this incident when he started speaking about the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ. The ministry of Christ followed His baptism and His going out into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. Before this, the physician Luke retold the story of John the Baptist, including what Herod had done to him. So, he plainly adhered to the subject matter rather than to the sequential order of the events. In other words, Luke tends to narrate a whole subject before shifting on to another. This is not unusual, and does not contradict the accounts of biblical events presented by the other evangelists; this is simply Luke's manner of writing. The same applies to Luke's narrative of the Last Supper. He mentions the betrayal of Judas after he had written of the events relating to both the Jewish Passover and the Lord's Supper. As a consequence, some believe that Judas was present during the institution of the Eucharist; but the gospel of Luke does not mention that Judas participated in the Lord's Supper, or that he was present. Putting all of the Gospel accounts together, Judas was plainly not present when eucharist/communion was inaugurated (from its foundation in the Passover, of course). Only the Lukan account, then, is open to a different reading but understanding Luke's writing style helps us to understand better.

Regarding Luke's descrepency…

Another example may help. In the very next chapter in Luke [after talking about John the Baptist and his baptism of Jesus] we read of Jesus' rejection in Nazareth (Luke 4:14-30). Luke uses this set of events for his introduction of Jesus' ministry in Galilee, whereas Matthew (4:12) and Mark (1:14) tell of this event in terms of its chronology. So, again, while much of Luke's gospel is chronological (Luke 1:1-4), at times Luke also orders the events of Jesus' life according to the basic flow of redemptive-history and the geographical movement of Jesus' travels.

A different take on whether Judas as present for the Communion/Eucharist or not:
https://sunandshield.wordpress.com/2007/09/14/guilt-trip-being-unworthy-to-receive-communion/

Side Note: In Luke 22:3-6, it states, "Then Satan entered Judas, called Iscariot, one of the Twelve. And Judas went to the chief priests and the officers of the temple guard and discussed with them how he might betray Jesus. They were delighted and agreed to give him money. He consented, and watched for an opportunity to hand Jesus over to them when no crowd was present." If evil spirits can enter and come out of a person at will (Luke 11:24-26), surely Satan can. Judas was already going against Jesus and his teachings of his own accord (c.f. John 12:4-6), so Satan didn't need to be continually residing in him for him to betray Jesus (though he did influence Judas at critical moments).

An attempt at resolving the supposed discrepancy regarding the day of the Passover…

The Dead Sea Scrolls reveal that there were a number of different Jewish calendars in use in Israel in the first century AD, and so different Jewish groups celebrated Passover on different days. We have a similar situation today with the date of Easter: Catholics and Protestants celebrate Easter on a different date from Greek and Russian Orthodox Christians, because they calculate the date of Easter using different calendars (Gregorian and Julian, respectively). In his description of the Last Supper, John uses the official Jewish calendar, in which the Last Supper was before the date of the official Passover. However, I suggest that Jesus chose to hold his Last Supper on the date of Passover in a different Jewish calendar, which is what Matthew, Mark and Luke report. So all four Gospels in fact agree! [See more alternative views below]

Alternative View: The Last Supper, the eve of the 14th of Nisan

It was on eve of the 14th of Nisan, Jesus met with his disciples in the Upper Room which stood over the Tomb of David. This supper was a rehearsal supper for the Passover Seder to be done after the slaying of the Lambs on the afternoon of the 14th of Nisan, and to be eaten on the eve of the 15th of Nisan, the Passover Seder. It was here Yahshua instituted the Last Supper's commemorative rites. Was the Last Supper a Passover Sedar? In the opinion of this author, it was not unless the evidence concedes that the Last Supper was an Essene seder. The evidence suggests that they were discussing and preparing for the Sedar. What is the evidence?

1. On the table in the Upper Terrace, there was no evidence of a Passover lamb, but this could have been an Essene Passover on Wednesday.

2. During the Last Supper, Yahshua sopped the bread suggesting that it was leavened. Neither does it specifically state that it was unleavened bread. All through the gospels there are specific references when the rules of the halakhah or the rules on how to observe the Mosaic law were followed. There is no such mention here.

3. Jesus gave the last piece of leavened sopped bread to Judas. This suggests that Judas was the leavening in the disciples. He was the contaminated one. Maybe this was a ceremony to clean the house and get rid of Chametz (leavening). When Judas left, the Chametz (leavening) was gone.

4. Of the four gospels, John was an eyewitness. As a Levite or intimately known to the House of Ananas, he stated, "now before the feast of the Passover". Yet, this Passover Seder could have been again an Essene seder, that was celebrated without the Korban Lamb. (John 13:1-20)

5. Pilgrims were already purified by this time by immersing in their mikvah baths, so the washing of feet would not have been performed on the Passover. The washing of feet could have been a symbolic mikvah, to occur prior to the Passover.

6. When Yahshua gave Judas the sopped bread and he exited, "some (the other disciples) thought that, because Judas had the money box, Yahshua was telling him. "Buy what we need for the feast". (John 13:29)

7. According to Mark and Luke, they wrote, "And before the first day of Chag Matzoth (Feast of Unleavened Bread), when they killed the Pesach (Passover lamb), His talmidim (disciples) said to Him, 'Where do You desire that we go and prepare so that you may eat the Pesach?'" (Mark 14:12-16, Luke 22:7-13 Restoration Scripture)

To understand the Hebrew mindset, we can see even to this day where an orthodox rabbi will meet on the day before the Passover with His students and conduct a training lesson on the Passover Seder. In the Lubavitch rabbinic movement they gather together the night before the Passover for what they call the "Moschiach's Supper". Many rabbis consider this meal being a Pesach meal even though it comes before the actual Passover. We must ask again, was this an actually a rehearsal supper for Passover which was to come on the next eve?

The orthodox Passover Seder had four cups to remind us of the four words for redemption in Torah:

First cup - God "Freed" us. Here we see the "Type" as when the "Exodus" by the Israelites from their exile in Egypt occurred. Here Type met "anti-Type", when we see the "Exodus of the Lost Tribes of Israel, lost in the nations of the gentiles since their exile by the Assyrian invasion in 702 BCE, now returning to the land of their fathers with the redemption of the House of Joseph.

Second cup – God "Rescued" us. Here again we see in the "Type" when God "saved" the Israelites in the dramatic crossing of the Red Sea as they fled from their Egyptian oppressors. Here Type met "anti-Type", when we see the redemption of the chosen ones of Israel as they crossed over "Red Sea" and left their old life in exile with the Globalist Gentile Nations of the world to their new life in the re-Newed brotherhood of the tribes of Israel.

Third cup - God shall "Redeem" us" us and make a Covenant with us. Here we see in the "Type" the God of Israel descending down upon Mount Sinai. He redeemed His chosen ones and then made a declaration at that time of the Covenant between He and the Children of Israel. Here Type met "anti-Type", when Yahshua, the Yahweh Elohim ("God of Israel"), who was the Son of the Father, and descended down from the World of the Divine in the incarnated form of a babe called Yahshua and declared a reNewed Covenant (Brit Hadassah (Renewal of the Covenant) with His disciples (talmidim). Let us not forget, this reNewed Covenant was to go first to the Lost Sheep of the House of Israel. Many of us today are part of those Lost Sheep.

Fourth cup – God "took us to be His own people". Here we see in the "Type" when the children of Israel entered into the Promise Land. Here Type met "anti-Type" when the House of Joseph (Ephraim) is redeemed and enters into Eritz Yisra'el (Land of Israel) in fulfillment of the prophets of old.

Fifth cup was set for the Prophet Elijah – The prophet Elijah is expected by the Jews to return and announce (future) the coming of the messianic age. No one will know this message until announced by Elijah according to the Rabbanim.

The "Type" of Elijah the greatest of the prophets met his "anti-Type" when Yohannes (John) the Baptiser came with the mantle of authority of Elijah the Prophet, with his voice crying in the wilderness proclaiming the message, "Prepare you the Way of the Lord." Yet, John the Baptist was only one anti-Type that will be repeated at the time of the end when there will be two; the two witnesses. (Revelation 11 and Malachi 4:5) Will these two witnesses be the return of; Moses, the Great Lawgiver and Elijah, the Great Prophet or will it be; Daniel, the apocalyptic prophet of the TaNaKh (Old Testament) or the Apostolic Prophet John the Revelator in the Brit Hadassah (reNewed Testament)?

In the Last Supper only one cup was mentioned. This was the third cup, the cup of redemption and while Yahshua was giving His chosen disciples the essence of the reNewal of the Covenant (Brit Hadassah), He stated that as they were drinking of the 3rd cup, the cup of redemption, at the Last Supper;

> Matthew 26:29 - "But, I say to you, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in My Father's kingdom."

Will the 4th cup be shared with His followers when Yahshua returns to install the "kingdom of God" in the future? Was Yahshua staging the idea that the Lord's Supper and the Passover have a future prophetic application? Will Yahshua drink the 4th cup, when He comes to bring the Kingdom of God to a living reality in our three dimensional or maybe to our fourth dimensional world in the future?

The Chagigah

by Rav Sha'ul

The Chagigah on the 13th of Abib

The sinful body and selfish will broken

1 Corinthians 11

> 23 For I received from the Messiah what I also passed on to you: The Messiah Yahusha, on the night (of The Day of Preparation that begins the Passover Day) he was betrayed, took (leavened) bread (Artos), 24 and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, "This is my body (sinful flesh), which is (given) for you (as THE Passover Lamb to rip the veil and provide YOU access to the Altar so that you too can make your own living sacrifice); do this in remembrance (Chagigah) of me (each year before Passover)." 25 In the same way, after supper he took the cup, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in my blood; do this, whenever you drink it, in remembrance (Chagigah) of me." 26 For whenever you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim (Chagigah) the Messiah's death (of his sinful flesh) until he comes (you proclaim his resurrected sinless life the next night using unleavened bread!).

What were Yahusha and his disciples doing that night that we call "The Last Supper"? Were they having a "Jewish Seder"? No. Were they eating crackers? No. Were they even eating unleavened bread? No! They were, in fact, keeping the Chagigah on the eve of the 14th of Abib before the Passover Day of Preparation and Yahusha was elevating the "remembrance meal" that begins Passover to its spiritual fulfillment! The bread eaten that night was not unleavened bread it was leavened bread that represented Yahusha's broken (sinful) body. Unleavened bread is not eaten until after Yahusha is perfected through suffering on Passover and receives his perfect eternal body… The Feast of Unleavened Bread.

A Chagigah (in Hebrew or Koinonia in Lation) literally means a "Festival Offering", and they were held before the Three Pilgrimage Festivals (Passover, Shavuot, Sukkot) and they delt with the pilgrimage offering (lambs) that men were supposed to bring into Jerusalem to be slain on Passover the next day.

These "Chagigah" were traditionally held between one to three days prior to a religious event (Passover, Shavuot or Sukkot), and in this particular discussion it is being applied to the understanding of "The Last Supper" (Koinonia) that actually occurred one day prior to Messiah's Crucifixion (which occurred on The Preparation Day), and, also, applied to the "Passover Remembrance". As a matter of fact, "The Chagigah" were, also, "Remembrance Meals" that included discussions about the upcoming events (Passover, Shavuot or Sukkot), and for "Passover" they are loosely the equivalent of the Jewish Seder Meal in today's society.

Neither a "Chagigah" nor "The Passover" is a Holy Sabbath or a Holy convocation, but are "Remembrances". The "Chagigah", "Koinonia" or "Last Supper" (in this case) occurred PRIOR to The Passover Preparation Day and the actual PASSOVER (Remembrance) MEAL eaten on the first day of Unleavend Bread, and were therefore the meal on the Chagigah was eaten with "Leavened Bread" (Artos).

Matthew 26:1-2 (a Chagigah Conversation before Passover)

> And it came to pass, when Yahusha had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples,2 You know that after two days (Abib 13th to Abib 15th) is (the Feast of) the Passover (includes Unleavend Bread), and the Son of man (Messiah Yahusha) is (already) betrayed to be crucified (on the Preparation Day of Abib 14th).

There is no way the "Koinonia" or "Last Supper" was eaten with unleavened bread two days prior to "Unleavened Bread". This would destroy the Righteous Symbolism established by Yahuah; designed to teach "The Plan of Salvation", which was perfectly prepared by Yahuah in advance for Messiah using the physical rehearsals. We see that the Apostle Paul below understood this very important fact and even used the proper word for leavened bread below:

1 Corinthians 11:23-24

> For I have received of the King (Messiah) that which, also, I delivered unto you, That the King Yahusha the [same] night in which he was betrayed took bread (strong's G740, Artos, leavened bread): And when he (Messiah) had given thanks, he brake [it] (Leavened Bread or Artos), and said, Take, eat: this is (symbolizes) my (physical) body, which is (physically) broken for you: this do in remembrance of me (as an act of Love as you prepare yourselves for Passover each year) .

Artos; Strong's G740 (common definition)- http://studybible.info/strongs/G740

> Food composed of flour (leaven) mixed with water, allowed to rise, and baked. The Israelites made it in the form of an oblong or round cake, as thick as one's thumb, and as large as a plate or platter; hence it was not to be cut but broken.

From Dan Love author of "The Spiritual Jew":

> From the above common definition of "Artos" it is plain to see that a "Love Feast" is nothing more than a type of "Chagigah" in which a person, persons or event is "Remembered" or "Honored" (shown love) for his/her/their/Yahuah's contribution to something that is worthwhile (a SELFLESS act) in which the lives of others are enriched.
> Here (1 Corinthians 11:23-24) we have Messiah speaking a most symbolic message to his followers during a Chagigah (Remembrance Meal, "Love Feast" or Gathering). Messiah plainly states that the (Artos) represents his physical body; meaning that "Artos" (leavened bread), which is, also, a metaphorical representative of sin (self) is a true representation of himself as a (physical) man.
> In other words, as a man Messiah was a sinner just like the rest of us are (sinners). However, Messiah is, also, represented Spiritually by a lamb without blemish. Is this a scribal error? No, it is not, because while Messiah was a sinner in the flesh (for all have sinned and fallen short of the Glory of Yahuah), Messiah was, also, Spiritually Clean (without spot Spiritually speaking). So how can this be? Simply this: "We" do not need a physically perfect god or GOD or animal to die for "Us". Messiah (a sinner) has demonstrated to the world that sinners can become "The Perfected Children of Yahuah" if they will only follow his (a sinner's) perfect example of being a "Seeker of Yahuah's Righteousness", and that any man (or woman) has this capability available to him or her, because he (Messiah as a sinner) has shown "Us" that it is possible for a human to become "Spiritually Perfected". Yes, "Spiritually Perfected Sinners" are exactly what Yahuah seeks to become His children. Children that have experienced SIN and have REJECTED it (this is called REPENTANCE).

Could there have been any other reason or reasons for Messiah to have gathered with his disciples? What could have motivated the "Foot Washings"? Why did Yahusha "gird himself with a towel"?

It should be noted that Jewish people in the Second Temple period when Yahusha lived could only enter the Temple if they were ritually pure and everyone arriving in Jerusalem for Passover was deemed ritually unclean. They had to use a mikveh before they could fulfill their religious obligations (such as bringing their own lambs on Passover to be slaughtered). Over 150 Mikveh pools have been discovered around The Temple ruins in Jerusalem. With this in mind, let us look deeper shining the light of history that surrounded the Second Temple period when Yahusha gave his life as a living sacrifice on Passover:

John 11:55-57

55 Now the Passover of the Jews was at hand. Many went up to Jerusalem out of the country before the Passover (to celebrate the Chagigah Meal on the 13th), to purify themselves (through Mikveh to become Spiritually CLEAN; symbolized by physical cleansing, and humility).

56 Then they (the multitude of Jews) sought for (Messiah) Yahusha and spoke one with another, as they stood in the temple, "What do you think? Isn't he coming to the feast?" (the people didn't want to kill Yahusha; they wanted to commune with him)

57 Now the chief priests and the Pharisees(these are your killers) had commanded that if anyone knew where he was, he should report it, that they might seize him.

John 13:2-11 – the Mikveh on the Chagigah in preparation for the beginning of Passover

1 And (the Chagigah) supper (on the eve of the 13th of Abib with leavened bread) being ended (and the 14th of Abib began which is Day of Preparation or Passover Day), the devil (human nature in Judas) having now put into the heart of Judas Iscariot (i.e. GREED got hold of him), Simon's [son], to betray him; 3 Yahusha knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from GOD, and went to GOD (and was about to offer his own body as The Passover Lamb serving as High Priest, he must be Mikveh's before he could make the proper sacrifice);

4 He (Yahusha) arose from supper, and laid aside his garments (took off his clothes and Mikveh'd himself) ; and (then) took a towel (to dry himself off), and girded himself (wrapped the towel around his waist… now it is purification time for the rest of his disciples). 5 After that (he cleansed himself through Mikveh, dried himself off, and wrapped a towel around his waist) he poured water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe [them] with the towel he was girded with.

6 He came to Simon Peter, who said to him, "Master, are you going to wash my feet?" 7 Yahusha replied, "You do not realize now what I am doing, but later you will understand." 8 "No," said Peter, "you shall never wash my feet." Yahusha answered, "Unless I wash you, you have no part with me." 9 "Then, Master," Simon Peter replied, "not just my feet but my hands and my head as well!" 10 Yahusha answered, "Those who have (already) had a bath (Mikveh) need only to wash their feet; their whole body is (already spiritually) clean. And you are (spiritually) clean, though not every one of you." 11 For he knew who was going to betray him, and that was why he said not every one was (spiritually) clean.

We see Yahusha wash the feet (mikveh) his disciples in a ritual that symbolically represented his disciples "following in his footsteps". So the ritual cleansing of the Mikveh is a vital aspect of keeping Passover. Before we continue I want to clear up one of the most misleading and mistranslated portions of scripture in the so-called "New Testament" Gospels. We see the effect of bias Christian translators in full effect in the gospel of Mark attempting to hide the truth behind mistranslated texts. In Mark chapter 14 in most of your Bibles it plainly states that Yahusha was not killed on Passover but rather was alive and well and preparing with his disciples to eat the Passover Meal on the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread! This is a total contradiction from the true accounts of the Messiah being killed ON the preparation day for The Passover then laid in the tomb quickly that evening so the Jews could go eat The Passover Meal on the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

Below is the NIV's version of Mark 14:

Mark 14 - The Last Supper

12 On the first day of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, when it was customary to sacrifice the Passover lamb, Jesus' disciples asked him, "Where do you want us to go and make preparations for you to eat the Passover?" 13 So he sent two of his disciples, telling them, "Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar of water will meet you. Follow him. 14 Say to the owner of the house he enters, 'The Teacher asks: Where is my guest room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?' 15 He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there." 16 The disciples left, went into the city and found things just as Jesus had told them. So they prepared the Passover.

Below is the proper translation:

Mark 14 - The Chagigah

12 Now before (two days prior Matthew 26:1-2) the day of Unleavened Bread when they killed the Passover lambs (on The Passover or The Day of Preparation), his disciples said to him "where do you want us to go to prepare (ourselves speaking of the Chagigah) that your own may eat The Passover (Chagigah meal on the eve of the 14th in remembrance and to prepare ourselves for The Passover Season)". 13 Then he sent out two of his disciples and said to them: "Go into the city, and there you will meet a man carrying a pitcher of water, follow him. 14 And wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house; The Teacher says: Where is My guest room in which my disciples may eat the Passover (Chagigah meal in preparation for The Passover) together? 15 And he will show you a large upper room, furnished and prepared; there make ready for us (to keep the Chagigah meal to begin Passover)". 16 And his disciples went out, and came into the city, and found as he had said to them; and they made ready for (the coming) Passover.

What do we do on The Chagigah Remembrance Meal?

As Passover is approaching, usually the day before but could be 2-3 days before (Matthew 26:1-2) we begin to celebrate the coming Passover Season. We see below Yahusha and his disciples began planning for The Passover Season a couple of days prior with planning of the Chagigah:

Matthew 26:1-2 (a Chagigah Conversation before Passover)

And it came to pass, when Yahusha had finished all these sayings, he said unto his disciples, 2 You know that after two days is [the feast of] the Passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.

What did Yahusha and his disciples talk about on the day before The Passover Season began when they met together for the Chagigah? They all knew that Yahusha would be crucified on Passover so this was a time to get together before it all began and "remember" what it is all about.

The Passover is one of the most central themes in The Plan of Yahuah and we should talk about the entire meaning of the Passover rehearsal and fulfillment:

- From a lamb being slain to provide "clothing of skin" to cover Adam/Eve's sinful parts (physical to spiritual parallel that the blood of the lamb covers our sin)
- to Abraham offering his first born son when Yahuah "passed over" Isaac delivering him from death through the sacrifice of a lamb (physical to spiritual parallel that Yahuah would offer His firstborn son to save us all from spiritual death),

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

- to the firstborn of Israel being saved by the blood of a lamb on their doorpost in the Exodus (physical to spiritual parallel that we all would exodus this physical life of bondage and enter the promised land through The Passover),
- to the High Priest offering a national sacrifice of The Passover Lamb along with each man offering his own Passover Lamb for his individual family each year (physical to spiritual parallel of Yahusha's sacrifice to rip the veil enabling all of us to follow his example and offer our OWN sacrifice on the Altar)
- to Yahuah fulfilling these examples by offering His firstborn son Yahusha on Passover to provide access to the altar of Yahuah to all his children the spiritual truth has been revealed.
- to the sons of Yahuah offering themselves as living sacrifices every Passover the spiritual truth has been revealed.
- to Yahusha returning and "leading the children of Israel" into the promised land upon his return in the Second Exodus the spiritual truth has been revealed.

These are the discussion we should be having on the eve of 13th as Passover begins on the 14th at sunset. Our minds must be set properly and our "mindset" must be righteous going into The Passover Season. Speaking of this very thing, The Apostle Paul said of Passover:

1 Corinthians 11:27

> So then, whoever eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Messiah in an unworthy manner (not understanding the spiritual significance and not properly being mikveh'd and examiningg himself for "spot or blemish") will be guilty of sinning against the body and blood of the Messiah.

We have had 6,000 years to learn the spiritual lesson! Have we learned the lesson these "shadows of greater spiritual truths" were designed to teach us? No. Was the physical "shadow picture" of Passover designed to teach us the spiritual truth of The Jewish Seder?

I certainly hope that is not what Yahusha suffered and gave his life as a living sacrifice for! Every year, year by year for thousands of years we have ritualized keeping Passover and now we have reduced it down to a simple token meal called The Jewish Seder which is itself stolen from the Roman banquet called the symposium! Worse yet we have changed it completely to the Christian celebration of Easter stolen from Babylon!

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

We have missed the very spiritual lessons The Passover Season was given by Yahuah to teach us. That is that each one of us, as sons of Yahuah, are destined to be perfected in this life through suffering and we are to offer ourselves as spotless lambs in the temple of Yahuah on His altar each Passover as LIVING SACRIFICES! Not just steal a Roman ritual and apply it so Judaism then steal it from Judaism and apply it to Christianity somehow reducing Yahuah's wonderful plan of salvation down to a simple meaningless ritual call The Seder. Talk about missing the point by a country mile!

So let us discard all the pagan rituals and Jewish traditions that have lead us nowhere over 2000 years and keep Passover the way Yahuah instructed us. Let us learn the lessons the physical rehearsal/examples were designed to teach us. Let us wean ourselves off of the "milk of the word" and partake of the "meat of the word" and grow from children to full sons of Yahuah. Let us, offer ourselves to Yahuah the way He intended us to in the example set by our Messiah.

It all begins just prior to The Passover Season with the Chagigah remembrance meal by discussing the physical to spiritual parallels of the upcoming rehearsal. Then the rehearsal begins the next day with The Preparation Day and the killing of the lambs on Passover at the Altar of Yahuah.

NOT the Chagigah

Had the Last Supper been the Passover, Jesus would have been arrested "during the Feast," and in the above scripture John would not have pictured the Jews eating the Passover the day following.

Some commentators, who rely on the English translations that portray Jesus as eating the Passover at the Last Supper, claim that John is referring to a Chagigah (or Hagigah) Festival offering instead. They are forced into this view in an attempt to explain this scripture that contradicts the idea of Jesus eating the Passover the previous night. However, the Greek word Pascha is correctly translated into English as "the Passover." Paul said Christ was "our Passover" in 1 Corinthians 5:7; he did not say Christ was our "Chagigah."

Subjunctive Mood Used by Jesus in Reference to Eating the Passover

Notice below how every time Jesus is quoted speaking about actually eating the Passover, he uses this Greek subjunctive mood ("may eat" or "might eat") to imply doubt, uncertainty, or even unreality:

> NAS Mark 14:14 and wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, 'The Teacher says, "Where is My guest room in which I may eat the Passover with My disciples?"'
> GNT Mark 14:14 καὶ ὁπου ἐάν εἰσέλθη εἰπατε τῳ̂ οἰκοδεσπότη ὁτι Ὁ διδάσκαλος λέγει, Πού ἐστιυ τό κατάλυμά μου ὁπου τό πάσχα μετά τῳ̂υ μαθητῳ̂υ μου φάγω;

Had Jesus truly believed he was going to eat the Passover, he would have used the Greek indicative (the mood of certainty) above to say "will eat" instead of the subjunctive ("may eat").

> Remember that Jesus gives his disciples these directions only after they finally come to him asking where they should prepare for Passover. In Luke, Jesus is also quoted using the subjunctive (translated below as "may eat"):

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

NAS Luke 22:8 And He sent Peter and John, saying, “Go and prepare the Passover for us, that we may eat it.”

GNT Luke 22:8 καὶ ἀπέστειλεν Πέτρου καὶ Ἰωάυυηυ είπών, Πορευθέντες ἑτοιμάσατε ἡμῖν τό πάσχα ίνα φάγωμεν.

NAS Luke 22:11 “And you shall say to the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher says to you, “Where is the guest room in which I may eat the Passover with My disciples?”’

GNT Luke 22:11 καὶ ἐρεῖτε τῳ̃ οἰκοδεσπότη τῆς οἰκίας, Λέγει σοι ὁ διδάσκαλος, Ποῦ ἐστιν τό κατάλυμα όπου τό πάσχα μετά τῶν μαθητῶν μου φάγω;

Again, Jesus does not say that he will eat (indicative) the Passover, but rather he “may eat” (subjunctive), implying doubt or unreality. Jesus knows that he is the lamb of God—the true Passover—and therefore that he won’t be around to eat the Passover lamb:

DBY Matthew 26:2 Ye know that after two days the passover takes place,and the Son of man is delivered up to be crucified.

Although Jesus tells his disciples he will be crucified at Passover, and he had previously mentioned his impending death a few times already, his disciples still cannot fathom that the Messiah is actually going to die:

NAS Mark 9:31 For He was teaching His disciples and telling them, “The Son of Man is to be delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill Him; and when He has been killed, He will rise three days later.”

NAS Mark 9:32 But they did not understand this statement, and they were afraid to ask Him.

In Luke, Jesus again expresses these things:

NAS Luke 18:32–33 “For He will be delivered to the Gentiles, and will be mocked and mistreated and spit upon, and after they have scourged Him, they will kill Him; and the third day He will rise again.”

NAS Luke 18:34 And they understood none of these things, and this saying was hidden from them, and they did not comprehend the things that were said.

Since his disciples cannot bear to hear about his death at Passover, they come asking him about the all-important preparation for Passover:

KJV Matthew 26:17 Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover?

Because Jewish laws required leaven to be removed and the body and soul to be ritually cleansed before the Passover, the disciples are really asking “at what location do we ritually prepare, so that we all might eat the Passover the following day (the 14th) at the proper time that God commanded (John 18:28)?” They are certainly not asking at which location they should ritually prepare so they can slay an illegal Passover today on the 13th day and eat it illegally tonight at the Last Supper.

Jesus does not find it necessary to convince his disciples that he will be crucified at Passover, so he partly goes along with their idea of preparing for the Passover. Yet in every scripture he subtly uses the subjunctive mood when he speaks of his “eating” the Passover, in case anyone is willing to hear with spiritual ears. Jesus may also harbor a slight hope that God can find a way out for him, for he prays in the garden to ask that he not have to pay the eternal penalty for sin:

NAS Matthew 26:39 And He went a little beyond them, and fell on His face and prayed, saying, “My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from Me; yet not as I will, but as Thou wilt.”

Double Negative Adds Extra Emphasis

In telling his disciples that he is going to be rejected, killed, and crucified at Passover, Jesus uses the subjunctive mood each time he speaks of his eating the Passover. Now, at the Last Supper, we can see that he truly does desire to eat the Passover with them:

> KJV Luke 22:15 And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer:
> GNT Luke 22:15 καὶ εἶπεν πρός αὐτούς, Ἐπιθυμία ἐπεθύμησα τοῦτο τό πάσχα φαγεῖν μεθ΄ ὑμῶν πρό τοῦ με παθεῖν·

The Greek emphasizes his desire to eat the Passover by structuring his words as a double positive ("with desire I have desired"). However, in the next sentence Jesus uses the double negative—the strongest form of Greek negation—to make it clear that he will not eat the Passover with his disciples, because tomorrow he will give his life and suffer as the true lamb:

> KJV Luke 22:16 For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.
> NAS Luke 22:16 for I say to you, I shall never again eat it until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God."
> GNT Luke 22:16 λέγω γάρ ὑμῖν ὅτι οὐ μή φάγω αὐτό ἕως ὅτου πληρωθῇ ἐν τῇ βασιλεία τοῦ θεοῦ.

Although the two English translations above contain the words "any more" and "never again" respectively, these words do not appear in the original Greek; they were added by English translators. It's important to understand that the vast majority of Bible commentators—from the time the Roman Church gained control until the Protestant Reformation and beyond—believe that Jesus ate the Passover at this Last Supper and was then crucified the following day (on Friday the 15th day). Therefore they needed to translate these verses to fit the theology as they understood it.

This explains how the words "any more" were added to portray that Jesus did eat it this time, but that he would not eat it "any more." The big problem is that you cannot simply add words that are not contained in the meaning of the original Greek scripture.

The only translation I've found that does not add "any more," "never again," etc., to this verse is the New Jerusalem Bible:

> NJB Luke 22:16 because, I tell you, I shall not eat it until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God.'

The actual Greek in this scripture reads, "not not will I eat it," using the double negative to emphasize the negation. Greek grammar experts Dana and Mantey wrote:

When special stress is placed upon a negative proposition, the subjunctive is used with οὐ μή.[9]

William D. Mounce also addresses this double negative combination:

This chapter describes a fascinating combination used by the Greek language to show emphasis: it is the use of the two negatives οὐ μη, with a subjunctive verb to indicate a strong negation about something in the future. The speaker uses the subjunctive verb to suggest a future possibility, but in the same phrase he emphatically denies (by means of the double negative) that such could ever happen.[10]

This double negative with a subjunctive is the exact combination used in the Greek of Luke 22:16 above.

If Jesus had intended to eat the Passover that night before he suffered, he would instead have said something like, "I've greatly desired to eat this Passover with you before my suffering, and thankfully

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

I'll get to eat it tonight at my Last Supper, because my suffering begins in just over 12 hours. Since my suffering doesn't start until tomorrow, I therefore will eat the Passover before my suffering."

However, since his suffering would precede the eating of the Passover, Jesus would no longer be with his disciples when the time came for eating. He would be on the cross at the exact time the nation was preparing to sacrifice its lambs, so how could he possibly be present to eat the Passover? With Jesus using the strongest emphasis the Greek language allows to say he would not eat this Passover before his suffering, why do commentators disagree with him and say that he not only *will*but that he did eat this Passover before he suffered?

SAYING "I GO UNTO MY FATHER," CHRIST EXALTS PEACE, GOOD WILL, LOVE—"I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, THE LIFE"—REASSURES THE APOSTLES—THE COMFORTER: "PEACE I LEAVE WITH YOU"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

John 14: 5-31.

Thomas said to him, “Lord, we do not know where you are going, and how can we know the way?”

Jesus said to him, “I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me.

“If you had known me, you would have known my Father also; and from now on you know him and have seen Him.”

Philip said to Him, “Lord, show us the Father, and it is sufficient for us.”

Jesus said to him, “Have I been with you so long, and yet you have not known me, Philip? He who has seen me has seen the Father; so how can you say, ‘Show us the Father’?

“Do you not believe that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? The words that I speak to you I do not speak on my own authority; but the Father who dwells in me does the works. “Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father in me, or else believe me for the sake of the works themselves.

“Truly, truly, I say to you, he who believes in me, the works that I do he will do also; and greater works than these he will do, because I go to my Father.

“And whatever you ask in my name, that I will do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If you ask anything in my name, I will do it.

“If you love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray [to] the Father, and He will give you another Helper, that He may abide with you forever — “the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him; but you know Him, for He dwells with you and will be in you. I will not leave you orphans; I will come to you.

“A little while longer and the world will see me no more, but you will see me. Because I live, you will live also. At that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

“He who has my commandments and keeps them, it is he who loves me. And he who loves me will be loved by my Father, and I will love him and manifest myself to him.”

Judas (not Iscariot) said to him, “Lord, how is it that you will manifest yourself to us, and not to the world?”

Jesus answered and said to him, “If anyone loves me, he will keep my word; and my Father will love him, and We will come to him and make Our home with him. He who does not love me does not keep my words; and the word which you hear is not mine but the Father's who sent me.

“These things I have spoken to you while being present with you.

“But the Helper [Comforter], the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, He will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all things that I said to you.

“Peace I leave with you, my peace I give to you; not as the world gives do I give to you.

“Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. You have heard me say to you, ‘I am going away and coming back to you.’ If you loved me, you would rejoice because I said, ‘I am going to the Father,’ for my Father is greater than I.

“And now I have told you before it comes, that when it does come to pass, you may believe.

“I will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world is coming, and he has nothing in me. But that the world may know that I love the Father, and as the Father gave me commandment, so I do.

“Arise, let us go from here.” 121*

Footnotes

121:* More than likely, John is implying that Jesus and his followers are leaving the upper room, making their way to the Kidron Valley, and arriving in the Garden of Gethsemane (John 18:1, i.e., see Chapter LXXXI)
[Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The concluding verse (John 14:31) is somewhat enigmatic, for it seems to be the end of the discourse in the upper room. It is possible to regard the remainder of the discourse as taking place in the open air, although in 18:1 (Chapter LXXXI) Jesus is said to have ‘left’ with his disciples, and it would be necessary to suppose that chs. 15-17 (Chapters LXXVIII – LXXX) were uttered on the way to the Kidron Valley. Some have supposed that Ch. 14 (this Chapter, LXXVII) should follow Ch. 17 (LXXX), but there is no evidence for such rearrangement. The only other alternative is to suppose that the concluding verse (John 14:31) implied an intention which was fulfilled some time later. On the whole the first suggestion is fraught with the least difficulties.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

[Source: New Bible Commentary]

Some have understood Jesus' statement "Get up, let us go from here" to mean that at this point Jesus and the disciples got up and left the room where the meal was served and began the journey to the garden of Gethsemane. If so, the rest of the "Farewell Discourse" takes place en route. Others have pointed to this statement as one of the "seams" in the discourse, indicating that the author used preexisting sources. Both explanations are possible, but not really necessary. Jesus could simply have stood up at this point (the disciples may or may not have stood with him) to finish the discourse before finally departing (in 18:1, i.e., Chapter LXXX). (In any case it may be argued that Jesus refers not to a literal departure at this point, but to preparing to meet the enemy who is on the way already in the person of Judas and the soldiers with him.)

Question
Why wouldn't they be doing that same as any one of us do when finishing a meal: standing up, continuing and/or finishing our talking, cleaning up or rearranging room; continuing any discussions as they walk their way downstairs and outside, etc.?

"I AM THE TRUE VINE"—RELATIONSHIP IN LOVE—"WHEN THE COMFORTER IS COME"—"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN THAN THIS. . ."

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

John 15: 1-27, 16: 1.

“I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinedresser. Every branch in me that does not bear fruit He takes away; and every branch that bears fruit He prunes, that it may bear more fruit. [see Extra Note 1]

“You are already clean because of the word which I have spoken to you.

“Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it abides in the vine, neither can you, unless you abide in me. I am the vine, you are the branches. He who abides in me, and I in him, bears much fruit; for without me you can do nothing.

“If anyone does not abide in me, he is cast out as a branch and is withered; and they gather them and throw them into the fire, and they are burned. If you abide in me, and my words abide in you, you will ask what you desire, and it shall be done for you. By this my Father is glorified, that you bear much fruit; so you will be my disciples.

“As the Father loved me, I also have loved you; abide in my love. If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in His love.

“These things I have spoken to you, that my joy may remain in you, and that your joy may be full.

“This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you.

“Greater love has no one than this, than to lay down one's life for his friends. You are my friends if you do whatever I command you. No longer do I call you servants, for a servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, for all things that I heard from my Father I have made known to you.

“You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should remain, that whatever you ask the Father in my name He may give you.

“These things I command you, that you love one another.

“If the world hates you, you know that it hated me before it hated you. If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you.

“Remember the word that I said to you, ‘A servant is not greater than his master.’

“If they persecuted me, they will also persecute you. If they kept my word, they will keep yours also. But all these things they will do to you for my name's sake, because they do not know Him who sent me.

“If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin, but now they have no excuse for their sin. He who hates me hates my Father also.

“If I had not done among them the works which no one else did, they would have no sin; but now they have seen and also hated both me and my Father.

“But this happened that the word might be fulfilled which is written in their law, ‘They hated me without a cause.’

“But when the Helper comes, whom I shall send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who proceeds from the Father, He will testify of me. And you also will bear witness, because you have been with me from the beginning. [see Extra Note 2]

Extra Note 1:

The vine allegory

It is not clear from the narrative where Jesus was when he gave this teaching. If 14:31 marks the point of departure from the upper room, it is possible that Jesus and his disciples were passing by a vine which was then used as a spiritual illustration. I am the vine (1) is the last of the great ‘I am’ sayings in John's gospel. Its significance can be appreciated against the background of the OT idea of Israel as a vine or vineyard (Psalms 80:8-16; Isa 5:1-7; Ezekiel 15:1-6; 19:10-14). Jesus was the true vine in the sense of being genuine as compared with Israel which had not acted in harmony with its calling. Jesus was the reality of which Israel was but the type. The gardener, identified as the Father, would be responsible for the caring for the vine. The figure shows how close the relationship between Jesus and the Father is. Since the purpose of the vine is to produce fruit, the focus of attention falls on the branches and what needs to be done to ensure a good crop (2). Pruning is the most important operation for maintaining the fruitfulness of the vine. A completely fruitless branch is not worthy of its place in the vine and has to be removed, whereas weak branches can be strengthened by being pruned. Among the disciples Judas was removed while the others had to undergo ‘pruning’ experiences before producing fruit after Pentecost. Since Jesus spoke of his word as the means of pruning, he could speak as if the disciples were already pruned (3), although the process was clearly far from complete.

Since branches unattached to the vine have no chance of bearing fruit, it is imperative for the disciples to remain in me (4). The main purpose of the vine allegory is to stress the importance of their dependence on him. V 5 underlines the disciples' helplessness apart from Jesus. The 'casting out' of v 6is the complement of the pruning action in v 2. There is no need here to regard the fire as anything more than a vivid detail of the parable. These branches which need to be lopped are destined for the bonfire. But the application of the illustration is found in v 7, where remaining in the vine is closely linked with prayer. Those close enough to the vine will not wish to ask anything not in line with the vine himself. This paragraph ends (8) with a further emphasis on the need for fruitfulness; it is not an end in itself but is meant to bring glory to the Father.
[Source: New Bible Commentary]

John 15:1-17 Jesus' allegory of the vine and the branches is at the very heart of the Farewell Discourse (John 13:31-16:33). The OT frequently uses the vineyard or vine as a symbol for Israel, God's covenant people, especially in two "vineyard songs" in Isaiah (Isaiah 5:1-7; 27:2-6). However, Israel's failure to produce fruit resulted in divine judgment. Jesus, by contrast, is "the true vine," and his followers abide in him and produce fruit.

15:1 This is the last of Jesus' seven I am sayings in this Gospel (see note on 6:35 below). True contrasts Jesus with OT Israel, reinforcing John's theme that Jesus is the true Israel. The vinedresser refers back to Isaiah's first vineyard song, where God is depicted as tending his vineyard, only to be rewarded with wild grapes (Isaiah 5:1-7; cf. Ps 80:8-9). The fruitfulness of those in Christ contrasts with the fruitlessness of Israel.

> 6:35 Jesus' claim, " I am the bread of life ," constitutes the first of seven "I am" sayings recorded in this Gospel (see Chart below). Apart from these sayings there are also several absolute statements where Jesus refers to himself as "I am" (e.g., v. 20 ; 8:24 , 28 , 58 ; 18:5), in keeping with the reference to God as "I am" in Ex 3:14 and the book of Isaiah (e.g., Isa 41:4 ; 43:10 , 25). Jesus is the "bread of life" in the sense that he nourishes people spiritually and satisfies the deep spiritual longings of their souls. In that sense, those who trust in him shall not hunger ; that is, their spiritual longing to know God will be satisfied (cf. John 4:14 for a similar discussion of satisfying people's spiritual thirst). [See Chp. XXXVI]

15:2 The divine vinedresser does two things to ensure maximum fruit production:

(1) he removes unfruitful branches, and (2) he prunes all the others (cf. Hebrews 6:7-8).
Does not bear fruit seems to indicate that the person symbolized by such a branch is not a true believer (see John 15:6,8). In that case, in me is just a loose connection needed to make the metaphor of a vine work, reflecting a claim to be Christ's that is not genuine and not implying actual regeneration or true belief. This then would be one of several verses in John showing that not all who follow Jesus for a time and hear his teaching are genuine believers (cf. 6:66). Others understand these branches to represent true believers who are "unfruitful" for various reasons. In favor of this view is the fact that Jesus says such branches are "in me," and that seems parallel to being "in Christ," as only believers are. However, these unfruitful branches appear to be the same branches that are "thrown away" and "burned" in 15:6, which seems clearly to be a picture of final judgment.
Fruit is an image for good results coming from the life of a believer, probably in terms of bringing benefit to the lives of others and advancing the work of God in the world (see Matt 13:8; cf. Gal 5:22-23 for a different image of "fruit" as changed character).
he takes away. The Greek verb airō can also mean "lifts up" in certain contexts, and some use this to argue that this means God "lifts up" unfruitful branches from the ground so that they will become more fruitful. This interpretation is taken by those who think the branches represent true believers who are not fruitful. But this sense seems less likely because the unfruitful branches in John 15:6 are "thrown into the fire, and burned," which is an image of final judgment. "He prunes" gives a picture of painful but necessary removal of some interests and activities in order that the remaining branches may bear even more fruit. The word translated "prunes" (Gk. kathairō) often means "to clean," and has the same root as the adjective katharos, translated "clean" in 15:3.

Extra Note 2:

The Helper is the Holy Spirit.
Whom I will send indicates that the Holy Spirit will come in new power into the world in obedience to God the Son.
But who proceeds from the Father indicates that the Holy Spirit will also come in obedience to the directions of God the Father. Both the Father and the Son will send the Holy Spirit into the world in new fullness at Pentecost (see Acts 2:1-33).
He will bear witness about me reminds believers that when they bear witness about Christ, the Holy Spirit is working silently and invisibly through their words.

THE COMFORTER, THE SPIRIT OF TRUTH: "BE OF GOOD CHEER, I HAVE OVERCOME THE WORLD"—"YOUR SORROW SHALL BE TURNED TO JOY"—CHRIST TO DEPART THIS LIFE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

John 16: 2-33.

“They will put you out of the synagogues; yes, the time is coming that whoever kills you will think that he offers God service. And these things they will do to you * because they have not known the Father nor me.

“But these things I have told you, that when the time comes, you may remember that I told you of them. And these things I did not say to you at the beginning, because I was with you.

“But now I go away to him who sent me, and none of you asks me, ‘Where are you going?’ But because I have said these things to you, sorrow has filled your heart. Nevertheless I tell you the truth. It is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper will not come to you; but if I depart, I will send Him to you. And when He has come, He will convict the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: of sin, because they do not believe in me; of righteousness, because I go to my Father and you see me no more; of judgment, because the ruler of this world is judged.

“I still have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. “However, when He, the Spirit of truth, has come, He will guide you into all truth; for He will not speak on His own authority, but whatever He hears He will speak; and He will tell you things to come. He will glorify me, for He will take of what is mine and declare it to you.

“All things that the Father has are mine. Therefore I said that me will take of mine and declare it to you.

“A little while, and you will not see me; and again a little while, and you will see me, because I go to the Father.”

Then some of His disciples said among themselves, “What is this that he says to us, ‘A little while, and you will not see me; and again a little while, and you will see me’; and, ‘because I go to the Father’?” [see Extra Note 1]

They said therefore, “What is this that he says, ‘A little while’? We do not know what he is saying.”

Now Jesus knew that they desired to ask him, and he said to them, “Are you inquiring among yourselves about what I said, ‘A little while, and you will not see me; and again a little while, and you will see me’? [see Extra Note 1]

“Truly, truly, I say to you that you will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice; and you will be sorrowful, but your sorrow will be turned into joy.

“A woman, when she is in labor, has sorrow because her hour has come; but as soon as she has given birth to the child, she no longer remembers the anguish, for joy that a human being has been born into the world. Therefore you now have sorrow; but I will see you again and your heart will rejoice, and your joy no one will take from you.

“And in that day you will ask me nothing. Truly, truly, I say to you, whatever you ask the Father in my name He will give you. Until now you have asked nothing in my name. Ask, and you will receive, that your joy may be full.

“These things I have spoken to you in figurative language; but the time is coming when I will no longer speak to you in figurative language, but I will tell you plainly about the Father. In that day you will ask in my name, and I do not say to you that I will ask the Father for you; for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me, and have believed that I came forth from God.

“I came forth from the Father and have come into the world. Again, I leave the world and go to the Father.”

His disciples said to him, “See, now you are speaking plainly, and using no figure of speech! Now we are sure that you know all things, and have no need that anyone should question you. By this we believe that you came forth from God.”

Jesus answered them, “Do you now believe? Indeed the hour is coming, yes, has now come, that you will be scattered, each to his own, and will leave me alone. And yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.

“These things I have spoken to you, that in me you may have peace. In the world you will have tribulation; but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.”

Footnotes

Extra Note 1:
A little while . . . again a little while (John 16:16). The first reference is plainly to the brief period between the crucifixion and the resurrection of Jesus, and the second reference is to the resurrection appearances (the “little while” after which the disciples will see Jesus again). The phrase is repeated by both Jesus and the disciples (vv. 17-19), recalling four previous instances of “a little while” in John's Gospel (cf. 7:33; 12:35; 13:33; 14:19).
[Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The phrase after a little while, you will see me is sometimes taken to refer to the coming of the Holy Spirit after Jesus departs, but (as at John 14:19) it is much more probable that it refers to the postresurrection appearances of Jesus to the disciples. There is no indication in the context that the disciples will see Jesus only with “spiritual” sight, as would be the case if the coming of the Spirit is in view.

Extra Note 2:
The statement I am leaving the world and going to the Father is a summary of the entire Gospel of John. It summarizes the earthly career of the Word made flesh, Jesus of Nazareth, on his mission from the Father to be the Savior of the world, beginning with his entry into the world as he came forth from God and concluding with his departure from the world as he returned to the Father.

John - Chapter 16 Summary
Jesus now concludes His Last Supper night teaching with insights into the future His followers can expect. They can expect to be rejected by the leaders of their own people (John 16:1-4). They can expect to be supported in the world by the active, convicting ministry of the Holy Spirit (v. 5-15). They can expect that Jesus will come again (v. 16-24). Finally, they can expect to find peace in the certain knowledge that Christ and God the Father are one (v. 25-33).

CHRIST PRAYS FOR AID—"I HAVE FINISHED THE WORK"—PRAYS FOR THE APOSTLES ALSO, AND THEIR WORK—PRAYS FOR ALL BELIEVERS

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: Upper Room.

John 17: 1-26.

Jesus spoke these words, lifted up His eyes to heaven, and said: “Father, the hour has come. Glorify Your Son, that Your Son also may glorify You, as You have given him authority over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as you have given him. And this is eternal life, that they may know You, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom You have sent. I have glorified You on the earth. I have finished the work which You have given me to do. And now, O Father, glorify me together with Yourself, with the glory which I had with You before the world was.

“I have manifested Your name to the men whom You have given me out of the world. They were Yours, You gave them to me, and they have kept Your word. Now they have known that all things which You have given me are from You. For I have given to them the words which You have given me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came forth from You; and they have believed that You sent me.

“I pray for them. I do not pray for the world but for those whom You have given me, for they are Yours. And all mine are Yours, and Yours are mine, and I am glorified in them. Now I am no longer in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to You. Holy Father, keep through Your name those whom You have given me, that they may be one as We are. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in Your name. Those whom You gave me I have kept; and none of them is lost except the son of perdition, that the Scripture might be fulfilled.

“But now I come to You, and these things I speak in the world, that they may have my joy fulfilled in themselves. I have given them Your word; and the world has hated them because they are not of the world, just as I am not of the world. I do not pray that You should take them out of the world, but that You should keep them from the evil one. They are not of the world, just as I am not of the world. Sanctify them by Your truth. Your word is truth. As You sent me into the world, I also have sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also may be sanctified by the truth.

"I do not pray for these alone, but also for those who will believe in me through their word; that they all may be one, as You, Father, are in me, and I in You; that they also may be one in Us, that the world may believe that You sent me. And the glory which You gave me I have given them, that they may be one just as We are one: I in them, and You in me; that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that You have sent me, and have loved them as You have loved me.

"Father, I desire that they also whom You gave me may be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which You have given me; for You loved me before the foundation of the world.

"O righteous Father! The world has not known You, but I have known You; and these have known that You sent me. And I have declared to them Your name, and will declare it, that the love with which You loved me may be in them, and I in them."

CHRIST AGAIN FORETELLS PETER'S THREE DENIALS—IN GETHSEMANE PRAYS WHILE APOSTLES SLEEP—THE SPIRIT WILLING, THE FLESH WEAK —JUDAS AND CROWD WITH WEAPONS FIND JESUS

A.D. 30. Age 33. Mount of Olives. Gethsemane.

Matthew 26: 30-47; Mark 14: 26-43; Luke 22: 39-47; John 18: 1-9.

128* When they had sung a hymn, Jesus came out and went out to the Mount of Olives,128^ as he was accustomed, and his disciples also followed Him. [see Extra Note 1]

Then Jesus said to them, "All of you will be made to stumble 128† because of me this night, for it is written:

> 'I will strike the Shepherd,
> And the sheep will be scattered.'

"But after I have been raised, I will go before you to Galilee."

Peter said to him, "Even if all are made to stumble, yet I will not be."

Jesus said to him, "Truely, I say to you that today, even this night, before the cock crow 128~ twice, you will deny me three times."

But Peter spoke more vehemently, "If I have to die with You, I will not deny you!" And they all said likewise.

Then they came to a place which was named Gethsemane; over the Brook Kidron, where there was a garden, which Jesus and his disciples entered. [see Extra Note 2]

And he said to his disciples, "Sit here while I go and pray over there. Pray that you may not enter into temptation." [see Extra Note 3]

He withdrew from them about a stone's throw, and he took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee (James and John), and he began to be sorrowful and deeply distressed. Then he said to them, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death. Stay here and watch with me."

He went forward a little farther, kneeled down and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, "Abba, Father, all things are possible for You. Father, if it is Your will, take this cup away from me; nevertheless not my will, but Yours, be done." 128±

Then an angel appeared to him from heaven, strengthening him. And being in agony, he prayed more earnestly. Then his sweat became like great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping, and said to Peter, "Simon, are you sleeping? What? Could you not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray, lest you enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

Again, a second time, he went away and prayed, saying, "O my Father, if this cup cannot pass away from me unless I drink it, Your will be done."

And when he returned, he found them asleep again, for their eyes were heavy; and they did not know what to answer him.

So he left them, went away again, and prayed the third time, saying the same words.

When he rose up from prayer, and had come to his disciples, he found them sleeping from sorrow. Then he said to them, "Why do you sleep? Rise and pray, lest you enter into temptation."

Then he came to his disciples and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and resting? It is enough! Behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of man is being betrayed into the hands of sinners. "Rise, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand."

Judas knew the place: for Jesus had often met there with his disciples.

Immediately, while Jesus was still speaking, Judas came, along with a great multitude of men, including a detachment of troops and officers, from the chief priests and Pharisees, scribes and elders; with lanterns and torches, and weapons: swords and clubs.

Jesus therefore, knowing all things that would come upon him, went forward and said to them, "Whom are you seeking?"

They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth."

Jesus said to them, "I am."

And Judas, who betrayed him, also stood with them

Now when he said to them, "I am," they drew back and fell to the ground.

Then he asked them again, "Whom are you seeking?" And they said, "Jesus of Nazareth."

Jesus answered, “I have told you that I am. Therefore, if you seek me, let these go their way,” (that the saying might be fulfilled which he spoke, “Of those whom you gave me I have lost none.”)

128:* Much of interest can be gleaned from a comparison, paragraph by paragraph, of the texts of the several narrators, from this point to the end (Matthew 26, 30 . . . Mark 14, 26 . . .: Luke 22, 39 . . .: John 18, 1 . . .; and so on).

128:^ The location of the Mount of Olives is significant in the Old Testament in that Zechariah 9:9 and Zechariah 14:1-5 stated that the Messiah would come to Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. [Source: Wikipedia]

128:† . . . be offended [KJV]: fall away, desert, to sin, to stumble

128:~ cock crow [KJV, ASV, Lamsa, Geneva, Rotherham, Douay-Rheims, ERV]. Many translations have “rooster crows” [NKJV, NASB, HCSB, NET, ESV, NIV, NLT, WEB, OJB, CEV, OriginalABPE, APNT] or “cock crows” [AMP, NABRE, Jubilee, MKJV, KJ2000, NJB, AENT] or “cock shall (or will) crow” [YLT, Webster’s, Murdock, Etheridge, AramaicBPE, AENT] or “cock sounds twice” [ACV] or “cock’s second cry” [BBE]. Greek interlinears, such as for Stephanus, Scrivener, Westcott-Hort, et. al.; indicate, “twice cock crow”. The Apostolic Bible Polyglot translates the same Greek words as “twice rooster calls out loud”. The Emphatic Diaglott translates it as, “twice a cock to have crowed” and then ‘smooths it out’ by saying, “cock crows twice”.

See Extra Note 5 (below) and Extra Notes in Chapter LXXXIII for more corresponding commentary about Peter’s denial and the “cock crow” watch.

128:‡ Mark has it, ". . . nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt."

Comment: If it is the will of God that Jesus came to die, why then did Jesus pray that the cup will pass away? Jesus is God the son and he knows exactly the will of his Father and yet he is praying for that will to pass away. I hope you will see the absurdity in that train of thought. Jesus prayed that the cup will pass away because he knew that his death is not the will of God but a consequence of the free will of men. Again an earthly analogy may suffice. If your loved ones are entrapped in a buliding engulfed by fire and you really loved them, you will try to save them even at the cost of your own death. Bystanders who knew how you loved your family predicted that you will enter the fire to save your family inspite of the intensity of the flame. True to their prediction, you came, entered the burning house and rescued your family. In the process you got burnt to death by fire. It is correct to report that your love made you to enter the burning house. It is also correct to report that in saving your family you got fatally burnt by fire but it is wrong to say that you entered the fire to die and that being fatally burnt by fire saved your family.

about a stone's throw: fifty, or sixty feet(1) from the place where they were

Extra Note 4:
Side Note: People who insist that "slain in the spirit" includes "falling backwards" don't know the Scriptures, because no believer in the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob throughout the Scriptures ever "fell backwards" during their worship of Him! They always "fell forward" onto their faces! (See passages such as Genesis 18:2, 24:26, 24:48; Luke 5:8 and Matthew 26:39, to mention just a few.)
[Source: http://therefinersfire.org/slain_in_the_spirit.htm]

John 18:6: It is evident that it was the power of God that made these … men fall backward to the ground, but why did it happen when He said, "I am he"?

In this verse, and also John 18:8, the word "he" is italicized. That means that the word "he" was not in the original text but was added by the translators to make the sentence grammatically correct. This serves a useful purpose and is very helpful in most cases. However, the translators used italics to indicate these additions so that we could be aware of what the text literally said.

In this instance, Jesus literally said, "I am." Since Jesus was God manifest in the, His statement of "I am" carried just as much weight as when it was spoken to Moses (Exodus 3:14). This was nothing less than the Almighty God releasing His glory through this powerful statement of "I AM." No wonder these men were knocked to the ground.

This graphically illustrates how Jesus could have very easily defended Himself against any size army that could have come to take His life. As He said in John 10:18, "No man taketh it [i.e., His life] from me, but I lay it down of myself" (brackets mine). Compare this with Matthew 26:53.

Coming out, Jesus went to the Mount of Olives, as He was accustomed, and His disciples also followed Him.	And when they had sung a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.	And when they had sung a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.	When Jesus had spoken these words, He went out with His disciples over the Brook Kidron,

When He came to the place, He said to them, "Pray that you may not enter into temptation."	Then they came with them to a place called Gethsemane;	Then Jesus came with them to a place called Gethsemane,	where there was a garden, which He and His disciples entered.
			And Judas, who betrayed Him, also knew the place; for Jesus often met there with His disciples.
	And He said to His disciples, "Sit here while pray"	said to the disciples, "Sit here while I go and pray over there."
	And He took Peter, James and John with Him, and He began to be troubled and deeply distressed.	He took with Him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and He began to be sorrowful and deeply distressed.
	Then He said to them, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death. Stay here and watch."	Then He said to them, "My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death. Stay here and watch with Me."
And He was withdrawn from them about a stone's throw, and He knelt down and prayed,	He went a little farther and fell on the ground, and prayed that if it were possible, the hour might pass from him.	He went a little farther and fell on His face, and prayed,
Saying, "Father, if it is Your will, take this cup away from Me; nevertheless not My will, but Yours, be done."	And he said, "Abba, Father, all thinks are possible for You. Take this cup away from Me; nevertheless, not what I will, but what You will."	"O My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from Me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as You will."
Then an angel appeared to Him from heaven, strengthening Him. And being in agony, He prayed more earnestly. Then His sweat became like great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

Extra Note 5

Question: What is Peter's response to Jesus' announcement that when He is killed the Apostles will desert him?
Answer: He bravely proclaims that unlike the others his faith in Jesus will never falter and he is willing to die for Jesus.In Luke's Gospel, Jesus offers encouragement to St. Peter when He tells Peter that He has prayed for him and when Peter regains his faith he is to take a leadership to "strengthen his brothers" (Luke 22:32).

In verse 34 Jesus tells Peter that before the "cockcrow" Peter will deny Him a significant three times. The "cockcrow" was a trumpet call at 3 AM that signaled the end of the third night watch and the beginning of the fourth and last watch from 3-6 AM. The "cockcrow" is mentioned frequently in the Mishnah as a trumpet signal and also in the diaries of Christian pilgrims visiting Jerusalem in the 4th century AD. In Jesus time and as long as the Temple stood, it was, for example, the time when the altar in the inner courtyard of the Temple was cleansed (Mishnah: Yoma, 1:8), and it was the signal for the Superintendent of the Temple to call the priests to awake, ritually bathe and dress before presenting themselves for the first drawing of lots for preparing for the morning worship service (Mishnah: Tamid, 1:2). Later it also became the signal when Christian pilgrims were called to early morning prayers. The 4th century AD Spanish lady Egeria mentioned the signal of the "cockcrow" frequently in her diary and St. Hippolytus wrote that cockcrow prayers were always said in Church in obedience to evangelical counsel.

In Jerusalem there were two different groups of night watchmen. The Levitical guards at the Temple kept the four night watches and signaled the "cockcrow" with a trumpet blast at 3 AM and the Roman soldiers at the Antonia Fortress also kept the four night watches and signaled the "cockcrow" trumpet at 3 AM. In Mark's Gospel Jesus tells Peter: "Amen, I say to you, this very night before the cockcrows twice you will deny me three times" (Mark 14:30; emphasis added), noting the historical double "cockcrow."

With this last exchange, Jesus and the Apostles reach the Mt. of Olives and Jesus' appointment with His destiny.

The end of each watch was signaled by a trumpet signal as Jesus noted in Mark 13:35:
So stay awake, because you do not know when the master of the house is coming: evening, midnight, cockcrow or dawn.

Note (#77) for Mark 14:30 in the Aramaic English New Testament (AENT): The “temple crier” was a Gaver, Hebrew for “cock” or “rooster”. He called out loudly to announce early morning services at the Temple.

[Source: AENT]

“Cock Summons”

Jesus said Peter would deny him three times before the cock crows. In fact that early morning “cock crow” (“cock summons” in Greek) was not a rooster, as many suppose, but the calling out to the priests to make ready for the morning sacrifice. There were three callings (summons) that went forth: early, middle, and late. The Talmud shows that there were twelve cocks (similar to faucets) at the laver in the Temple where the priests would first wash their hands and feet to prepare for the sacrifices. The Jewish Encyclopedia (under Gebini) says this Temple crier’s voice (cock crow) could be heard for miles as he called the priests to prepare for the sacrifice.

THE BETRAYAL: JUDAS' KISS—PETER MILITANT—CHRIST HAILED TO COURT—AN OFFICER STRIKES JESUS THOUGH BOUND—"ALL THE DISCIPLES FORSOOK HIM"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Gethsemane. Jerusalem.

Matthew 26: 48-58; Mark 14: 44-50, 53-54; Luke 22: 47-55; John 18: 10-16, 19-23.

Now Judas, his betrayer, had given them a sign, saying, "Whomever I kiss, he is the one; seize him and take him away under guard."

130* Judas went before, and went up to Jesus, to kiss him: and said, Greetings, Rabbi!" and kissed him.

Jesus said unto Judas,"Friend, why have you come?" 130† "Judas, are you betraying the Son of man with a kiss?"

Then they laid hands on Jesus.

When those around Jesus saw what was going to happen, they said to him, "Lord, shall we strike with the sword?"

Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it and struck the high priest's servant, Malchas, and cut off his right ear.

But Jesus answered and said, "Permit even this."131* And Jesus touched his ear and healed him.

Then Jesus said to Peter, "Put your sword in its place, for all who take the sword will perish by the sword. Or do you think that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he will provide me with more than twelve legions of angels? "[But if I did,] how would the Scriptures be fulfilled that describe what must happen now?"

In that hour Jesus said to the multitudes, "Have you come out, as against a robber, with swords and clubs to take me? I sat daily with you, teaching in the temple, and you did not seize me. But all this was done that the Scriptures of the prophets might be fulfilled."

Then all the disciples forsook him and fled.

naked body. And the young men laid hold of him, and he left the linen cloth and fled from them naked. [see Extra Note 1]

Then the detachment of troops and the captain and the officers of the Jews arrested Jesus and bound Him. And they led Him away. They brought him into the palace of the high priest; to Annas first, for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas who was high priest that year. (Now it was Caiaphas who advised the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people.) [see Extra Note 2]

And Simon Peter followed Jesus at a distance, and so did another disciple. Now that disciple was known to the high priest, and went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest. But Peter stood at the door outside. Then the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to her who kept the door, and brought Peter in.

When they had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, Peter sat amongst the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

Annas asked Jesus of his disciples, and of his doctrine.

Jesus answered him, “I spoke openly to the world. I always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where the Jews always meet, and in secret I have said nothing. Why do you ask me? Ask those who have heard me what I said to them. Indeed they know what I said.”

And when he had said these things, one of the officers who stood by struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, “Is that the way you answer the high priest?”

Jesus answered him, “If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why do you strike me?”

Then Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

Any Significance to the Young Man Who Fled Away Naked? (Mark 14:51-52)

young man. Referred to only in Mark's Gospel. He is not specifically identified, but his anonymity may suggest that he was John Mark, writer of this Gospel.
linen garment. Ordinarily the outer garment was made of wool. The fine linen garment left behind in the hand of a guard indicates that the youth was from a wealthy family. fled naked. The absence of an undergarment suggests that he had dressed hastily to follow Jesus.
[Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]

This incident is recorded only in Mark's Gospel, leading many commentators to think that Mark himself, the author of this Gospel, was this young man, but that out of modesty he did not include his own name.
[Source: ESV Study Bible note]

The account of Jesus' arrest ends with this comment about an unnamed *young man. There does not seem to be any theological reason for Mark to include this incident in his Gospel. The older explanation, that it is an autobiographical detail about Mark, is as good as any.
[Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

The explanation I have always heard for this is that this young man was Mark himself and it is "Mark's signature"- a way of saying "I was there". This is connected with the assumption that Mark's house was possibly the place where the disciples ate [the Last Supper]. This builds off of the fact that Mark's mother and house seem to be a prominent place in the New Testament community (Acts 12:12).

This view coincides with Zondervan's NIV commentary thoughts on this verse:

Only Mark records this mysterious episode. The "young man" is not identified, but many argue that he is Mark. Why else would he insert such a trivial detail in so solemn a story? Was this Mark's way of saying, "I was there too"? Ordinarily men wore an undergarment, but this young man had only an outer garment, made of linen, an expensive material worn only by the rich. He fled naked. The forsakenness of Jesus was total; even this youth forsook him.

This is the explanation I have always heard, though I admit I am a little bit skeptical, at the best this can only be an interesting idea and speculation. Whether you think this is Mark or some other significant figure all of this is beside the point. The primary point of recording this detail is that this man was in a rush to get out, even if that meant leaving his clothes behind. The rush was because of fear for the [Temple] guard, this explains the disciples forsaking Jesus. They did not want to stick around and also be thrown in jail, they got out when they could.

So in summary: it is possible that this is Mark but it is not definite. Simply I think this verse points out the dangerous and tense atmosphere during the arrest of Jesus. People were fleeing for their lives.

[Source: http://hermeneutics.stackexchange.com/questions/4826/what-is-the-significance-of-the-young-man-who-runs-away-naked-in-marks-gospel]

Mark describes the young man in question as a neaniskos, meaning he was in the prime of his life, perhaps 15 to 25 years old. The verb that is used, sunékolouthei, means "was following as a disciple" or "was accompanying." Since no one evinces any surprise at the young man's presence, he was probably a disciple.

(Fascinatingly, the word neaniskos, which is rare in the Christian Testament, crops up a second time in Mark, to describe the young man in the long white robe who tells the women disciples that Jesus has been raised and they will see him again in Galilee.)

In verses 14:51-52, Mark tells us that "A young man was present who was wearing nothing but a sindon. The posse caught hold of him, but he left the sindon and ran away naked."

Here's the big discovery I stumbled over by accident: A sindon was a linen cloth used for clothing or burial. The word is used exactly four times in the Christian Testament: in the three synoptic gospels to describe the cloth in which Jesus' dead body was wrapped for burial... and here. This to me is the connection of the naked young man and the burial of Jesus and the proclamation of the Easter Angel. In Mark's Gospel, he explicitly says that the person that proclaimed to the confused women present at the tomb was a young man, not an angel wearing a white robe. For him to be wearing a sindon, which is very specifically used for burial clothing, has some deliberate correlations by the Gospel writer Mark in identifying the significant transformation of the death and rebirth of humanity as found in the Resurrection. The motif of the clothing reinforces the impression that the two episodes form a coherent whole. Mark often mentions clothing with strong symbolic overtones so that it has special significance for him. Consequently the clothes of John the Baptist in Mark 1:6 identify him as a prophet, and, therefore, as an important figure at the beginning of the gospel. The clothing of Jesus in the episode on the transfiguration in Mark 9:3 becomes dazzling white, 'whiter than anyone in the world could bleach them.' The nature of the clothing underlines the mysterious significance of the event. In Mark 14:30" 33, the High Priest tore his clothes after Jesus' pronouncement about the Son of Man at the right hand and coming with the clouds.

These references to exceptional clothing are found at crucial points at the beginning and at the turning point of the narrative where important revelations are given. In the episode on John the Baptist in Mark 1:7 there is a reference to the coming one and in the transfiguration narrative in Mark 9:7 the voice from the cloud reveals Jesus as the divine Son to whom his followers should listen. The action of the High Priest also takes place at a seminal moment in the trial of Jesus. In all of these cases, the significance of Jesus is highlighted through the narrative detail of clothing.

The clothing of the young man in Mark 14:51-52 and in 16:5 should be understood against this background. The young man in Gethsemane, according to Mark, is dressed in a linen cloth. How important this was to the author is clear from the fact that he repeats the reference in the following description of how the young man, having fled naked, left behind. This focus on the clothes is not merely a report of an event, but is also an indication of the significance of the event. In a Jewish context nakedness would be regarded as a shameful state. Mark is implying that the young man, eager to follow Jesus after others fail him, also falls into shame. His leaving behind his clothes is stressed also by the ensuing and explicit reference to his nakedness.

Exegetes who identify the two young men use this motif of clothing to point to the complete reversal of his condition. If the previous dress (in the garden) was the linen cloth, this one in the tomb, however, is white. Though he is dressed in both cases, the difference in dress expresses the development within the narrative. The portrayal is therefore characterized by closure: the shameful condition of the young man as he flees the scene of Jesus arrest in the nude is replaced by his restoration. What would otherwise be an incomplete narrative if the coherence between two episodes is not understood becomes a coherent picture because of the motif of clothing.

At night, one might have expected the disciple to have an outer garment as well as the linen cloth, and he is probably already chilly (cf. Mark 14:54). (Although one could sleep naked inside one's home in Palestine in April, Jerusalem's higher elevation makes Mark 14:54 a likely indication that it was a cool night; Passover pilgrims who camped outdoors had coverings.) Others in antiquity left behind cloaks when fleeing. Except for some Jews overwhelmed by Greek culture and considered apostates, Jewish people generally abhorred nakedness. The point is that the man is in a hurry to escape.

Extra Note 2:

Romans and others typically depended on local informers, a role that Judas fills here. Many scholars have noted that this military contingent is described in a manner much like Roman cohorts (so NASB). Nevertheless, the same language was equally used of Jewish units, and this unit is probably the Levite temple guard. (Roman troops would not be used for a routine police action like this one, would not be lent to the chief priests, and Romans would not have taken Jesus to the house of Annas — John 18:13 — whom they had deposed.)

A full cohort in the Roman sense could have involved six hundred soldiers, but a detachment from the cohort is all that John need mean here. Both the temple police and Romans carried torches (two kinds are mentioned here) at night, although only a few need have carried them. The moon would be nearly full at Passover.

[From notes for the Gospel of Mark:] The story of Jesus' trial follows immediately upon his arrest. Objections have been raised as to the historicity of the various accounts of Jesus' trial, because of differences of detail from the rules found in the Mishnah tractate Mishnah Sanhedrin. However, (1) the Mishnah was written around AD 200, whereas the Gospel of Mark was written in the late 60s, over 130 years earlier; (2) the rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin idealize what later rabbis thought should take place in such trials and do not necessarily describe what in fact did take place; (3) it is questionable whether the Sadducees leading the Sanhedrin would have followed the Pharisaic rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin (see Acts 23:6-10); (4) the rules found in Mishnah Sanhedrin sometimes conflict with what the Jewish historian Josephus wrote; (5) existing laws of conduct were not necessarily followed — Jesus was being tried by a kangaroo court, in which the sentence was predetermined and only the charge for carrying it out was sought (Mark 14:55); (6) if we must choose between the trial accounts found in the Gospels and Mishnah Sanhedrin , there is no reason to choose the reliability of Mishnah Sanhedrin over that of the Gospels.

Contrary to detractors, how Jesus is treated in the account fits what we know of the treatment of dissent in antiquity. Apart from outright threats (like armed bands in the wilderness), Rome depended on local aristocracies in the provinces to arrest and accuse troublemakers, though Rome itself inflicted the death penalty (John 18:31). A generation after the scene depicted here, one Joshua son of Hananiah cried out judgment against the temple; the chief priests had him arrested and handed over to the governor. After refusing to respond to the governor's interrogation, Joshua was flogged, Josephus says, until his bones showed (Jewish War 6.301-5). Because they considered that prophet insane and because he had no followers, he was then released — in contrast to Jesus, who had a movement and was viewed as a greater potential political threat. The priestly aristocracy were determined to maintain control at all costs, including by suppressing freedom of speech. The current Sanhedrin consisted especially of immediate descendants of Herod's political appointees, and other Jews (from Josephus to the Dead Sea Scrolls to the Pharisees) criticized a number of high priests in this era as corrupt and sometimes brutal.

Four Gospel Perspectives: Peter following Jesus and entering courtyard…

Luke 22: 54-55	Mark 14:53-54	Matthew 26:57-58	John 18:15-18
[54] Having arrested Him, they led Him and brought Him into the high priest's house. But Peter followed at a distance. [55] Now when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them.	[53] And they led Jesus away to the high priest; and with him were assembled all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes. [54] But Peter followed Him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest. And he sat with the servants and warmed himself at the fire.	[57] And those who had laid hold of Jesus led Him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders were assembled. [58] But Peter followed Him at a distance to the high priest's courtyard. And he went in and sat with the servants to see the end.	[15] And Simon Peter followed Jesus, and so did another disciple. Now that disciple was known to the high priest, and went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest. [16] But Peter stood at the door outside. Then the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to her who kept the door, and brought Peter in. [17] Then the servant girl who kept the door said to Peter, “You are not also one of this Man's disciples, are you?” He said, “I am not.” [18] Now the servants and officers who had made a fire of coals stood there, for it was cold, and they warmed themselves. And Peter stood with them and warmed himself.

CHRIST'S TRIAL CONTINUED—FALSE WITNESS—PETER THRICE DENIES CHRIST—MORNING: FURTHER QUESTIONING—JUDAS A SUICIDE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem.

Matthew 26: 59-75, 27: 1-7; Mark 14: 55-72; Luke 22: 56-71; John 18: 17-27.

With Caiaphas the high priest were assembled the chief priests and the elders and the scribes.

The chief priests, the elders, and all the council sought false testimony against Jesus to put him to death. Many bore false witness against him, but their testimonies did not agree.

But at last two false witnesses came forward and said, “We heard this fellow say, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God, which is made with hands, and to build another in three days, without hands.’” But not even then did their testimony agree.

And the high priest arose and said to him, “Do you answer nothing? What is it these men testify against you?” But Jesus kept silent and answered nothing.

The high priest asked, saying to him, “I put you under oath by the living God: Tell us if you are the Messiah [or Christ], the Son of God!”

Jesus said, “I am. And you will see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of the Power, [132]† and coming with the clouds of heaven.”

Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, “What further need do we have of witnesses? “You have heard the blasphemy! What do you think?”

And they all condemned him to be deserving of death.

Then some began to spit on him, and to blindfold him, and to beat him, and to say to him, “Prophesy!” And the officers struck him on the face with the palms of their hands, saying, “Prophesy to us Messiah, who is the one who hit you?”

Now Peter was below in the courtyard; one of the servant-girls of the high priest came, and seeing Peter warming himself by the fire, she looked at him, and said, "You, too, were with Jesus the Nazarene." [see Extra Note 1]

But he denied it, saying, "I neither know nor understand what you are talking about."

And he went out to the gateway [porch]…and heard the cock crow. [see Extra Note 2]

And a little later, another saw him and said, "You are one of them too! But Peter said, "Man, I am not!"

And after about an hour had passed, another man began to insist, saying, "Certainly this man also was with him, for he is a Galilean and his speech gives him away."

But Peter began to curse and swear, "I do not know this man you are talking about!"

And immediately he heard the cock crow a second time.

And Peter remembered how Jesus had made the remark to him, "Before the cock crow twice, you will deny me three times."

And he began to weep. 132*

As soon as it was day, the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, came together and led Jesus into their council, saying, "If You are the Messiah, tell us."

But he said to them, "If I tell you, you will by no means believe. And if I also ask you, you will by no means answer me nor let me go. Hereafter the Son of Man will sit on the right hand of the power of God."

Then they all said, "Are you then the Son of God?"

So he said to them, "You rightly say that I am."

And they said, "What further testimony do we need? For we have heard it ourselves from his own mouth."

And the whole council conferred together to put Jesus to death.

Then Judas, his betrayer, seeing that Jesus had been condemned, was remorseful and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, saying, "I have sinned by betraying innocent blood."

And they said, "What is that to us? You see to it! "

Then he threw down the pieces of silver in the temple and departed, and went and hanged himself.

But the chief priests took the silver pieces and said, “It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, because they are the price of blood.”

And they consulted together and bought with them the potter's field, to bury strangers in.

(Therefore that field has been called the Field of Blood to this day. Then was fulfilled what was spoken by Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the value of Him who was priced, whom they of the children of Israel priced, and gave them for the potter's field, as the LORD directed me.”)

Footnotes

132:* The interested reader should compare, in the text, the four accounts of Peter's denials: Matthew 26, 69-75: Mark 14, 66-72: Luke 22, 56-62: John 18, 17-27.

132:† The expression the right hand of the Power is a circumlocution for referring to God. Such indirect references to God were common in 1st century Judaism out of reverence for the divine name.

Peter and the rooster's crow: A Contradiction?

After Jesus had been arrested, Peter was confronted by people who identified him as a follower of Jesus. When confronted, Peter denied that he even knew who Jesus was. It is during these interactions that an alleged contradiction takes place. Let's examine the incident of the rooster's crow.

Matthew 26:69-75, Luke 22:54-62, and John 18:17, 25-27 tell us that after Peter denied Christ three different times a rooster crowed. After hearing the sound, Peter remembered what Christ had said and he then broke down and wept bitterly. However, Mark 14:72 records that after Peter's third denial the rooster crowed for a second time. So, did the rooster crow once or twice?

First, let's look at what Jesus originally told Peter:

Matthew 26:33-35 – Peter replied, "Even if all fall away on account of you, I never will." "I tell you the truth," Jesus answered, "this very night, before the rooster crows, you will disown me three times." But Peter declared, "Even if I have to die with you, I will never disown you." And all the other disciples said the same.

Mark 14:30 – "I tell you the truth," Jesus answered, "today–yes, tonight–before the rooster crows twice you yourself will disown me three times."

Luke 22:34 – Jesus answered, "I tell you, Peter, before the rooster crows today, you will deny three times that you know me."

John 13:38 – Then Jesus answered, "Will you really lay down your life for me? I tell you the truth, before the rooster crows, you will disown me three times!

How do we explain the difference?

There are a few different ways that this contradiction can be explained. First, Matthew, Luke, and John do not mention how many times any rooster crowed during the events that transpired. They seem to concentrate on the fact that it was the sound of a rooster that made Peter think about what Christ had said. The reader should take note that none of the three authors say that the rooster crowed only once. They just mention that a rooster crowed at the right time.

It is interesting to note that it is Mark that includes the extra detail about Peter. Peter is given much more attention in Mark's gospel than any of the other apostles or in the other gospels. This is significant because Mark received the information he recorded in his gospel from Peter. It would be normal for Mark to include more details about Peter.[1]

Essentially, in this scenario, Mark was being the most detailed of the gospels when it came to the rooster. In contrast, the other three gospels were not concerned with the rooster's first crow. This is not a contradiction. If Matthew, Luke, and John had said that the rooster had crowed only once then we would have a contradiction.[2] The gospel writers were being selective with the materials that they were presenting and were acting within the perimeters of how an ancient author would have written.

This is how all historians and biographers write. They cannot include every little detail imaginable, and even when they are writing about the same event in history or in a person's life they will often include, exclude, or emphasize different details depending on the purpose of their writing (this would include why Mark quotes Jesus differently about the rooster as this was normal in ancient biography).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Andreas Kostenberger and Justin Taylor summarize:

“Far from representing a contradiction, this variation rather illustrates the Gospel authors’ freedom to include different levels of detail. Mark provides the most detail, while the others note, in more general terms, that at the crowing of a rooster, Peter recalled Jesus’s words, broke down, and fled the scene.”[3]

A second explanation for the alleged discrepancy is that Jesus was referring to the hours of night that were referred to as “the time that the rooster crows.” In Matthew, Luke, and John, Jesus says that Peter would deny him before the “rooster crows.” Night time, according to Jewish reckoning during Christ’s life, was divided into four sections, called watches. For example, Mark 13:35 tells us, “Therefore keep watch because you do not know when the owner of the house will come back– whether in the evening, or at midnight, or when the rooster crows, or at dawn.” The watches, were as follows:

1. Evening – 6pm to 9pm
2. Midnight – 9pm to 12am
3. Rooster Crows – 12am to 3am
4. Morning – 3am to 6am[4]

We do not use the term “rooster crows” in America today, especially since very few people live on farms and raise chickens. Instead, we might use the phrase “early morning” in place of it if we had divided the night into similar “watches.” It is possible that Matthew, Luke, and John had in mind that Peter’s third denial would occur before the third watch of the night. Mark, in contrast, was actually referring to two crows by an actual rooster.[5]

Although this explanation is possible, I believe that the first one presented above is the most likely. Mark seems to point out that Jesus was referring to the crows of an actual rooster instead of the watch during the night. Although Matthew, Luke, and John could be speaking about the watch, the fact that they also refer to the crowing of an actual rooster, and not the watch, in my opinion, better fits the explanation that the gospel writer are emphasizing different details.

Conclusion

From Mark we can conclude that the rooster crowed twice. Mark gives us the most details about the incident. The other three gospels do not go as in-depth as Mark, and concentrate on the fact that Peter remembered Christ’s words after a rooster’s crow just like Jesus said would happen.

Alternate View:

The Denials Of Peter

There are several facts that have to be noticed before we can arrive at a clear understanding of all the denials recorded by Peter by the four evangelists:

I. We have to note that the fact that Peter would deny His Lord was foretold in three distinct prophecies uttered on three separate occasions and differing both as to the occasion and as to particulars.

1. The first was in the upper chamber, recorded in John 13:38. It was absolute as to the fact, general as to the day, but particular as to the number of denials: "a cock shall by no means crow [from this time forth] until thou hast denied Me thrice."
2. The second was in the upper chamber, recorded by Luke 22:34. It was after the "strife", and immediately before leaving the room. It was absolute as to the fact but particular as to the day and the number of denials : "a cock shall not crow this day, before thou wilt thrice deny that thou knowest Me."
3. The third was after the Lord had left the city and immediately before entering the garden of Gethsemane. It is recorded in Mark 14:30, and was particular in every detail : "Verily I say unto thee that (hoti) thou (added by all the texts) this day, in this night, before a cock crow twice, thrice thou wilt deny Me."
   This last prophecy furnishes the key to the whole problem. For, note : -
   (a) that a cock was to crow twice, and
   (b) that Peter would deny thrice;

In other words, before each of the two cockcrowings Peter would thrice deny His Lord. This is confirmed by the repetition in the fulfillment (Mark 14:72). Thus, there would be six denials in all; three before each cockcrowing. Note that the word "cock" has no Article in any of the four records : in each case it is not "the", but "a cockcrowing".

II. Consonant with these data, we have the remarkable fact that Matthew, Luke and John each record three denials, and one concluding cockcrowing. Mark also records three denials, but mentions the two cockcrowings.

Consequently, in the four Gospels there are no less than twelve denials mentioned. And the questions are, which of these are duplicates, and which are the resulting six required by the Lord's third prophecy in Mark 14:30?

III. If we note accurately the marks of time in each Gospel, the place and the persons addressing Peter, every condition required by each of the Greek words employed is fully and perfectly satisfied, without a shadow or suggestion of "discrepancy".

i. The First Series of Three.

1. The First Denial, John 18:17. Place: the door (thura) without. Time: entering. The questioner: the porteress (Gr. thuroros).
2. The Second Denial, Matthew 26:70 (Mark 14:68). Place: the hall (aule). Time: sitting. Questioner:
   a certain maid. Luke 22:56-58 combines the same place and time, with the same maid, and another (heteros, masc.).
3. 3. The Third Denial, Matthew 26:71. Place: the gateway or porch (pulon). Time: an interval of an hour. John 18:25, 26 combines the same place and time, with another maid and bystanders, one of them being a relative of Malchus.

A Cock Crew
(Mark 14: 68. John 18:27)

ii. The Second Series of Three.

1. The First Denial, Mark 14:63. Place: "beneath in the hall". Time: shortly after. Questioner: the maid again.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

2. The Second Denial, Matthew 26:73 (Mark 14:70). Place: the gate (pulon). Time: shortly after. Questioners: the bystanders.
3. The Third Denial (Luke 22:59, 60). Place: the midst of the hall (aule; v. 55). Time: "an hour after" (v. 59). Questioner : a certain one (masc.).

A Cock Crew
(Matthew 26:74. Mark 14:72. Luke 22:61)

IV. We thus have a combined record in which there remains no difficulty, while each word retains its own true grammatical sense.

Matthew 26:20-34; Mark 14:17-30:
Peter is warned that he would deny Jesus after they would finish the meal and leave the room

Luke 22:33-39; John 13:37-38; 18:1:
Peter is warned that he would deny Jesus while they are still at the meal and even before the leave the room.

Luke 22:34; John 13:38:
Peter denies Jesus, before the cock crows.

Mark 14:30,72:
Peter denies Jesus, before the cock crows twice.

The records about the denials of Jesus by Peter in the four gospels are in themselves clear and without contradiction when the details and references mentioned as to time and place as well as people involved are carefully observed. The contradictions are caused by the assumption that Peter denied his Lord three times, which is done because the different gospels speak of three denials each; then these records are taken and it is said that the gospels are inaccurate and that the Bible is unreliable in its statements. When we allow the four gospel records to speak for themselves and when we order the information given in a chronological fashion, very quickly we get a logical and accurate picture of the complete sequence of events which has absolutely no contradictions whatsoever.

The statements in the Bible show that Jesus spoke at three different times that Peter would deny him: (1) while they were still at the meal -- John 13:38; Luke 22:34; (2) after the meal on the way to the garden -- Matthew 26:34; and (3) shortly afterwards yet again -- Mark 14:30 (note the different wording from that mentioned in Matthew 26:34!).

Despite the sincere and meant to be honest assurances of Peter that he would not and most definitely not deny his lord, he did only a short time after those words do exactly what he really did not want to do -- and that not only three times, but a total of six times, during which time a cock crowed after the first three denials and another cock crow was heard after the last denial. The six denials can be summarized as follows: (see 1 below)

Denial #1 -- John 18:15-18: When Jesus was before Annas, Peter was accused by a young doorkeeper as he entered the courtyard from the street, and he denied knowing Jesus in response to her.

Denial #2 -- Matthew 26:69-70; Mark 14:66-69; Luke 22:55-57: Jesus had been led to Caiphas, and a young maiden in the service of the highpriest accused Peter when he was sitting at the fire in the courtyard. He denied Jesus before all who were gathered around the fire.

Denial #3 -- Luke 22:58: Place and time are the same as just before, but this time peter was being accused by a man, and he denied once again that he knew Jesus.

 Cock crowing #1 -- Mark 14:68b

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Denial #4 -- Matthew 26:71-72; Mark 14:69-70a: Jesus was still before Caiphas, and Peter was accused by a maiden, possibly one of the doorkeepers, at the door to the courtyard, and he denied Jesus to that maid.

Denial #5 -- Matthew 26:73-74a; Mark 14:70b-71; John 18:25: Jesus was still before Caiphas, Peter had returned inside the courtyard and was standing near the fire when he was accused of being a disciple of Jesus by several others who concluded this because of his Galilean dialect. This time, Peter started, most likely in order to convince his accusers, to vehemently curse and deny Jesus once again.

Denial #6 -- Luke 22:59-60a; John 18:26-27a: Immediately after the previous denial, another one followed at the same place. This time Peter was accused by a servant of the highpriest who had been present when Jesus was taken captive and who now quickly confirmed the accusations of the others because he recognized Peter.

 Cock crowing #2 -- Matthew 26:74b; Mark 14:72a; Luke 22:60b; John 18:27b (while the last denial was still coming over Peter's lips)

In this matter once again, the Word of God proves itself to be absolutely accurate and reliable. The records do complement each other in a logical fashion and without discrepancies. In all things, one can rely upon God's Word!

Jesus predicts Peter's denial	[walking to Gethsemne] 34 Jesus said to him, "Truly I say to you that this very night, before a cock crows, you shall deny Me three times." 35 Peter said to Him, "Even if I have to die with You, I will not deny You." All the disciples said the same thing too.	[walking to Gethsemane] 30 And Jesus said to him, "Truly I say to you, that you yourself this very night, before a cock crows twice, shall three times deny Me." [in Upper Room] 38 Jesus answered, "Will you lay down your life for Me? Truly, truly, I say to you, a cock shall not crow, until you deny Me three times.

4th Denial					Matthew 26:71-72; Mark 14:69-70a: Jesus was still before Caiaphas, and Peter was accused by a maiden, possibly one of the doorkeepers, at the door to the courtyard, and he denied Jesus to that maid.
5th Denial					Matthew 26:73-74a; Mark 14:70b-71; John 18:25: Jesus was still before Caiaphas, Peter had returned inside the courtyard and was standing near the fire when he was accused of being a disciple of Jesus by several others who concluded this because of his Galilean dialect. This time, Peter started, most likely in order to convince his accusers, to vehemently curse and deny Jesus once again.
6th Denial					Luke 22:59-60a; John 18:26-27a: Immediately after the previous denial, another one followed at the same place. This time Peter was accused by a servant of the high priest who had been present when Jesus was taken captive and who now quickly confirmed the accusations of the others because he recognized Peter.

Another "6 Denials" Alternate View

The prophecy as related in Mark 14:30 is the only one to note two cock crows, and the construction is such that it can be read as "that you today, in this night, before twice the cock crows, thrice you will deny me." Now this could be understood as three denials followed by two cock crows, or it can be three denials, followed by a crow, and three other denials, followed by a crow. But to fit the other recordings of the specifics of the prophecy, that before the cock crows three denials will happen, it logically can only be the latter. Additionally, even in the fulfillment of Mark, the crows are separated in time (Mk 14:68, 72).

So here is a summary of what I came up with as a synthesis of the accounts:

Prophecy (Mt 26:34, Mk 14:30, Lk 22:34, Jn 13:38)

Comparison indicates no cock crowing can occur until at least three denials, but that there are two cock crows that will occur (as I just noted above).

1st Denial (Mt 26:51a-b; Mk 14:54a-b; Lk n/a; Jn 18:16-17)

A young woman at the door upon entering the palace. Only John records the denial, Matthew and Mark only note the entry into the palace, and Luke is silent about this.

2nd Denial (Mt n/a; Mk n/a; Lk 22:55a; Jn 18:18, 25)

Luke only notes the fire, and again it is John's gospel that is the only witness to this denial, which is to "servants and officers" standing around warming themselves at a fire, as Peter stood warming himself. It is "they" who confront him (v.25).

3rd Denial (Mt 26:58c-d; 69-71a; Mk 14:54c-d, 66-68; Lk 22:55b-57; Jn n/a)

John is not a witness of this encounter. Peter is now sitting by the fire (the night is growing longer), and a young woman comes and states she saw Peter with Jesus, which he denies, but now he is getting edgy, because the group thought he was one, and then this young woman came among them and stated the same thing. So Peter leaves the fire and goes "out into the porch" at which time there the...

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

1st Cock Crow Occurred (Mk 14:68 only)

It states it was as Peter went out into the porch that the crow occurs.

4th Denial (Mt 26:71b-72; Mk 14:69-70a; Lk n/a; Jn n/a)

Luke and John are silent here, but another young woman comes, which we know was after his going out into the porch from both accounts, and after the first cock crow from Mark's account, and she confronts Peter and he denies.

5th Denial (Lk 22:58 only)

This is a lone mention by Luke, that occurs after his sitting by the fire (denial #3), for Luke recorded that denial, but this denial is, based off Peter's reply, to a "man" (which means it is not a reference to denial #4, which was a young woman).

6th Denial (Mt 26:73-74a; Mk 70b-71; Lk 22:59-60a; Jn 18:26-27a)

This is the only denial noted by all four accounts. That it is the last one puts emphasis on it. The three synoptic gospels (Mt, Mk, Lk) mention the speech/ethnic aspect that alerts them to Peter. There is a group that accuses him, but John seems to mention a specific one accusing Peter, who was in relation to the one whose ear Peter cut off in the garden (and was himself apparently in the garden at the time, which may be why he was confident Peter was with Jesus, as Luke records of this witness, and why the vehement reaction recorded of Peter's denial in the other three accounts). There is nothing contradictory about John focusing on one, though other accounts note a group. That one was obviously a key witness against Peter! Now it could be possible that John's account is of the 5th denial instead, but there is one piece of evidence that lead me to place John's final account in line with these others--he, like Matthew and Luke, both note that "immediately" after that denial the...

2nd Cock Crow Occurred (Mt 26:74b-75; Mk 14:72; Lk 22:60b-62; Jn 18:27b)

Again, we only know it is the 2nd crowing from Mark, but it is the final denial in all four accounts. The other three accounts only record this crowing.

Why so Cryptic - Where at First Reading it Seems to be Three?

My study was simply on the correlation of facts noted to resolve the accounts as all being truthful and inerrant. There had to be a rhetorical (and perhaps other) reason God had each writer record differing sets of only three denials each. I have not yet studied out that, and am not sure a full answer could be had (at that point we are getting into "why" God did it that way, not "that" He did it that way).

However, my first thought was for it to be a potential stumbling block to unbelievers. An unbelieving, cursory reader will think there is "error" in the Bible because a quick reading would make it impossible to see the connections of the accounts. History has proven that unbelievers try to use these discrepancies to disprove the truthfulness of Scripture. One should always approach God's word as true (in faith, as HIS word of TRUTH [part of my hermeneutic]) and then try to resolve the tensions that seeing it as truth may make. I believe there is always a logical, truthful resolution to any tension in Scripture--but whether we always have all the knowledge we need to resolve it may not be so.

Would God intentionally set up such a potential stumbling block? Certainly. He tests faith in many ways, and this is no different than testing Adam to not eat of that one tree in the garden. That was a potential stumbling block to not having faith if there ever was one. The fact that God can set up such a scenario as Peter's denial and record it in four differing ways, and yet make each account still communicate truth is fascinating (any one account read alone speaks truth, but differing truths; and all accounts collated together speaks truth).

Of course, my view messes up (slightly) the nice parallel of Peter's three affirmations of love for Christ in John 21 (which many preachers I have heard will parallel to the three denials). However, rhetorically speaking, there is still the possibility of connection, because John only records three denials. So in the context of John's gospel, the parallel still holds up well.

Extra Note 2:

Question: What is Peter's response to Jesus' announcement that when He is killed the Apostles will desert him?

Answer: He bravely proclaims that unlike the others his faith in Jesus will never falter and he is willing to die for Jesus.In Luke's Gospel, Jesus offers encouragement to St. Peter when He tells Peter that He has prayed for him and when Peter regains his faith he is to take a leadership to "strengthen his brothers" (Luke 22:32).

In verse 34 Jesus tells Peter that before the "cockcrow" Peter will deny Him a significant three times. The "cockcrow" was a trumpet call at 3 AM that signaled the end of the third night watch and the beginning of the fourth and last watch from 3-6 AM. The "cockcrow" is mentioned frequently in the Mishnah as a trumpet signal and also in the diaries of Christian pilgrims visiting Jerusalem in the 4th century AD. In Jesus time and as long as the Temple stood, it was, for example, the time when the altar in the inner courtyard of the Temple was cleansed (Mishnah: Yoma, 1:8), and it was the signal for the Superintendent of the Temple to call the priests to awake, ritually bathe and dress before presenting themselves for the first drawing of lots for preparing for the morning worship service (Mishnah: Tamid, 1:2). Later it also became the signal when Christian pilgrims were called to early morning prayers. The 4th century AD Spanish lady Egeria mentioned the signal of the "cockcrow" frequently in her diary and St. Hippolytus wrote that cockcrow prayers were always said in Church in obedience to evangelical counsel.(6)

In Jerusalem there were two different groups of night watchmen. The Levitical guards at the Temple kept the four night watches and signaled the "cockcrow" with a trumpet blast at 3 AM and the Roman soldiers at the Antonia Fortress also kept the four night watches and signaled the "cockcrow" trumpet at 3 AM. In Mark's Gospel Jesus tells Peter: "Amen, I say to you, this very night before the cockcrows twice you will deny me three times" (Mark 14:30; emphasis added), noting the historical double "cockcrow."

With this last exchange, Jesus and the Apostles reach the Mt. of Olives and Jesus' appointment with His destiny.

(Roman night watch division was adopted after Roman occupation began in 63 BC)
The end of each watch was signaled by a trumpet signal as Jesus noted in Mark 13:35:
So stay awake, because you do not know when the master of the house is coming: evening, midnight, cockcrow or dawn.

*There is no article associated with the Greek word for cockcrow in verse Mark 14:74. The word "cockcrow" is Greek is formed from the Greek word for "cock" alektor and the word for "sound" phoneo. In Greek alektorophonia was a trumpet signal that announced the end of the third watch and the beginning of the fourth and last night watch. The "cockcrow" Peter heard must be the trumpet blast signaling the end of the third watch that was given at the Temple (Mishnah: Sukkot, 5:4; M. Yoma, 1:8) and at the Roman fortress called the Antonia. Mark records that Jesus told Peter he would betray Him before the cockcrows twice Mark 14:30, and in the high priest's courtyard, as Peter denied Christ the third time Mark records Peter heard the second "cockcrow" Mark 14:72.

In 1st century AD Jerusalem, as in all the cities of the Roman Empire, the nighttime hours were divided into 4 time periods called "Watches":

#1: Evening watch	Sundown to 9PM
#2: Midnight watch	9 PM to Midnight
#3: Cockcrow watch	Midnight to 3 AM
#4: Dawn watch	3 AM to Dawn

The end of each watch, and the beginning of the next was signaled by a trumpet blast. The Third Watch was from Midnight to 3 AM. At the close of the Third Watch a signal was given by the Roman guards at the Antonia Fortress next to the Temple. A trumpet was blown to signal the end of the Watch and the change of the guard. The Romans called the trumpet blast at the end of the Third Watch the "gallicinium," in Latin, "cockcrow." If Jesus was identifying the time of Peter's last denial at the time a rooster crow was heard, it could not be a specific time "roosters are notoriously unpredictable in their crowing. There was also a rabbinic ordinance against keeping chickens within the walls of the Holy City because it was feared that their scratching would produce "unclean things," thereby violating the purity laws (J. Jeremias*, Jerusalem in the Time of Jesus,* page 47, note 44). However, if Jesus was referring to the gallicinium in Latin or alektorophonia in Greek, His time reference was to the trumpet signal of the "cockcrow" that was a precise military signal, and Peter denied Christ at 3 a.m. in the morning (Anchor Bible: The Gospel According to John, page 828).[6)] Jesus spoke of the four night watches in Mark 13:35: So stay awake, because you do not know when the master of the house is coming: evening, midnight, cockcrow or dawn … (NJB).

cock crow

Twelve "cocks" or faucets were present at the laver in the Temple where the priests washed in preparation before the sacrifices were brought. The cock crow, or cock summons, was a calling out to the priests, either by a loud calling with a man's voice (as described in the Babylonian Talmud, Book 3, Tract Yomah, ch. 1, pp. 27–28, and also The Jewish Encyclopedia under "Gebeni") or with a trumpet. There were early, middle, and late summonses. The cock crow is what Jesus referred to when, shortly before he was led out to the crucifixion, he told Peter that he would deny him three times before the second cock crow (Mark 14:30). Thus, he was not referring to a rooster as many have supposed, but to the second calling of the priests for the sacrifice.

The Purchase Of "The Potter's Field" And The Fulfillment Of The Prophecy

There are two difficulties connected with these scriptures:

I. The two purchases recorded in Matthew 27:6-8, and Acts 1:18, 19, respectively; and
II. The fulfillment of the prophecy connected with the former purchase (Matthew 27:9, 10).

I. The Two Purchases.

For there were two. One by "the chief priests", recorded in Matthew 27:6; and the other by Judas Iscariot recorded in Acts 1:18. The proofs are as follows: -

1. The purchase of Judas was made some time before that of the chief priests; for there would have been no time to arrange and carry this out between the betrayal and the condemnation. The purchase of the chief priests was made after Judas had returned the money.

2. What the chief priests bought was "a field" (Gr. agros). What Judas had acquired (see 3, below) was what in English we call a "Place" (Gr. chorion = a farm, or small property). The two are quite distinct, and the difference is preserved both in the Greek text and in the Syriac version.

3. The verbs also are different. In Matthew 27:7 the verb is agorazo = to buy in the open market (from agora = a market place); while in Acts 1:18, the verb is ktaomai = to acquire possession of (Luke 18:12; 21:19, Acts 22:28), and is rendered "provide" in Matthew 10:9. Its noun, ktema = a possession (Matthew 19:22, Mark 10:22, Acts 2:45; 5:1).

4. How and when Judas had become possessed of this "place" we are not told in so many words; but we are left in no doubt, from the plain statement in John 12:6 that "he was a thief, and had the bag". The "place" was bought with this stolen money, "the reward (or wages) of iniquity". This is a Hebrew idiom (like our Eng. "money ill-got"), used for money obtained by unrighteousness (Numbers 22:7, 2Peter 2:15). This stolen money is wrongly assumed to be the same as the "thirty pieces of silver".

5. The two places had different names. The "field" purchased by the chief priests was originally known as "the potter's field", but was afterward called "agros haimatos" = the field of blood; i.e. a field bought with the price of blood ("blood" being put by the Fig. Metonymy (of the Subject).
The "possession" which Judas had acquired bore an Aramaic name, "Hakal dema" which is transliterated Akeldama, or according to some Akeldamach, or Hacheldamach = "place" (Gr. chorion) of blood" : a similar meaning but from a different reason : viz. Judas' suicide. It is thus shown that there is no discrepancy between Matthew 27:6-8 and Acts 1:18, 19.

II. The Fulfillment Of The Prophecy.

Many solutions have been proposed to meet the two difficulties connected with Matthew 27:9, 10.

i. As to the first difficulty, the words quoted from Jeremiah are not found in his written prophecy: and it has been suggested

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

1. That "Matthew quoted from memory" (Augustine and others).
2. That the passage was originally in Jeremiah, but the Jews cut it out (Eusebius and others); though no evidence for this is produced.
3. That it was contained in another writing by Jeremiah, which is now lost (Origen and others).
4. That Jeremiah is put for the whole body of the prophets (Bishop Lightfoot and others), though no such words can be found in the other prophets.
5. That it was "a slip of the pen" on the part of Matthew (Dean Alford).
6. That the mistake was allowed by the Holy Spirit on purpose that we may not trouble ourselves as to who the writers were, but receive all prophecy as direct from God, Who spake by them (Bishop Wordsworth).
7. That some annotator wrote "Jeremiah" in the margin and it "crept" into the text (Smith's Bible Dictionary).

These suggestions only create difficulties much more grave than the one which they attempt to remove. But all of them are met and answered by the simple fact that Matthew does not say it was written by Jeremiah, but that it was "spoken" by him.

This makes all the difference: for some prophecies were spoken (and not written), some were written (and not spoken), while others were both spoken and written. Of course, by the Fig. Metonymy, one may be said to "say" what he has written; but we need not go out of our way to use this figure, if by so doing we create the very difficulty we are seeking to solve. There is all the difference in the world between to rhethen (= that which was spoken), and ho gegraptai (= that which stands written).

ii. As to the second difficulty: that the prophecy attributed to Jeremiah is really written in Zechariah 11:10-13, it is created by the suggestion contained in the margin of the Authorized Version. That this cannot be the solution may be shown from the following reasons:

1. Zechariah 11:10-13 contains no reference either to a "field" or to its purchase. Indeed, the word "field" (shadah) does not occur in the whole of Zechariah except in 10:1, which has nothing to do with the subject at all.
2. As to the "thirty pieces of silver", Zechariah speaks of them with approval, while in Matthew they are not so spoken of. "A goodly price" ('eder hayekar) denotes amplitude, sufficiency, while the Verb yakar means to be priced, prized, precious and there is not the slightest evidence that Zechariah spoke of the amount as being paltry, or that the offer of it was, in any sense and insult. But this latter is the sense in Matthew 27:9, 10.
3. The givers were "the poor of the flock". This enhanced the value. "The worth of the price" was accepted as "goodly" on that account, as in Mark 12:43, 44. 2Corinthians 8:12.
4. The waiting of "the poor of the flock" was not hostile, but friendly, as in Proverbs 27:18. Out of above 450 occurrences of the Hebrew shamar, less than fourteen are in a hostile sense.
5. In the disposal of the silver, the sense of the Verb "cast" is to be determined by the context (not by the Verb itself). In Zechariah 11, the context shows it to be in a good sense, as in Exodus 15:25. 1Kings 19:19. 2Kings 2:21; 4:41; 6:6. 2Chronicles 24:10, 11.
6. The "potter" is the fashioner and his work was not necessarily confined to fashioning "clay", but it extended to metals. Cp. Genesis 2:7, 8. Psalms 33:15; 94:9. Isaiah 43:1, 6, 10, 21; 44:2, 9-12, 21, 24; 45:6, 7; 54:16, 17. Out of the sixty-two occurrences of the Verb (yazar), more than three-fourths have nothing whatever to do with the work of a "potter"
7. A "potter" in connection with the Temple, or its service, is unknown to fact, or to Scriptures.
8. The material, "silver", would be useless to a "potter" but necessary to a fashioner of metallic vessels, or for the payment of artizans who wrought them (2Kings 12:11-16; 22:4-7. 2Chronicles 24:11-13). One might as well cast clay to a silversmith as silver to a potter.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

9. The prophecy of Zechariah is rich in reference to metals; and only the books of Numbers (31:22) and Ezekiel name as many. In Zechariah we find six named: Gold, six times (4:2, 12; 6:11; 13:9; 14:14). Fine gold, once (9:3). Silver, six times, (6:11; 9:3; 11:12, 13; 13:9; 14:14). Brass, once (6:1, margin). Lead, twice (5:7, 8). Tin, once (4:10, margin). Seventeen references in all.
10. Zechariah is full of references to what the prophet saw and said but there are only two refs. to what he did; and both of these have references to "silver" (6:11; 11:13).
11. The Septuagint, and its revision by Symmachus, read "cast them (i.e. the thirty pieces of silver) into the furnace (Gr. eis to choneuterion), showing that, before Matthew was written, yotzer was interpreted as referring not to a "potter" but to a fashioner of metals.
12. The persons are also different. In Matthew we have "they took", "they gave", "the price of him"; in Zechariah we read "I took", "I cast", "I was valued".
13. In Matthew the money was given "for the field", and in Zechariah it was cast "unto the fashioner."
14. Matthew names three parties as being concerned in the transaction; Zechariah names only one.
15. Matthew not only quotes Jeremiah's spoken words, but names him as the speaker. This is in keeping with Matthew 2:17, 18. Jeremiah is likewise named in Matthew 16:14; but nowhere else in all the New Testament.
iii. The conclusion. From all this we gather that the passage in Matthew 27:9, 10 cannot have any reference to Zechariah 11:10-13.

1. If Jeremiah's spoken words have anything to do with what is recorded in Jeremiah 32:6-9, 43, 44, then in the reference to them other words are interjected by way of parenthetical explanation. These are not to be confused with the quoted words. They may be combined thus: --

"Then was fulfilled that which was SPOKEN by Jeremiah the prophet saying; 'And they took the thirty pieces of silver [the price of him who was priced, whom they of the sons of Israel did price], and they gave them for the potter's field, as the LORD appointed me.'"

Thus Matthew quotes that which was "SPOKEN" by Jeremiah the prophet and combines with the actual quotation a parenthetical reference to the price at which the prophet Zechariah had been priced.

2. Had the sum of money been twenty pieces of silver instead of thirty, a similar remark might well have been interjected thus: --

"Then was fulfilled that which was SPOKEN by Jeremiah the prophet saying; 'And they took the twenty pieces of silver [the price of him whom his brethren sold into Egypt], and they gave them for the potter's field'", &c.

3. Or, had the reference been to the compensation for an injury done to another man's servant, as in Exodus 21:32, a similar parenthetical remark might have been introduced thus: --

"Then was fulfilled that which was SPOKEN by Jeremiah the prophet, saying : 'And they took the thirty pieces of silver [the price given in Israel to the master whose servant had been injured by an ox], and they gave them for the potter's field'" , &c.

A designed parenthetical insertion by the inspired Evangelist of a reference to Zechariah, in a direct quotation from the prophet Jeremiah, is very different from a "mistake" or "a slip of the pen", "a lapse of memory" or a "corruption of the text", which need an apology. The quotation itself, as well as the parenthetical reference, are both similarly exact.

			18: Before the High Priest Annas [12] Then the detachment of troops and the captain and the officers of the Jews arrested Jesus and bound Him. [13] And they led Him away to Annas first, for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas who was high priest that year. [14] Now it was Caiaphas who advised the Jews that it was expedient that one man should die for the people. [19] The high priest then asked Jesus about His disciples and His doctrine. [20] Jesus answered him, “I spoke openly to the world. I always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where the Jews always meet, and in secret I have said nothing. [21] “Why do you ask Me? Ask those who have heard Me what I said to them. Indeed they know what I said.” [22] And when He had said these things, one of the officers who stood by struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, saying, “Do You answer the high priest like that?” [23] Jesus answered him, “If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why do you strike Me?”

22: [54] Having arrested Him, they led Him and brought Him into the high priest's house. But Peter followed at a distance. [63] Now the men who held Jesus mocked Him and beat Him. [64] And having blindfolded Him, they struck Him on the face and asked Him, saying, “Prophesy! Who is the one who struck You?” [65] And many other things they blasphemously spoke against Him.	14: [53] And they led Jesus away to the high priest; and with him were assembled all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes. [54] But Peter followed Him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest. And he sat with the servants and warmed himself at the fire. [55] Now the chief priests and all the council sought testimony against Jesus to put Him to death, but found none. [56] For many bore false witness against Him, but their testimonies did not agree. [58] But Peter followed Him at a distance to the high priest's courtyard. And he went in and sat with the servants to see the end. [59] Now the chief priests, the elders, and all the council sought false testimony against Jesus to put Him to death, [60] but found none. Even though many false witnesses came forward, they found none. But at last two false witnesses came forward [61] and said, “This fellow said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days.’”	18: [24] Then Annas sent Him bound to Caiaphas the high priest.

What is it these men testify against You?" [61] But He kept silent and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked Him, saying to Him, "Are You the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?" [62] Jesus said, "I am. And you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven." [63] Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "What further need do we have of witnesses? [64] "You have heard the blasphemy! What do you think?" And they all condemned Him to be deserving of death. [65] Then some began to spit on Him, and to blindfold Him, and to beat Him, and to say to Him, "Prophesy!" And the officers struck Him with the palms of their hands.	[62] And the high priest arose and said to Him, "Do You answer nothing? What is it these men testify against You?" [63] But Jesus kept silent. And the high priest answered and said to Him, "I put You under oath by the living God: Tell us if You are the Christ, the Son of God!" [64] Jesus said to him, "It is as you said. Nevertheless, I say to you, hereafter you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power, and coming on the clouds of heaven." [65] Then the high priest tore his clothes, saying, "He has spoken blasphemy! What further need do we have of witnesses? Look, now you have heard His blasphemy! [66] "What do you think?" They answered and said, "He is deserving of death." [67] Then they spat in His face and beat Him; and others struck Him with the palms of their hands, [68] saying, "Prophesy to us, Christ! Who is the one who struck You?"
22: Jesus Faces the Sanhedrin [66] As soon as it was day, the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, came together and led Him into their council, saying, [67] "If You are the Christ, tell us." But He said to them, "If I tell you, you will by no means believe. [68] "And if I also ask you, you will by no means answer Me or let Me go. Son of Man will sit on the right hand of the power of God." [70] Then they all said, "Are You then the Son of God?" So He said to them, "You rightly say that I am." [71] And they said, "What further testimony do we need? For we have heard it ourselves from His own mouth."
23: [1] Then the whole multitude of them arose and led Him to Pilate. [2] And they began to accuse Him, saying, "We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar, saying that He Himself is Christ, a King." [3] Then Pilate asked Him, saying, "Are You the King of the Jews?" He answered him and said, "It is as you say." [4] So Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowd, "I find no fault in this Man." [5] But they were the more fierce, saying, "He stirs up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, beginning from Galilee to this place."	15: …and the whole council; and they bound Jesus, led Him away, and delivered Him to Pilate. [2] Then Pilate asked Him, "Are You the King of the Jews?" He answered and said to him, "It is as you say." [3] And the chief priests accused Him of many things, but He answered nothing. [4] Then Pilate asked Him again, saying, "Do You answer nothing? See how many things they testify against You!" [5] But Jesus still answered nothing, so that Pilate marveled.	27: …all the chief priests and elders of the people plotted against Jesus to put Him to death. [2] And when they had bound Him, they led Him away and delivered Him to Pontius Pilate the governor. [11] Now Jesus stood before the governor. And the governor asked Him, saying, "Are You the King of the Jews?" Jesus said to him, "It is as you say." [12] And while He was being accused by the chief priests and elders, He answered nothing. [13] Then Pilate said to Him, "Do You not hear how many things they testify against You?" [14] But He answered him not one word, so that the governor marveled greatly.	18: [28] Then they led Jesus from Caiaphas to the Praetorium, and it was early morning. But they themselves did not go into the Praetorium, lest they should be defiled, but that they might eat the Passover. [29] Pilate then went out to them and said, "What accusation do you bring against this Man?" [30] They answered and said to him, "If He were not an evildoer, we would not have delivered Him up to you." [31] Then Pilate said to them, "You take Him and judge Him according to your law." Therefore the Jews said to him, "It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death," [32] that the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled which He spoke, signifying by what death He would die. [33] Then Pilate entered the Praetorium again, called Jesus, and said to Him, "Are You the King of the Jews?" [34] Jesus answered him, "Are you speaking for yourself about this, or did others tell you this concerning Me?"

			[35] Pilate answered, “Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the chief priests have delivered You to me. What have You done?” [36] Jesus answered, “My kingdom is not of this world. If My kingdom were of this world, My servants would fight, so that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but now My kingdom is not from here.” [37] Pilate therefore said to Him, “Are You a king then?” Jesus answered, “You say rightly that I am a king. For this cause I was born, and for this cause I have come into the world, that I should bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears My voice.” [38] Pilate said to Him, “What is truth?” And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews, and said to them, “I find no fault in Him at all.
Jesus Faces Herod 23: [6] When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked if the Man were a Galilean. [8] Now when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceedingly glad; for he had desired for a long time to see Him, because he had heard many things about Him, and he hoped to see some miracle done by Him. nothing. [10] And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused Him. [11] Then Herod, with his men of war, treated Him with contempt and mocked Him, arrayed Him in a gorgeous robe, and sent Him back to Pilate. [12] That very day Pilate and Herod became friends with each other, for previously they had been at enmity with each other.
Taking the Place of Barabbas 23: [13] Then Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests, the rulers, and the people, [14] said to them, "You have brought this Man to me, as one who misleads the people. And indeed, having examined Him in your presence, I have found no fault in this Man concerning those things of which you accuse Him; [15] "no, neither did Herod, for I sent you back to him; and indeed nothing deserving of death has been done by Him. [16] "I will therefore chastise Him and release Him" [17] (for it was necessary for him to release one to them at the feast). [18] And they all cried out at once, saying, "Away with this Man, and release to us Barabbas"— [19] who had been thrown into prison for a certain rebellion made in the city, and for murder. [20] Pilate, therefore, wishing to release Jesus, again called out to them. [21] But	Taking the Place of Barabbas 15: [6] Now at the feast he [Pilate] was accustomed to releasing one prisoner to them, whomever they requested. [7] And there was one named Barabbas, who was chained with his fellow rebels; they had committed murder in the rebellion. [8] Then the multitude, crying aloud, began to ask him to do just as he had always done for them. [9] But Pilate answered them, saying, "Do you want me to release to you the King of the Jews?" [10] For he knew that the chief priests had handed Him over because of envy. [11] But the chief priests stirred up the crowd, so that he should rather release Barabbas to them. [12] Pilate answered and said to them again, "What then do you want me to do with Him whom you call the King of the Jews?" [13] So they cried out again, "Crucify Him!" [14] Then Pilate said	Taking the Place of Barabbas 27: [15] Now at the feast the governor [Pilate] was accustomed to releasing to the multitude one prisoner whom they wished. [16] And at that time they had a notorious prisoner called Barabbas. [17] Therefore, when they had gathered together, Pilate said to them, "Whom do you want me to release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?" [18] For he knew that they had handed Him over because of envy. [19] While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent to him, saying, "Have nothing to do with that just Man, for I have suffered many things today in a dream because of Him." [20] But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitudes that they should ask for Barabbas and destroy Jesus. [21] The governor answered and said to them,	Taking the Place of Barabbas 18: [39] "But you have a custom that I [Pilate] should release someone to you at the Passover. they shouted, saying, “Crucify Him, crucify Him!” [22] Then he said to them the third time, “Why, what evil has He done? I have found no reason for death in Him. I will therefore chastise Him and let Him go.”
[23] But they were insistent, demanding with loud voices that He be crucified. And the voices of these men and of the chief priests prevailed.
[24] So Pilate gave sentence that it should be as they requested.
[25] And he released to them the one they requested, who for rebellion and murder had been thrown into prison; but he delivered Jesus to their will.

to them, “Why, what evil has He done?” But they cried out all the more, “Crucify Him!”
[15] So Pilate, wanting to gratify the crowd, released Barabbas to them; and he delivered Jesus, after he had scourged Him, to be crucified.

The Soldiers Mock Jesus
[16] Then the soldiers led Him away into the hall called Praetorium, and they called together the whole garrison. [17] And they clothed Him with purple; and they twisted a crown of thorns, put it on His head, [18] and began to salute Him, “Hail, King of the Jews!”
[19] Then they struck Him on the head with a reed and spat on Him; and bowing the knee, they worshiped Him. [20] And when they had mocked Him, they took the purple off Him, put His own clothes on Him, and led Him out to crucify Him.

“Which of the two do you want me to release to you?” They said, “Barabbas!”
[22] Pilate said to them, “What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?” They all said to him, “Let Him be crucified!”
[23] Then the governor said, “Why, what evil has He done?” But they cried out all the more, saying, “Let Him be crucified!”
[24] When Pilate saw that he could not prevail at all, but rather that a tumult was rising, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, “I am innocent of the blood of this just Person. You see to it.” [25] And all the people answered and said, “His blood be on us and on our children.” [26] Then he released Barabbas to them; and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered Him to be crucified.

The Soldiers Mock Jesus
[27] Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the Praetorium and gathered the whole garrison around Him.
[28] And they stripped Him and put a scarlet robe on Him.
[29] When they had twisted a crown of thorns, they put it on His head, and a reed in His right hand. And they bowed the knee before Him and mocked Him, saying, “Hail, King of the Jews!” [30] Then they spat on Him, and took purple robe. And Pilate said to them, “Behold the Man!”

[6] Therefore, when the chief priests and officers saw Him, they cried out, saying, “Crucify Him, crucify Him! ” Pilate said to them, “You take Him and crucify Him, for I find no fault in Him.”
[7] The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and according to our law He ought to die, because He made Himself the Son of God.” [8] Therefore, when Pilate heard that saying, he was the more afraid, [9] and went again into the Praetorium, and said to Jesus, “Where are You from?” But Jesus gave him no answer.
[10] Then Pilate said to Him, “Are You not speaking to me? Do You not know that I have power to crucify You, and power to release You?”
[11] Jesus answered, “You could have no power at all against Me unless it had been given you from above. Therefore the one who delivered Me to you has the greater sin.”
[12] From then on Pilate sought to release Him, but the Jews cried out, saying, “If you let this Man go, you are not Caesar's friend. Whoever makes himself a king speaks against Caesar.”
[13] When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus out and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called The Pavement,

The Praetorium

The Praetorium, or Pretorium, is the Latin version of the Greek word pronounced prai-tor-ion. The Romans [see Ancient Empires - Rome] originally used the term for a general's tent in an army camp [see Roman Legions], but later it also referred to a military headquarters in a city where the Roman governor or procurator also often resided. The Bible variously refers to the Praetorium as the "common hall," the "governor's house," the "judgment hall," "Pilate's house," and the "palace."
[Source: http://www.keyway.ca/htm2000/20001026.htm]

The Greek word (praitorion) thus rendered in Mark 15:16 is rendered "common hall" (Matthew 27:27, marg., "governor's house"), "judgment hall," (John 18:28, 33, marg., "Pilate's house", 19:9; Acts 23:35), "palace" (Philippians 1:13). This is properly a military word. It denotes (1) the general's tent or headquarters; (2) the governor's residence, as in Acts 23:35 (R.V., "palace"); and (3) the praetorian guard (see PALACE), or the camp or quarters of the praetorian cohorts (Acts 28:16), the imperial guards in immediate attendance on the emperor, who was "praetor" or commander-in-chief.
[Source: Easton's Bible Dictionary]

Two possible praetorium sites in Jerusalem have been proposed: the Antonia Fortress and Herod's Palace.[1] Early pilgrims to Jerusalem generally identified the praetorium with the Antonia Fortress, where the traditional Way of the Cross begins. The archaeological evidence, which dates the fortress remnants to the 2nd century AD, as well as the tense situation requiring Pilate to be near the Second Temple as the center of Passover activity, support the Antonia Fortress location.[1]

The Gospel of Mark uses the word aulē ("hall", "palace") to identify the praetorium.[1] Outside the praetorium proper, there was an area called the Pavement.[Jn. 19:13] Pilate's judgement seat (Greek: bēma), in which he conversed with the Jews, was located there.

[Source: Wikipedia]

According to later Church tradition the Praetorium was at the Antonia Fortress where Pontius Pilate judged Jesus, but it is also possible that Jesus was judged at the Herodian fortress on the opposite end (NW) of the city near the modern Jaffa Gate. Herod's palace was the official residence of the Roman procurator's when they came to Jerusalem during the major Jewish festivals. Many scholars favor the Antonia Fortress because of the balconies overlooking the Temple Court. There is also mention in John 19:13 of "the pavement" as the site of the trial. The Via Dolorosa assumes that the Antonia Fortress is the site of the trial of Jesus before Pontius Pilate. The statements of Josephus are very convincing that the headquarters of the Roman procurator were at Herod's palace. (See International Standard Bible Encyclopedia.)

Details in the Bible point to the possibility that the trial took place in Emperor Herod's palace…

Archaeologists say that the grand palace of Roman Emperor Herod the Great stood in this location in Jerusalem's Old City, and it was likely to have been here that the trial of Jesus by Pontius Pilate took place. After 15 years of archaeological work, the site is open to visitors. Washington Post photos by Ruth Eglash

Archaeologists dug down through seven layers of Jerusalem history to reveal foundations of Roman Emperor Herod's palace underneath a structure that had been used as a prison by Ottoman Turks and later by the British.

Extra Note 5:

The Sanhedrin's Miscarriage of Justice (based on Mark's writings)

This trial breaks a number of Jewish legal principles, if later documents correctly indicate the state of Jewish law in this period. Mark probably knew most of these rules, and many of his hearers probably suspected them, since these principles of ethics were widely honored. Elites, however, did not always feel bound by such principles.

One might ask how Jesus' earliest followers knew what happened in a closed meeting of the Sanhedrin. Even in the most private meetings of assemblies, however, leaks were common, especially when sympathizers had associates who were present (cf. Mark 15:43); one may provide examples both from the Roman Senate and from Jerusalem's Sanhedrin. (Moreover, from a Christian perspective, the disciples later had access to the report of a major participant: Jesus.)

Mk 14:53. "Leading priests," "elders," and "scribes" were all represented in Israel's chief Sanhedrin, the ruling religious court of Israel. A Sanhedrin was a senate, or municipal assembly; Judea's chief assembly was in Jerusalem. Later tradition claims that the full Sanhedrin, with seventy-one members, normally met in the assembly hall in the temple called the Chamber of Hewn Stone, where they sat in a semicircle with the high priest in the center. The number may have been simply an average, and Josephus suggests that they met quite close to the temple, but not in it. In this case, many members of the Sanhedrin (of whom perhaps half would have been necessary for a quorum) hold a secret night meeting without advance notice in the high priest's home (Mark 14:54), although they are investigating what they will claim is a capital offense.

By the more careful legal principles of later rabbis and most general legal principles of antiquity, the meeting that Mark describes would have been illegal on all these counts: a secret meeting, held at night, and in a private home. The leaders would have probably explained it as merely a preliminary inquiry before a real investigation (cf. Lk 22:66). The lack of advance notice could have been excused because it is during a feast and all necessary officials are present; but because Jewish law forbade trials on the Sabbath, they were probably also forbidden on feast days (though executions were not). The officials who gather, probably predominantly Sadducees (note the prominent role of the aristocratic priests in Mark 14:55), seem more concerned with convicting Jesus quickly than with legal technicalities.

Mk 14:54. Peter's trespassing on private property — that of the high priest himself — required serious commitment from a Galilean fisherman. The guards could be the priest's night watchmen, but presumably they would immediately recognize that Peter does not belong there. They could also be members of the temple guard, waiting to see the results of the trial inside. They may have planned to stay up late for Passover anyway, though under better circumstances.

Mk 14:55-56. Despite the high priest's certainty of Jesus' subversiveness, at least some members of the council, perhaps scribes, follow the virtuous Jewish tradition of diligent cross-examination of witnesses. But once these witnesses had contradicted one another, all understandings of Jewish law unanimously demanded that they be declared false and the case be rejected as contrived; under Jewish law, in a capital case, false witnesses were to be put to death (see Deuteronomy 19:16-21 and the Dead Sea Scrolls). Even though Rome had not given the Sanhedrin jurisdiction to execute false witnesses, the Sanhedrin should have at least disciplined them. That the case continues simply underlines the corruption of those in control (other ancient Jewish sources, from the rabbis to the Dead Sea Scrolls, also complain of the corruption of the priestly aristocrats; Josephus reports concrete examples of it).

Mk 14:57-59. Many Jewish people expected that God would establish a new, purified temple at the time he established the kingdom. Outsiders had naturally misinterpreted Jesus' teaching about a new temple and warning about the old temple's destruction as the threat of a mad, messianic revolutionary. But the witnesses still fail the cross-examination.

Mk 14:60-61. Jesus' refusal to answer fits the ancient Jewish model of a martyr showing contempt to a corrupt judge. At least according to later rabbinic practice, the high priest could not legally force Jesus to convict himself out of his own mouth, but the testimony of other witnesses is so far not working; if the later rabbinic practice was valued by many teachers in Jesus' day, the priestly aristocracy might choose to simply not observe it. The high priest finally asks whether Jesus thinks of himself as a messiah —hence, to the high priest's mind, as a revolutionary.

"The Blessed One" was a common paraphrase for "God." “Son of God” (see glossary) was an unusual phrase for a high priest to use, but not an impossible one (the Dead Sea Scrolls interpret 2Sa 7:14 as messianic). Although Mark could have put the high priest's question in his own words (a common technique in writing at that time), the high priest had probably heard that Jesus had adopted the title for himself, possibly in a messianic sense (Mark 12:6).

Mk 14:62. Jesus' statement is a claim to be not only a mortal messiah but the cosmic ruler of Daniel 7:13-14, the embodiment of Israel's call, who would come in glory and reign forever. (The seating may allude to Psalms 110:1.)

Mk 14:63. Tearing clothes was a sign of mourning or repentance, and was required if one heard the sacred name blasphemed. Jesus would not be deemed guilty under later rabbinic procedure; unless Jesus mentions the sacred Hebrew name of God or summons them to what would be presumed to be idolatry (e.g., by calling himself God, which he does not at this point), he is not technically guilty of blasphemy (here not even by the broader popular sense; cf. Mark 2:5-7). A Jewish court would have been more likely to have pronounced him insane; how could this arrested upstart teacher from Galilee think that he would come in the clouds of heaven? Again, elites (throughout the Roman empire) were not always interested in legal technicalities.

Mk 14:64. Under Jewish law, the high priest is not permitted to judge the case alone; he has to solicit the council's vote (if later recorded rules were already in effect, which might not be the case, this vote would begin with the youngest and conclude with the high priest, lest anyone feel intimidated by their elders). Although they cannot have genuinely believed that Jesus has committed blasphemy according to its technical Jewish definition, they have an important reason to deal with him quickly: he poses a clear threat to the temple establishment (Mark 11:15-18), and as a messianic claimant he threatens the whole Roman power structure that they, the Jewish aristocracy, represent.

Mk 14:65. Unlike public flogging, the behavior represented here—spitting on, blindfolding, striking and taunting a prisoner—was, of course, against Jewish Law. While they ridicule Jesus as a false prophet, Peter fulfills Jesus' prophecy concerning him (Mark 14:66-72); Jesus thus passes an important test for true prophets (Deuteronomy 18:22).

Illegalities that Surrounded Christ - Part 1

Hebrew Criminal Law

1. THE ARREST OF JESUS WAS ILLEGAL.
   a. Hebrew law prohibited an arrest for a capital offense (one that could result in death) taking place at night.
   b. The arrest was effected through the agency of a traitor and informer, a violation of Hebrew law.
   c. The arrest was not a result of a legal mandate from a court whose intentions were to conduct a legal trial for the purpose of reaching a fair and righteous judgment.

2. THE PRIVATE EXAMINATION OF JESUS BEFORE ANNAS AND CAIPHAS WAS ILLEGAL.
   a. Hebrew law prohibited legal examination at night.
   b. No judge or magistrate, sitting alone, could interrogate an accused person or sit in judgment upon his legal rights.
   c. Private preliminary examinations of accused persons were to be prevented.

2. THE INDICTMENT AGAINST JESUS WAS, IN FORM, ILLEGAL.
   a. The accusation (indictment) at the trial was both vague and indefinite.
   b. The accusation was made, in part, by Caiphas, the high priest, who was one of the judges of Jesus. Hebrew law allowed none but the leading witnesses to present the charge.

3. THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE SANHEDRIN AGAINST JESUS WERE ILLEGAL IN THAT THEY WERE CONDUCTED AT NIGHT.
   a. Hebrew jurisprudence strictly forbade the trial of a capital offense case at night.
   b. A court had no jurisdiction if it convened and acted at a time forbidden by law.

   a. No session of the court could take place before the offering of the morning sacrifice which was offered between dawn and sunrise.
   b. The Sanhedrin sat from the close of the morning sacrifice to the time of the evening sacrifice.

7. THE TRIAL OF JESUS WAS ILLEGAL IN THAT IT WAS CONCLUDED WITHIN ONE DAY.

   a. A unanimous verdict of guilty rendered on the day of the trial would have the effect of an acquittal.

    - The sentence of condemnation was pronounced in a place forbidden by law.
    - The high priest rent his clothes, thus prejudicing others.
    - The balloting was irregular.

a. In any trials involving capital cases, the Sanhedrin was required to meet in an apartment of the national temple at Jerusalem known as the Hall of Hewn Stones. Outside of this hall no capital trial could be conducted and no capital sentence could be pronounced.

b. Leviticus 21:10 And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head the anointing oil was poured, and that is consecrated to put on the garments, shall not uncover his head, nor rend his clothes.

CHRIST HALED BEFORE PILATE: PILATE'S DILEMMA—"CRUCIFY HIM"—PILATE VACILLATES: SENDS JESUS TO HEROD, WHO SENDS HIM BACK—JESUS SCOURGED—PILATE DELIVERS JESUS TO BE CRUCIFIED

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem.

John 18: 28-40, 19: 1-16; Luke 23: 1-11, 13-25; Mark 15: 1-15; Matthew 27: 11-26.

Then, in the early morning, the whole council arose and led Jesus from the high priest, Caiaphas, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate, the governor, in the Praetorium [133*]. But they themselves did not go into the Praetorium, so they would not be ceremonially defiled,[134*] but could eat the Passover meal.

Pilate then went out to them and said, “What accusation do you bring against this man?”

They answered and said to him, “If he were not an evildoer, we would not have delivered him up to you.”

Then Pilate said to them, “You take him and judge him according to your law.”

Therefore the Jews said to him, “It is not lawful for us to put anyone to death,” (that the saying of Jesus might be fulfilled which he spoke, signifying by what death He would die.)

And they began to accuse him, saying, “We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar, saying that he himself is the Messiah (Greek: Christ), a King.”

Then Pilate entered the Praetorium again, called Jesus, and said to him, “Are you the King of the Jews?”

Jesus answered him, “Are you speaking for yourself about this, or did others tell you this concerning me?”

Pilate answered, “Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the chief priests have delivered you to me. What have you done?”

Jesus answered, “My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, my servants would fight, so that I should not be delivered to the Jews; but now my kingdom is not from here.”

Pilate therefore said to him, “So you are a king!”

Jesus answered, “You say that I am a king. For this reason I was born, and for this reason I have come into the world – to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears my voice.”

Pilate said to him, “What is truth?”

And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews, and said to them, “I find no fault in him at all.”

And while he was being accused by the chief priests and elders, he answered nothing. Then Pilate said to him, “Do you not hear how many things they testify against you?” But he answered him not one word, so that the governor marveled greatly.

But they were the more fierce, saying, “He stirs up the people, teaching throughout all Judea, beginning from Galilee to this place.”

When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked if the man were a Galilean. And as soon as he knew that he belonged to Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who was also in Jerusalem at that time. Now when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceedingly glad; for he had desired for a long time to see him, because he had heard many things about Him, and he hoped to see some miracle done by him. Then he questioned him with many words, but he answered him nothing. And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused him. Then Herod, with his men of war, treated him with contempt and mocked him, arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him back to Pilate. That very day Pilate and Herod became friends with each other, for previously they had been at enmity with each other.

Then Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests, the rulers, and the people, said to them, “You have brought this man to me, as one who misleads the people. And indeed, having examined him in your presence, I have found no fault in this man concerning those things of which you accuse him; “no, neither did Herod, for I sent you back to him; and indeed nothing deserving of death has been done by him.

“I will therefore chastise him and release him”

Now at the feast the governor was accustomed to releasing to the multitude one prisoner whom they wished. And at that time they had a notorious prisoner called Barabbas – a robber who had been thrown into prison and who was chained with his fellow rebels for a rebellion made in the city, and for murder. Therefore, when they had gathered together, Pilate said to them, “Whom do you want me to release to you? Barabbas, or Jesus who is called Christ?” For Pilate knew that they had handed him over because of envy.

While Pilate was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent to him, saying, “Have nothing to do with that just man, for I have suffered many things today in a dream because of him.”

But the chief priests and elders persuaded the multitudes that they should ask for Barabbas and destroy Jesus.

The governor answered and said to them, “Which of the two do you want me to release to you?” They said, “Barabbas!” Pilate said to them, “What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?” They all said to him, “Let him be crucified!”

Pilate, therefore, wishing to release Jesus, again called out to them. But they shouted, saying, “Crucify him, crucify him!”

Then he said to them the third time, “Why, what evil has he done? I have found no reason for death in him. I will therefore chastise him and let him go.” But they were insistent, demanding with loud voices that he be crucified. And the voices of these men and of the chief priests prevailed.

When Pilate saw that he could not prevail at all, but rather that a tumult was rising, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, “I am innocent of the blood of this just person. You see to it.” And all the people answered and said, “His blood be on us and on our children.”

Then he released Barabbas to them; and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified 134:* not be defiled. Jews could go inside a Gentile courtyard open to the sky (see John 18:15), but they could not go into a Gentile building or home with a roof on it without becoming ceremonially unclean. Since it was the the day of preparation for the Passover and Feast of Unleavened High Sabbath (see Appendix for details on Jewish Festivals), the Jews would want to keep from defiling themselves so they could participate in the celebrations.

Extra Note 1:
The location of this praetorium (the residence of a Roman governor) has long been identified with the Antonia Fortress on the northwest corner of the Temple Mount; this large fortress allowed immediate access to the temple in order to suppress any disturbance. Only portions of the walls of the original Antonia Fortress remain. However, many argue that the Palace of Herod (once the Jerusalem home of Herod the Great, but later in Roman hands—see Philo, Embassy to Gaius 299) was more lavish and afforded better accommodations for the Roman governor. It was used later by the governor Florus (Josephus, Jewish War 2.301). This palace fortress (today called the Citadel), which was located at the prominent Jaffa Gate at the western entrance to the old city, has since Jesus' day been through many rounds of destruction and rebuilding (beginning with the capture of Jerusalem in A.D. 70 and continuing until after the Crusader period [11th-13th centuries]). However, some original Herodian portions of the palace do still exist. (See also Chapter LXXXIII Extra Note 4)

Comparison of Gospels Concerning Jesus' Civil Trial before Pilate and Verdict:

[24] So Pilate gave sentence that it should be as they requested. [15] So Pilate, wanting to gratify the crowd, released Barabbas to them; and he delivered Jesus, after he had scourged Him, to be crucified.	[24] When Pilate saw that he could not prevail at all, but rather that a tumult was rising, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, "I am innocent of the blood of this just Person. [27] Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the Praetorium and gathered the whole garrison around Him. [28] And they stripped Him and put a scarlet robe on Him. [10] Then Pilate said to Him, “Are You not speaking to me? Do You not know that I have power to crucify You, and power to release You?” [11] Jesus answered, “You could have no power at all against Me unless it had been given you from above. Therefore the one who delivered Me to you has the greater sin.” [12] From then on Pilate sought to release Him, but the Jews cried out, saying, “If you let this Man go, you are not Caesar's friend. Whoever makes himself a king speaks against Caesar.” [13] When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus out and sat down in the

The chief priests answered, "We have no king but Caesar!"

Extra Note 3:

What was Barabbas' first name?
Jesus (i.e., Joshua)

The choice was between Jesus Barabbas or Jesus Christ. Jesus in Greek is I'sous. I'sous is from the Hebrew and Aramaic words meaning "Jah is Savior" (rendered "Joshua" in the Old Testament). Jah is a shortened form of Jehovah and is often translated "Lord." Christ is from the Greek Christos (corresponding to the Aramaic mshika), meaning "Messiah" or "the Anointed One." Barabbas is made up of the Aramaic words br meaning "son" and aba meaning "father." Thus, "Barabbas" from the Aramaic means "son of the father."

Rather than Jesus Christ, the Son of God the true Father, the Judeans chose instead Jesus Barabbas, Jesus the son of the father. The counterfeit was chosen by the crowd, a significant and telling choice. Jesus Barabbas, a murderer, was released instead of Jesus Christ, "the Prince of Life."

Barabbas: who was he?

We have heard his name many times. We see him in films related to the life of Jesus. When the day of the crucifixion arrives, here he is together with Jesus. His name is Barabbas. Barabbas, was a criminal, responsible for insurgence, murder and robbery. He was a murderer. That's how Peter calls him in Acts 3:14. The penalty for his actions was death. The name Barabbas is composed by "Bar" that means son and "abass" that means father. He was "son of a father" i.e. a son of somebody. Here he is therefore together with Jesus before the Pilate. From the one side the innocent, Jesus Christ the Son of God. No evil was found in Him. He walked doing good and healing the people. And yet He is in the death queue. From the other side a murderer, a criminal that was condemned to death. One of the two will go to the cross and Barabbas has all the reasons to be there. The cross is his normal end. But let's read the relative passage in Luke 23:13-25…

…Jesus was delivered to be crucified and Barabbas was sent free! The innocent went to the cross in the stead of the guilty. But who is Barabbas anyway? I'll tell you. It is me and you. In the person of Barabbas we are all of us. All of us "have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23). All of us were condemned. All of us were worthy to go to the cross, and destined for the lake of fire. But here comes Jesus Christ, the innocent lamb, the lamb of God and He takes the place of Barabbas. Barabbas is now free. Me and you were released and are now free! See how the Word describes it in Ephesians 2:1-10…

Matthew refers to Barabbas only as a "notorious prisoner". Mark and Luke further refer to Barabbas as one involved in a stasis, a riot. Robert Eisenman states that John 18:40 refers to Barabbas as a lēstēs ("bandit"), "the word Josephus always employs when talking about Revolutionaries".

Three gospels state that there was a custom at Passover during which the Roman governor would release a prisoner of the crowd's choice; Mark 15:6, Matthew 27:15, and John 18:39. Later copies of Luke contain a corresponding verse (Luke 23:17), although this is not present in the earliest manuscripts, and may be a later gloss to bring Luke into conformity.

The custom of releasing prisoners in Jerusalem at Passover is known as the Paschal Pardon, but this custom (whether at Passover or any other time) is not recorded in any historical document other than the gospels.

Barabbas's name appears as bar-Abbas in the Greek texts of the gospels. It is derived ultimately from the Aramaic בר-אבא, Bar-abbâ, "son of the father". Some ancient manuscripts of Matthew 27:16–17 have the full name of Barabbas as "Jesus Barabbas" and this was probably the name as originally written in the text. Early church father Origen was troubled by the fact that his copies of the gospels gave Barabbas' name as "Jesus Barabbas" and declared that since it was impossible he could have had such a holy name, "Jesus" must have been added to Barabbas' name by a heretic.[15] It is highly likely that later scribes, copying the passage, removed the name "Jesus" from "Jesus Barabbas" to avoid dishonour to the name of Jesus the Messiah.

[Barabbas] = “Son of a father,” or perhaps, “Son of a Rabbi.” The reading, “Jesus Barabbas” (Matthew 27:17), which appears in some copies, is rightly rejected by the best editors. As Alford remarks, Matthew 27:20 is fatal to the insertion. St Mark and St Luke add that Barabbas had committed murder in the insurrection.

Matthew 27:16. Ἐπίσημον, notorious) A well-known robber, notorious for the gravest crime.[1185] And yet he was preferred to Jesus. How great contempt! Soon after, in the ignominy of punishment, He was preferred to two other robbers.—λεγόμενον Βαραββᾶν, called Barabbas) who was much talked about. It is probable that Barabbas survived long as a monument of the history of Jesus. Barabbas signifies “Song of Solomon of his parent;” he had been longed for, loved, spoiled, by his parent.

[1185] One who was, moreover, guilty of that very crime (treason) of which Jesus was accused; nay, even guilty of a worse crime. However, it was by the death of Him who was the Just One that those very persons, who had deserved death, are set free.—Harm., p. 550.

Matthew 27:16: And they had then a notable prisoner,.... The Vulgate Latin reads, "he had"; that is, Pilate, who had committed him to prison, and under whose power he was: for the Jews had lost all authority of this kind, at least in capital cases. This prisoner is called a "notable" one; that is, a famous, or rather an infamous one: he was a thief, and a robber, and had been guilty of sedition; had made, or joined with others in an insurrection, and had committed murder in it; and so, on more accounts than one, was deserving of death: nor could it be otherwise expected by himself, or others, but that he should die: his name was called Barabbas; that is, as the Syriac version reads it, , which signifies "the son of a father": a father's child that was spoiled and ruined, and a child of his father the devil. This was a name common among the Jews. Frequent mention is made of R. Abba (h), and Bar Abba is the son of Abba: hence we read of Abba Bar Abba (i), and of R. Samuel Bar Abba (k) and of R. Simeon Bar Abba (l), and of R. Chijah Bar Abba (m). In Munster's Hebrew Gospel it is read "Bar Rabbah, the son of a master"; and so Jerom says, that in the Gospel according to the Hebrews it is interpreted, "the son of their master"; but the former is the right name, and the true sense of the word. The Ethiopic version adds, "the prince", or "chief of robbers, and all knew him"; and the Arabic, instead of a "prisoner", reads, a "thief", as he was.

Mark 15:17 - And there was one named Barabbas, ... A prisoner of that name at Jerusalem; which lay bound with them that had made insurrection with him: he had been at the head of a seditious mob, and he and his accomplices were taken and put in prison:

who had committed murder in the insurrection; which may be connected either with Barabbas, and read in the singular number, as it is in the Vulgate Latin version, "he had committed"; or with the seditious persons he lay bound with, and be read in the plural number, "they had committed murder", as it is in the Syriac, Arabic, and Persic versions; and so in the ancient copies; and the Ethiopic renders it, "he was bound with seditious persons and murderers"; though, no doubt, he was guilty of murder as well as they; and so Peter calls him a murderer, Acts 3:14. About this time murders were very frequently committed: the Jews say (r) that

"from the time that murderers increased, the slaying of the red heifer ceased; (the reason the commentators (s) give, is, because they were known who were accustomed to commit murder;) and that was from the time that Eleazar ben Dinai came, and Techinah ben Perishah he was called; and they called him again the son of a murderer;"

BARABBAS

ba-rab'-as (Barabbas): For Aramaic Bar-abba = literally, "son of the father," i.e. of the master or teacher. Abba in the time of Jesus was perhaps a title of honor (Matthew 23:9), but became later a proper name. The variant Barrabban found in the 19-Harclean Syriac would mean "son of the rabbi or teacher." Origen knew and does not absolutely condemn a reading of Matthew 27:16, 17, which gave the name "Jesus Barabbas," but although it is also found in a few cursives and in the Aramaic and the Jerusalem Syriac versions in this place only, it is probably due to a scribe's error in transcription (Westcott-Hort, App., 20). If the name was simply Barabbas or Barrabban, it may still have meant that the man was a rabbi's son, or it may have been a purely conventional proper name, signifying nothing. He was the criminal chosen by the Jerusalem mob, at the instigation of the priests, in preference to Jesus Christ, for Pilate to release on the feast of Passover (Mark 15:15 Matthew 27:20, 21 Luke 23:18 John 18:40). Matthew calls him "a notable (i.e. notorious) prisoner" (Matthew 27:16). Mark says that he was "bound with them that had made insurrection, men who in the insurrection had committed murder" (Matthew 15:7). Luke states that he was cast into prison "for a certain insurrection made in the city, and for murder" (Luke 23:19; compare Acts 3:14). John calls him a "robber" or "brigand" (John 18:40). Nothing further is known of him, nor of the insurrection in which he took part. Luke's statement that he was a murderer is probably a deduction from Mark's more circumstantial statement, that he was only one of a gang, who in a rising had committed murder. Whether robbery was the motive of his crime, as John suggests, or whether he was "a man who had raised a revolt against the Roman power" (Gould) cannot be decided. But it seems equally improbable that the priests (the pro-Roman party) would urge the release of a political prisoner and that Pilate would grant it, especially when the former were urging, and the latter could not resist, the execution of Jesus on a political charge (Luke 23:2). The insurrection may have been a notorious case of brigandage. To say that the Jews would not be interested in the release of such a prisoner, is to forget the history of mobs. The custom referred to of releasing a prisoner on the Passover is otherwise unknown. "What Matthew (and John) represents as brought about by Pilate, Mark makes to appear as if it were suggested by the people themselves. An unessential variation" (Meyer). For a view of the incident as semi-legendary growth, see Schmiedel in Encyclopedia Biblica. Barabbas, in the New Testament, a prisoner or criminal mentioned in all four gospels who was chosen by the crowd, over Jesus Christ, to be released by Pontius Pilate in a customary pardon before the feast of Passover.

In Matthew 27:16, Barabbas was called a “notorious prisoner.” In Mark 15:7, Luke 23:19, and John 18:40, Barabbas was “among the rebels in prison, who had committed murder in the insurrection,” a revolutionary against the occupying Roman forces.

The name Barabbas appears nowhere else in the New Testament, nor do any of the gospels give any information about his previous or subsequent life. The name may be an Aramaic patronymic meaning “son of the father” (bar abba) or “son of the teacher” (bar rabban), indicating perhaps that his father was a Jewish leader. According to the early biblical scholar Origen and other commentators, the full name of Barabbas may have been Jesus Barabbas, since Jesus was a common first name. Therefore the crowd was presented with a choice between two persons with the same name.

Par Lagerkvist’s 1950 novel Barabbas explores the inner life of the criminal after his release.

Why was Barabbas in Prison (forum – various discussions):

For example:

THE POLITICS OF JESUS CRUCIFIXION: I believe that high level politics was played, which let to the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. I read from some ancient records which explained that Yeshua Barabbas (Jesus the son of the father) was not just a robber and killer as portrayed in some gospels, but a rebel trying to overthrow the roman authority and free the Jews. He had a guerrilla warfare group who constantly ambushed, attacked and killed roman soldiers and burn their homes. This must have endeared him to his Jewish folks as their redeemer. The Jews believing Yeshua Nazareth (Jesus of Nazareth) - the Christ (Redeemer of mankind) to be the king that would totally redeem them from the Romans tyranny wanted him crowned king, but Jesus escaped and refused to the crowned king, which led to the disappointment of the Jews in him because they thought he was an earthly king, which Jesus Christ personally denied and stated that his kingdom is not of this earth but spiritual and heavenly.

Pilate must have been aware that the people would prefer Barabbas to be released as against Jesus Christ because he fights in their side to dethrone the Roman authority. He did confide in his wife that "I have quelled rebellions in this ranging out-post a number of times and Caesar had promised me that the next time it would be my blood." Even after Jesus Christ asked him if he knew the truth, he asked his wife if she would recognize the truth when she sees it. His wife told him one wouldn't know the truth unless you agree that it be told to you. He answered his wife that the only truth he knew at that moment was the rebellion that was about to happen - it showed that he was more interested in holding on to his office rather than accept the truth. He said if he released Jesus Christ, there would be rebellion, and even if he condemned him, Jesus Christ' followers could still raise a rebellion. I believe he deliberately made the choice to have Jesus Christ crucified because his supporters were fewer in number compared to those of the High Priests'.

I believe that mere washing of hands did not completely exonerate Pilate from being culpable in the murder of Jesus Christ. Was there a real trial? People shouting "crucify him" isn't a real trial. Pilate just ordered him to be crucified without proper trial.

However, it was an earthly destiny which Jesus Christ came to fulfill.

Extra Note 5:

After the Jewish phase of the trial and the interrogation by Pilate, Jesus' sentencing begins. Jesus was beaten both before being sentenced (John 19:1) and after being sentenced to death (e.g., Matt 27:26; Mark 15:15). Some interpreters think this first beating is the same as the severe “scourging” that Jesus received in Matt 27:26 and Mark 15:15. However, it seems unlikely that Pilate would have administered so violent and severe a punishment to someone who had not yet been condemned to death (see John 19:16) and whom Pilate was still trying to release (see John 19 vv. 4, 10, 12). It seems more likely, therefore, that this flogging was what the Romans called fustigatio, the lightest form of flogging administered for minor crimes. Thus John 19:1 and Luke 23:16 use the verbs mastigoō and paideuō (respectively) to refer to this lighter flogging, whereas Matt 27:26 and Mark 15:15 use a different word, phragelloō (“scourged”) to refer to the much more severe beating that Jesus received after Pilate pronounced the sentence of death (the Roman verberatio, which was the most horrible kind of beating, administered in connection with capital punishments, including crucifixion).19:2 The crown of thorns represents a mock crown ridiculing Jesus' claim of being a king. The thorns would sink into the victim's skull, causing blood to gush out and distorting a person's face. The purple robe (cf. Matt 27:28; Mark 15:17) similarly represents a mock royal robe. Purple is the imperial color (1 Maccabees 8:14). The soldiers' actions are in stark, ironic contrast to the fact that Jesus truly is the King.

These trials [of Jesus] have captivated millions. Yet no trial in history has so challenged the human race or so charged our emotions as the trial of Jesus of Nazareth by the Jewish and Roman authorities in Palestine in A.D. 30 Walter M. Chandler, a former member of the New York bar of lawyers and author of an outstanding book on the trials of Jesus, wrote, “These [other] trials, one and all, were tame and commonplace, compared with the trial and crucifixion of the Galilean peasant, Jesus of Nazareth. These were earthly trials, on earthly issues, before earthly courts. The trial of the Nazarene was before the high tribunals of both heaven and earth; before the Great Sanhedrin, whose judges were the master-spirits of a divinely commissioned race; before the court of the Roman Empire that controlled the legal and political rights of men throughout the known world."[1]

[1] Walter M. Chandler, The Trial of Jesus a Lawyers… (Atlanta: The Harrison Company, 1956), p. xvi.

No single gospel writer gives a complete account of Jesus' trial, but we can put together what they report to create a comprehensive picture of what happened. Concisely put, there were four events: 1) the arrest, 2) the Jewish trial, 3) the Roman trial, and 4) the execution. But each of the two trials, the Jewish and the Roman, had three parts.

1. The Jewish trial.[1] The first part of the Jewish trial was a preliminary hearing before Annas. This seems to be what John describes in his gospel (John 18:19-23), though the issue is confused due to his calling both Annas and Caiaphas “the high priest.” The reason is that Annas was the true high priest, appointed for life as high priests were. But the Romans had replaced him by Caiaphas, the son-in-law of Annas, so that both held the title at the same time. Jesus was questioned at this preliminary hearing to see if there were grounds for bringing a formal charge against him, but the effort was frustrated because Jesus refused to answer questions. This phase of the trial ended when Annas gave up and sent him to Caiaphas.

The part of the trial conducted before Caiaphas was the significant trial. Therefore it is the one reported by Matthew and the other Synoptic writers (Matthew 26:57-68; Mark 14:53-65; Luke 22:54). It concluded that Jesus had committed blasphemy and determined that he should be put to death.

The third and last phase of the Jewish trial was a formal hearing before the entire Sanhedrin at daybreak. It is described in Matthew 27:1, Mark 15:1, and Luke 22:66-71. This formality was necessary because Jewish law did not allow night trials, and the verdict of the previous evening was inadequate by itself. At this hearing the pertinent questions of the previous night were reiterated and an official judgment was secured. From the stone hall of the Sanhedrin Jesus was sent to Pilate whose concurrence was needed if Jesus was to be executed.

2. The Roman trial. The Roman trial also had three parts. First, there was a prearranged appearance before Pilate, which is described in all four gospels (Matthew 27:2, 11-14; Mark 15:1;

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Luke 23:1; and John 18:28-38). At this appearance the anticipations of the Jewish leaders were frustrated, for rather than proceeding with a pro forma trial and judgment, which the leaders seem to have been expecting, Pilate suddenly reopened the case and tried to free the prisoner.

The second phase of the Roman trial occurred when Pilate learned that Jesus was a Galilean and tried to escape responsibility by sending Jesus to Herod, since Herod had jurisdiction over Galilee (Luke 23:-12).

Herod was not fooled by Pilate's ploy. He sent Jesus back to Pilate, which meant that the third and final phase of the Roman trial was a second appearance before the Roman governor. At this phase of the trial Jesus was condemned to death even though he had done nothing wrong and had already been pronounced innocent by Pilate. John says that Pilate did this three times, declaring: "I find no basis for a charge against him" (John 18:38; 19:4, 6). This was the significant part of the Roman trial, and for this reason it also is reported by each of the gospel writers (Matthew 27:15-26; Mark 15:6-15; Luke 23:13-25; John 18:39-19:16).

Extra Note 6:

The Jews' charge against Jesus – John 18:28-32 (cf. Luke 23:1-2)

John began his version of this civil trial by narrating the initial public meeting of Pilate and Jesus' accusers.

(John 18:28) "They" (NASB) refers to all the Jewish authorities (cf. Matt. 27:1-2; Mark 15:1; Luke 23:1). They "led Jesus from Caiaphas" in the sense that he was the head of the Sanhedrin that had passed sentence on Jesus (cf. Matt. 27:1-2; Mark 15:1; Luke 22:66-71). The Sanhedrin had condemned Jesus for blasphemy (Matt. 26:63-66; Mark 14:61-64), which was a capital offense in Israel (Lev. 24:16). However, the Sanhedrin could not pass the death sentence for this offense without Roman agreement, and there was little hope of Pilate giving it. Therefore the Jewish leaders decided to charge Jesus with sedition against Rome.

The High Priests of Israel (ca. A.D. 6-36)
ANNAS (ca. A.D. 6-15)	Unofficial high priest with Caiaphas during Jesus' trial (Luke 3:2; John 18:13, 24) Unofficial high priest who, with Caiaphas, tried Peter and John (Acts 4:6)
ELEAZAR (ca. A.D. 16-17)	Son of Annas whose name does not appear in the New Testament
CAIAPHAS (ca. A.D. 18-36)	Son-in-law of Annas Official high priest during Jesus' earthly ministry (Luke 3:2; Matt. 26:3, 57; John 11:49-50) With Annas tried Peter and John (Acts 4:6)

The word "Praetorium" transliterates the Latin praetorium, which identified either the headquarters of the commanding officer of a Roman military camp, or a Roman military governor's headquarters. Pilate was this kind of governor. The Gospels use the generic term "governor," though technically Pilate was the "prefect" of Judea, or its "procurator," as the historian Tacitus identified him. Pilate's normal headquarters were at Caesarea, the capital of the Roman province of Judea. However, during the Jewish feasts, Pilate came to Jerusalem with Roman troops to discourage uprisings. His headquarters in Jerusalem was either in Herod's former palace on the western wall of the city, or in the Fortress of Antonia immediately north of the temple enclosure. The traditional site is the Fortress of Antonia, the beginning of the Via Dolorosa or "way of sorrow" that Jesus traveled from the Praetorium to Golgotha. However, most modern commentators believed Pilate probably interviewed Jesus in Herod's former palace.

It is not clear just when Jesus first appeared before Pilate on Friday morning. John said that it was "early" (Gr. proi). This may be a reference to the technical term that the Romans used to describe the night watch, that began at 3:00 a.m. and ended at 6:00 a.m. Probably it is just the normal use of the word "early," that would not necessarily require a time before 6:00 a.m. It would have been early nonetheless, perhaps between 6:00 and 7:00 a.m. Roman officials customarily began their work around sunrise, and often finished their day's business by 10:00 or 11:00 a.m. John wrote that Jesus was still in Pilate's presence later in the morning (19:14).

The Jews who brought Jesus to Pilate stayed outside the Praetorium because they wanted to avoid ceremonial defilement. The Jews thought that merely entering a Gentile's dwelling made them ceremonially unclean (cf. Acts 10:28).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

This was because the Gentiles did not take precautions to guarantee kosher (i.e., proper) food as the Jews did. Specifically, Gentiles might have yeast in their homes, which would have made participation in the "Passover" Feast unlawful for a Jew (cf. Exod. 12:19; 13:7). The Jews considered themselves "defiled" if they entered a dwelling from which all leaven had not been scrupulously removed.

Ironically, these Jews were taking extreme precautions to avoid ritual defilement, while at the same time preparing to murder the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world (cf. 2 Sam. 11:4).

> ". . . they are anxious to avoid external defilement in order to observe a festival whose real significance was that, as well as reminding God's people of the ancient deliverance from Egypt, it pointed forward to the true Passover Lamb, whose sacrifice would bring to an end all distinctions between what was ceremonially clean and unclean, and effect an inward cleansing; and it was the death of that true Passover Lamb that the Jews at this moment are anxious to bring about." *

* Tasker, pp. 200-1. Cf. George R. Beasley-Murray, p. 328; and Alfred Edersheim, The Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah, 2:565.

These Jews' superficial commitment to the Mosaic Law resulted in it becoming more difficult for them to truly obey that Law. Their punctiliousness separated them from Jesus. Pilate had to shuttle between the Jews, outside his headquarters, and Jesus inside, as his examination proceeded.

We have already drawn attention to the evidence that Jesus ate the Passover with His disciples in the upper room on Thursday evening (cf. 13:1, 27). [????? – see counter arguments to Last Supper being the Passover Seder elsewhere in the footnotes.] Why then were these Jews concerned that entering Pilate's Praetorium might preclude them from eating the Passover? Had they too not already eaten it the night before? The "Passover" was the name that the Jews used to describe both the Passover proper, and the entire festival that followed it, which included the Feast of Unleavened Bread (cf. Luke 22:1). Evidently it was their continuing participation, in this eight-day festival, that these Jewish leaders did not want to forfeit by entering a Gentile residence. Part of the feast was the offering of two peace offerings, called the Chagigah — one on the Nisan 14 and one on Nisan 15, the latter being the first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. Jewish law was very strict that no one who was defiled could offer the Chagigah. It was this second Chagigah, not the offering of the paschal lamb on Nisan 14, which the Jews who refused to enter Pilate's Praetorium wanted to be qualified to offer.

Bible verses about Chagigah (From Forerunner Commentary)

Deuteronomy 27:7

In their reference work, McClintock and Strong inform us that these offerings (especially those made on the first day of Unleavened Bread) were called hagigah (sometimes also transliterated chagigah), which means "festivity." These offerings were a festivity, something given in order to have a feast, a happy, festive time. If a person wanted to give God a peace offering, it was divided three ways: some to God, some to the priest, and the remainder came back to the offerer. With his portion, he would invite his family and friends, and they would have a fine time, eating a sumptuous meal and fellowshipping together.

These offerings are stipulated in Numbers 10:10. They are shown actually being offered in II Chronicles 30:22, included, in this case, under the name "Passover." But these offerings cannot be the actual Passover, because of the rules regarding the Passover having to be roasted and from a lamb or a kid of the goats. These offerings — the hagigah — are shown in II Chronicles 30 quite a number of times. This was when Hezekiah had his great Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread in the second month.

CHRIST CROWNED WITH THORNS, ROBED IN SCARLET—MOCKED—"IN A GREEN TREE, IN THE DRY?"—THE CRUCIFIXION—"FATHER, FORGIVE THEM"—PILATE WRITES THE TITLE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem. Golgotha: Calvary.

Matthew 27: 27-38; Mark 15: 16-27; Luke 23: 26-34; John 19: 17-20.

Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the Praetorium and gathered the whole garrison around him. And they stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him. When they had twisted a crown of thorns, they put it on his head, and a reed in his right hand. And they bowed the knee before him and mocked him, saying, “Hail, King of the Jews!” Then they spat on him, and took the reed and struck him on the head. And they struck him with their hands.

Pilate then went out again, and said to them, “Behold, I am bringing him out to you, that you may know that I find no fault in him.”

Then Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. And Pilate said to them, “Behold the man!” Therefore, when the chief priests and officers saw him, they cried out, saying, “Crucify Him, crucify Him!”

Pilate said to them, “You take him and crucify him, for I find no fault in him.”

The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and according to our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.”

Therefore, when Pilate heard that saying, he was the more afraid, and went again into the Praetorium, and said to Jesus, “Where are you from?” But Jesus gave him no answer.

Then Pilate said to him, “Are you not speaking to me? Do you not know that I have power to crucify you, and power to release you?”

Jesus answered, “You could have no power at all against me unless it had been given you from above. Therefore the one who delivered me to you has the greater sin.”

From then on Pilate sought to release him, but the Jews cried out, saying, “If you let this man go, you are not Caesar's friend. Whoever makes himself a king speaks against Caesar.”

When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus out and sat down in the judgment seat in a place that is called The Pavement, but in Hebrew, Gabbatha. Now it was the Preparation Day of the Passover, and about the sixth hour. And he said to the Jews, “Behold your King!”

But they cried out, “Away with him, away with him! Crucify him!” Pilate said to them, “Shall I crucify your King?” The chief priests answered, “We have no king but Caesar!”

And when they had mocked him, they took the purple robe off him, put his own clothes on him.

Then Pilate delivered him to them to be crucified. So they took Jesus and led him away.

Two others — criminals — were also led away to be executed with him.

Then they compelled a certain man, Simon a Cyrenian, the father of Alexander and Rufus, as he was coming out of the country and passing by, to bear His cross.

And a great multitude of the people followed Jesus, and women who also mourned and lamented him.

But Jesus, turning to them, said, “Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. “For indeed the days are coming in which they will say,

> ‘Blessed are the barren, wombs that never bore, and breasts which never nursed!’
> “Then they will begin ‘to say to the mountains, ‘Fall on us!’ and to the hills, ‘Cover us!’’

“For if they do these things in the green wood, what will be done in the dry?”

And they brought him to the place called Golgotha, meaning Place of a Skull. 135*

They gave him sour wine mingled with gall (vinegar mixed with myrrh) to drink. But when he had tasted it, he would not drink.

It was the third hour.

They crucified him there, along with the criminals, one on the right and one on the left.

Sitting down, they kept watch over him there. And they put up over his head the accusation written against him:

Then they sat down and were guarding him there.

Pilate had a sign lettered and put on the cross. The inscription was:

JESUS THE NAZARENE
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Many of the Jews read this sign, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, and it was written in Hebrew [or Aramaic], Latin, and Greek. So the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, “Don't write, ‘The King of the Jews,’ * but that he said, ‘I am the King of the Jews.’ ”

Pilate replied, “What I have written, I have written.”

Then Jesus said, “Father, forgive them, because they do not know what they are doing.”

Thorns Biblical words for briers, brambles, spiny plants, and thistles overlap. So it is impossible to identify the exact thorns woven into a crown and pressed down on Jesus' brow. Yet thorns are appropriate. They are first mentioned as a consequence of sin (Genesis 3:18), and continue to serve as symbols of evil (Proverbs 22:5; Matthew 7:16; 13:22). Symbolically Jesus wore our sins.

Extra Note 3:

Mockery by the Roman soldiers

Matthew and Mark describe additional mocking and beatings the Roman soldiers heaped on Jesus in the Praetorium after the verdict was delivered. This appears similar to but more severe than that described by John, which had taken place before the verdict was given (John 19:1-3).

Extra Note 4:

"About the sixth hour"

There is a controversial verse in John that commentators have debated; John pictures the Messiah before Pilate at the sixth hour, with a band of chief priests demanding his crucifixion:

> YLT John 19:14 and it was the preparation of the passover, and as it were the sixth hour, and he saith to the Jews, 'Lo, your king!'
> YLT John 19:15 and they cried out, 'Take away, take away, crucify him;' Pilate saith to them, 'Your king shall I crucify?' the chief priests answered, 'We have no king except Caesar.'
> YLT John 19:16 Then, therefore, he delivered him up to them, that he may be crucified, and they took Jesus and led him away,

Some have thought verse 14 was a scribal error, for how could Jesus be here with Pilate about noon (the sixth hour) when the other Gospels say he was on the cross at the third hour (9 AM)? Commentators have pointed to a manuscript error since a few weaker manuscripts have "third hour" in the Greek. However, in his Textual Commentary of the Greek New Testament, Bruce Metzger points out that the manuscripts that change "sixth hour" to "third hour" are "an obvious attempt to harmonize the chronology with that of Mark 15:25."[24] He goes on to say that while some believe the disagreement arose when copyists confused the Greek numerals 3 and 6, the manuscript evidence is "overwhelmingly in support of" the Greek word for "sixth."

Some may jump to the conclusion that the scriptures contradict each other and that we should therefore throw our Bibles away and go home.

I believe, however, that the truth lies in the Jewish idiom for the sixth hour and what this hour meant to John and the other Jews as it relates to the Passover. From the Talmud, the importance of the sixth hour to Jews becomes clear, for the Passover had to be selected by the sixth hour, and from the sixth hour on was the legal time to kill the Passover. The other Greek word John used (ὡς), which Young's properly translates into "as it were" (John 19:14 above), shows its subtle meaning. John used the Jewish natural-to-spiritual idiom[25] to say the "sixth hour" in the natural sense, but he means the sixth hour in the spiritual sense by saying "as it were the sixth hour." John subtly referred to Christ as the Passover in other ways also, one of them below:

> NAS John 19:32 The soldiers therefore came, and broke the legs of the first man, and of the other man who was crucified with Him;
> NAS John 19:33 but coming to Jesus, when they saw that He was already dead, they did not break His legs;
> NAS John 19:36 For these things came to pass, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, "Not a bone of Him shall be broken."

John connects this truth from the scripture (concerning the command for the Passover sacrifice) with something that the Jews would understand from their history and in their idiom:

> NAS Exodus 12:46 "It is to be eaten in a single house; you are not to bring forth any of the flesh outside of the house, nor are you to break any bone of it.

What time of day did the crucifixion happen?

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

In John 19:14 (KJV), the reference is made to "about the sixth hour". This was probably Roman time, or about six in the morning. John's gospel was written near the close of the century, and chiefly for Gentile believers. (see John 1:38) Here he gives the time in terms familiar to them. In other places, he seems to reckon the hours of the day from sunrise rather than from midnight. (see John 4:6, 52; 11:9)

The Bible says that when the Jewish leaders shouted for Pilate to crucify Jesus “it was . . . about the sixth hour” (John 19:14, NKJV). This was probably a reference to the Roman method of time-keeping which began counting the hours from midnight—or about six o’clock in the morning. John’s gospel was written near the close of the first century A.D. and chiefly for Gentile believers, so he gives the time in terms familiar to them. In other places, however, he seems to reckon the hours of the day from sunrise rather than from midnight (see John 11:9; 4:6).

Most commentaries seem to indicate that Jesus was seized in the Garden of Gethsemane by the Jewish religious leaders at approximately midnight. His first trial was in the house of Caiaphas at approximately one o’clock in the morning, and the second attempt to incriminate Him occurred and hour or two later—around two or three o’clock in the morning. Then the trial before the Sanhedrin took place somewhere between three and four A.M. At this time of the year in the latitude of Jerusalem, dawn begins about four A.M. and the sun rises around 5:30. The trial before the Sanhedrin resulted in a unanimous verdict of death, but that verdict had to be affirmed during daylight hours in order to be legal. Therefore it had to be reaffirmed in daylight. The Sanhedrin did this when it reassembled soon after sunrise.

The Jewish leaders came to Pilate around six A.M. or soon thereafter (see John 19:14). The hearing before Herod took place around seven o’clock Friday morning. Jesus’ second trial before Pilate began around eight A.M. and according to Mark 15:25 it ended and the crucifixion took place at “the third hour,” which using the Jewish method of counting the hours from dawn, would correspond to nine o’clock in the morning. Around noon, while Jesus was on the cross, total darkness surrounded the area, until about three P.M. (see Matthew 27:45) when He cried out, “It is finished” and died (John 19:30).

In the year of the crucifixion, Nisan 14, the day appointed for slaying the paschal lambs fell on a Thursday; the preparation for (or eve of) the Passover which coincided with the preparation for (or eve of) the weekly Sabbath. (John 19:14; cf. vs. 31, 42; ch. 20:1) The first ceremonial Sabbath of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, Nisan 15, also coincided with the weekly Sabbath. (Leviticus 23:6-8; cf. Mark 15:42 to 16:2; Luke 23:5 to 24:1)

Jouney to Golgatha

The distance from the Praetorium to the traditional site of the crucifixion is about half a mile. In Jesus’ weakened condition from sleeplessness and anxiety, the beatings, and the terrible scourging, he was not able to carry the crossbeam; so Simon from Cyrene was taken from the crowd and forced to carry it. Apparently Mark’s readers in Rome were familiar with his son Rufus (Mark 15:21; cf. Romans 16:13).

Luke, who emphasizes women, recounts the words Jesus gave to the women of Jerusalem who were weeping for him: the city would face worse trials than these in time to come.

The traditional site of Golgotha is in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; it goes back to a very early tradition. In Jesus' day this location was just outside the city wall. The rival site of Gordon's Calvary is far to the north of the old city. While a much more attractive site to modern sensibilities, Gordon's Calvary lacks serious historical evidence as the original site of Golgotha.

A crowd always attended executions out of curiosity or compassion. The women among them raised a death-wail for Jesus, but he raised, as it were, a death-wail in pity for Jerusalem and its people. Let them mourn rather for themselves, for a day would come when they would regret having borne children who were to endure terrible suffering, and they would long for some catastrophe in nature to put an end to their sufferings (cf. Ho 10:8; Rev 6:16). For if this was how the Romans treated an innocent person, Jesus, how much worse would be the fate of guilty Jerusalem.

Extra Note 6:

23:26 *they (the Roman soldiers) . . . seized one Simon of Cyre*ne.Since scourging preceded crucifixion, Jesus' physical condition may have prevented him from carrying the cross (the patibulum or crossbeam; on the cross.

Jesus was severely weakened from the scourging and loss of blood and was therefore unable to carry his cross, which weighed 30 to 40 pounds. The skin and muscles of his back would have been severely lacerated, and he could have suffered severe injury to his internal organs. The most common Greek word for "cross" (stauros), though originally designating a "sharpened pole," became associated before the NT with various penal means of suspending bodies (before or after death), including those employing a crux , or cross-shaped device, for crucifixion.

23:27-31 The sympathetic mourning and lamenting of the women leads Jesus to quote from the prophet Zechariah (cf. Zech 12:10-14). the days are coming. See Luke 19:43; 21:6, 22-24. Blessed are the barren. In those days, the "reproach" of childlessness (see 1:25) will be a blessing.
Fall on us. A request (cf. Hos 10:8; Rev 6:16) to be put out of their misery.
green . . . dry. If God did not spare his innocent son ("green" wood), how much worse will it be when he allows the Romans to unleash his wrath on a sinful nation ("dry" wood)?

Luke 23:26. Condemned criminals normally bore their own crosses (i.e., the horizontal beam of the cross), but in this case someone else is drafted, perhaps due to the severe precrucifixion beating often administered, which the other Gospels report Jesus had received (cf. also Luke 18:33).

Cyrene was in what is now Libya in North Africa and included a large Jewish community; "Simon" is a Greek name often used by Jewish people (because it sounded like the patriarch Simeon). Devout Jewish pilgrims from throughout the Mediterranean world came to Jerusalem during Passover. Roman soldiers could impress anyone into service to carry things for them. Because it is a feast and work is forbidden, Simon is not coming from "the field" (literally) as a worker; perhaps he is late for the festival, only now arriving from Cyrene, or perhaps he has rejoined the day's festivities from where he is residing temporarily in the countryside.

Luke 23:27. Authorities used executions as public warnings, and crowds generally went to view an execution. Later rabbinic tradition claims that the pious women of Jerusalem often went to mourn the executed, providing a narcotic drink to dull the victim's pain. (Rulers sometimes forbade funerals and public mourning for condemned persons; but nationalistic Jews would sympathize with fellow Jews executed by the Romans for being revolutionaries.) In antiquity women usually expressed mourning more dramatically than men.

Luke 23:28. "Daughters of Jerusalem" designates Jerusalemite women (e.g., Song of Solomon 1:5; 2:7; 3:5) but could also recall some judgment oracles (Isaiah 3:16-17; 4:4). The admonition to "mourn for yourselves" was also a prophetic cry of judgment (Isaiah 32:9-14; Joel 1:5).

Luke 23:29. Jesus' statement is the sort of lament mothers would offer when their children died (2 Baruch 10:13-15). Josephus reports that some mothers were reduced to eating their children during the famine in Rome's siege against Jerusalem, A.D. 66-70 (cf. Leviticus 26:29; Deuteronomy 28:53; 2Kings 6:29).

Luke 23:30. The prophets had used the same image Jesus uses here as an image of awful judgment (cf. Hosea 10:8; Isaiah 2:10,19-21). Jesus especially uses Hosea 10:8, changing the wording only slightly.

Lk 23:31. Unlike a green one, a dry tree would easily catch fire. The point may be that Jesus is "green" wood, not really a revolutionary; how much greater would be the Roman judgment against the dry wood, the real revolutionaries? Or that if they murdered the innocent, how much more would they destroy themselves (Jewish leaders fought one another as well as the Romans in 66-70 AD)? Or the saying may simply mean that Jerusalem is becoming more ripe for judgment. Jesus may also allude back to the trees and Jerusalem's fall in 21:24,29-30, though this option seems less likely.

Lk 23:32. Authorities preferred to execute people on festivals, when the executions would warn the greatest number of people against rebellion. It was also less work for the soldiers if they could execute several convicts at once.

Regarding the priests…

So while the priests were being summoned to the Temple to make ready for the morning sacrifice, Christ was being led toward the Crucifixion. The reason the chief priests are pictured at the cross at the time of the Crucifixion but not seen at the time of death is that by then they were already back readying for the Passover sacrifice in the Temple (Mark 15:29–33). Those "passing by" (some even reviling the Messiah) were most likely on their way to the Temple, bringing their lamb sacrifice alongside them, all set for the day's proceedings. They thought they were going to offer their Passover sacrifice, all the while missing the fact that Christ—the true Passover—was fulfilling God's plan.

However, starting later this day, these lamb sacrifices in the Temple would no longer be accepted by God for atonement. Only by accepting the sacrifice of His son, Christ our Passover, is there forgiveness of sin. When Christ our Passover loudly cried out, "It is finished," around 3 PM, the darkness fled away. The lamb of God had paid the penalty for our sins, the sacrifice was complete, and the price for our atonement was paid.

God was now going to allow each person to make their own decision as to whether they would accept God's provision for sin, His own beloved son, the true Passover sacrifice. As the light of the sun again showed forth and the events of the day became widely known, many hearts had to wrestle with a decision. Once the sunlight came back out, there must have been pandemonium in the Temple among the priests and the multitudes who were waiting with their lambs as the darkness went away. The people beheld that the veil before the Holy of Holies was now torn in half and that the venerated place of God's presence and glory now lay bare and open before them. Not far away at Golgotha, at the foot of the cross, the Roman centurion spoke out, declaring, "truly this was the son of God" (Matthew 27:54).

So when we think back to John's words about the sixth hour (John 19:14), we must consider that there may be another truth being shown, before we take the position that the scriptures contradict themselves.

God's plan of redemption for humanity was fulfilled. Just as Joseph had comforted his brethren and told them that his being sold into Egypt was all part of God's plan from the beginning to preserve many people alive, so would the Lord speak similar words of comfort to all today.

The Inscripton Fastoned to the Cross

John 19:17-22 says simply that the notice was fastened to the cross. Luke 23:38 says the inscription was placed “over him” (Jesus), and Matthew 27:37 that it was placed over Jesus’ head. On the basis of Matthew's statement Jesus’ cross is usually depicted as the crux immissa, the cross which has the crossbeam set below the top of the upright beam. The other commonly used type of cross was the crux commissa, which had the crossbeam atop the upright beam. But Matthew's statement is not conclusive, since with the crux commissa the body would have sagged downward enough to allow the placard to be placed above Jesus’ head. The placard with Pilate's inscription is mentioned in all the gospels, but for John it was certainly ironic. Jesus really was the King of the Jews, although he was a king rejected by his own people (cf. 1:11). Pilate's own motivation for placing the title over Jesus is considerably more obscure. He may have meant this as a final mockery of Jesus himself, but Pilate's earlier mockery of Jesus seemed to be motivated by a desire to gain pity from the Jewish authorities in order to have him released. More likely Pilate saw this as a subtle way of getting back at the Jewish authorities who had pressured him into the execution of one he considered to be an innocent man.

[Source: NET Bible note]

Alternative thought:

Since the inscriptions given in the four Gospels are not exactly the same, is it possible that at least two notices were placed on the cross? Thus, possibly yielding the following:

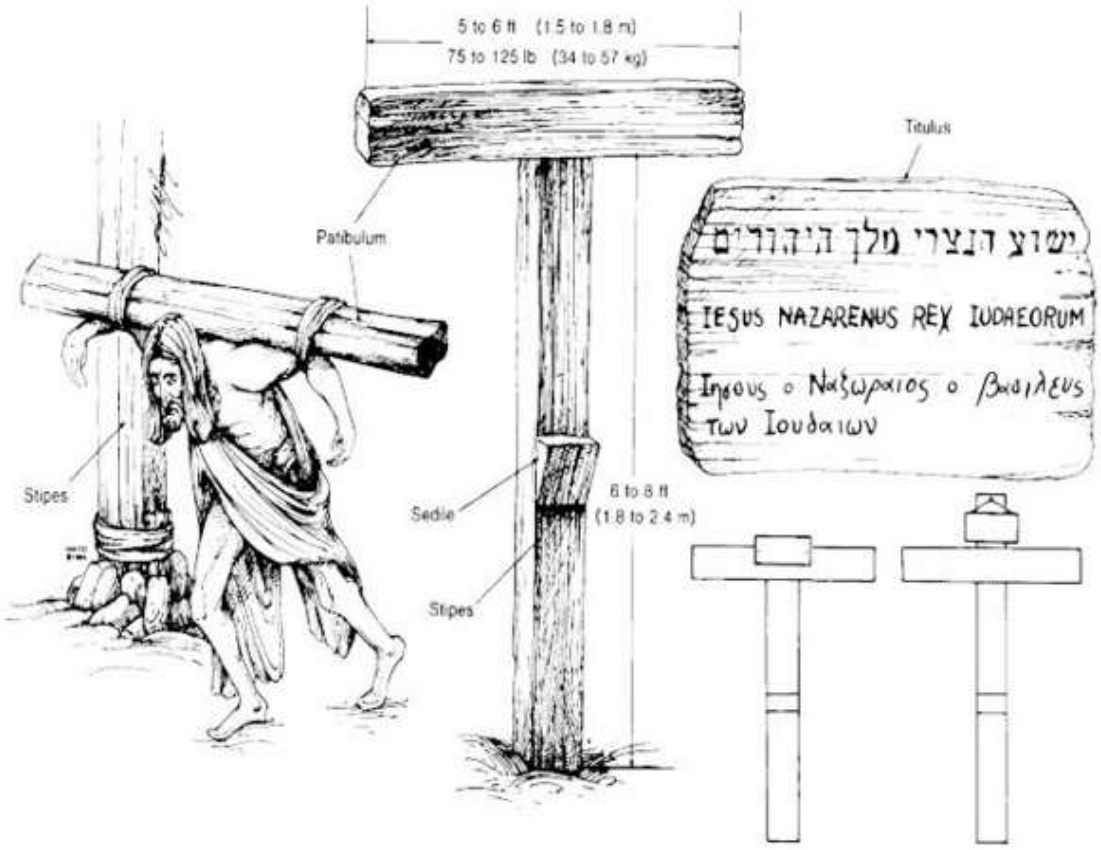
Above his head they put up the charge against him in writing:

THIS IS JESUS
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Pilate also had a sign lettered and put on the cross. The inscription was:

JESUS THE NAZARENE
THE KING OF THE JEWS.

Many of the Jews read this sign, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, and it was written in Hebrew [or Aramaic], Latin, and Greek. So the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, “Don't write, ‘The King of the Jews,’ * but that he said, ‘I am the King of the Jews.’ ”



Pilate replied, “What I have written, I have written.”

Then Jesus said, “Father, forgive them, because they do not know what they are doing.”

Extra Note 8:

The Cross – The High Point of All History:

…In this preparation for His death, the rulers play a role, Mary plays a role, Judas plays a role and the disciples play a role. But the power behind the scenes is none other than God who is orchestrating every detail of the death of Christ. This is the unfolding of the divine plan. This was established by Acts 2:23 says, the predetermined purpose of God. Jesus' death was not an accident, it was not a revolution gone bad, it was not a failed idea, it was a divine plan.

In fact, in Acts 4 it says that you did what God purposed you would do in killing Jesus. Himself, Jesus said, the Son of Man has come to give His life a ransom for many. You see, the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ has always been the focal point of Christianity, the heart of salvation, the key reality of the gospel and the central theme of the entire body. The cross is the apex of redemptive history, the ratification of the New Covenant, the single atonement for sin, the satisfaction of divine justice, the propitiation of holy wrath, the epitome of sovereign love and grace, the necessary object of saving faith and the only hope of eternal life. Because of the importance of the cross, it is previewed in the garden when God killed a sacrifice to cover a naked Adam and Eve…naked after they had sinned.

It is previewed in the promise, moments after the Fall and the curse when God reveals a man would come who would be wounded by Satan, but who would crush Satan's head. The cross is previewed in Abel's acceptable sacrifice. The cross is forecast in the ark that saved eight souls. The cross is seen in the sacrificial animal that was found in the place of Isaac on Mount Moriah. The cross is in view in the Passover lambs that were slaughtered in Egypt, whose death and blood protected the families from divine judgment. The cross is portrayed in the smitten rock in the wilderness which gave forth water to the thirsty people. The cross is previewed in the serpent lifted up in the desert for healing. The cross can be seen in the action of Boaz, the kinsman redeemer. The cross is anticipated in all Levitical sacrifices. And the cross is explicitly prophesied in detail in Psalm 22, Isaiah 53, and Zachariah 12, even down to the very things that happened to Jesus and the very words He said.

When John the Baptist identified Jesus as the Messiah, he said, "He is the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world." Everybody knew that a lamb was only useful and acceptable to God if it was killed. John the Baptist knew then that the Messiah had to die. They all knew that was what the Old Testament made clear.

Revelation 13, and though it's at the end of the Bible, takes us even before Scripture and before creation, Revelation 13 says that Jesus was the lamb slain before the foundation of the world, meaning that the plan for the death of Christ was precreation. This is not a good idea gone bad. This is what has been planned from eternity past. The cross alone provides the penitent believer in Christ with the forgiveness of all his sins forever and the promise of eternal heaven and eternal joy.

Understanding this, the significance of the cross, the sweeping breadth of its truth, no wonder we sing so many songs about the cross, right? The cross and the resurrection is the supreme testimony of God's goodness, His saving love, His righteousness, His grace, His mercy, His wisdom, His justice, His holiness and every other attribute. That is why all four gospel writers end their histories of Jesus with the details concerning His death and resurrection. This is the high point of all history.

Extra Note 9:

An Alternate View

The "Others" Crucified With The Lord

Mislead by tradition and the ignorance of Scripture on the part of medieval painters, it is the general belief that only two were crucified with the Lord. But Scripture does not say so. It states that there were two "thieves" (Gr. lestai = robbers, Matthew 27:38. Mark 15:27); and that there were two "malefactors" (Gr. kakouryoi, Luke 23:32).

It is also recorded that both the robbers reviled Him (Matthew 27:44. Mark 15:32); while in Luke 23:39 only one of the malefactors "railed on Him", and "the other rebuked him" for so doing (verse 40). If there were only two, this is a real discrepancy; and there is another, for the two malefactors were "led with Him to be put to death" (Luke 23:32), and when they were come to Calvary, "they" then and there "crucified Him and the malefactors, one on the right hand and the other on the left" (v. 33).

But the other discrepancy is according to Matthew, that after the parting of the garments, and after "sitting down they watched Him there," that "THEN" were there two robbers crucified with Him, "one on the right hand and the other on the left" (Matthew 27:38, Mark 15:27). The two malefactors had already been "led with Him" and were therefore crucified "with Him," and before the two robbers were brought.

The first two (malefactors) who were "led with Him" were placed one on either side. When the other two (robbers) were brought, much later, they were also similarly placed; so that there were two (one of each) on both side, and the Lord in the midst. The malefactors were therefore the nearer, and being on the inside they could speak to each other better, and the one with the Lord, as recorded (Luke 23:39-43).

John's record confirms this, for he speaks only of place, and not of time. He speaks, generally of the fact: "where they crucified Him, and with Him others, two on this side, and that side, and Jesus in the midst" (John 19:8). In Revelation 22:2 we have the same expression in the Greek (enteuthen kai enteuthen), which is accurately rendered "on either side." So it should be rendered here: "and with Him others, on either side".

But John further states (19:32, 33): "then came the soldiers and brake the legs of the first, and of the other which was crucified with Him. But when they came (Gr. = having come) to Jesus, and saw that He was dead already, they brake not His legs." Had there been only two (one on either side) the soldiers would not have come to the Lord, but would have passed Him, and then turned back again. But they came to Him after they had broken the legs of the first two.

There are two words used of the "other" and "others" in John 19:32 and Luke 23:32. In the former passage we read, "they brake the legs of the first and of the other." Here the Greek is allos which is the other (the second) of the two when there are more (see Matthew 10:23; 25:16, 17, 20; 27:61; 28:1. John 18:15, 16; 20:2, 4, 8. and Revelation 17:10).

In the latter passage (Luke 23:32) the word is heteros = different: "and others also, two were being led with Him." These were different from Him with Whom they were led, not different from one another; for they were "in the same condemnation", and "justly", while He had "done nothing amiss" (verses 40, 41).

From this evidence, therefore, it is clear that there were four "others" crucified with the Lord; and thus, on the one hand, there are no "discrepancies", as alleged; while, on the other hand, every word and every expression, in the Greek, gets (and gives) its own exact value, and its full significance.

To show that we are not without evidence, even from tradition, we may state that there is a "Calvary" to be seen at Ploubezere near Lannion, in the Cotes-du-Nord, Brittany, known as Les Cinq Croix ("The Five Crosses"). There is a high cross in the center, with four lower ones, two on either side.

"In the Roman Catholic church ... the altar slab or "table" alone is consecrated, and in sign of this are cut in its upper surface five Greek crosses, one in the center and one in each corner ... but the history of the origin and development of this practice is not fully worked out" (Encyclopedia. Britannica., 11th (Cambridge) ed., vol. i, pp. 762, 763). This practice may possibly be explained by the subject of this Appendix.

CASTING LOTS FOR THE SAVIOR'S CLOTHES—THE PENITENT THIEF REWARDED—CHRIST'S FILIAL FAREWELL TO HIS MOTHER—"IT IS FINISHED"

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem. Golgotha: Calvary.

Matthew 27: 39-56; Mark 15: 29-41; Luke 23: 35-49; John 19, 23-30.

Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments and made four parts, to each soldier a part, and also the tunic. Now the tunic was without seam, woven from the top in one piece. They said therefore among themselves, “Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be,” that the Scripture might be fulfilled which says:

“They divided My garments among them, And for My clothing they cast lots.”

Therefore the soldiers did these things.

And those who passed by blasphemed him, wagging their heads and saying, “You who destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross.”

Likewise the chief priests also, mocking with the scribes and elders, said, “He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he is the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted in God; let Him deliver him now if He will have him; for he said, ‘I am the Son of God.’”

The soldiers also mocked Him, coming and offering him sour wine, and saying, “If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself.”

Then one of the criminals who were hanged blasphemed him, saying, “If you are the Christ, save yourself and us.” But the other, answering, rebuked him, saying, “Do you not even fear God, seeing you are under the same condemnation? And we indeed justly, for we receive the due reward of our deeds; but this man has done nothing wrong.”

Then he said to Jesus, “Lord, remember me when you come into your kingdom.” And Jesus said to him, “Assuredly, I say to you, today you will be with me in Paradise.”

Now it was about the sixth hour, and there was darkness over all the earth until the ninth hour.

Now there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple whom he loved 136* standing by, he said to his mother, "Woman, behold your son!" Then he said to the disciple, "Behold your mother!" And from that hour that disciple took her to his own home.

And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani?" 136† that is, "My God, My God, why have You forsaken me?" Some of those who stood there, when they heard that, said, "This Man is calling for Elijah!"

Immediately one of them ran and took a sponge, filled it with sour wine and put it on a reed, and offered it to him to drink. The rest said, "Let him alone; let us see if Elijah will come to save him."

After this, Jesus, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, said, "I thirst!" Now a vessel full of sour wine was sitting there; and they filled a sponge with sour wine, put it on hyssop, and put it to his mouth.

So when Jesus had received the sour wine, he said, "It is finished!"

And when Jesus had cried out with a loud voice, he said, "Father, 'into Your hands I commit my spirit.' " Having said this, and bowing his head, he gave up his spirit.

Then, behold, the veil of the temple was torn in two from top to bottom; and the earth quaked, and the rocks were split.

The tombs broke open and the bodies of many holy people [the saints] who had died were raised to life. (They came out of the tombs after Jesus' resurrection, and went into the holy city and appeared to many people.) [See Extra Note 10]

So when the centurion and those with him, who were guarding Jesus, saw the earthquake and the things that had happened and how Jesus died, they feared greatly, saying, "Truly this was the Son of God!" The centurion, seeing what had happened, praised God and said, "Surely this was a righteous man."

And the whole crowd who came together to that sight, seeing what had been done, beat their breasts and returned.

And many women who followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to him were there, among whom were Mary Magdalen; Mary the mother of James and Joses; and Salome; 136^ and many other women who came up with him to Jerusalem

But all his acquaintances, and the women who followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance, watching these things.

Footnotes

136:* Supposed to be John -- the brother of James and son of Zebedee.

136:^ Salome – possibily the mother of James the Less (i.e., the younger) and Joses, sons of Zebedee.

136:† (Mark 15:34 and similar [“Eli, Eli…”] in Matthew 27:46):
Jesus' cry is an Aramaic quotation of Psalm 22:1, which was sometimes recited at this time of day in prayer but receives special significance when Jesus prays it. For biblically literate ancient hearers, the first line could evoke this entire psalm of the righteous sufferer — and its hope of divine vindication. (Jesus probably quoted the psalm in Hebrew, as in Matthew, though cf. Aramaic prayer in Mark 14:36; Mark uses the Aramaic form probably because the saying was transmitted in an Aramaic milieu. "Eli" could be mistaken for "Elijah" much more easily than "Eloi"; cf. 15:35-36.)

Mark 15:35-36 (and Matthew 27:48-49): Not only was Elijah expected to come at the end (Malachi 4:5), but some circles (attested in later rabbinic sources) believed that God sent Elijah like an angel to help or rescue famous teachers.

Matthew 27:46. Here Jesus quotes Ps 22:1, which may have been part of the Scripture recitation at this time of day. His opponents do not pause to consider that the psalm ends with the sufferer's vindication and triumph (Ps 22:25-31).

Whereas Mark's quotation is in Aramaic, Matthew's is mainly in Hebrew.

Matthew 27:47. Because Elijah was thought never to have died, some rabbis felt that he was sent on errands like the angels, often to aid or deliver pious rabbis from trouble. Matthew's Hebrew version of the prayer (Eli , 27:46) sounds closer to "Elijah" (Eliyahu) than Mark's Aramaic version (Eloi).

Another Perspective:

Was Jesus forsaken? – Matthew 27:46 / Mark 15:34 / Psalms 37:25-28 / John 16:32

Matthew 27:46

The KJV says: “And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?”

The NIV says: “About the ninth hour Jesus cried out in a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani?"—which means, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?"”

This same “forsaken” reading also occurs in Mark 15:34. The problem for Zorbans here is that there are verses that tell us that God does not forsake the righteous (many actually try and teach that at that moment, Jesus was evil and unrighteous and thus was forsaken!) and that Jesus is not alone because the Father is with him.

Psalms 37: 25-28

KJV: “I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread. He is ever merciful, and lendeth; and his seed is blessed. Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell for evermore.

For the LORD loveth judgment, and forsaketh not his saints; they are preserved for ever: but the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.”

NIV: “I was young and now I am old, yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken or their children begging bread. They are always generous and lend freely; their children will be blessed. Turn from evil and do good; then you will dwell in the land forever. For the LORD loves the just and will not forsake his faithful ones. They will be protected forever, but the offspring of the wicked will be cut off;”

John 16:32

KJV: “Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me.”

NIV: “"But a time is coming, and has come, when you will be scattered, each to his own home. You will leave me all alone. Yet I am not alone, for my Father is with me.”

The Younan says (Mark 27:46): “and about the ninth hour cried out Yeshua with a voice loud and said [my] God, [my] God, why have you spared me?”

The Peshitta says clearly lacks this vital contradiction, unlike the Greek.

It is easy to understand how this mistranslation occurred, as “sabachthani” can mean “forsaken” and “spared”, among other things. People may argue that it doesn’t make sense that Jesus would ask why He has been spared (though it does make sense when you realise that He was suffering for about 6 hours, and died soon after that plea. i.e. “Why have you spared me? Let’s get it over with!”) but it surely makes a lot more sense that Jesus contradicting His own Word!

This example is also a semi-split word, as it deals with a mistranslation.

Another Perspective (version 2):

Why hast thou forsaken me or why have you spared me? – Matthew 27:46 / Mark 15:34

The importance of this semi split word, dealing with Alaha's alleged forsaking of Jesus, especially to the field of Christian apologetics, hardly needs to be stressed.

The KJV says (Matthew 27:46): "And about the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

The KJV says (Mark 15:34): "And at the ninth hour Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

The first issue with this story, is that the Greek and English tell us that Alaha allegedly forsook Jesus, resulting in the unfortunate twisting of Scripture by Christian apologists. The second issue, applies to Aramaic primacists. Greek primacists say, "If Matthew and Mark were written in Aramaic, why do the Gospel-writers write the same thing twice (i.e. first the Aramaic words of Jesus, then the Greek translation)", instead of just simply translating it?

Let us deal first with the first.

Had Jesus in this last hour said that Alaha had forsaken Him, the Jews would have used this saying against Him. They would have taken it as a confession that He was a blasphemer and therefore Alaha had deserted Him in His darkest hour; because Alaha never forsakes the righteous, but He may forsake the sinners.

This is not all. Had Jesus' cry meant forsaking, He not only would have destroyed the faith of his disciples and followers, but would have contradicted His own teaching, the very assurance which He had given to His disciples, and the very cause for which He was dying. On the other hand, judgment and death on the cross did not come upon Jesus suddenly. On many occasions He had told his disciples that He would die on the cross and rise again; they had heard him saying, "you will leave me alone; and yet I am never alone because the Father is with me." (John 16:32)

How is it that the European translators of the Bible in the 17th Century A.D. who were thousands of miles from Palestine, and who could not speak Aramaic, knew more about Jesus' cry on the cross than the Jews who spoke Aramaic and stood near the cross watching Him die? And how is it that Peter, John, and other disciples and follows of Jesus never commented on these ominous words? Indeed, if Jesus had meant desertion they would have commented on it, because such a statement or even such a thought was contrary to all Jesus had preached and taught. The apostles did not comment on these last words simply because they knew what Jesus meant in their Galilean dialect, or northern Aramaic. Moreover, they knew had He meant forsaken, He would have used the Aramaic word "taa tani", which means "forsaken."

Another problem with this is that apologists will often try to explain that at that moment, Jesus was sin, and that is why Alaha forsook Him. Well, if Alaha forsook His own Son for sin, what hope do we have? Such an unfortunate twisting of Scripture by apologists who seek to defend their erroneous Bibles.

The simple solution, from the Aramaic, is that Jesus did not imply that Alaha forsook Him at all! The Aramaic "sabachthani" does not have to mean forsaken. It can mean many things, among them, "spared". Now "lemana" (written as "lama" in the Greek copies) denotes a question, so a fairly accurate translation would be:

"My God, My God, Why have you spared me?" (i.e., let's finish this, let's get this over with!)

Now, does this rendering make sense? For what reason/s did Jesus ask, "Why have you spared me?" Well for one thing, Jesus was suffering horrendous pain for about SIX HOURS. Crucifixions can last even longer! This is a valid explanation, especially as soon after saying this, He finally died. Also, this is consistent with the fact that many in the crowd thought He cried for Elijah. Why would they think that? Perhaps, as He called out for “Eli”, His exhaustion and heavy breathing caused Him to add an “ah” on the end. Try talking when you have gone for a long run (or been crucified for 6 hours) and you’ll see what I mean. “Eli-ah” sounds a lot like “Eliyah” does it not?

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

However, there are other possibilities too. It may have been Jesus’ eagerness to fulfill His destiny and to go to Paradise. It may also have been His wish to fulfill more Torah prophecy! It was prophesied that a bone of His would not be broken, and since He died, there was no need for the Roman soldiers to break His legs.

So basically we have two main possibilities. The “forsaken” rendering is not very possible, due to the word chosen, and the resulting contradictions. The “spared” rendering is very possible, doesn’t allow for contradictions, and just makes sense. And that’s what the Peshitta is all about.

Now let us deal with the second issue, the attack on Peshitta primacy, caused by the “doubling up” (gloss) of the same message in the Peshitta (first Jesus’ Aramaic words, then a translation into the Aramaic Peshitta).

Well, to start with, the book of Matthew in the original Aramaic does not “double up”. It does not have the translation of what “Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?” means. But this does indeed occur in Mark. Why?

Well, Mark was writing to people who spoke a different dialect of Aramaic than Jesus, and, many thought that Jesus was calling for Elijah. Evidently, Mark wanted to be very clear, and translated this into his audience’s dialect.

[From an Aramaic primacy perspective.]

Extra Note 1:

Why Did the Roman Soldier Stab Jesus with His Spear?

“Why did the Roman soldier stab Jesus with a spear when scripture clearly states he was aware that Jesus was already dead?”

The account of Jesus’ is being stabbed on the cross by a Roman Soldier is found only in the Gospel of John 19.31-34.

In all the gospel accounts we read of surprise by the Romans that Jesus died so quickly on the cross. It is not surprising, then, that Pilate found it difficult to believe that Jesus had died so soon (Mark 15:44, 45). Crucifixion was common form of execution in the ancient world, mainly by the Carthaginians, Persians, Seleucids, and of course the Romans who used it until the fourth century, when Emperor Constantine eradicated it.

According to medical historians, The death of the victim, depending upon age and physical condition, would usually be the result of heart failure, suffocation or exhaustion - but rarely soon. In some cases, it could take days. In any event, the death could be hastened along by breaking the victim’s legs which initiated death by asphyxiation, since the victim wouldn’t be able to use his legs to push him up to get a breath of air. But Jesus’ death took less than six hours, and that without breaking his legs. A peculiar phenomenon of the day, as seen by the Romans’ reactions. And such an exception gave rise to those who doubted the veracity of Jesus’ death.

So, John had a vested interest in demonstrating that Jesus had actually died and the stabbing served to show this.

According to his superiors orders, the soldier who heard Jesus “breathe his last” (Mark 15.37; Luke 23.46) thrust his spear which was to verify that the report was accurate. when “blood and water”

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC] flowed out and as the bleeding stopped, it was clear the death sentence had been carried out. Throughout the Bible, Jesus Christ is referred to as "The Lamb of God", which is a direct reference to the slaying of the Passover lamb that was always done by its shed blood, from someone actually killing it (Exodus 12:6-7). It was not to be strangled (i.e. suffocated, as happened to crucifixion victims after their legs were broken - hanging from the arms alone eventually causes suffocation from the person unable to inhale because the full body weight would then have to be drawn upward with the chest muscles). It is also very interesting to note that none of the lamb's bones were to be broken (Numbers 9:12), something that was not done to the Christ.

It took nearly 1,800 years before we would know why Jesus died in six hours, when the norm was 36. In 1805 Dr. Gruner wrote in A Commentary on the Death of Jesus that Jesus had died of a ruptured heart muscle. In 1847 Dr. Stroud of London corroborated Gruner's assertions, when he released his own report based on numerous post mortem examinations that claimed Jesus had not died directly from the crucifixion, but from a "laceration or rupture of the heart."

That a Roman soldier stabbed Jesus with a spear, whether to verify or to vilify and it became clear that Jesus had died. And somehow, it seems fitting to know that Jesus died not because he was exhausted and weakened, but because he was heart broken. He died with a ruptured heart on the Cross, but not because of it.

Astronomical science shows that a Passover full moon occurred on Thursday, the 14th of Nisan, in the year AD 30. Jesus was approximately 33½ years old at death, having begun his 3½-year ministry at about age 30 (Luke 3:23). Scholars mostly agree that Rome was off by a couple of years in estimating the beginning date of our calendar, so when taking into account the "zero year" (between 1 BC and AD 1), Jesus would have been born around 4 BC. He did not make it to his 34th birthday, which would have been around September or October of 30 AD.

Simple Harmony of the Crucifixion Accounts (NIV)

Matthew 27	Mark 15	Luke 23	John 19
32 As they were going out, they met a man from Cyrene, named Simon, and they forced him to carry the cross.	21 A certain man from Cyrene, Simon, the father of Alexander and Rufus, was passing by on his way in from the country, and they forced him to carry the cross.	32 Two other men, both criminals, were also led out with him to be executed.	17a Carrying his own cross...
33 They came to a place called Golgotha (which means The Place of the Skull).	22 They brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha (which means The Place of the Skull).	33a When they came to the place called the Skull,	17b he went out to the place of the Skull (which in Aramaic is called Golgotha).
34 There they offered Jesus wine to drink, mixed with gall; but after tasting it, he refused to drink it.	23 Then they offered him wine mixed with myrrh, but he did not take it.
35a When they had crucified him,	24a And they crucified him.	33b there they crucified him,	18a Here they crucified him,

It read: JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS. 20 Many of the Jews read this sign, for the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city, and the sign was written in Aramaic, Latin and Greek. 21 The chief priests of the Jews protested to Pilate, "Do not write 'The King of the Jews,' but that this man claimed to be king of the Jews." 22 Pilate

This garment was seamless, woven in one piece from top to bottom. [24] "Let's not tear it," they said to one another. "Let's decide by lot who will get it." This happened that the scripture might be fulfilled which said, "They divided my garments among them and cast lots for my clothing." So this is what the soldiers did.

			[31b] Because the Jews did not want the bodies left on the crosses during the Sabbath, they asked Pilate to have the legs broken and the bodies taken down. [32] The soldiers therefore came and broke the legs of the first man who had been crucified with Jesus, and then those of the other. [33] But when they came to Jesus and found that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. [34] Instead, one of the soldiers pierced Jesus' side with a spear, bringing a sudden flow of blood and water. [35] The man who saw it has given testimony, and his testimony is true. He knows that he tells the truth, and he testifies so that you also may believe. Extra Note 7:

Matthew 27:27-44
Executing the King of the Jews

Crucifixion was the most shameful and painful form of execution known in antiquity. Stripped naked—especially shameful for Palestinian Jews—the condemned would be hanged in the sight of the crowds, regarded as a criminal, unable to restrain the excretion of wastes in public and subjected to excruciating torture. Sometimes the victim would be tied to the cross with ropes; in other cases, as with Jesus, he would also be nailed to the cross. His hands would not be free to swat away insects attracted to his bloodied back or other wounds. The victim's own weight would pull his body into a position that eventually prevented breathing, if he did not die by dehydration or (if nailed to the cross) blood loss first. A footstand on the cross allowed him some support, but sooner or later his strength would give out, and (usually after several days) he would die from suffocation or (usually more quickly) dehydration.

Mt 27:27. The Praetorium in this period was Herod the Great's old palace, where the Roman prefect stayed when he visited Jerusalem. A cohort of six hundred men was normally stationed in Jerusalem (at the fortress Antonia on the Temple Mount), reinforced by additional troops who accompanied Pilate to the feast in case they were necessary for riot control.

Mt 27:28. Nakedness was especially embarrassing to a Jewish person in antiquity. Red robes would be those most readily available, because soldiers wore red capes; this garment could resemble the purple robe of the pre-Roman Greek rulers of the East. Roman soldiers often played games to pass time: they carved on the stone pavement of the fortress Antonia, where they were garrisoned on the Temple Mount, and knucklebones used as dice have also been recovered there.

Mt 27:29. The soldiers' kneeling before Jesus parodies royal homage in the Greek East. The reed is meant to parody a scepter; military floggings often used bamboo canes, so one may have been on hand among the soldiers. "King of the Jews" is an ironic taunt but may also reflect some typical Roman anti-Judaism; as auxiliaries in this region, the soldiers are probably ethnically Syrian. "Hail!" was the standard salute to the Roman emperor.

Mt 27:30. Spitting on a person was one of the most grievous insults short of violence; Jewish people considered the spittle of non-Jews particularly unclean. Some think that the soldiers' spitting on Jesus might parody the kiss of homage expected by rulers of the Greek East, but it could be simply pure contempt.

Mt 27:31. Those being crucified by the Romans were stripped naked; Jewish law on stoning stripped a man of all but a loincloth. An actual execution squad on average consisted of four men, but is perhaps more here given the multiple victims.

Mt 27:32. Cyrene, a large city in what is now Libya in North Africa, was ethnically divided among Libyans, Greeks and Jews; the Jewish community probably included some local converts. "Simon" is a Greek name commonly used by Jewish people (because of its resemblance with the biblical "Simeon"). Like multitudes of foreign Jews, Simon had come to Jerusalem for the feast. Roman soldiers could impress any person into service to carry things for them. The condemned person himself normally had to carry the horizontal beam (Latin patibulum) of the cross out to the site where the upright stake (Latin palus) awaited; but Jesus' back had been too severely scourged for him to continue this (see comment on 27:26).

> Simon was just a random victim; but the fact that his name was remembered suggests that the experience may have brought him into the disciples' group. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Mt 27:33. The likeliest site for Golgotha (near the Holy Sepulcher) used the remains of an ancient rock quarry.

Mt 27:34. The women of Jerusalem had prepared a painkilling potion of drugged wine for condemned men to drink; Jesus, committed to the full agony of the cross, refuses it (cf. 26:29). Psalm 69:21 speaks of both "gall" and "vinegar" (Mark 15:36 emphasizes the latter). The Aramaic term for "myrrh" (Mark 15:23) resembles the Hebrew term for "gall."

> mixed with gall. Tradition says that the women of Jerusalem customarily furnished this painkilling narcotic to prisoners who were crucified. Matthew may intend an allusion to Psalm 69:21. Jesus refused to drink it, probably because he wanted to be fully conscious until his death (v. 50). [Source: NIV '08 Study Bible Notes]

> *Gall, otherwise known as wormwood, is a bitter narcotic made from the oil of Artemisia (cp. Mk 15:23). [Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

Mt 27:35-36. Romans completely stripped the person being executed. Roman law permitted the execution squad any minor possessions the executed person carried (cf. also Psalm 22:18). The custom of casting lots, common in both the Old Testament and Greek culture, was a common ancient way to make decisions of this nature.

Mt 27:37. The condemned person sometimes carried the charge (Latin titulus) to the site of execution.

Mt 27:38. The word for "robbers" here is the standard term in Josephus for revolutionaries; presumably they had been colleagues of Barabbas. Executing criminals at festivals increased the publicity, hence the deterrent value, of their deaths.

> The word translated robber is used by Josephus for Jewish freedom fighters. It is used in 26:55 (NIV 'leading a rebellion') and for Barabbas in John 18:40. [Source: New Bible Commentary]

Mt 27:39. The Gospel writers purposely describe the ridicule in the language of the righteous sufferer of Psalm 22:7.

Mt 27:40. Those who pass by repeat Satan's taunt of Mt 4:3,7, still emphasizing their expectation of a political messiah. Ironically, even those within the narrative should have realized how closely the accusers' words echo the mocking words of the wicked in Wis 2:18: "If the righteous person really is a son of God, God will help him and deliver him from those who resist him."

Mt 27:41-42. Compare 4:3,6.

Mt 27:43-44. The language of the religious authorities exactly parallels Ps 22:8; the righteous sufferer himself quotes this psalm in Mt 27:46 (Psalm 22:1).

> The mockery came from Jews, of various classes. The two robbers (38,44) were probably political insurgents (part of Barabbas' gang?), so that Jesus died, ironically, in the very Zealot company he had been so careful to avoid. Those who passed by were ordinary Jews, who knew about Jesus' alleged claims concerning the temple and had heard of his claim to be Son of God . The invitation to exploit his supposed status as 'Son of God' echoes the temptations in 4:3, 6; but the temptation had already been faced in Gethsemane, and it was precisely because he was God's Son that he could not come down. Finally, the chief priests, the teachers of the law and the elders (note the full listing of Sanhedrin members, as in 16:21) repeated similar taunts, but added also in mockery the precious title King of Israel. The total rejection of Jesus by his people could hardly be made more obvious.

Matthew 27:45-56
The King's Death

Mt 27:45. The "sixth hour" begins by noon, the "ninth hour" by 3 p.m.; crucifixions rarely ended so quickly. The latter time, when Jesus dies, was close to the time of the evening offering in the temple.

Darkness was one of the plagues in Egypt (the one preceding the sacrifice of the first paschal lamb) and occurs in the prophets as a judgment for the end time; both Jews and most pagans considered darkenings of the sky (especially eclipses) bad omens. Cf. Am 8:9.

Mt 27:46. Here Jesus quotes Psalm 22:1, which may have been part of the Scripture recitation at this time of day. His opponents do not pause to consider that the psalm ends with the sufferer's vindication and triumph (Psalm 22:25-31). Whereas Mark's quotation is in Aramaic, Matthew's is mainly in Hebrew.

Mt 27:47. Because Elijah was thought never to have died, some rabbis felt that he was sent on errands like the angels, often to aid or deliver pious rabbis from trouble. Matthew's Hebrew version of the prayer (Eli, 27:46) sounds closer to "Elijah" (Eliyahu) than Mark's Aramaic version (Eloi).

Mt 27:48. This offer of a wine-soaked sponge may have been an act of mercy, because the wine could act as a painkiller. Perhaps the man thinks Jesus is delirious from pain. But sour wine was usually a remedy for thirst, and it may have been an attempt to revive him to perpetuate his suffering.

Mt 27:49. See comment on 27:47.

Mt 27:50. "Giving up one's spirit" is used elsewhere to refer to death.

Mt 27:51-53. Stories were told of catastrophes occurring at the deaths of pious rabbis, especially those whose intercession had been vital to the world; on rare occasions, Greek writers also applied such stories to the deaths of prominent philosophers. These events would have communicated Jesus' importance quite well to ancient observers and readers.

Mt 27:51. The veil (or curtain — NIV) is probably the one between the holy of holies—inhabited only by God—and the sanctuary where the priests ministered (Exodus 26:33). Matthew might intend this tearing of the veil to recall the rending of clothes at the hearing of blasphemy (Matthew 26:65). The point of the veil's rending may be that by the cross God provides access for all people into his presence, or it may indicate the departure of God from the temple (as in Eze 10-11). Apocalypses sometimes mentioned a major earthquake shortly before the coming of the kingdom.

Mt 27:52-53. Although these raisings of the dead saints, like those in the Old Testament, do not mean that they will not die again, they prefigure Judaism's anticipated final resurrection, when the dead will be raised never to die again. Archaeological evidence indicates that in popular (not official) Judaism, the tombs of saints were venerated. Gentiles sometimes understood appearances of the (not-raised) dead as omens of coming disaster (Ovid, Metamorphoses 15.797).

Mt 27:54. Here pagans—the executioners—are the first people after Jesus' death to recognize, to some extent, his identity, although they may mean " Son of God, quite differently than Jewish people and Christians (including Matthew) would have (cf. Daniel 3:25,29): a semidivine hero, son of a deity, rather than Messiah .

Mt 27:55-56. Although an execution squad might restrict close access (lest the crowd's view be obstructed), family and close friends might be present to lament at an execution; only the male disciples would have been in danger as suspected allies of a revolutionary. Women often (though much less than men) performed the office of patron, or benefactor, supporting religious or other groups; it became problematic only for critics already opposed to a group. But in ancient Jewish Palestine, critics could have denounced as scandalous these women accompanying Jesus' disciples.

Matthew 27:57-61
Jesus' Burial

Mt 27:57. Arimathea was only about twenty miles from Jerusalem; given the location of Joseph's tomb (27:60) and his historic membership in the Sanhedrin (Mark 15:43), Joseph's primary residence is apparently now Jerusalem. Even if the Sabbath had begun (hence "evening"), the urgent washing and preliminary burial were permitted even on the Sabbath (before decomposition would begin).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Mt 27:58. Joseph is said to have been wealthy; he must have been prominent to have secured an audience with Pilate after his official public hours (which ended at noon). When Romans crucified persons, they usually denied them burial (leaving them to be eaten by vultures or dogs); Jewish scruples in Palestine demanded burial (Deuteronomy 21:23), but for the first year this could be in a dishonorable grave site for criminals, not a family tomb. Exceptions were often made when relatives asked for the body, but in the case of treason (as claiming to be the Jewish king would be) an exception would not be made unless the deceased had a prominent advocate. Jesus had a posthumous ally in this man of influence, who was not ashamed to go on record as his follower. Because prominent people viewed as allies of a condemned revolutionary could risk their lives by speaking up for him, Joseph risks a great deal to come forward.

The term used for "evening" included late afternoon as well as just after sundown. In any case, in this hot climate under Jewish law the preliminary disposal of the body (including its washing, also practiced by other peoples) took precedence over celebration of the Sabbath, even if the rest of the treatment of the body had to wait. Burying the dead was an important duty of the pious in Judaism. Public mourning was important for all the dead but was illegal for anyone who had been executed.

Mt 27:59-60. Being wrapped in a fine linen shroud would mark an honorable burial. To bury someone in one's own family tomb was a special act of reverence and affection (cf. 1Kings 13:30-31; cf. Isaiah 53:12). (Cemeteries and burial plots in this period nearly always belonged to families.) In the first century, the body would normally be left to rot in the tomb's antechamber for the first year; at the end of the year, the bones would be gathered into a box, which would slide into a slot on the wall. This practice probably related to the standard Jewish hope in the resurrection of the body at the end of the age. The stone rolled in front of the tomb was a carved, disk-shaped stone probably about three feet in diameter, rolled into place in a groove and moved back from the entrance only with great effort.

Mt 27:61. Women generally took part in preparing bodies for burial in the ancient world. The oldest tradition for the site of Jesus' grave (the Roman Catholic location of the Holy Sepulcher) is a clearly first-century tomb located inside the walls of Jerusalem since the forties of the first century, even though the New Testament and Jewish law required that the crucifixion happen outside the city walls. But King Agrippa I expanded the city walls during his reign (A.D. 41-44); at the time of Jesus' crucifixion, that area was still outside the walls. Thus the tradition of the approximate site of Jesus' burial and resurrection goes back to within roughly ten years of the event. (The traditional Protestant site contains tombs from a much later period and has no evidence to commend it.)

Mark 15:21-32
The Crucified King

Mk 15:21. Cyrene was in what is now Libya in North Africa and included a large Jewish community. "Simon" was a common name among Jews (its resemblance to the patriarch Simeon made it popular). Devout Jewish pilgrims from throughout the Mediterranean world (and presumably a few God-fearers) came to Jerusalem during Passover. Roman soldiers could impress anyone into service to carry things for them. Because it is a feast and work is forbidden, Simon is not coming from "the field" (literally) as a worker; perhaps he is late for the festival, only now arriving from Cyrene or from where he is residing temporarily in the countryside.

Mk 15:22. The site of the crucifixion might have been named "Place of the Skull" because so many deaths occurred there, or from the shape of the hill left from surrounding quarried rock. (Nevertheless, the purported site of Calvary proposed by Charles Gordon around 1884, which then had the shape of a skull, acquired those contours long after Jesus' day. In contrast to the traditional site, "Gordon's Calvary" has no claim to reliability.)

> Jesus' execution site was called Golgotha in Aramaic (meaning Place of the Skull). In the Latin Vulgate, the word for skull is Calvariæ, from which we get "Calvary." Crucifixion was intended to deter crime, so the site was near a well-traveled road. In Jesus' day, Golgotha lay outside the walled city of Jerusalem (John 19:20; see Matthew 27:32; Hebrews 13:12). When Herod Antipas enlarged the city with the "third wall," Golgotha was enclosed.
> [Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

Mk 15:23. It is said that pious women of Jerusalem normally prepared a solution like this one and offered it to those being executed to dull their pain (cf. Pr 31:6-7); Jesus chooses to endure the full force of the agony of crucifixion. Many scholars suggest that the myrrh had narcotic effects; others demur, but at the very least, the alcohol in the wine could help deaden sensitivity to pain.

Mk 15:24. A person being executed would be stripped naked; nakedness was particularly shameful in the East and for Jews. Roman soldiers could normally retain the executed criminal's final belongings. Casting lots was a frequent method of making decisions (see comment on Ac 1:26). Often a unit of four men would be dispatched to oversee a crucifixion (although more are possible in this case, since multiple prisoners are executed here).

> Crucifixion as a form of capital punishment goes back at least to the Medes and Persians in the 600s BC. It spread to the eastern Mediterranean world in the 300s BC through Alexander the Great and became the dominant form of capital punishment in the Roman Empire until AD 337, when it was banned by Constantine. It was a slow, shameful, torturous way of killing a person. The victim sometimes lived for days, and crows and dogs would feed on the victims even before they died. A person could be fixed to the cross by ropes or, as with Jesus (Luke 24:39; John 20:25,27; see Colossians 2:14), by nails placed between the main bones of the victim's wrists. To prevent premature death by asphyxiation, a footrest or a seat that supported the buttocks was often placed on the vertical beam. [Source: NLT Study Bible Notes]

Mk 15:25. The third hour began shortly after 8:30 a.m. and ran till shortly after 9:30 a.m. (The exact time of hours would vary according to the time of sunrise from which they were reckoned, hence according to the season of year.)

> Mark records Jesus' crucifixion as occurring at the third hour, or 9:00 am. John 19:14 gives the time as around the sixth hour, or noon. These are rough estimates of time, and events in the later morning were usually described as occurring around either the third (Mt 20:3; Ac 2:15) or sixth hour (15:33; Mt 20:5; 27:45; Lk 23:44; Jn 4:6; 19:14: Ac 10:9).

> The 24-hour period began and ended with each new sunset (Genesis 1:5). The word "day" was also used to denote the daylight period, basically from 6 AM to 6 PM ("Are there not 12 hours in the day?" John 11:9). The hours were counted from 6 AM, so the third hour was from 8 AM to 9 AM, and the ninth hour was from 2 PM to 3 PM.

Mk 15:26. A soldier would sometimes carry in front of or alongside the prisoner a tablet announcing the charge (the titulus) for which one was being executed. Occasionally it could then be posted above the head of the person being crucified, if they were executed on the sort of cross whose vertical beam extended above the horizontal one. The claim to be a king would be sufficient to incur Roman wrath (see comment on 15:2); ironically, however, Jesus is called not a false royal claimant but "King of the Jews," perhaps reflecting an anti-Jewish sentiment of Pilate or his agents.

Mk 15:27. The term for "bandits" here (NIV; ESV; NRSV, cf. "robbers," NASB) is the same one Josephus used for revolutionaries. Thus these two men may be former colleagues of Barabbas, originally meant to be executed with him that day. Authorities often liked to conduct executions at busy festivals, to provide maximum warning value against potential transgressors.

Mk 15:29-32. Some people observing a crucifixion cursed those being crucified; for the temple charge (15:29), see comment on 14:57-59. Many ancient writers used irony, including narrative irony, and Mark is no exception, reporting unintended truth in the words of Jesus' enemies (v. 31).

Mark 15:33-41
The Death of the King

Mk 15:33. The "sixth hour" began before noon, the "ninth hour" before 3 p.m. Jesus dies around the time of the normal evening offering in the temple. Stories were told of catastrophes occurring at the deaths of pious rabbis, especially those whose intercession had been vital to the world; but the biggest point of these signs is that judgment is imminent. Darkness had signified judgment in the past (Exodus 10:21-23) and would in the future (Isaiah 13:10; Ezekial 32:7; Joel 2:2,10,31; 3:15; Amos 5:18; Zechariah 14:6). In Am 8:9, darkness falls at noon; cf. Dt 28:29.

Mk 15:34. Jesus' cry is an Aramaic quotation of Psalm 22:1, which was sometimes recited at this time of day in prayer but receives special significance when Jesus prays it. For biblically literate ancient hearers, the first line could evoke this entire psalm of the righteous sufferer—and its hope of divine vindication. (Jesus probably quoted the psalm in Hebrew, as in Matthew, though cf. Aramaic prayer in Mk 14:36; Mark uses the Aramaic form probably because the saying was transmitted in an Aramaic milieu. "Eli" could be mistaken for "Elijah" much more easily than "Eloi"; cf. 15:35-36.)

Mk 15:35-36. Not only was Elijah expected to come at the end (Malachi 4:5), but some circles (attested in later rabbinic sources) believed that God sent Elijah like an angel to help or rescue famous teachers.

Mk 15:37. Scholars have often argued that crucifixion generally killed by asphyxiation: one became too weary to keep pulling one's frame up on the crossbeam, the diaphragm was increasingly strained, and eventually one became unable to breathe. But other scholars have recently argued that most victims would die of blood loss (if they were nailed to the cross) or dehydration first. In any case, death typically took a few days—much longer than the few hours Jesus suffered. Perhaps he died quickly due to the severity of the precrucifixion scourging.

Mk 15:38. Jewish people told stories of disasters occurring at the deaths of prominent rabbis. Scholars debate whether the temple's inner or outer veil is meant, but Mark would probably think of the inner veil. The holy of holies, which the priest could enter only once a year, was the ultimate symbol of God's dwelling place. God's rending the veil could symbolize the departure of God's presence from the temple (cf. Eze 9:3; 10:4; 11:23) and/or broadened access to God apart from the temple. Thus he was now available apart from the temple system and the old temple order stood judged.

Mk 15:39. Roman officials or officers often delegated missions like this execution to centurions, who would take a small detachment of soldiers. Because Romans viewed the reigning emperor as a son of the deified Augustus, the centurion might be recognizing Jesus not only as "king of the Jews" (15:26) but also as a rival to even the emperor. But a non-Jew might use a phrase like "son of God" also with reference to a pious philosopher or, more commonly, a hero whose father was a deity. In Mark's Gospel, of course, “Son of God " means much more than that (14:61). Whatever the specific nuance intended, however, Mark's irony (cf. 15:29-32) is plain enough: only a Gentile is explicitly impressed by Jesus' death.

Mk 15:40. The women followers were much less likely to be indicted than male followers, but they were still courageous to show up at the crucifixion. The epithet of James, "the Less" (NASB, KJV), is better translated "the younger" (NIV, GNT, NRSV), as the usage of the word in the ancient papyri indicates. Mary is from Magdala; it has been identified with Tarichea, where many fishermen seem to have worked.

Mk 15:41. By the standards of the religiously strict, it could have been scandalous for women (especially married women) to travel with an entourage of male disciples (apparently usually without their wives; the case of families making pilgrimage to Jerusalem would be different); apart from members of the aristocracy, conservative married Palestinian Jewish women were expected to limit their public activity, keep their heads covered and fulfill their domestic duties. A number of women in antiquity did function as benefactors and patrons (sponsors), though less frequently than men. Adversaries often cited women supporters against one's movement; some had criticized Pharisees for this practice; this case might appear even more potentially scandalous, since these women traveled with Jesus. In this one verse Mark hints at an aspect of Jesus' ministry that challenges the conventional social order, especially if these women "followed" as disciples, which they presumably did (see comment on Lk 10:39; the common use of "follow" in the Gospels).

Mark 15:42-47
The Burial of the King

Mk 15:42. The Sabbath would begin at sundown, within several hours of Jesus' death. It was not lawful to prepare the body for burial on the Sabbath (see comment on Matthew 27:57-58 for what was permitted). One could anoint, wash and wrap the bodies with shrouds even on the Sabbath, but more thorough burial preparations would have to wait.

Mk 15:43. That the Sanhedrin included pious members like Joseph, and not just the sort who appeared in the trial narrative (as pious as even they may have supposed themselves), fits the known diversity within even the Jewish aristocracy of the period. While a range of ancient Jewish sources complain about corrupt aristocratic priests, the reports of Josephus reveal that Jerusalem's aristocracy was divided on many points. Because he awaited the future kingdom, Joseph was probably not a Sadducee, unlike many of his colleagues in the Sanhedrin. He valued his people's hope more than Roman rule.

Mk 15:44. Crucifixion often took several days to kill a person unless hurried along (cf. John 19:31-32).

Mk 15:45. That excavated tombs include few crucifixion victims suggests that the bodies were not generally made available for burial—a horror to Jewish sensitivities (Deuteronomy 21:22-23). Presumably if Pilate were accommodating local interests in the execution, however, he would also accommodate them regarding burial. One exception found in a wealthy family tomb suggests that then, as now, those with wealth and social power had extra influence, which they could use for good or ill. Still, Joseph's request was courageous; identifying with one executed for treason could appear treasonous, and the wealthy were sometimes targeted with charges so leaders could execute them and seize their property.

Mk 15:46-47. If Jesus died by 3 p.m., Joseph must have bought the linen quickly, just before sundown (about 6 p.m.) when the Sabbath began. Linen shrouds were customary for burial; tombs cut from virgin rock were the best. Large disk-shaped stones could be rolled in a groove over the mouth of a tomb, obstructing entry without the difficult removal of the stone. After a body had been prepared for burial it would be left to decompose for one year; then the eldest son or other closest family member would return, gather the bones for burial in a box and deposit them in a slot on the tomb wall.

Luke 23:26-32
Road to the Cross

Lk 23:26. Condemned criminals normally bore their own crosses (i.e., the horizontal beam of the cross), but in this case someone else is drafted, perhaps due to the severe precrucifixion beating often administered, which the other Gospels report Jesus had received (cf. also Lk 18:33).

Cyrene was in what is now Libya in North Africa and included a large Jewish community; "Simon" is a Greek name often used by Jewish people (because it sounded like the patriarch Simeon). Devout Jewish pilgrims from throughout the Mediterranean world came to Jerusalem during Passover. Roman soldiers could impress anyone into service to carry things for them. Because it is a feast and work is forbidden, Simon is not coming from "the field" (literally) as a worker; perhaps he is late for the festival, only now arriving from Cyrene, or perhaps he has rejoined the day's festivities from where he is residing temporarily in the countryside.

Lk 23:27. Authorities used executions as public warnings, and crowds generally went to view an execution. Later rabbinic tradition claims that the pious women of Jerusalem often went to mourn the executed, providing a narcotic drink to dull the victim's pain. (Rulers sometimes forbade funerals and public mourning for condemned persons; but nationalistic Jews would sympathize with fellow Jews executed by the Romans for being revolutionaries.) In antiquity women usually expressed mourning more dramatically than men.

Lk 23:28. "Daughters of Jerusalem" designates Jerusalemite women (e.g., Song of Solomon 1:5; 2:7; 3:5) but could also recall some judgment oracles (Isaiah 3:16-17; 4:4). The admonition to "mourn for yourselves" was also a prophetic cry of judgment (Isaiah 32:9-14; Joel 1:5).

Lk 23:29. Jesus' statement is the sort of lament mothers would offer when their children died (2 Baruch 10:13-15). Josephus reports that some mothers were reduced to eating their children during the famine in Rome's siege against Jerusalem, A.D. 66-70 (cf. Leviticus 26:29; Deuteronomy 28:53; 2Kings 6:29).

Lk 23:30. The prophets had used the same image Jesus uses here as an image of awful judgment (cf. Hosea 10:8; Isaiah 2:10,19-21). Jesus especially uses Ho 10:8, changing the wording only slightly.

Lk 23:31. Unlike a green one, a dry tree would easily catch fire. The point may be that Jesus is "green" wood, not really a revolutionary; how much greater would be the Roman judgment against the dry wood, the real revolutionaries? Or that if they murdered the innocent, how much more would they destroy themselves (Jewish leaders fought one another as well as the Romans in 66-70)? Or the saying may simply mean that Jerusalem is becoming more ripe for judgment. Jesus may also allude back to the trees and Jerusalem's fall in 21:24,29-30, though this option seems less likely.

Lk 23:32. Authorities preferred to execute people on festivals, when the executions would warn the greatest number of people against rebellion. It was also less work for the soldiers if they could execute several convicts at once.

Luke 23:33-43
On the Cross

Lk 23:33. The site of the crucifixion might have been named "Place of the Skull" because so many deaths occurred there. The traditional "Calvary" (KJV) is from Latin calvarius, "skull."

Lk 23:34. Despite the precedent of Old Testament prayers for vengeance (e.g., 2Ch 24:22; Ps 137:7-9; Je 15:15; 17:18; 18:23; 20:12), Jesus prays that God will forgive his persecutors. Those who were executed were supposed to say, "May my death atone for all my sins"; but Jesus confesses instead the sin of those who falsely convicted him, who under Old Testament law were liable for his penalty before God. Ancient biographers often paralleled different figures, and Luke parallels with Jesus the first martyr of his second volume, Stephen (Acts 7:60). Roman custom awarded the soldiers the victim's clothes. People in antiquity made many decisions by means of casting lots (see comment on Ac 1:26).

Lk 23:35. Ridicule was one of the sufferings inflicted on the naked man hanging on a cross. Ancient writers often liked irony; the double irony here is that Jesus does save others, and that the leaders utter lines like Satan's (4:3,6-7,9).

Lk 23:36. One might view the soldiers' offer of "sour wine" or "wine vinegar" (NIV) as an act of mercy, because sour wine could act as a painkiller and was also often used as a remedy for thirst; but Luke declares that it is done only as part of their ridicule. That some is on hand is not surprising; soldiers and others used it because it quenched thirst better than water and was cheaper than normal wine.

Lk 23:37. The soldiers' taunt may include a touch of Gentile cynicism toward Judaism, which was widespread despite (or partly because of) Roman conversions to Judaism.

Lk 23:38. The condemned person or a member of the execution squad sometimes carried the charge (Latin titulus) to the site of execution.

Lk 23:39-41. Jesus' interaction with his fellow victim is Luke's ultimate example of Jesus receiving sinners and outcasts, although Luke (unlike Mark) has called them "evildoers" or "criminals" (NIV) without specifying that they were revolutionaries.

Lk 23:42. A request to "remember" the supplicant could mean to look out for them once one was able (cf. Ge 40:14). To "enter his kingdom" was to begin to reign; at the cross, only clear-sighted faith could recognize that this dying rabbi Jesus would genuinely reign as Messiah, true king of the Jews.

Lk 23:43. Jewish literature typically contrasted "paradise" (the "garden of Eden") with “Gehenna," or hell. Although Jewish texts disputed the location of paradise (e.g., in the third heaven; or on the perimeters of the circle of the earth—like a Greek view of the Elysian Fields), they often mentioned it as the abode of the righteous after death or after the resurrection. Thus both Jesus and this condemned man would proceed directly to the abode of the righteous after death.

Luke 23:44-49
Jesus' Death

Lk 23:44. "All the earth" (KJV) means simply "the whole land" (NIV, NRSV; "the whole country" GNT cf. Mt 9:26). The "sixth hour" would come shortly before noon, the "ninth hour" shortly before 3 p.m.; crucifixions rarely ended so quickly. The latter time, when Jesus dies, is close to the time of the evening offering in the temple. Darkness was one of the plagues in Egypt (Ex 10:22) and occurs in the prophets as a judgment for the end time (often due to clouds of rain, locusts, smoke, etc.; Isa 13:10; Eze 30:3,18; 32:7-8; Joe 2:2,10,31; 3:15; Am 5:18; Zec 14:6). An eclipse (cf. 23:45) was considered particularly ominous, especially when it occurred at length and in the middle of the day (the sun was said to be at its peak at midday); cf. Am 8:9.

Lk 23:45. The "veil" (KJV, NASB) or "curtain" (NIV, GNT, NRSV) is probably the one between the holy of holies—inhabited only by God, and where no mortal could enter except the high priest once each year—and the sanctuary where the priests ministered (Ex 26:33). Some believe that the point of the veil's rending is that God provides access for all people into his presence; others argue that it is more likely that it indicates instead the departure of God from the temple, as in Eze 10-11.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Lk 23:46. This line from Ps 31:5 is said to have often been recited at the period of the evening offering—about the time of Jesus' death.

Lk 23:47. Whereas Mark has “Son of God”.

Luke emphasizes an implication of that claim: "innocent." Roman pronouncements of innocence were important to Luke's audience; see the introduction to Acts. Soldiers of the Roman army stationed in Palestine were auxiliaries mostly recruited from the eastern Mediterranean, especially from Syria. Although the centurion may be ethnically Syrian, however, for Luke's hearers he would represent Rome.

Lk 23:48. Beating breasts was a characteristic sign of mourning (cf. 18:13; Je 31:19; Na 2:7), like other mourning activities such as tearing one's hair and throwing dust on one's head). Jewish women bystanders would offer this as the only public mourning these criminals could get, because none was normally permitted after the disposal of their bodies.

Lk 23:49. Family and friends would usually be present at an execution; probably only the male disciples would be in danger as potential revolutionaries. No one stood too close to the cross, because that could obstruct the view; most crosses were lower to the ground than many modern pictures depict. To Palestinian Jews, the fact that these women accompanied Jesus' group of disciples could have been scandalous.

Luke 23:50-56
Jesus' Burial

Lk 23:50-51. Luke, whose readers are not clashing with Palestinian Jewish leaders (as are Matthew's), is more apt to distinguish different elements within that leadership than is Matthew. In Jesus' day, Judaism was quite diverse, because no one group could lay claim to all the power; but after A.D. 70, when much of the competition had been eliminated by the destruction of the temple (the Sadducees' power base) and the scattering of other groups, some other members of the Palestinian Jewish elite sought to consolidate their religious power.

Lk 23:52-53. Condemned criminals did not normally receive such honorable burials; but exceptions seem to have been made on the intercession of well-to-do family or friends, as the skeleton of a crucified man buried in another aristocratic Jewish tomb of this period testifies.

Lk 23:54-56. Because bodies decomposed rapidly, mourners were allowed to anoint, wash and wrap the body in its shrouds even on the Sabbath. More elaborate arrangements that these loyal women disciples wish to bestow on Jesus, however, might wait until the Sabbath (sundown Friday evening to sundown Saturday evening) has passed.

On October 18, A.D. 31, Sejanus, Pilate's political sponsor in Rome, fell from power, and Pilate had much to fear from any bad reports about him. But Jesus' trial probably took place before A.D. 31, and the accusation of 19:12 would be a fearful one even with Sejanus in power: the emperor Tiberius was suspicious of the least talk of treason, and a delegation to Rome providing the slightest evidence that Pilate had supported a self-proclaimed king could lead to Pilate's beheading. Philo tells us that Pilate also backed down much earlier in his career when the Jewish leaders threatened to petition the emperor against him (Embassy to Gaius 301-2).

"Friends" of powerful patrons were their political dependents, and to be the "friend of the emperor" (NRSV) or the "friend of Caesar" (KJV, NASB, NIV) was a special honor. "Friend of the king" had been an office in Greek and ancient Near Eastern palaces (including Israel, from David through Herod the Great; cf. 1Ki 4:5; 1Ch 27:33); "friend of the emperor" was likewise an official title with political implications. As a client of Sejanus, Tiberius's praetorian prefect and most trusted confidant at this point, it is possible that Pilate may have acquired this title (cf. Tacitus, Annals 6.8); otherwise it is intended figuratively.

Jn 19:13. Bad reports about one could hinder political ambitions. Some commentators have thought that the "Stone Pavement" is the pavement in the fortress Antonia on the temple mount, but that pavement seems to date from a later period. Instead the text undoubtedly refers to the raised, outdoor paved area near Herod's palace, where the governor resided when he visited Jerusalem. Other sources confirm that both Pilate and a later governor addressed audiences from this platform. Evidence suggests that the governor had to pronounce death sentences pro tribunali, from the judgment seat (see comment on Ro 14:10-12).

Jn 19:14. In slightly different wording, "Behold, your king" repeats part of the quotation in 12:15 (Zechariah 9:9), so that Pilate unwittingly proclaims truth. The "day of Preparation" (19:14,31,42) was the day that the Passover lamb would be slaughtered to be eaten that night (see comment on 18:28). (Jewish people reckoned days from sunset to sunset, so what most people today would call Friday night they considered the beginning of the Sabbath, or Saturday.) Later rabbis estimated that offerings began earlier on Passover eve, but the slaughter of Passover lambs probably had to continue all day and was finally completed about the time the evening offering was slaughtered, roughly at the time (but not the day) when Jesus died in the Synoptic Gospels (about 3 p.m.).

The "sixth hour" normally should mean noon but by a different (and much less likely) reckoning here could mean 6 a.m., close to dawn. John could use it for a symbolic connection with 4:6 or a symbolic connection with Passover (many scholars argue here that the slaughter of Passover lambs began about noon; this argument rests, however, on late and in this case improbable sources). (The other large Johannine work, Revelation, also uses time symbolically.) In any case, the narrative setting is noon, the hottest hour of the day; people would not normally be in public except for very important matters.

Jn 19:15. For Pilate to free someone accused of treason or of insulting the emperor's maiestas would invite the same accusation against himself, especially at this time under Tiberius, one of the most paranoid rulers of the first century. Although not accommodating when he did not need to be, Pilate is known to have acceded to mob demands on other occasions. As a provincial governor he officially had full discretion to decree the penalty. Crucifixion was the standard Roman method of execution for slaves, revolutionaries or other provincials who were not Roman citizens (such as most Palestinian Jews).

The authorities' cry is typical of the irony of John: Jewish people prayed daily for the royal Messiah, and one Jewish prayer that came to be part of the Passover celebration at least in later times acknowledges no king but God (see also comment on 8:33). (In this period, that precise language may have characterized those desiring to revolt against Rome.)

Jn 19:16. Although Pilate was not known for cooperating with the chief priests, neither was he such a poor politician as to risk negative reports about himself over a "minor" case. When a governor decreed that one would be executed, he would say something like, "You will mount the cross."

John 19:17-22
The Crucifixion

Jn 19:17. Normally prisoners were marched through crowds of onlookers, using a public execution to warn against rebellion. Condemned criminals normally carried their own cross (the horizontal beam, the patibulum, not the upright stake) to the site of the execution, where it would be affixed to the upright stake (palus*)*. The victim was usually stripped naked for the procession and execution as well, although this full nakedness must have offended some Jewish sensibilities in Palestine.

Thus Jesus would probably be led from Herod's old palace, in the Upper City, through the garden gate (against the more traditional route envisioned by tourists). The probable site of Golgotha was outside the city wall and not far from Herod's palace—perhaps a thousand feet north/northeast of it. Roman custom placed crucifixions, and Jewish custom located stonings, outside towns rather than at their center (in the Old Testament, cf. Leviticus 24:14,23; Numbers 15:35-36; Deuteronomy 17:5; 21:19-21; 22:24; in the New Testament (cf. Luke 4:29; Acts 7:58).

Jn 19:18. Romans could crucify people even on trees, but this public execution at a festival probably involves a more formal cross. Some scholars suggest that several stakes, normally at most about ten feet high, stood in Golgotha ready to be reused whenever executions occurred. (The stakes were low enough that dogs nibbled the feet of some crucifixion victims.) On the top of the stake or slightly below the top was often a groove into which the horizontal beam of the cross would be inserted after the prisoner had been fastened to it with ropes or nails (see some further comment on Mt 27:26).

Jn 19:19. Sometimes one would carry a titulus stating the reason for the condemned person's crucifixion, although it is not clear that it was usually displayed above the cross in this period. The charge against Jesus: one who attempted to usurp the prerogatives of royalty, which were properly dispensed only at the decree of Caesar. Jesus is charged with high treason against the majesty of the emperor, a charge that Jesus' followers would not have made up (followers of one executed for treason were themselves suspect).

Jn 19:20. The site of execution was necessarily outside the city, although the soldiers preferred that it be nearby (see comment on 19:17). Jewish people in the Roman Empire dealt with three or four basic languages: Greek, Latin, Aramaic and Hebrew (of these, Greek especially was spoken outside Palestine and shared its prominence with Aramaic inside Palestine, which was the dominant language further to the east). Jewish inscriptions to foreigners were written in Greek and Latin. Even in Jerusalem, some very important inscriptions meant to warn all peoples were in both Greek and Latin; Josephus, Jewish War 5.194.

Jn 19:21-22. No longer faced with the possibility of mob unrest or a complaint to Tiberius, Pilate returns to his characteristic lack of cooperation. In about this same year, Pilate minted a cheap coin of Tiberius bearing the augur's wand—a pagan symbol quite offensive to Jewish sensibilities.

John 19:23-37
Jesus' Death

Jn 19:23. The "outer garments" would be the rectangular cloth used in bad weather, the inside "tunic" a sleeveless, tightly fitting shirt. Usually the latter was made of two cloths stitched together, so a seamless tunic was more valuable. Roman law as later codified in Roman legal Digests granted the soldiers the right to the clothes the executed man was wearing; it was customary to execute the condemned man naked. The basic unit of the Roman army was the contubernium, composed of eight soldiers who shared a tent; half-units of four soldiers each were sometimes assigned to special tasks, such as execution quads.

Jn 19:24. John's mention that the soldiers do not want to "tear" it might allude to the high priest's garment in the Old Testament (Leviticus 21:10), which Josephus mentions was also seamless. This interpretation, however, probably reads too much into the text; the wording in Leviticus is quite different. That it was seamless may simply suggest that, as a woven rather than knitted garment, it was more valuable. John finds two distinct acts in Psalm 22:18 (a common ancient Jewish method of interpretation), as Matthew does in Zec 9:9(see comment on Matthew 21:4-7). Casting lots was a conventional way to decide disputed matters, leaving the decision to deities (see comment on Acts 1:26); the soldiers may have brought dice or other games to pass the time, or they may create makeshift lots on the spot.

Jn 19:25. The evidence is disputed as to whether relatives and close friends were allowed near crucifixions; they probably usually were. In either case, the soldiers supervising the execution may have looked the other way in practice if they had no reason to forbid it; the prerogatives of motherhood were highly respected in the ancient world. People usually permitted women more latitude in mourning, even in cases when the person being mourned was a criminal, hence often not to be mourned. At the same time, ancients usually considered women less courageous on average than men, and the absence of most male disciples could shame the absent men.

Jn 19:26-27. Because Jesus may not be elevated far above the ground, Jesus' mother and disciple can hear him without being extremely close to the cross. A dying person could make an oral testament even from the cross, so long as witnesses were available; the eldest son might be responsible for his widowed mother's care, and testaments sometimes delegated such care. If a widow's eldest son died, normally younger sons would care for her; Jesus had brothers (cf. 7:3-5). Yet Jesus formally places his mother under his disciple's protection, providing for her after his death. Dying fathers could exhort sons to take care of surviving mothers (which they normally would do); for a disciple to be accorded a role in his teacher's family was a great honor to the disciple (disciples sometimes called their teachers "father").

A primary responsibility which Jewish custom included in "honoring one's father and mother" was providing for them (cf. 1Samuel 22:3) in their old age. Jesus' mother is probably in her mid to late forties, is probably a widow and lives in a society where women rarely earned much income; she is therefore officially especially dependent on her eldest son, Jesus, for support, although after his death her younger sons would support her.

Jn 19:28. Some scholars have suggested that Jesus may have recited the rest of Ps 22 after the verse cited by Mark (15:34); in the light of Mk 15:35, this suggestion is not likely, but those who were most biblically informed would know how the psalm continued, and some think that John could allude here to the same psalm (Psalm 22:15).

Jn 19:29-30. "Hyssop" was not the most natural instrument to use for this purpose. If this plant is identified as the Origanum maru l., its stalk is over three feet long; others claim that it is a very small plant that could not have reached far, and they suggest a play on words with the similar-sounding term for "javelin." In either case, John presumably mentions hyssop because of its significance in the Passover (Exodus 12:22), fitting the symbolism of Jn 19 as a whole. A low cross (cf. 19:18) would not have required a long reed. "Sour wine" probably refers to poska, consisting of cheap wine vinegar mixed with water; it was often used by soldiers and laborers to quench their thirst; cf. vinegar in Ps 69:21.

Jn 19:31-33. Those bound with ropes often survived on the cross several days (e.g., Josephus, Life 420-21). The dying man could rest himself on a wooden seat (Latin sedile) in the middle of the cross. This support allowed him to breathe—and prolonged the agony of his death, until (often) blood loss or dehydration killed him. When the soldiers needed to hasten death by asphyxiation, they would break the legs of the victims with iron clubs so they could no longer push themselves up; Cicero and others attest this custom of leg breaking. Romans might have allowed the bodies to rot on the crosses (and feed vultures), but Deuteronomy 21:23 and Jewish sensitivities about the Sabbath require that these executions be speeded up, and Romans often accommodated Judean leaders' wishes particularly during the crowded festivals. (Josephus declares that Jewish people always buried crucifixion victims before sunset.)

Jn 19:34. Some scholars suggest, on some evidence, that Roman execution squads sometimes pierced victims to ensure that they were dead. Jewish tradition also required certification that a person was dead before the person could be treated as dead, but Jewish observers would not treat the body as disrespectfully as this Roman does. (Probably less relevant, according to a probably first-century Jewish tradition, the priests were supposed to pierce Passover lambs with a wood pole from their mouth to their buttocks.)

A foot soldier was armed with a short sword and a pilum, or lance; the pilum was of light wood with an iron head, and was about three and a half feet long. Such a lance could easily penetrate the pericardial sac that surrounds and protects the heart and contains watery fluid. A Greek might read this description as referring to a demigod, because Greek gods had ichor (which looked like water) instead of blood. But the person who has read the Gospel from start to finish would see in it a symbolic fulfillment of Old Testament and Jewish hopes; see comment on 7:37-39.

Jn 19:35. Eyewitness accounts were considered more valuable than secondhand accounts, and narrators who were eyewitnesses (like Josephus) make note of that fact. Narrator-authors in antiquity also sometimes described themselves in the first person, third person, or both.

Jn 19:36. John here could allude to Psalm 34:20 or (fitting the context here) to the prohibition of breaking the bones of the Passover lamb (Exodus 12:46; Nu 9:12), or (some suggest) John could midrashic ally blend allusions to both texts. Pre-Christian Jewish tradition preserves this practice of avoiding breaking the lamb's bones (Jubilees 49:13), and Jewish teaching (second century or earlier) stipulates a maximum corporal punishment for breaking the Passover lamb's bones.

Jn 19:37. Although a late rabbinic passage interpreted Zec 12:10 messianically, the passage itself seems to refer to God's having been pierced by the people of Jerusalem (before the coming of Jesus one would have assumed a figurative sense, "pierced with sorrow"). This would fit John's Christology, although cf. also Zec 12:8. (Pronouns with divine referents seem to change readily in Zechariah; cf. 2:8-11 and 4:8-9, unless an angel is in view— 4:4-6.) The same passage in Zechariah (12:10) apparently refers to God pouring out his Spirit.

John 19:38-42
Jesus' Burial

The traditional Catholic and Orthodox site of Jesus' tomb is probably fairly accurate. Everyone knew that burials must be outside city walls, yet this site is within Jerusalem's walls. Archaeology reveals, however, that Herod Agrippa I expanded the walls of Jerusalem while he was king of Judea (A.D. 41-44) and that this site was outside the walls at the historic time of Jesus' burial. The memory of the site thus goes back to within roughly a decade of the event, hence is a fresh and likely accurate memory.

Jn 19:38. Crucifixion victims were usually thrown into a common grave for criminals and were not to be mourned publicly after their death; had the Romans had their way, the corpses would not have been buried at all, but such behavior would have needlessly provoked otherwise peaceful local residents. Local Jewish leaders probably normally deposited the bodies in criminals' graves for a year before handing them over to families. But exceptions seem to have been made at times if family or powerful patrons interceded for the body, naturally inviting comment as in the Gospels. Burying the dead was a crucial and pious duty in Judaism, and an important act of love; being unburied was too horrible to be permitted even for criminals (Josephus, Jewish Antiquities 4.202, 264-65). Scripture and tradition mandated it before sundown (Deuteronomy 21:23; Josephus, Jewish War 4.317). To accomplish his task before sundown and the advent of the Sabbath, Joseph of Arimathea has to hurry.

Roman authorities did sometimes hand over bodies to friends or relatives who desired to bury them. Nevertheless, Joseph's request for Jesus' body was an act of courage. Especially for someone outside the family to make the request, it could identify one with the person executed for treason. Far from Joseph's wealth and influence protecting him, it could have also made him a target of special scrutiny and envy. Joseph acts more courageously here than do Jesus' previously public disciples.

Jn 19:39. If this measure of Nicodemus's mixture is one of weight, it is as much as seventy-five modern pounds (more than thirty kilograms; Roman pounds were lighter than modern pounds); less likely, some have suggested a measure of volume identified with the Old Testament log, hence less than seventy fluid ounces. In either case it is a lavish expression of devotion, as in 12:3; but seventy-five pounds is perhaps a hundred times costlier than the lavish gift of 12:3. Other accounts of lavish devotion for beloved teachers are occasionally reported (a Gentile convert allegedly burned eighty pounds of spices at the funeral of Gamaliel I, Paul's teacher); indeed, five hundred servants carried all the spices for Herod the Great's funeral (Josephus, Jewish War 1.673; Jewish Antiquities 17.199). Myrrh was used for embalming the dead, and aloes for perfume.

Jn 19:40. John mentions the Jewish custom; Jewish people did not burn dead heroes, as some Gentiles did, or mutilate them for embalming, as Egyptians did. Bodies were wrapped in shrouds, sometimes expensive ones, especially prepared for burials. Jewish sources are emphatic that none of these actions may be undertaken unless the person is clearly dead; thus those burying Jesus have no doubt that he is dead. Here strips of linen rather than a full shroud are used, perhaps because of the imminent approach of the Sabbath at sundown.

White linen garments were worn by Jewish priests, by some other ancient priests (devotees of Isis) and by angels in Jewish tradition (e.g., 2Ma 11:8); they were also wrappings for the righteous dead. Spices reduced the odor of decomposition.

Jn 19:41. On the locale, see "near the city" in verse 20: according to Jewish custom, burials had to be outside the city walls (one may compare the outrage of pious Jews over Antipas's building Tiberias on a graveyard). To be buried in a tomb not yet used was no doubt a special honor and would make the tomb difficult to confuse with others in the vicinity. Tombs were sometimes in garden areas (cf. 2Ki 21:18,26). Most Judean tombs were private burial sites belonging to families; often caves were used, and often entrances were sealed with a large, disk-shaped stone that could not be removed from within and were moved from outside only with considerable effort. A tomb belonging to a wealthy person such as Joseph might have a stone a full yard or meter in diameter. Other tombs in this area suggest some wealth of the tomb owners (cf. Mt 27:60). On the site, see comment on Mt 27:60.

Jn 19:42. The Sabbath (or the coming of Passover — 18:28) interrupted all other activities. One could wash and even anoint a body on the Sabbath, due to the rapid decomposition of bodies, but more complete burial activities would have to wait. (Because Jesus was condemned as a criminal, there would be no public funeral.) The women needed to return home before dark. Joseph and Nicodemus did not need to "lay" Jesus there very carefully; this would have been only a preliminary burial even had the Sabbath not approached, to be completed fully a year later, after the flesh had rotted off the bones.

Extra Note 8:

(Re: John 19:14)* What Does John Mean by the Sixth Hour?

There is a controversial verse in John that commentators have debated; John pictures the Messiah before Pilate at the sixth hour, with a band of chief priests demanding his crucifixion:

> YLT John 19:14 and it was the preparation of the Passover, and as it were the sixth hour, and he saith to the Jews, ‘Lo, your king!’
> YLT John 19:15 and they cried out, ‘Take away, take away, crucify him;’ Pilate saith to them, ‘Your king shall I crucify?’ the chief priests answered, ‘We have no king except Caesar.’
> YLT John 19:16 Then, therefore, he delivered him up to them, that he may be crucified, and they took Jesus and led him away,

Some have thought verse 14 was a scribal error, for how could Jesus be here with Pilate about noon (the sixth hour) when the other Gospels say he was on the cross at the third hour (9 AM)? Commentators have pointed to a manuscript error since a few weaker manuscripts have “third hour” in the Greek. However, in his*Textual Commentary of the Greek New Testament*, Bruce Metzger points out that the manuscripts that change “sixth hour” to “third hour” are “an obvious attempt to harmonize the chronology with that of Mark 15:25.”[24] He goes on to say that while some believe the disagreement arose when copyists confused the Greek numerals 3 and 6, the manuscript evidence is “overwhelmingly in support of” the Greek word for “sixth.”

Some may jump to the conclusion that the scriptures contradict each other and that we should therefore throw our Bibles away and go home.

I believe, however, that the truth lies in the Jewish idiom for the sixth hour and what this hour meant to John and the other Jews as it relates to the Passover. From the Talmud, the importance of the sixth hour to Jews becomes clear, for the Passover had to be selected by the sixth hour, and from the sixth hour on was the legal time to kill the Passover. The other Greek word John used (ὡς), which Young’s properly translates into “as it were” (John 19:14 above), shows its subtle meaning. John used the Jewish natural-to-spiritual idiom[25] to say the “sixth hour” in the natural sense, but he means the sixth hour in the spiritual sense by saying “as it were the sixth hour.” John subtly referred to Christ as the Passover in other ways also, one of them below:

> NAS John 19:32 The soldiers therefore came, and broke the legs of the first man, and of the other man who was crucified with Him;
> NAS John 19:33 but coming to Jesus, when they saw that He was already dead, they did not break His legs;
> NAS John 19:36 For these things came to pass, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, “Not a bone of Him shall be broken.”

John connects this truth from the scripture (concerning the command for the Passover sacrifice) with something that the Jews would understand from their history and in their idiom:

> NAS Exodus 12:46 “It is to be eaten in a single house; you are not to bring forth any of the flesh outside of the house, nor are you to break any bone of it.
>
> Many have also wondered why there was darkness over the land from the sixth hour (noon) until the ninth hour (3 PM) on the day of the Crucifixion:
> NAS Matthew 27:45 Now from the sixth hour darkness fell upon all the land until the ninth hour.

Some commentators believed it was a solar eclipse, but Edersheim points out that there can be no eclipse at the time of the full moon, when Passover always occurs.[26] Some say it was because God could not bear to look upon His son as he suffered, but if this were the true reason, then why did God not cause the darkness right at the third hour (around 9 AM) when Jesus was nailed to the cross, instead of waiting until the sixth hour?

I believe the truth is found in the fact that the sixth hour was the final time for the Passovers to be designated, and the lawful time after which the Passover sacrifice could be killed (as we saw in the earlier quotes from Philo and the Talmud). God’s causing the darkness over the land at noon was His way of saying He would no longer look upon or accept the animal sacrificial system. This darkness at noon also fulfilled the scripture given by the prophet Amos:

> JPS Amos 8:9 And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord GOD, that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day.
> JPS Amos 8:10 And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation; and I will bring up sackcloth upon all loins, and baldness upon every head; and I will make it as the mourning for an only son, and the end thereof as a bitter day.

God had now sent His son as a fulfillment of the sacrificial system, and He would no longer accept the sacrifices in the Temple. Thousands of the Jewish faithful would have been making ready (with their lambs already designated) at noon for the daily continual sacrifice to commence (remember Josephus said the doors for this afternoon Temple service open at noon). They would have had their spotless lambs picked out and ready to be sacrificed in the Temple, where their blood would be poured out at the altar before the great Holy of Holies. Some of these people would have had their Passover lambs in tow as they passed by the commotion where Christ was alongside the road on the cross, not far from the Temple. The Passover was the one time of year when the common Israelite could approach this great altar and sacrifice his Passover lamb; all other sacrifices were commanded by God to be performed by the priests.

Jesus said Peter would deny him three times before the cock crows. In fact that early morning "cock crow" ("cock summons" in Greek) was not a rooster, as many suppose, but the calling out to the priests to make ready for the morning sacrifice. There were three callings (summons) that went forth: early, middle, and late. The Talmud shows that there were twelve cocks (similar to faucets) at the laver in the Temple where the priests would first wash their hands and feet to prepare for the sacrifices.[27] The Jewish Encyclopedia (under Gebini) says this Temple crier's voice (cock crow) could be heard for miles as he called the priests to prepare for the sacrifice.

So while the priests were being summoned to the Temple to make ready for the morning sacrifice, Christ was being led toward the Crucifixion. The reason the chief priests are pictured at the cross at the time of the Crucifixion but not seen at the time of death is that by then they were already back readying for the Passover sacrifice in the Temple (Mark 15:29–33). Those "passing by" (some even reviling the Messiah) were most likely on their way to the Temple, bringing their lamb sacrifice alongside them, all set for the day's proceedings. They thought they were going to offer their Passover sacrifice, all the while missing the fact that Christ—the true Passover—was fulfilling God's plan.

However, starting later this day, these lamb sacrifices in the Temple would no longer be accepted by God for atonement. Only by accepting the sacrifice of His son, Christ our Passover, is there forgiveness of sin. When Christ our Passover loudly cried out, "It is finished," around 3 PM, the darkness fled away. The lamb of God had paid the penalty for our sins, the sacrifice was complete, and the price for our atonement was paid.

God was now going to allow each person to make their own decision as to whether they would accept God's provision for sin, His own beloved son, the true Passover sacrifice. As the light of the sun again showed forth and the events of the day became widely known, many hearts had to wrestle with a decision. Once the sunlight came back out, there must have been pandemonium in the Temple among the priests and the multitudes who were waiting with their lambs as the darkness went away. The people beheld that the veil before the Holy of Holies was now torn in half and that the venerated place of God's presence and glory now lay bare and open before them. Not far away at Golgotha, at the foot of the cross, the Roman centurion spoke out, declaring, "truly this was the son of God" (Matthew 27:54).

So when we think back to John's words about the sixth hour (John 19:14), we must consider that there may be another truth being shown, before we take the position that the scriptures contradict themselves.

God's plan of redemption for humanity was fulfilled. Just as Joseph had comforted his brethren and told them that his being sold into Egypt was all part of God's plan from the beginning to preserve many people alive, so would the Lord speak similar words of comfort to all today.

> NAS Genesis 50:20 "And as for you, you meant evil against me, but God meant it for good in order to bring about this present result, to preserve many people alive.

The Nation of Israel, too, will see these things, as given in the following prophecy by Zechariah:

> NAS Zechariah 12:10 "And I will pour out on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the Spirit of grace and of supplication, so that they will look on Me whom they have pierced; and they will mourn for Him, as one mourns for an only son, and they will weep bitterly over Him, like the bitter weeping over a first-born.

Re: John 19:14

For John, the time was especially important. When the note concerning the hour, about noon, is connected with the day, the day of preparation for the Passover , it becomes apparent that Jesus was going to die on the cross at the very time that the Passover lambs were being slain in the temple courts. Ex 12:6 required that the Passover lamb be kept alive until the 14th Nisan, the eve of the Passover, and then slaughtered by the head of the household at twilight (Greek "between the two evenings"). By this time the slaughtering was no longer done by the heads of households, but by the priests in the temple courts. But so many lambs were needed for the tens of thousands of pilgrims who came to Jerusalem to celebrate the feast (some estimates run in excess of 100,000 pilgrims) that the slaughter could not be completed during the evening, and so the rabbis redefined "between the two evenings" as beginning at noon, when the sun began to decline toward the horizon. Thus the priests had the entire afternoon of 14th Nisan in which to complete the slaughter of the Passover lambs. According to the Fourth Gospel, this is the time Jesus was dying on the cross.

[Source: NET Bible note]

Did Jesus die at the 3rd hour (Mark 15:25), 6th hour (Luke 23:44-46; John 19:14-30) or at the 9th hour (Matthew 27:45-50; Mark 15:26-37)?

Answer: 9th hour. These verses are complimentary, not contradictory. Luke is explained by Matthew (the sun was darkened at the 6th hour, and Jesus cried the 9th hour). John has the trial being held at the 6th hour, and it was 3 hours after the trial (Mark 15:25) when Jesus was crucified.

[Source: http://www.ecclesia.org/truth/contradictions.html]

In John 19:14 the phrase "and about the sixth hour" does not refer to the time of day at all, but rather to the amount of time that had passed from the initial arrest of Jesus till the time the nation as a whole pronounced their fatal verdict of "Crucify him".

Christ was crucified at the third hour [Mark 15:25] vs.
Christ was not crucified until the sixth hour [John 19:14,15]

At what hour was Jesus crucified?

Mark 15:25 says it was in the third hour, 9:00 a.m. John 19:14-15 says that in the sixth hour (different clock). He was still not crucified yet but was being judged before Pilate. This was at about 6 a.m.

So three hours later He had carried the cross up to Golgotha (with some help) and was crucified.

Matthew, Mark, Luke, and Acts use Hebrew time for their reckoning. John uses Roman time. Another example of this is in John 18:28 -- early morning refers to the fourth Roman watch, which was 3 a.m. to 6 a.m. --MAW

Mark 14:53-15:20 - The Trial of Jesus

(Told also in Mt 26:57-27:31; Lk 22:54-23:25; Jn 18:12-19:16.) There were two trials: the first before the Sanhedrin, at night, and the second before Pilate, the Roman governor. Judea was subject to Rome. The Sanhedrin could not carry out a death sentence without the Roman governor's consent. There were three stages in each trial, six in all. For a summary of Jesus' trial, see Jesus' Movements on the Last Night .

Archaeological Note: Caiaphas Ossuary. During the days of Jesus, in what is called the Second Temple Period, the Jews of Jerusalem and environs often buried their dead in long niches carved into bedrock. Although there are many variations, in a typical tomb there was a central room carved into the rock. In one wall were the steps that led down into it, and in each of the other three walls were long niches, called kokhim, into each of which a body could be placed. After decomposition had taken place, perhaps a year later, the bones were removed and placed into small rectangular boxes called ossuaries. The niche could then be reused for another burial.

Hundreds of ossuaries from this period have been found in the Jerusalem area. In 1990 an Israeli archaeologist, Zvi Greenhut, excavated a Second Temple tomb on a hill to the south of Jerusalem. The tomb contained 12 ossuaries, and on two of them the name "Caiaphas" was scratched. On another the name "Joseph, son of Caiaphas" was scratched, who, according to the Jewish historian Josephus, was the very person who presided at Jesus' trial. The name Caiaphas (high priest from A.D. 18-36) appears some nine times in the Gospels and Acts.

Matt. 27:33-56 - Jesus Is Crucified

(See also on Mark 15:21-41; Luke 23:32-43; and John 19:17-30.)

The darkness. For three hours (v. 45), inanimate nature hid her face in shame at the unspeakable wickedness of men. God may have meant the darkness to be creation's symbolic mourning for Jesus while He was suffering the pains of the lost on our behalf.

The earthquake. The earthquake, the splitting rocks, and the opening of the tombs (vv. 51-55) were God's salute to the conquering Savior. The tearing of the curtain in the temple (v. 51) was God's own proclamation that in the death of Christ the barrier between God and man disappeared (Hebrews 9:1-14; 10:14-22). The risen saints (vv. 52-53) were God's evidence and guarantee that the power of death had been broken. Only Matthew's Gospel mentions this resurrection of saints. Note that even the centurion, the officer of the Roman soldiers who crucified Jesus, was convinced that Jesus was indeed the Son of God (v. 54).

Archaeological Note: Crucifixion Ossuary.
From the literary sources it is evident that crucifixion was practiced by the Romans in Palestine, but now there is also archaeological confirmation. In a tomb from the 1st century A.D., discovered in the north Jerusalem neighborhood of Giv'at MaHivtar, the calcified heel bone of a man in his late twenties was discovered in an ossuary (see Mark 14:53-15:20 - The Trial of Jesus "Caiaphas Ossuary"). A seven-inch iron nail was still embedded in his heal bone. He had been crucified! We even know his name: "Yehohanan, son of Hagakol."

PILATE GIVES CHRIST'S BODY TO THE ARIMATHEAN—LAID IN JOSEPH'S NEW TOMB—THE GALILEAN WOMEN WATCHING— THE PRIESTS SET A WATCH

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: The Sepulchre.

Mark 15: 42-47; Luke 23: 50-56; John 19: 38-42; Matthew 27: 57-66.

Therefore, because it was the Preparation Day and the Sabbath drew near, that the bodies should not remain on the cross on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a high day), the Jews asked Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

Then the soldiers came and broke the legs of the first and of the other who was crucified with him. But when they came to Jesus and saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. But one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and immediately blood and water came out. And he who has seen has testified, and his testimony is true; and he knows that he is telling the truth, so that you may believe.

For these things were done that the Scripture should be fulfilled, "Not one of His bones shall be broken." And again another Scripture says, "They shall look on Him whom they pierced."

Joseph of Arimathea (a city of the Jews), a rich and prominent council member, was a good and just man. He had not consented to council's decision and deed. He himself had become a disciple of Jesus, but secretly, for fear of the Jews; and was waiting for the kingdom of God.

As evening approached, Joseph, coming and taking courage, boldly went in to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus.

Pilate marveled that he was already dead; and summoning the centurion, he asked him if he had been dead for some time. So when he found out from the centurion, he granted the body to Joseph.

Then Joseph took the body down, and Nicodemus (who at first came to Jesus by night 137*) also came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about 75 pounds. Then they took the body of Jesus, and bound it in clean strips of linen with the spices, as is the custom of the Jews to prepare for burial.

Now in the place where Jesus was crucified there was a garden; and in the garden a new tomb Jospeh had hewn out of the rock, where no one had ever lain before.

Because it was the Jewish day of Preparation and the Sabbath drew near; and since the tomb was nearby, they laid Jesus there, rolled a stone against the door of the tomb, and departed.

The women who had come with Jesus from Galilee followed after, and they observed the tomb and how his body was laid. Mary Magdalene was there, and the other Mary, the mother of Joses, sitting opposite the tomb. Then they returned and prepared spices and fragrant oils. And they rested on the Sabbath according to the commandment. [See Extra Note1]

On the next day, which followed the Day of Preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees gathered together to Pilate, saying, “Sir, we remember, while he was still alive, how that deceiver said, ‘After three days I will rise.’

“Therefore command that the tomb be made secure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night and steal him away, and say to the people, ‘He has risen from the dead.’ So the last deception will be worse than the first.”

Pilate said to them, “You have a guard; go your way, make it as secure as you know how.”

So they went and made the tomb secure, sealing the stone and setting the guard.

Extra Note 1:

If you assume the traditional timeline where Jesus was crucified and died on Firday (“Good Friday”), then there are contradictions in this part of the Gospels that cannot be resolved (.e.g. women buying and preparing spices in Mark 16 vs Luke 23) [See also Chapter LXXXVIII]

However, if you assume the timeline where Jesus was crucified and died on Thursday, then all of these supposed contrictions are resolved.

Extra Note 2:

Historicity of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ

Theft by Disciples
Probably the earliest fabrication explaining the empty tomb of Jesus was the lie that the disciples stole the body of Jesus from the tomb. Matthew 28:11-15 says:

> Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, saying, “Tell them, ‘His disciples came at night and stole Him while we slept.’ And if this comes to the governor’s ears, we will appease him and make you secure.” So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

Could the disciples have stolen the body of Jesus? Is this explanation valid? There are several problems with this view.

First, the tomb of Jesus was well guarded. There were possibly four to sixteen Roman soldiers protecting the tomb of Jesus. Each Roman soldier was trained to protect six feet of ground. Four men would be placed in front of what they were to protect, while the other twelve would sleep in a semi-circle in front of them with their heads pointed in towards the other guards. To steal the body of Jesus, the disciples would have had to walk pass the sleeping Roman soldiers without waking them, and then fight off the other four experienced soldiers, move the huge stone, steal the body of Jesus, and leave the graveclothes, and then somehow slip past the guards with the body of Jesus.

Second, the Roman soldiers were bribed to tell the story that the disciples came and stole the body. Why would the chief priests pay this bribe to the Roman soldiers? They had to be bribed because by telling a lie they would be putting their lives on the line. The Roman soldiers knew that to say that they were asleep when they should have been awake doing their duty would be to incriminate themselves. The penalty for a Roman soldier who slept while on guard was death. That is why the chief priests say that if the news reached the governor’s ears, they would appease him and make the soldiers secure. The fact that the soldiers were accountable ultimately to Governor Pilate shows that these were Roman soldiers and not just some Jewish temple police who were guarding the tomb of Jesus.

Third, the Roman soldiers could not have known that the disciples stole the body of Jesus if they were sleeping. How could sleeping soldiers know what happened? Also, would it be likely that all of the Roman soldiers would sleep at the same time? Probably not. How could they not have heard the disciples move the huge stone that was placed in front of the entrance to the tomb of Jesus? Their story was contradictory.

Finally, the disciples were not in a psychological state to try to steal the body of Jesus from the tomb. The disciples fled from Jesus when he was arrested in the garden of Gethsemane. Peter denied that he knew Jesus. On the Sunday night after Jesus was crucified, the disciples were behind locked doors and not out in the open. Why? They were afraid of the Jews (John 20:19).

Theft by the Authorities
This theory doesn’t make sense. If the Jewish or Roman authorities had the body of Jesus, why did they bribe the guards to accuse the disciples of stealing it (Matt 28:11-15)? They could have stopped the resurrection story cold by simply producing the body of Jesus and showing it around Jerusalem. Instead, the Jewish authorities scolded the apostles for filling Jerusalem with their teaching, arrested them, and beat them (cf. Acts 3-5). They became so upset with Stephen that they stoned him to death (Acts 7).

… A few years ago I participated in a debate on the resurrection of Jesus with a professor at the University of California, Irvine. He had written his doctoral dissertation on the resurrection, and he was thoroughly familiar with the evidence. He could not deny the facts of Jesus' honorable burial, empty tomb, post-mortem appearances, and the origin of the disciples' belief in the resurrection. So his only recourse was to come up with some alternate explanation of those facts. And so he argued that Jesus of Nazareth had an unknown, identical twin brother, who was separated from him as an infant and grew up independently, but who came back to Jerusalem at the time of the crucifixion, stole Jesus' body out of the tomb, and presented himself to the disciples, who mistakenly inferred that Jesus was risen from the dead! Now I won't bother to go into how I went about refuting this theory. But I think the example is illustrative of the desperate lengths to which skepticism must go in order to refute the evidence for the resurrection of Jesus. Indeed, the evidence is so powerful that one of the world's leading Jewish theologians, the late Pinchas Lapide, who taught at Hebrew University in Israel, declared himself convinced on the basis of the evidence that the God of Israel raised Jesus of Nazareth from the dead!

AFTER THE RESURRECTION: THE DEVOTED MARYS—CHRIST IN PERSON: "ALL HAIL"—TALKS WITH MARY MAGDALENE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Jerusalem: The Sepulchre.

Matthew 28: 1, and 8-10; Mark 16: 1-11; Luke 24: 1-9; John 20: 11-18.

Saturday evening, when the Sabbath ended, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome went out and purchased burial spices so they could anoint Jesus' body. [See Extra Note 1]

As the first day of the week began to dawn, Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, Salome and other women brought spices they had prepared and came to see the tomb, that they might anoint him. And they said among themselves, “Who will roll away the stone from the door of the tomb for us?” [See Extra Note 2]

And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat on it. His countenance was like lightning, and his clothing as white as snow.

And the guards shook for fear of him, and became like dead men.

But when the women looked up, they saw that the stone had been rolled away — for it was very large.

Then Mary Magdalene ran and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and said to them, “They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid Him.”

But the angel at the tomb answered and said to the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you seek Jesus who was crucified.

And entering the tomb, they saw a young man clothed in a long white robe sitting on the right side; and they were alarmed.

But he said to them, “Do not be alarmed. You seek Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He is risen! He is not here. See the place where they laid Him.

Then they went in and did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. And it happened, as they were greatly perplexed about this, that behold, two men stood by them in shining garments.

Then, as they were afraid and bowed their faces to the earth, they said to them, “Why do you seek the living among the dead? “He is not here, but is risen! Remember how He spoke to you when He was still in Galilee, “saying, ‘The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.’” And they remembered His words.

“And go quickly and tell His disciples — and Peter — that He is risen from the dead, and indeed He is going before you into Galilee; there you will see Him. Behold, I have told you.”

So they went out quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to bring His disciples word.

Meanwhile, Peter had therefore went out, and the other disciple, and were going to the tomb. So they both ran together, and the other disciple outran Peter and came to the tomb first. And he, stooping down and looking in, saw the linen cloths lying there; yet he did not go in. Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb; and he saw the linen cloths lying there, and the handkerchief that had been around His head, not lying with the linen cloths, but folded together in a place by itself. Then the other disciple, who came to the tomb first, went in also; and he saw and believed. For as yet they did not know the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead. Then the disciples went away again to their own homes.

But Mary [Magdalene] stood outside by the tomb weeping, and as she wept she stooped down and looked into the tomb. And she saw two angels in white sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. Then they said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?” She said to them, “Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid Him.”

Now when she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, and did not know that it was Jesus.

Jesus said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you seeking?”

She, supposing Him to be the gardener, said to Him, “Sir, if you have carried Him away, tell me where you have laid Him, and I will take Him away.”

Jesus said to her, “Mary!”

She turned and said to Him, “Rabboni!” (which is to say, Teacher).

Jesus said to her, “Do not cling to Me, for I have not yet ascended to My Father; but go to My brethren and say to them, ‘I am ascending to My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God.’”

And as they [other women] went to tell His disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, “Rejoice!” So they came and held Him by the feet and worshiped Him.

Then Jesus said to them, “Do not be afraid. Go and tell My brethren to go to Galilee, and there they will see Me.”

Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, saying, “Tell them, ‘His disciples came at night and stole Him away while we slept.’ “And if this comes to the governor's ears, we will appease him and make you secure.” So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

Then they returned from the tomb and told all these things to the eleven and to all the rest, as they mourned and wept. It was Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them, who told these things to the apostles. And their words seemed to them like idle tales, and they did not believe them.

When Mary Magdalene told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, he was alive, and that He had spoken to her — they did not believe her.

Extra Note 1:
With the end of the Sabbath at sunset on Saturday, the shops would reopen and the women would be able to buy burial spices to anoint Jesus’ body (Mark 16:1). The women came to the tomb hoping to complete Joseph's work (see 15:42-47; John 19:39-40). Their purpose was not to embalm the body, but to alleviate the stench that a decaying body would create. The women were clearly not anticipating Jesus’ resurrection, so attempts to explain Jesus’ resurrection appearances to them as hallucinations are unconvincing. The psychological conditions required for such hallucinations were lacking. Even the empty tomb would fail to convince them that Jesus had been raised from the dead (John 20:2,11-15).

Sabbath ended at nightfall on Saturday. The shops would have been open then, so the women could have bought the spices needed for burial. To embalm the body of Jesus they had to wait until it was daylight on Sunday morning (known ever since to Christians as ‘the Lord's day’). These preparations are the strongest proof that even Jesus' closest disciples were not expecting the resurrection and so would not have made the story up. Why did they buy spices or come to embalm him, if they believed that he was going to rise? Why worry about moving the stone from the door? (Mark 16:3). If Jesus had not risen, this stone would have been a real problem. The women knew well which tomb Jesus had been laid in (Mark 15:47); there was no chance of any mistake. They must have known how heavy the stone was and that three women would have been unable to move it. (Preparations for burial were usually done by women).

[Source: New Bible Commentary]

The Sabbath ended at sundown Saturday evening; as soon as daylight breaks (by 6 a.m. at this time of year) these women head for the tomb. (In popular superstition, night was dangerous due to the predominance of demons at that time, but the women probably do not travel at night because it would be too hard to find the tomb, which was outside the city walls on unfamiliar terrain.) Spices may not have been used for everyone but were often used for the bodies of special persons (e.g., Herod). They reduced the immediate stench of rapid decomposition in the normally hot Mediterranean days. After one day and two nights, the women could expect that the body would already stink. But Jerusalem is over two thousand feet above sea level and is cool enough in April that in a sealed tomb the body would have still been approachable.

Part of the reason for the apostles' unbelief (when the women reported back to them that the tomb was empty) is that a resurrection of this nature contradicted their messianic expectations; another reason may have been that many men considered the witness of women nearly worthless, because they regarded women as unstable and undependable. (These opinions appear, e.g, in Josephus , Jewish Antiquities 4.219 and Justinian, Institutes 2.10.6, as well as Mishnah Yevamot 15:1, 8-10; 16:7 ; Ketubbot 1:6-9 ; Tosefta Yevamot 14:10 ; Sifra Vayyiqura Dibura Dehobah pq. 7.45.1.1.)

Extra Note 2:

If you assume the traditional timeline where Jesus was crucified and died on Firday (“Good Friday”), then there are contradictions in this part of the Gospels that cannot be resolved (.e.g. women buying and preparing spices in Mark 16 vs Luke 23) [See also Chapter LXXXVII]

However, if you assume the timeline where Jesus was crucified and died on Thursday, then all of these supposed contrictions are resolved.

Comparison (and attempted Harmonization) of Gospels regarding Women at Tomb and Jesus' First Appearance to Mary Magdalen on Morning of First Day of Week (Sunday):

Luke	Matthew	Mark	John
[23:55] And the women who had come with Him from Galilee followed after, and they observed the tomb and how His body was laid. [56] Then they returned and prepared spices and fragrant oils. And they rested on the Sabbath according to the commandment.		[15:47] And Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses observed where He was laid.
[24:1] Now on the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they, and certain other women with them, came to the tomb bringing the spices which they had prepared.	[28:1] Now after the Sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the tomb.	[16:1] Now when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, that they might come and anoint Him. NOTES REGARDING MARK AND ABOVE CHARTS:
Because the above author does not recognize the official inclusion of the ending section of Mark found in the KVJ and NKVJ versions of the Bible (based on the Textus Receptus), as there is general controversy over whether it is part of the original text (and therefore is excluded or "bracketed off" in many popular later versions, (e.g., NASB, NIV, ESV, NET, etc.), the two appearances by Jesus mentioned in that contested section of Mark are not included in the above chart.

Another look at the events in the four Gospel accounts:

Event	Mt 28:1–8	Mk 16:1–8	Lu 24:1–10	Jn 20:1–8
When?	at dawn	just after sunrise	very early in the morning	while it was still dark
Who comes first?	Mary Magdelene and the other Mary	Mary Magdelene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome	Mary Magdelene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and others	Mary Magdelene
What do they find?	earthquake with angel who rolls back the stone	stone rolled away	stone rolled away	stone removed from the entrance
Whom do they see?	angel sitting on the stone	young man in white robe, sitting on the right	two men in clothes that gleamed like lightening	no one
What do they do?	ran to tell his disciples	fled from the tomb, afraid to say anything	told what had happened to the Eleven and others	ran to tell Peter and the disciple, the one Jesus loved
What happens next?	Jesus met them		Peter goes to the tomb to investigate	Peter and the other disciple investigate
What is the third scene?	guards report to chief priests and are bribed		story of two disciples on Emmaus road	Mary sees two angels in white, seated where Jesus' body had been

When we examine these four accounts, we notice some similarities.

First, all agree that the events happened around dawn, although they disagree about whether it was already light. Given that the events happened over a period of time, this difference is hardly significant.

Second, all agree that Mary Magdalene was at least one of the ones discovering that the body had disappeared. The purposes of the individual narratives seems to determine how many other women are mentioned (with Luke, who has a special interest in women, noting the most women).

Third, all agree that the women find an open, corpseless tomb. Matthew seems to imply that they also saw the opening of the tomb, although he may narrate the opening of the tomb as something that happened while the women were traveling and before they arrived at the tomb. None of the other Gospels mentions the guards, so how the tomb gets opened is less of a problem for them.

Fourth, all agree that the women saw one or more angels (only Luke has two). However, the angel in John's account appears to be functioning in a different narrative role than the ones in the other accounts. It is, perhaps, more accurate to say that John does not inform us if Mary saw anyone at the tomb before going to tell the disciples. What the angels say also differs, although in all cases the women are informed that Jesus is not there. In the various accounts they are told not to fear (and that they were afraid anyway), to report to the disciples and to meet Jesus in Galilee. Finally, all agree that the women left the tomb, and three of the four accounts note that they did inform the disciples. (Mark breaks off with verse 8, the longer ending probably not being part of the original text; it is debated whether an original ending of Mark has been lost or whether he intended to break off with the women in fear and the question of whether they would follow Jesus into Galilee hanging in the air.)

Furthermore, two of the accounts agree that the woman or women met Jesus, that they tried to hold on to him, and that he sent them on their way. However, John appears to put this meeting after Peter and the beloved disciple investigate, and Matthew puts it before the women report to the disciples. What can we conclude from this data?

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

First, it is possible to make this data into a coherent story. If we assume that the pre- or postdawn timing depends on whether one gives the time of the women starting their trip or their arrival at the tomb, if we assume that the earthquake and angelic descent happened before the women arrived at the tomb, if we merge what the angels say into one account, if we assume that the angels moved around, and if we assume that Mary Magdalene remained behind at the tomb while the others went and reported (and thus had a separate meeting with Jesus), one can make a single coherent account out of the various stories. Obviously, if there were two angels, one writer could report only one. Not every writer has to report all of the details another mentions. In other words, these are different stories but not necessarily conflicting stories. All could be true at the same time.

Second, while it is possible to make the data fit into a coherent story, we cannot be sure that we have the right coherent story. We have a jigsaw puzzle of information and cannot be sure that we have all of the pieces. Thus, since the Scripture has not given us a single unified story, we must be careful or else we will end up believing that our reconstruction is the truth.

A reconstruction may be the truth or it may distort the truth. Perhaps if we had some other critical pieces of information we would make quite a different reconstruction.

Third, these stories are exactly what one would expect to discover after a significant event like the resurrection. The chancellor of this author's university died at the end of an address to the student body. Within an hour of the event a sociology professor had his thirty students each write down their own account of what had happened. Each was instructed to write as honest and detailed account as they could, given the limited time of the class period. When the accounts were later compared, there were numerous differences in detail, although all agreed that the chancellor had died at the end of his address. Presumably each Gospel writer had a series of stories about the resurrection to sort through. For example, we know that Matthew knows and values Mark's account, but in the resurrection story he obviously has some independent information as well. The Evangelists selected and combined data to get the accounts that they give us. But even the beloved disciple in John is not an eyewitness of most of the events, so we are not surprised to find a lot of differences in their reporting what happened.

Finally, when we try to put the stories together, we miss the point of the authors. The church accepted into its canon four separate Gospels, viewing each as inspired by God. It did not put into the canon a harmony of these Gospels (although such existed). The fact is that each writer is trying to bring out his unique perspective and theological insights by the details he includes or leaves out (although, unless Matthew and Luke are differing from Mark, which we know that they knew, we often cannot be sure that the author actually knows a detail and so purposely leaves it out). Matthew wants to underline the miraculous and also explain a rumor that the body of Jesus was stolen. Luke stresses the fulfillment of the words of Jesus and yet the disbelief of the apostles. John, by focusing on a single character and her intimate discussion with Jesus, points out that in the resurrection and ascension of Jesus the promises of John 13–16 are fulfilled. Jesus cannot be held, for it is better for him to go to the one who is not only his Father but is now also our Father.

It is when we look at the resurrection through such eyes, informed by the perspective of each Gospel writer, that we see not simply a miracle, nor even the fact of the resurrection, but the message the church has believed that God wanted to communicate in and through the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

AFTER THE RESURRECTION (CONTINUED): CHRIST IN PERSON: WITH THE TWO MEN; WITH THE ELEVEN—DOUBTING THOMAS

A.D. 30. Age 33. Emmaus. Jerusalem.

Mark 16: 12-13; Luke 24: 13-31, 33-43; John 20, 19-29.

After that, Jesus appeared in a different form to two of them, that same day, as they traveled to a village called Emmaus, which was seven miles from Jerusalem.

Now behold, two of them were traveling that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was seven miles from Jerusalem.

And they talked together of all these things which had happened. So it was, while they conversed and reasoned, that Jesus Himself drew near and went with them. But their eyes were restrained, so that they did not know Him.

And He said to them, "What kind of conversation is this that you have with one another as you walk and are sad?"

Then the one whose name was Cleopas answered and said to Him, "Are You the only stranger in Jerusalem, and have You not known the things which happened there in these days?"

And Jesus said to them, "What things?"

So they said to Him, "The things concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered Him to be condemned to death, and crucified Him. But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel.

"Indeed, besides all this, today is the third day since these things happened.

"Yes, and certain women of our company, who arrived at the tomb early, astonished us. When they did not find His body, they came saying that they had also seen a vision of angels who said He was alive. And certain of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but Him they did not see."

Then He said to them, "O foolish ones 140*, and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! Ought not the Messiah [Christ] to have suffered these things and to enter into His glory?"

And beginning at Moses and all the Prophets, He expounded to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself.

Then they drew near to the village where they were going, and He indicated that He would have gone farther. But they constrained Him, saying, “Abide with us, for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent.” And He went in to stay with them.

Now it came to pass, as He sat at the table with them, that He took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him; and He vanished from their sight.

And they said to one another, “Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us on the road, and while He opened the Scriptures to us?”

So they rose up that very hour and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven and those who were with them gathered together, saying, “The Lord is risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon!” And they told about the things that had happened on the road, and how He was known to them in the breaking of bread.

Then, the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst, and said to them, “Peace be with you.”

But they were terrified and frightened, and supposed they had seen a spirit.

And He said to them, “Why are you troubled? And why do doubts arise in your hearts?

“Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself. Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have.”

When He had said this, He showed them His hands and His side. Then the disciples were glad when they saw the Lord.

But while they still did not believe for joy, and marveled, He said to them, “Have you any food here?”

So they gave Him a piece of a broiled fish and some honeycomb. And He took it and ate in their presence.

The Jesus said to them again, “Peace to you! As the Father has sent Me, I also send you.”

And when He had said this, He breathed on them, and said to them, “Receive the Holy Spirit. If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained.”

Now Thomas, called the Twin [Greek: Didymus], one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said to him, “We have seen the Lord.”

So he said to them, “Unless I see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into His side, I will not believe.”

And after eight days His disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, “Peace to you!”

Then He said to Thomas, “Reach your finger here, and look at My hands; and reach your hand here, and put it into My side. Do not be unbelieving, but believing.”

And Thomas answered and said to Him, “My Lord and my God!”

Jesus said to him, “Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed.”

And truly Jesus did many other signs in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in His name.

AFTER THE RESURRECTION (CONTINUED): JESUS IN PERSON: ON THE SHORE—THE GREAT CATCH OF FISH—PETER—THAT OTHER LOVED ONE

A.D. 30. Age 33. Sea of Galilee.

John 21: 1-25.

Jesus showed Himself again to the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias, 141* and in this way He showed Himself:

Simon Peter, Thomas called the Twin [Greek: Didymus], Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of His disciples were together.

Simon Peter said to them, “I am going fishing.” They said to him, “We are going with you also.”

They went out and immediately got into the boat, and that night they caught nothing.

But when the morning had now come, Jesus stood on the shore; yet the disciples did not know that it was Jesus.

Then Jesus said to them, “Children, have you any food?”

They answered Him, “No.”

And He said to them, “Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and you will find some.”

So they cast, and now they were not able to draw it in because of the multitude of fish.

Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, “It is the Lord!”

Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on his outer garment (for he had removed it), and plunged into the sea.

But the other disciples came in the little boat (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits, dragging the net with fish.

Then, as soon as they had come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid on it, and bread.

Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish which you have just caught.”

Simon Peter went up and dragged the net to land, full of large fish, one hundred and fifty-three; and although there were so many, the net was not broken.

Jesus said to them, “Come and eat breakfast.”

Yet none of the disciples dared ask Him, “Who are You?” — knowing that it was the Lord.

Jesus then came and took the bread and gave it to them, and likewise the fish. This is now the third time Jesus showed Himself to His disciples after He was raised from the dead.

So when they had eaten breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, “Simon, son of Jonah, do you love Me more than these?”

He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I love You.”

He said to him, “Feed My lambs.”

He said to him again a second time, “Simon, son of Jonah, do you love Me?”

He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I love You.”

He said to him, “Tend My sheep.”

He said to him the third time, “Simon, son of Jonah, do you love Me?”

Peter was grieved because He said to him the third time, “Do you love Me?”

And he said to Him, “Lord, You know all things; You know that I love You.”

Jesus said to him, “Feed My sheep.

“Truly, truly, I say to you, when you were younger, you girded yourself and walked where you wished; but when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and another will gird you and carry you where you do not wish.”

This He spoke, signifying by what death he would glorify God. And when He had spoken this, He said to him, “Follow Me.”

Then Peter, turning around, saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following, who also had leaned on His breast at the supper, and said, “Lord, who is the one who betrays You?”

Peter, seeing him, said to Jesus, “But Lord, what about this man?”

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Jesus said to him, “If I will that he remain till I come, what is that to you? You follow Me.”

Then this saying went out among the brethren that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, “If I will that he remain till I come, what is that to you?”

This is the disciple 142* who testifies of these things, and wrote these things; and we know that his testimony is true.

And there are also many other things that Jesus did, which if they were written one by one, I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that would be written.

Amen. 142^

AFTER THE RESURRECTION (CONTINUED): CHRIST IN PERSON: HIS LAST TALK WITH THE ELEVEN—"GO YE AND PREACH THE GOSPEL TO EVERY CREATURE"—THE ASCENSION

A.D. 30. Age 33. Galilee. Mt. Olivet. Bethany.

Matthew 28: 16-20; Mark 16: 12-18; Luke 24: 44-53 and Luke's Acts of The Apostles 1: 12.

Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, to the mountain which Jesus had appointed for them. When they saw Him, they worshiped Him; but some doubted.

And He came, saying, “Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature.

“He who believes and is baptized will be saved; but he who does not believe will be condemned.

And these signs will follow those who believe: In My name they will cast out demons; they will speak with new tongues; they will take up serpents; and if they drink anything deadly, it will by no means hurt them; they will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover.”

“All authority has been given to Me in heaven and on earth.

“Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.”

Then He said to them, “These are the words which I spoke to you while I was still with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Me.”

And He opened their understanding, that they might comprehend the Scriptures.

Then He said to them, “Thus it is written, and thus it was necessary for the Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead the third day, “and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem.

“And you are witnesses of these things.

“Behold, I send the Promise of My Father upon you; but tarry in the city of Jerusalem until you are endued with power from on high.”

And He led them out as far as Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them.

Now it came to pass, while He blessed them, that He was parted from them and carried up and received into heaven; and a cloud received Him out of their sight; and He sat down at the right hand of God.

And they worshiped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy, from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a Sabbath day's journey.

They were continually in the temple praising and blessing God.

And they went out and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them and confirming the word through the accompanying signs.

Jesus' Appearances after His Resurrection

Each of the Gospels and a few other NT books mention various appearances by Jesus after his resurrection, but only Luke notes that Jesus ascended to heaven from the Mount of Olives just outside Jerusalem. Luke also recounts Jesus' discussion with the two disciples on the road to Emmaus (likely modern Qaluniyah, not the Emmaus of the intertestamental period, which lay too far west). Matthew and John note that Jesus also appeared to his disciples in the region of Galilee.

Alternate View

The Three Commissions

It will be seen that there were three separate Commissions given to the Eleven Apostles, at different times, on distinctly specified occasions and in varying words.

The first is recorded in Luke 24:47. This was given in Jerusalem on the evening of the day of the resurrection. It was given, not to the Eleven only, but also to "them that were with them." (v. 33). The commission was the continuation of His own ministry and that of John the Baptist (Matthew 22:1-10). They were all to proclaim "repentance and remission of sins". The New Covenant had been made, in virtue of which this message of pardon could be declared. (Matthew 26:26-29, Mark 14:22-25, Luke 22:14-23, Acts 3:19), first in Jerusalem, and then to all nations. This was done by Peter (Acts 2:38;3:19, etc.).

The second is recorded in Mark 16:15-18, and was given when the Lord appeared to the Eleven as they sat at meat; and it was carried out by "them that heard Him", as foretold in Matthew 22:4-7, and fulfilled in Mark 16:20, as confirmed in Hebrews 2:3.

The Acts of the Apostles is the inspired history of the fulfillment of this commission, so far as it is necessary for our instruction. It was given for the personal ministry of the Apostles, to be fulfilled by them before the destruction of the Temple and of Jerusalem.

The third is recorded in Matthew 28:19, 20, and was given on a mountain in Galilee. It was the proclamation of the King, who had left Jerusalem, according to the Parable (Luke 19:12), until He returned in power to set up His kingdom (26:64). It is the summons to the Gentile nations to submit to the Lord Jesus, as the King of Israel, according to Psalms 2:10-12. It was the proclamation of "the Gospel of the Kingdom" for a witness to all nations, immediately before the end of the age (Matthew 24:14, Revelation 14:6).

AFTER THE RESURRECTION (CONTINUED): CHRIST IN PERSON: APOSTLES' QUESTION ANSWERED

A.D. 35. Mount of Olives.

Luke: Acts 1: 2-9.

Jesus, after He had given orders through the Holy Spirit to the apostles He had chosen; after he had suffered; presented Himself alive to them by many convincing proofs, appearing to them during 40 days and speaking about the kingdom of God.

While He was together with them, He commanded them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait for the Father's promise. "This," He said, "is what you heard from Me; for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now."

So when they had come together 144*, they asked Him, "Lord, are You restoring the kingdom to Israel at this time?"

He said to them, "It is not for you to know times or periods that the Father has set by His own authority. But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come on you, and you will be My witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth."

After He had said this, He was taken up as they were watching, and a cloud took Him out of their sight.

And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, who also said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will so come in like manner as you saw Him go into heaven."

Extra Note 1:

The world of the first century was alive with myths and fables, saturated with hucksters promoting mystery religions and magical powers. So Luke, a physician who accompanied Paul on several of his missionary ventures, set out to deliberately and accurately record the beginnings of Christianity. He wrote not as an evangelist, but as a historian. And he wrote not for the unsaved, but for believers. His clear intent was to demonstrate, in his Gospel and in Acts, the second volume of his work, that Christian faith is rooted in no myth. Christianity has its roots in history-real space and time-in the birth of a Saviour in Palestine who was both God and Man, whose Gospel was spread by eyewitnesses. Luke wants us to understand the story of Jesus, from its roots in Old Testament prophecy, through its authentication in miracle, to its spread by eyewitnesses of His resurrection.

[Source: The Bible Reader's Commentary]

In the 40 days between His resurrection and ascension, Jesus appeared at least 10 times to His followers (see Period (8): Jesus' Appearances After His Resurrection in the APPENDIX); there may have been other appearances that have not been recorded), to banish forever from their minds any doubt as to His continued existence as a living Person. What a wonderful experience, in those 40 days, to have seen, talked with, and eaten with Jesus in His actual crucified and glorified body, as He appeared, seemingly out of nowhere, and disappeared through closed doors. These appearances now reach their climax as, with the blessing of His uplifted hands, He rises gradually, up and up, and disappears in the clouds.

Extra Note 2:

Acts Introduction

Authorship. The style and themes of Acts clearly reflect the same authorship as those of the Gospel of Luke. Luke varies between Greek contemporary prose style and a Jewish style of Greek heavily influenced by the Septuagint.The author claims to be an eyewitness of some secondary incidents (see comment on Ac 16:10), to have therefore known direct sources for much of his information, and to have acquired thorough knowledge of the rest (Lk 1:1-4). The idea of modern scholars that Luke's use of "we" in Acts to indicate something other than his actual presence reflects a modern agenda rather than sensitivity to the first-century background, for historical works in antiquity barely ever used "we" fictitiously.

Once one accepts the possibility that a traveling companion of Paul authored the work, the tradition that Luke (a physician, Col 4:14) is the author of Luke-Acts has nothing against it and fits what little we know about Luke. A number of terms in Luke-Acts are frequent in medical literature, although most of these terms also occur elsewhere, so this terminology alone would not prove Lukan authorship. Physicians could be lower class, even slaves, but were generally well educated; the presence of women in that field (especially midwifery) may have made some physicians more conscious of women's concerns (which Luke-Acts is).

Date. Most scholars date Luke-Acts between 70 and 90, with a smaller number dating it in the 60s and a still smaller number dating it later. Because Acts breaks off before Paul's death, some scholars have suggested that Acts (and hence Luke or its hypothetical earlier draft, proto-Luke) was written before A.D. 64. Others, reading Lk 21, suggest a date after A.D. 70, saying that Acts breaks off about A.D. 62 for literary reasons or because Luke needed only positive legal precedents. (Acts is not a biography of Paul, and Luke has reason to end on the climactic note of the gospel reaching Rome.) The evidence is not conclusive on either side, but because Luke clearly used the Gospel of Mark as a source, dating Luke-Acts to A.D. 62 would call into question the usual dating of Mark to A.D. 64.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Because of this and possible allusions to the temple's past destruction, the majority of scholars therefore date Luke-Acts later, sometime after 70. Neither the dating of Mark nor that of Luke-Acts is secure, but this commentary tentatively accepts a date for the latter in the early to mid-seventies. Later dates appear less likely. Because Acts recalls in some detail riots that would be counterproductive to narrate unless one could not avoid the truth that they happened, it undoubtedly reflects recent memories that must be addressed. (The charge that Paul was guilty of stirring riots, 24:5, would disturb people loyal to Roman order, and the riots would need to be explained both during his custody and in the wake of his execution.

Purpose: Legal. One purpose of the work is to record consistent legal precedents in favor of the early Christians. In Acts every Roman court declares Christians not guilty, and this record has so impressed some scholars that they have suggested Luke wrote Acts as a court brief on Paul's behalf. Acts, however, is a narrative, not a list of precedents. More likely, Luke cites a wide range of legal precedents from different local courts (which would be helpful but not binding) for the same reason that Josephus does on behalf of Judaism: to argue that Christianity should enjoy continued legal protection in the empire. Luke thus gives Christians legal ammunition (Lk 21:15) and paves the way for later Christian lawyers and philosophers like Tertullian and Justin Martyr, who would argue for the toleration of Christianity. That Paul's custody and several speeches consume the final quarter of Acts reveals how important it is for Luke to answer the false charges against him.

Purpose: Apologetic. The apologetic in Acts extends beyond Roman law and beyond Paul's case. All history was written with a purpose; it was influenced by rhetoric and (to a lesser extent) wider literary and dramatic conventions, and was also used to illustrate moral principles. Josephus uses it to justify God and Israel after the war of A.D. 70; Plutarch and Livy use it to teach morals; even Tacitus writes as an aristocrat longing for the grandeur of old Rome. History with a theme or focal point (church history, social history, African-American history, etc.) is no less history for having an interest or editorial perspective. Luke's apologetic purpose is often advanced in the book's speeches.Acts works on several fronts: the gospel confronts Roman law courts, Greek philosophers, rural Asian farmers and others on their own terms, and nothing can stop it. A major theme is the relationship of Christianity to Judaism. Ancient religions were respected by virtue of their age, and Christians needed to demonstrate that the Old Testament was their book and that they were the authentic voice of Judaism (despite the opposition of much of the Jewish community of Luke's day to this claim). Luke develops this theme by displaying the fulfillment of Old Testament motifs.

Genre: History. The majority of scholars view Acts as a historical monograph, that is, a historical work focused on a specific topic (in contrast to many historians' multivolume histories of expansive subjects). Historians were permitted a wide degree of latitude on details, although they were expected to get the bulk of a story right insofar as their sources were accurate. By ancient standards, Luke is meticulously careful with his sources in the Gospel (Lk 1:1-4), and we may regard him as no less trustworthy in Acts, where we can often check him against letters of Paul (few of which would have been available to Luke). Some sections of Acts also include eyewitness accounts of someone who journeyed with Paul; contrary to the opinion of some scholars, "we" normally did literally mean "we" in ancient narratives. Luke is a careful enough editor that had he not meant to include himself in the company of Paul, he would not have allowed an earlier source's "we" to stand. First-person pronouns appear in historical writing (such as Josephus) as well as novels, but only historical works had historical prologues (Lk 1:1-4; Ac 1:1-2).

Many historical writers also sought an entertaining, lively style just as novelists did; thus the mention of "plot devices" in the following commentary means only that Luke was a good writer, not that he was an inaccurate historian. He was, however, a more popular and less rhetorical historian than most extant ancient historians; like them, he was interested in recounting a cohesive story, but unlike them, he was not interested in showing off lavish rhetoric. "Historian" was not a distinct profession and was practiced by many educated people. Even elite historians who were professional orators, however, like Tacitus, could stick very close to the events (and the substance, though usually not the wording, of speeches) as their sources provided them.

The question of the speeches' historicity invites special comment. Ancient writers never recorded speeches verbatim (cf. even Ac 2:40); they took notes if they were present, got the gist and were guided by their knowledge (when available) of the speechmaker's style and proper speechmaking technique. Historians sometimes fabricated speeches (as Josephus does for a speech at Masada with no surviving credible witnesses) but used the basic thrust of the speech when data about it was available. Luke's editing brings out some consistent themes in the apostolic-proclamation speeches in Acts, but we may also be confident that they also reflect whatever Luke knew of the speeches or kind of speeches in those settings. Acts's speeches are significant for the book's purpose; they make up roughly one-fourth of the book.

Luke-Acts may be closer to standard forms of Greco-Roman historical writing than are the other Gospels, which resemble ancient biography. Whereas Matthew, Mark and John wrote forms of ancient biography, Luke's second volume shows that he wrote history as well. Some multivolume histories had a volume or two devoted to an individual person; when viewed by itself, that volume would be read as biography, but when read with the rest of the work, as a part of a larger history.

Luke and Acts are each roughly the same length as Matthew, with Mark one-half and John two-thirds that length, indicating scrolls of standardized lengths (Matthew, Luke and Acts were each close to the maximum length for normal scrolls, between thirty-two and thirty-five feet). In the first volume, Luke writes about Jesus; in the second volume, Luke writes about the Spirit's activity in the Jewish and Gentile churches, especially through the figures of Peter and Paul. Many ancient writers would make comparisons between figures as part of their historiographic technique. (Plutarch is especially known for paralleling Greek and Roman figures in his biographies; perhaps more to the point, 1Ki 17-2Ki 13 seems to compare Elijah and his successor Elisha.)

Message. Aside from the themes already mentioned and typical Lukan emphases on prayer, signs and wonders, and the Spirit, Luke's whole book is structured around world evangelization (1:8), with six or eight summary statements throughout the book displaying the spread of the gospel (see 6:7; 9:31; 12:24; 16:5; 19:20; 28:31). For Luke, the ultimate goal is crosscultural communication and world evangelization, and the requisite power to carry out the task is only the Holy Spirit.

History: An Investigation of Early Christian Historiography, WUNT 2.175 (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2004).

Acts 1:1-5
Preparing to Go
In a two-volume work it was common to recapitulate the theme or the end of the first volume in the beginning of the second. Thus Lk 24:36-53 is recapitulated in Ac 1:1-14, repeating many points in greater detail. Historians had freedom to arrange materials in their own words and to paraphrase, and readers would have regarded different wording in two volumes of the same work as variation for the sake of readability, not as an accidental oversight. (This pattern also should warn us not to read modern expectations of verbatim quotation into ancient works that no one read that way.)

Ac 1:1. This is not an uncommon way to begin a second volume. "Began" is common Lukan style and could simply reflect a Semitic or Koine (the common Greek dialect) figure of speech, but theologically it may indicate that Acts continues a report of Jesus' works through the church. Theophilus may be the patron, or sponsor, of the work, to whom Luke formally dedicates it (as was frequent; see comment on Lk 1:3-4). A writer could also dedicate a work to any person of status who might help circulate the work or whose name in the dedication might be thought useful to circulating the work. Theophilus was a common Diaspora Jewish name and undoubtedly represents a real person; although the name means "lover of God," symbolic dedicatees were virtually unknown.

Ac 1:2-3. Sample evidences were reported in Lk 24, and the forty days here (perhaps mirroring Lk 4:2) allows for the Galilean ministry reported in the other Gospels. Greeks also wanted eyewitnesses to document the epiphanies (or appearances) of their gods or goddesses, but those appearances were not clearly physical or sustained over such a long period of personal contact.Ac 1:4. "Gathering together" (NASB) is literally "took salt together," but this was already an idiom for table fellowship. Eating together was the ultimate sign of physicality (in many Jewish traditions, angels could not genuinely eat human food; cf. Lk 24:42-43) and intimacy (see comment on Lk 5:29-32).

Ac 1:5. The Holy Spirit was associated both with purification (thus "baptism") and wisdom or prophecy in segments of ancient Judaism. But the emphasis was usually on the ability to prophesy (speak for God under his inspiration), and Luke especially emphasizes this aspect of the Spirit (see esp. 2:17-18).

Acts 1:6-11
Coming and Going
Ac 1:6. This question was the most natural one for the disciples to ask Jesus. He had been talking about the kingdom (1:3), and the references to the outpouring of the Spirit in the Old Testament were all in the context of Israel's restoration (Isa 32:15; 44:3; Eze 36:25-28; 37:14; 39:29; Joe 2:28-3:1).

Ac 1:7. See Mt 24:36. Jewish apocalyptic writers often saw history as divided into epochs determined by God, yet they sometimes used their calculations of the epochs to predict that they were near the end. Jesus says that the Father has determined the time but not revealed it. Some Jewish sources believed that human obedience could hasten the end; others that God had ordained the time immutably. (Because much of Judaism embraced both God's sovereignty and human will, these options need not always have been mutually exclusive.)

Ac 1:8. Although the time of Israel's restoration might be unknown, the end-time mission given to Israel, to be Spirit-anointed witnesses (Isaiah 42:1,4,6; 43:10-12; 44:3,8), is being given now. The disciples are thus to serve as the prophetic remnant within Israel, and Isaiah's witnesses for God here are witnesses for Jesus. (When Israel had disobeyed God, he had always kept a remnant; see comment on Ro 11:1-5.) In Luke-Acts, "power" is often expressed in healings and exorcisms (Lk 4:36; 5:17; 6:19; 8:46; 9:1; Ac 3:12; 4:7; 6:8; 10:38), which can be construed as signs of the kingdom era (Isa 35:5-6 in Lk 7:22).Different ancient texts referred to different places by the phrase "ends of the earth." Writers commonly meant Ethiopia (8:27; cf. Lk 11:31), but in Acts the short-term strategic goal is Rome (perhaps the phrase's use in Psalms of Solomon 8:15), to make an urgent impact on the empire. From a long-range perspective, however, all peoples are meant (Ps 67:1,7; Isa 45:22; 49:6; 52:10). Scripture informs this mission (Lk 24:45-49), especially Isaiah's emphasis noted above

(see esp. Isa 49:6, cited in Ac 13:47). Many Jewish writers portrayed Jerusalem as the world's center (certainly theologically). Many scholars treat 1:8 as a summary statement of or outline for Acts; many ancient documents included such statements (often much more detailed than Luke's).

Ac 1:9-11. In Greek stories, various heroes ascended to heaven, usually by dying and becoming gods (like Heracles on his funeral pyre). For Luke, however, the ascension is only a confirmation of Jesus' status at the resurrection, a coronation of the king who was both human and divine all along. Jewish accounts of Elijah (from the Old Testament) and others (from later traditions) taken up to heaven show that Jewish readers would understand the ascension, but again, the difference is between the exaltation of a pious man and the exaltation of the Lord, to faith in whom they are to summon humanity. Angels ascended and descended, but Luke's contemporaries did not regard these angelic movements as unique events. (Judaism also spoke figuratively of divine Wisdom ascending or descending but never in a narrative context, because Wisdom was a personification, not a historical character.)The most obvious ascension known to Jewish people from Scripture was Elijah's ascension in 2Ki 2. In that same context, Elijah's successor Elisha received a double portion of Elijah's spirit to carry on the task (2:9-10). Here Jesus' ascension prepares for the church's prophetic empowerment (Ac 2:17-18) by the Spirit that empowered Jesus.Moses had passed on his work to Joshua, Elijah to Elisha, and rabbis and philosophers to their disciples. This model of succession created occasional "succession narratives" that described the passing on of a teacher's call. Jesus' ascension immediately after the commission of 1:8 leaves believers as his successors, responsible for the job of world evangelization, until his return in the same glorified body (1:11). Clouds often aid ascents in ascension narratives; one may think here of the cloud of divine glory (in texts like Eze 10:4, but especially Da 7:13, used in Lk 21:27). Angels (as well as priests and others) were often portrayed as wearing white robes (e.g., Da 10:5; 1 Enoch 71:1; 2Ma 11:8).

XCIII
SAUL'S VISION—ANANIAS' VISION—SAUL'S CONVERSION, BAPTISM

Luke: Acts 8: 3, 9: 1-20. Damascus. A.D. 34-35.

SAUL 144† made havoc of the church, entering every house, and dragging off men and women, committing them to prison.

Then Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest and asked letters from him to the synagogues of Damascus, so that if he found any who were of the Way, whether men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem.

As he journeyed he came near Damascus, and suddenly a light shone around him from heaven. Then he fell to the ground, and heard a voice saying to him, "Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?"

And he said, "Who are You, Lord?" Then the Lord said, "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. It is hard for you to kick against the goads." (See Extra Note 1)

So he, trembling and astonished, said, "Lord, what do You want me to do?"

Then the Lord said to him, "Arise and go into the city, and you will be told what you must do."

And the men who journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice but seeing no one. Then Saul arose from the ground, and when his eyes were opened he saw no one.

But they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus. And he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

Now there was a certain disciple at Damascus named Ananias; and to him the Lord said in a vision, "Ananias."

And he said, "Here I am, Lord." So the Lord said to him, "Arise and go to the street called Straight, and inquire at the house of Judas for one called Saul of Tarsus, for behold, he is praying. And in a vision he has seen a man named Ananias coming in and putting his hand on him, so that he might receive his sight."

Then Ananias answered, "Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much harm he has done to Your saints in Jerusalem. And here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all who call on Your name."

But the Lord said to him, “Go, for he is a chosen vessel of Mine to bear My name before Gentiles, kings, and the children of Israel. For I will show him how many things he must suffer for My name's sake.”

And Ananias went his way and entered the house; and laying his hands on him he said, “Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on the road as you came, has sent me that you may receive your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.”

Immediately there fell from his eyes something like scales, and he received his sight at once; and he arose and was baptized. So when he had received food, he was strengthened. Then Saul spent some days with the disciples at Damascus.

Immediately he preached the Messiah (Christ) in the synagogues, that He is the Son of God.

Then all who heard were amazed, and said, “Is this not he who destroyed those who called on this name in Jerusalem, and has come here for that purpose, so that he might bring them bound to the chief priests?”

But Saul increased all the more in strength, and confounded the Jews who dwelt in Damascus, proving that this Jesus is the Messiah (Christ).

Footnotes

144:† Saul, a young Hebrew of Cilicia, of the sect of the Pharisees, was so passionately devoted to the religion and traditions of the Jews, that he undertook to seek out and persecute converts to the new religion, the gospel and faith of Christ. After his own conversion, Saul as the missionary and writer is more familiarly known as Paul (supposedly his baptismal Gentile name).

It is hard for you to kick against the goads. (NKJV)

The phrase that you refer in Acts 9:4-6 occurs in the King James Version (KJV) and the New King James Version (NKJV). It does not occur in the other major translations.

(KJV) it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. Acts 9:5

The word "pricks comes from the root Greek word KENTRON. This word has the idea "sharp, pointed projection used in stinging."

[1] The word "Kick" is translated from the root Greek word LAKTIZO which has the basic meaning of "to hurt by resistance" or "to kick."

is hitting a sharp object." Ouch! A goad was typically a sharp stick or prod used to drive cattle. In the ancient Greek and Roman times, the phrase was a well-known expression indicating that someone was opposing a deity

.[3] If we put it all together, we discover that God told Paul that he was only hurting himself in his effort to eliminate Christians. He was unknowingly opposing God.

[Source: http://www.neverthirsty.org/pp/bible-questions/answer01047-hard-to-kick-against-the-goads.html]

The phrase from verse five, "it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks," is in the Old Latin and some Vulgate manuscripts. It is also in the Peshitta and the Greek of Codex E and 431, but in verse four instead of verse five.

First, the oxgoad is a long pole or stick with a pointed piece of iron fastened to one end. In the strong hands of a loving master, the ox is gently prodded, guided, steered and driven in the desired direction when plowing the fields. When a stubborn ox attempts to kick back against the goad that is causing it discomfort, the ox will actually inflict more pain, driving the pointed end deeper into its flesh.

Second, the oxgoad is designed for an ox, and for no other beast. When Jesus likened the proud Pharisee Saul (and every child of God) to a brute beast, Saul's heart likely pounded with incredible indignation.

When Jesus rebuked Saul (who would soon become the apostle Paul) for kicking against the goads, He was telling the proud Pharisee that he was only hurting himself in resisting the truth and teaching of Christ. The more he resisted … the more he suffered. The harder he kicked … the deeper the goad drove into his flesh.

An instrument used by ploughmen for guiding their oxen. Shamgar slew six hundred Philistines with an ox-goad. "The goad is a formidable weapon. It is sometimes ten feet long, and has a sharp point. We could now see that the feat of Shamgar was not so very wonderful as some have been accustomed to think."

XCIV

SIMON PETER REMEMBERS

A.D. 41 Cesarea.

Luke: Acts 10: 44-45 and 11: 16.

While Peter spoke, the Holy Spirit fell on all who were listening to the message.

And the believers from among the circumcised [the Jews] who came with Peter were surprised and amazed, because the free gift of the Holy Spirit had been bestowed and poured out on the Gentiles also. For they heard them speak with tongues and magnify God

Peter remembered that the Lord said, "John indeed baptized with water; but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit."

Then Peter said, "No one can withhold the water for these people to be baptized, who have received the Holy Spirit just as we did, can he?"

So he gave orders to have them baptized in the name of Jesus Christ.

Footnotes

Extra Note 1:

In the case of these Gentile converts, the gift of the Spirit came before they were baptized in water (Acts v. 48). The authentication of the gift was the speaking in tongues (v. 46), entirely apart from the laying on of hands. All this demonstrated, especially to the Jewish brethren who accompanied Peter, that God had received these Gentiles into the church on an equal basis with Jewish believers because they had believed in Christ (v. 43).

[Source: Ryrie Study Bible]

Most Jewish teachers felt that the Spirit inspired only the most pious with divine utterances, or that the Spirit would mark God's people in the future age. That Gentiles would receive the gift was unthinkable. Most importantly, the Spirit was an eschatological promise only for the people of the covenant (e.g., Isaiah 44:3; Ezekial 39:29). Gentiles obviously could not receive the gift if God had not accepted them, so he clearly had accepted them — even without circumcision.

Baptism was used as a public declaration of conversion — but accompanied by circumcision, which is not demanded here. [Note: Peter's following lodging at a Gentile home for several more days would compound the offense to Jewish piety but drives home Peter's lesson (Acts 10:28).]

Extra Note 2:

Caesarea (Palestinae), a city on the shore of the Mediterranean, on the great road from Tyre to Egypt, about 70 miles northwest of Jerusalem, at the northern extremity of the plain of Sharon. It was built by Herod the Great (B.C. 10), who named it after Caesar Augustus, hence called Caesarea Sebaste (Gr. Sebastos = "Augustus"), on the site of an old town called "Strato's Tower." It was the capital of the Roman province of Judaea, the seat of the governors or procurators, and the headquarters of the Roman troops. It was the great Gentile city of Palestine, with a spacious artificial harbour. It was adorned with many buildings of great splendour, after the manner of the Roman cities of the West. Here Cornelius the centurion was converted through the instrumentality of Peter (Acts 10:1, 24), and thus for the first time the door of faith was opened to the Gentiles. Philip the evangelist resided here with his four daughters (21:8). From this place Saul sailed for his native Tarsus when forced to flee from Jerusalem (9:30), and here he landed when returning from his second missionary journey (18:22). He remained as a prisoner here for two years before his voyage to Rome (Acts 24:27; 25:1, 4, 6, 13). Here on a "set day," when games were celebrated in the theatre in honour of the emperor Claudius, Herod Agrippa I. appeared among the people in great pomp, and in the midst of the idolatrous homage paid to him was suddenly smitten by an angel, and carried out a dying man. He was "eaten of worms" (12:19-23), thus perishing by the same loathsome disease as his granfather, Herod the Great. It still retains its ancient name Kaiseriyeh, but is now desolate. "The present inhabitants of the ruins are snakes, scorpions, lizards, wild boars, and jackals." It is described as the most desolate city of all Palestine.

During the human lifetime of Jesus Christ, and well into the New Testament stage of Bible History, Caesarea was a major Roman political center in occupied Israel. It was located on the shore of The Mediterranean Sea, on the road from Egypt to Tyre, about 75 miles / 120 kilometers northwest of Jerusalem. It was built between 25 to 13 B.C. by Herod The Great, who named it after Caesar Augustus, the Roman emperor most famous for ordering the census (Luke 2:1) that resulted in Joseph and Mary traveling down from Nazareth to Bethlehem where The Savior was born.

Caesarea The site had a long history. It was originally established as an anchorage by Sidonian king Abdashtart in the 4th century B.C., when it became known as "Strato's Tower." The Hasmoneans (see The Maccabees) took possession of it in 96 B.C., however Pompey brought it under Roman rule in 63 B.C. (see Ancient Empires - Rome).

Mark Antony presented the city to Cleopatra, however when Octavian (later known as Caesar Augustus) defeated Antony at Actium, it was put under the control of Herod who built it up and renamed it after the Caesar. It then became the capital of the Roman province of Judea, the headquarters for the procurators (governors) and the Roman troops (see Roman Legions).

Caesarea is mentioned frequently in New Testament events:

- Peter first took the message of the Gospel to Gentiles at Caesarea, while in the house of Cornelius, the centurion in what was known as the "Italian Regiment" (Acts 10:1-48). While there, as Cornelius was about to bow down to Peter, the apostle made it clear than he was merely a servant of The Lord, like the rest (see Did Peter Have The Primacy?) (Acts 10:26)

- Philip the evangelist lived in Caesarea with his four daughters who prophesied (Acts 21:8-9).

- Not long after his conversion On The Road To Damascus, Paul sailed from Caesarea to his native Tarsus (Acts 9:30). He passed through the city during his second and third missionary journeys (see Paul's First Missionary Journey, Paul's Second Missionary Journey and Paul's Third Missionary Journey). Later, he was held prisoner in the city for two years (Acts 24:1,27), where he was put on trial (Acts 23:31-26:32) before his voyage to Rome (see Paul's Journey To Rome).

- It was at Caesarea that Herod Agrippa I (see The Herods) was struck down by God for his idolatrous blasphemy (Acts 12:19-23)

- Today, the site of Caesarea is still known by its ancient name, Kaiseriyeh, but there are only ruins remaining.

Caesarea Maritima ("by the Sea") is one of the most important cities in the Roman World, and a Crusader fortress along the road from Acre to Jerusalem.

The ancient harbor at Caesarea is important in the study of Biblical archaeology, and many artifacts are still being discovered. There have been extensive excavations in this ancient city which are still going on today, much of which are underwater explorations.

Artist Rendering of Caesarea Maritime

This painted sketch reveals why Caesarea was the eastern capital of the Roman Empire. The harbor was a spectacle, and one of the wonders of the ancient world.

In 10 B.C. Augustus Caesar decided to rebuild a small coastal station called Strato's Tower into a new city, which would be renamed Caesarea Maritima, in honor of Augustus. He allotted the task to the architectural mastermind Herod the Great. Herod built a harbor at Caesarea that would become one of the wonders of the ancient world. He built a massive breakwater which formed a horseshoe of protection around the whole bay. On the coast he built some of the most impressive works of architecture in the Roman world. He built an amphitheater, a citadel, a palace, a hippodrome, city walls and gates, paved squares with huge statues, and other marvels of Graeco-Roman civilization. It was here in Caesarea where the prefect Pontius Pilate lived, the foundation of his house was on a rock in the middle of the harbor and is still there to this day.

Caesarea was also a spectacular location to build a city, because it was right in the center of the Plain of Sharon, one of the most fertile areas in the world. Centuries of rains from the clouds formed by the nearby Mediterranean Sea showered the Judean hills, and brought plenty of rich soil to irrigate the plain where Caesarea was situated. The climate was always fairly warm and never out of control. Oranges, figs, lemons, grapes, almonds, and even olives in the hills, grew in abundance. Anyone coming into Judea from anywhere in the Graeco-Roman world would marvel at this awesome Jewish city with all the spectacles of Hellenistic art, architecture and culture. It became the administrative center of the Roman procurators of the province of Judea, and also became the headquarters of the Roman legions. Caesarea was indeed a thriving place during the first century A.D., during the time of Jesus and the apostle Paul.

THE LORD TO PAUL IN A VISION

A.D. 54. Corinth.

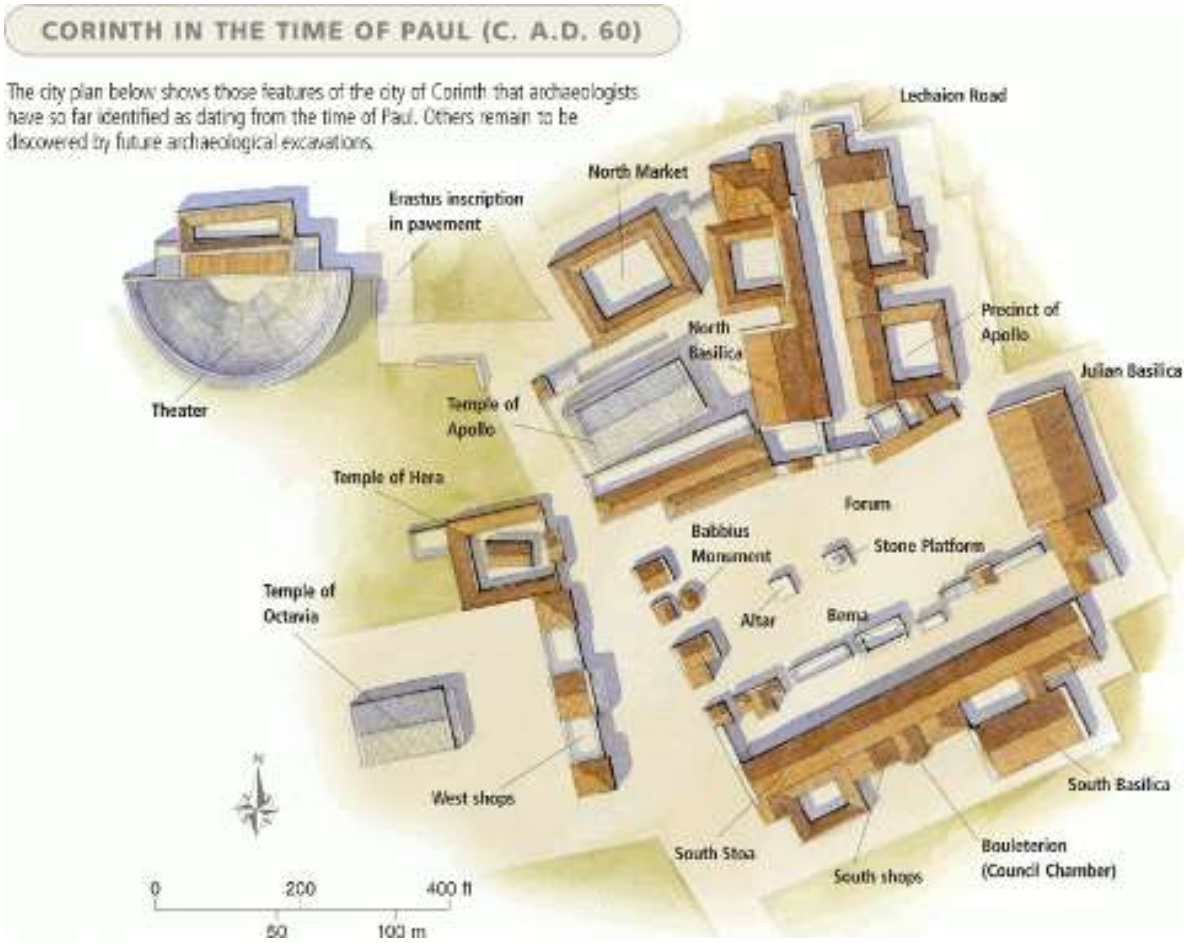
Luke: Acts 18: 7-11.

Paul entered the house of a certain man named Justus, one who worshiped God, whose house was next door to the synagogue.

Then Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his household.

And many of the Corinthians, hearing, believed and were baptized.



Now the Lord spoke to Paul in the night by a vision, “Do not be afraid, but speak, and do not keep silent; for I am with you, and no one will attack you to hurt you; for I have many people in this city.”

And he continued there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

PAUL'S FAREWELL TO THE EPHESIANS

A.D. 66. Miletus.

Luke: Acts 20: 17-19, 22, 25, 32-38.

From Miletus he (Paul) sent to Ephesus and called for the elders of the church.

And when they had come to him, he said to them: “You know, from the first day that I came to Asia, in what manner I always lived among you, serving the Lord with all humility, with many tears and trials which happened to me by the plotting of the Jews; how I kept back nothing that was helpful, but proclaimed it to you, and taught you publicly and from house to house, testifying to Jews, and also to Greeks, repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

“And see, now I go bound in the spirit to Jerusalem, not knowing the things that will happen to me there, except that the Holy Spirit testifies in every city, saying that chains and tribulations await me. But none of these things move me; nor do I count my life dear to myself, so that I may finish my race with joy, and the ministry which I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the gospel of the grace of God.

“And indeed, now I know that you all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, will see my face no more.

“Therefore I testify to you this day that I am innocent of the blood of all men. For I have not shunned to declare to you the whole counsel of God.

“Therefore take heed to yourselves and to all the flock, among which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God* which He purchased with His own blood.

“For I know this, that after my departure savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. Also from among yourselves men will rise up, speaking perverse things, to draw away the disciples after themselves. Therefore watch, and remember that for three years I did not cease to warn everyone night and day with tears.

“So now, brethren, I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up and give you an inheritance among all those who are sanctified.

“I have coveted no one's silver or gold or apparel. Yes, you yourselves know that these hands 146* have provided for my necessities, and for those who were with me. I have shown you in every way, by laboring like this, that you must support the weak.

And remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that He said, ‘It is more blessed to give than to receive.’”

And when he had said these things, he knelt down and prayed with them all. Then they all wept freely, and fell on Paul's neck and kissed him, sorrowing most of all for the words which he spoke, that they would see his face no more. And they accompanied him to the ship.

146:* By tent-making. The custom of the Jewish rabbis was to acquire a mechanical trade. Paul's was tent-making.

At this harbor, or somewhere very near, Paul's ship docked. After his meeting with the elders from Ephesus, they accompanied him to the ship for his departure to Jerusalem.

Lion Harbor Monument

Miletus was located on a small peninsula that jutted from the south into the bay of the Meander River. The ancient bay made an obstacle for direct land travel from Miletus to Ephesus. Today, Miletus is 5-6 miles (9-10 km) away from the Aegean Coast because silt has filled the bay. Direct travel between Miletus and Ephesus is now possible on dry land. The southeastern extremity of the ancient bay is now a lake (Bafa Golu).

MILETUS [SMITH]: (Acts 20:15,17) less correctly called MILETUM in (2 Timothy 4:20)

Miletus lay on the coast, 36 miles to the south of Ephesus, a day's sail from Trogyllium. (Acts 20:15)

Moreover, to those who are sailing from the north it is in the direct line for Cos. The site of Miletus has now receded ten miles from the coast, and even in the apostles' time it must have lost its strictly maritime position.

Miletus was far more famous five hundred years before St. Paul's day than it ever became afterward. In early times it was the most flourishing city of the Ionian Greeks. In the natural order of events it was absorbed in the Persian Empire.

After a brief period of spirited independence, it received a blow from which it never recovered, in the siege conducted by Alexander when on his eastern campaign. But still it held, even through the Roman period, the rank of a second-rate trading town, and Strabo mentions its four harbors.

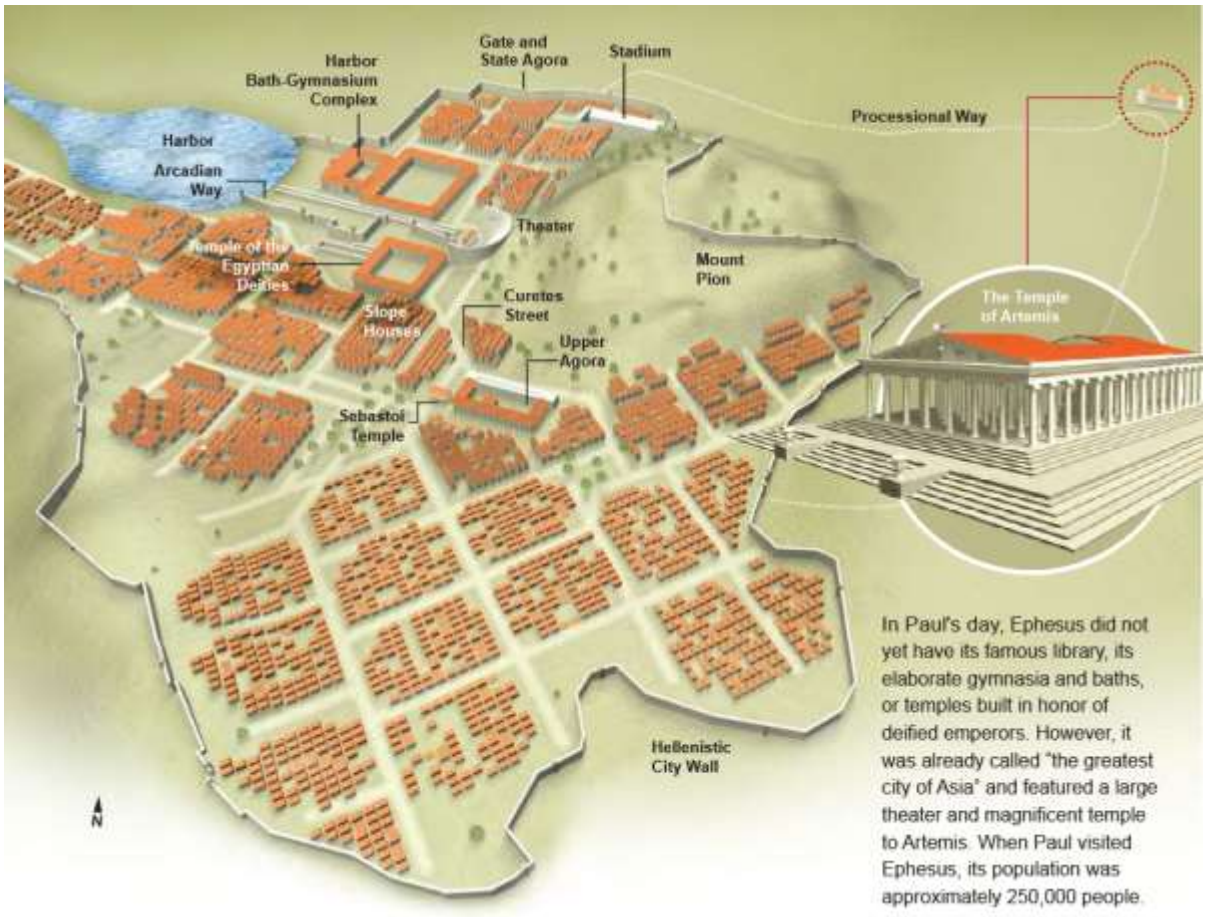
At this time it was politically in the province of Asia, though Caria was the old ethnological name of the district in which it was situated. All that is left now is a small Turkish village called Melas, near the site of the ancient city.

MILETUS [ISBE]: mi-le'-tus (Miletos): A famous early Ionian Greek city on the coast of Caria, near the mouth of the Meander River, which, according to Acts 20:15--21:1, and 2 Timothy 4:20 (the King James Version [KJV] "Miletum"), Paul twice visited.

In the earliest times it was a prominent trading post, and it is said that 75 colonies were founded by its merchants. Among them were Abydos, Cyzicus and Sinope.

In 494 BC, the city was taken by the Persians; it was recovered by Alexander the Great, but after his time it rapidly declined, yet it continued to exist until long after the Christian era. In the history of early Christianity it plays but a little part.

The Meander brings down a considerable amount of sediment which it has deposited at its mouth, naturally altering the coast line. The gulf into which the river flows has thus been nearly filled with the deposit. In the ancient gulf stood a little island called Lade; the island now appears as a mound in the marshy malarial plain, and Palatia, the modern village which stands on the site of Miletus, is 6 miles from the coast.



Without taking into account the great changes in the coast line it would be difficult to understand Acts 20:15-21, for in the days of Paul, Ephesus could be reached from Miletus by land only by making a long detour about the head of the gulf. To go directly from one of these cities to the other, one would have been obliged to cross the gulf by boat and then continue by land. This is what Paul's messenger probably did. The direct journey may now be made by land.

Miletus has been so ruined that its plan can no longer be made out. Practically the only remaining object of unusual interest is theater, the largest in Asia Minor (originally seating 5,300 in the Hellinistic period, later expanded to 25,000 seats in the Roman period), which was not built in a hollow of the hillside, as most ancient theaters were, but in the open field.

Ephesus in Paul's Day

Ephesus was a thriving port in the first century, situated on the only major east–west road system in the area. Nearly a century had passed since it had last been invaded. The city was proud and prosperous, and a strong Jewish community thrived there.

Note: Paul is referenced to, in the Bible, as Saul -- prior to his conversion.

Paul was in Jerusalem at least 4 separate times after his conversion:

1st time: 15 days -- then Paul was sent away to avoid capture (Acts 9:30; Gal.1:21).
2nd time: a brief relief visit along with Barnabas to deliver collections made on behalf of the church at Jerusalem (Acts 11:27-30; Gal.2:1).
3rd time: to attend the Jerusalem Council (Acts l5), along with Barnabas, as representative of the church at Antioch.
4th time: Paul was arrested in Jerusalem shortly after arriving from his 3rd Missionary Journey and taken to Caesarea where he was imprisoned for 2 years – eventually ending up in Rome.

Paul's Training in Jerusalem Prior to His Conversion:

No doubt Saul (Paul) left his home during his early adolescence and was taken to Jerusalem for his formal education in the most prominent rabbinical schools of that day. Among his teachers, young Saul had the privilege to be trained by Gamaliel, the most outstanding rabbi teacher of that time (Acts 22:3). Gamaliel was one of the most honorable and reputable Jewish rabbis during the days of the Apostles (Acts 5:34). He was the grandson of Hillel, the founder of the most influential rabbinical school of Judaism; Gamaliel was also the president of the Sanhedrin in succession of his father.

It was in this environment that Saul received his education in the religion of Judaism and became well versed in its dogma and apologetics. Sometime during his educational years it was instilled in him a fervent hatred for Christ and His followers and therefore became the perfect agent in the employment of the Sanhedrin against the Christians. No doubt, Saul made many such trips throughout the Roman world in his approximately thirty years in Jerusalem as he did in Acts 9:1-2 in arresting and testifying against the followers of Jesus Christ.

Letters Written by the Apostle Paul

ORDER, STRUCTURE, AND PURPOSE

Some Key Thoughts		The General Purpose
Forgiving others as Christ has forgiven us DEMONSTRATION	PHILEMON The love of Christ at work (An appeal to a friend)	Gives an example of a godly attitude and demonstration of love through Paul's petition on behalf of the unprofitable runaway slave, Onesimus.
Defending the faith in word and example UTILIZATION	I & II TIMOTHY and TITUS Church organization and leadership Sound doctrine (Letters to individual church leaders)	Provides instructions for church leadership with a charge to teach and defend "sound doctrine" and to admonish believers to zealously maintain "good works" while looking for our "BLESSED HOPE."
Serving the Living God while waiting for His Son from Heaven EXPECTATION	I & II THESSALONIANS Correction and instruction about the rapture and how to live until that time (Letters to a questioning church)	To encourage believers to live godly even while enduring times of persecution. Corrects false teaching concerning the rapture or "catching away" of the "Body of Christ."
Seeking those things which are "ABOVE" where CHRIST is seated CULMINATION	COLOSSIANS A warning of lost rewards 1-2 Warnings 3-4 Practice (A letter to a wavering church)	Colossians warns against the danger of not holding fast to the Head of the Body. Because any departure from the truth will result in loss of rewards believers are to set their "affection on things above, not on things on the earth".
The upward call of God "IN CHRIST" SUBORDINATION	PHILIPPIANS A call to service 1-2 The mind of a servant 3-4 Application (A letter to a giving church)	Philippians explains that true joy is found in serving Christ. Faithful service requires believers to be like-minded with Christ who was "obedient unto death".
Seated in the heavenlies with Christ and "IN CHRIST" EXALTATION	EPHESIANS Explaining the Body 1-3 Doctrine 4-6 Practice (A letter to a stable church)	Ephesians explains the heavenly position and oneness of the Body of Christ and challenges believers to live accordingly.
Not LAW, but "LIBERTY IN CHRIST" LIBERATION	GALATIANS Reproof and correction for perverting the Gospel of Grace (A letter to a legalistic church)	To rebuke and call the Galatian church to repentance for their departure from the Gospel of Grace to return to the Law.
Not human wisdom, but the "WISDOM OF GOD" SANCTIFICATION	I & II CORINTHIANS Reproof and correction for the abuse of our liberty in Christ (Letters to a carnal church)	To correct divisions among the brethren and the abuse of spiritual gifts and immortality in the church at Corinth. Paul also defended his apostleship and taught on the resurrection.
RIGHTEOUSNESS: Not by works, but by "FAITH" JUSTIFICATION	ROMANS The foundation of the revelation of the dispensation of The GRACE OF GOD IN JESUS CHRIST 1-8 Doctrine 9-11 Dispensations 12-16 Practice (A letter to a far away church)	Romans explains the "Grace of God" and the temporary setting aside of Israel.

The book of Romans gives us the fundamental truths necessary to understanding the plan and purpose of the Dispensation of the Grace of God revealed through the Apostle Paul. These truths are found only in Paul's writings and are essential to knowing in full the position, walk, commission, and hope of the Body of Christ.

“WE” TEXTS IN ACTS

The three passages of “we” texts found in the Acts of the Apostles lead many scholars to the conclusion that the author of Acts was a traveling companion of Paul at some points in his journeys.

Scripture Reference	Examples
Acts 16:10–18	“… we immediately tried to cross over to Macedonia …” (Acts 16:10)
	“We remained in this city for some days.” (Acts 16:12)
	“One day, as we were going to the place of prayer …” (Acts 16:16)
Acts 20:5–21:18	“They went ahead and were waiting for us in Troas …” (Acts 20:5)
	“We went ahead to the ship and set sail for Assos …” (Acts 20:13)
	“When we arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers welcomed us warmly.” (Acts 21:17)

The apostle Paul went on three missionary journeys from A.D. 46 to 57, traveling around much of Asia Minor and Greece. In 60, he was also taken to Rome. ORBIS allows us to calculate how long these journeys would have taken in pure travel time (excluding time spent at each destination) and how much they would have cost.

Journey	Distance (miles)	Travel Time (days)	Cost per Person (denarii)*
First	1,581	53	237
Second	3,050	100	314
Third	3,307	92	481
Rome	2,344	36	699

* Ship travel only. According to Wikipedia, the denarius from 200, used here, is roughly 22% weaker than a denarius from the mid-first-century.

Order of a Synagogue Service during the time of Paul and Barnabas:

IN A SYNAGOGUE SERVICE:

1. First the "Shema" would be recited (this is Deuteronomy 6:4, which Jews would repeat several times daily). "Hear, O Israel! The Lord is Our God. The Lord is one!" (NASB)

2. Then certain prayers would be spoken.
3. Then a reading from *the Law (Genesis through Deuteronomy).
4. Then a reading from the *Prophets (intended to illustrate the law).
5. Then a sermon. The synagogue rulers would decide who was to lead the service and give the sermon. A different person would be chosen to lead each week.
6. Since it was customary for the synagogue leader to invite visiting rabbis to speak, Paul and Barnabas usually would have an open door when they went go to a synagogue. But as soon as they spoke about Jesus as Messiah, the door would often slam shut. Usually they would not be invited back by the religious leaders, and sometimes they would be thrown out of town!

The invitation from the synagogue rulers was to speak a message of encouragement. What an open invitation for the gospel! There can be no more encouraging word than the fact that God has come to earth and opened a door to heaven, providing an atonement for sin and offering new life in Jesus Christ! Such an invitation was all Paul needed.

PAUL AT CESAREA AND JERUSALEM

A.D. 60.

Luke: Acts (parts of) Chapters 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27.

We 147* that were of Paul's company came unto Cesarea, into the house of Philip the evangelist. As we tarried there many days, there came down to us from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus.

And Agabus took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

We besought Paul not to go up to Jerusalem. He would not be persuaded; and we went up to Jerusalem. The brethren received him gladly.

¶Paul entered into the temple. When the Jews which were of Asia saw him in the temple, they stirred up the people, and laid hands on him, and drew him out of the temple. But when they went about to kill him, the chief captain and the soldiers took him, demanded who he was, and what he had done.

Some cried one thing, some another, crying out, Men of Israel, help: This is the man that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law: and further brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

Paul said, I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarsus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God. I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prisons both men and women.

The high priest doth bear me witness: from whom I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jerusalem, for to be punished.

As I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damascus about noon, suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me. I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice saying,

Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me,

I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me,

Arise, and go into Damascus; and there it shall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

I could not see for the glory of that light. Led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damascus.

One Ananias, a devout man according to the law, came and said, Brother Saul, receive thy sight.

And I looked up upon him. And he said, The God of our fathers hath chosen thee, that thou shouldest know his will, and see that Just One, and hear the voice of his mouth. For thou shalt be his witness unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.

When I was come again to Jerusalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance; and saw him saying unto me,

Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy testimony concerning me.

I said, Lord, they know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee: and when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also was standing by, and consented unto his death.

He said unto me,

Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

The Jews gave Paul audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live.

The chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

The night following the Lord stood by Paul, and said,

Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

When it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, under a curse, neither to eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

Paul's sister's son heard of their lying in wait. One of the centurions brought the young man to the chief captain. He told him.

So the chief captain called two centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers to go to Cesarea, and horsement three score and ten, and spearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night. Provide them beasts, that they may set Paul on, and bring him safe unto Felix the governor.

And he wrote a letter unto the governor after this manner: This man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them: then came I with an army, and rescued him, having understood that he was a Roman.

The horsemen, when they came to Cesarea and delivered the epistle to the governor, presented Paul also before him. He commanded Paul to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall.

After certain days Felix (the governor) sent for Paul, and heard him. And as Paul reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee.

But after two years Porcius Festus came into Felix' room: and Felix, willing to shew the Jews a pleasure, left Paul bound.

¶Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, said to Paul, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?

Then said Paul, I stand at Cesar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest. For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cesar.

After certain days king Agrippa came unto Cesarea to salute Festus.

Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix: about whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him. To whom I answered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die, before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, to answer for himself.

But Paul appealed to be reserved unto the hearing of Augustus.

Then Agrippa said unto Festus, I would also hear the man myself.

And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come with great pomp into the place of hearing, with the chief captains, and principal men of the city, Paul was brought forth.

Festus said, King Agrippa, the Jews have dealt with me, crying that he ought not to live. But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him. Of whom I have

147:* Luke, the narrator, was one of "Paul's company."

See also retelling of Paul's conversion (and additional corresponding notes) in Chapters XCIII and XCVIII

Extra Note 1:
Why does Acts 9:7 say that those traveling with Paul heard a voice, but Acts 22:9 says that they heard no voice?

As Paul relates his conversion experience to an audience in Jerusalem, he says, "They that were with me saw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me" (Acts 22:9, KJV).

However, Luke, in relating the same event, says, "The men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man" (Acts 9:7, KJV).

So, which is it? Paul says "they heard not the voice," and Luke says they were "hearing a voice."

First of all, the word for "voice" in these verses is the Greek word phone, which means "a sound, a tone, a speech, a voice, or a natural sound." With such a wide-ranging definition, the context must determine the most accurate meaning of the word. Most commonly, phone is applied to a voice from God, a human, or an angel. However, phone can also refer to sounds in general. It is translated "sound" in John 3:8, "The wind blows wherever it pleases. You hear its sound. . . ." Paul uses the word to refer to the "sound" of a trumpet in 1 Corinthians 14:8.

The flexibility of phone is quite evident in Revelation 1:15, "His feet were like bronze glowing in a furnace, and his voice [phone] was like the sound [phone] of rushing waters." Here, the identical Greek word is translated two different ways.

These examples illustrate how confusion can arise in the comparison of Acts 9 with Acts 22. Paul heard a voice as Jesus communicated directly with him. The men with Paul heard the voice speaking to Paul but, to them, it was just an unintelligible sound. Did they hear the voice? Yes, in the sense that they heard something. But, since they could not understand what the voice said, it was nothing more than a sound-in other words, they couldn't really "hear" Jesus.

The ESV clears up the seeming contradiction nicely: "Those who were with me saw the light but did not understand the voice of the one who was speaking to me" (Acts 22:9). And, "They heard the sound but did not see anyone" (Acts 9:7). Not understanding the voice-but hearing the sound-is a good description of what happened.

This difficulty is one of several minute problems that occur during the translation process. Praise the Lord, such difficulties are easily resolved and do not affect any major doctrine of our faith.

Luke: Acts 26, 1-32.

AGRIPPA said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak. Then Paul answered:

I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee: especially, because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.

My manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, know all the Jews; which knew me from the beginning (if they would testify), that after the most straitest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee.

And now I stand, and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers: unto which promise our twelve tribes, instantly serving God day and night, hope to come. For which hope's sake, king Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.

Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?

I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison; and when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them. And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities.

Whereupon, as I went to Damascus, with authority and commission from the chief priests, at midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining round about me. And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice saying in the Hebrew tongue,

Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.

[See Extra Note 1]

And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said,

I am Jesus whom thou persecutest.

But rise, and stand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister and a witness both of these things which thou hast seen, and of those things in the which I will appear unto thee; delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, to open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them which are sanctioned by faith that is in me.

Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision: but shewed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coast of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

For these causes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come: That Christ should suffer, and that he should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

¶As Paul thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad. [See Extra Note 2]

Paul said, I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of truth and soberness. For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest. Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

Paul said, I would to God, that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been set at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Cesar.

A.D. 62. En route to Rome.

Luke: Acts 27, 1-6.

WHEN it was determined that we 151* should sail into Italy, they delivered Paul and certain other prisoners unto one named Julius, a centurion of Augustus' band.

Entering into a ship of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to sail by the coasts of Asia. The next day we touched at Sidon.

When we had launched from thence, we sailed under Cyprus, because the winds were contrary. We came to Myra, a city of Lycia. There the centurion found a ship of Alexandria sailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

Paul: II Corinthians 12: 7-9.

A thorn in the flesh was given to me, a messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I be exalted above measure.

Concerning this thing I pleaded with the Lord three times that it might depart from me.

And He said to me, "My grace is sufficient for you, for My strength is made perfect in weakness."

(Therefore most gladly I will rather boast in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me.)

Extra Note 1:

Most other Bible versions say "goads" instead of "pricks".

The NLT uses it's intended meaning: "It is useless for you to fight against my will." Then it notes that the the Greek literally means, "It is hard for you to kick against the oxgoads."

The HCSB notes that goads are "Sharp sticks used to prod animals, such as oxen in plowing".

The NET states: [45] tn "Goads" are pointed sticks used to direct a draft animal (an idiom for stubborn resistance). See BDAG 539-40 s.v. κέντρον 2.

Then it adds: sn Sayings which contain the imagery used here (kicking against the goads) were also found in Greek writings; see Pindar, Pythians 2.94-96; Euripides, Bacchae 795.

Extra Note 2:

This line (verse) and the following 4 verses [Acts 26:24-29] are the KJV version. They are translated from the Greek in other Bible versions, a few provided for example, as follows:

NASB

[24] While Paul was saying this in his defense, Festus said in a loud voice, "Paul, you are out of your mind! Your great learning is driving you mad."

[25] But Paul *said, "I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus, but I utter words of sober truth.

[26] “For the king knows about these matters, and I speak to him also with confidence, since I am persuaded that none of these things escape his notice; for this has not been done in a corner.

[27] “King Agrippa, do you believe the Prophets? I know that you do.”

[28] Agrippa replied to Paul, “In a short time you *will persuade me to *become a Christian.”

[29] And Paul said,“ I would wish to God, that whether in a short or long time, not only you, but also all who hear me this day, might become such as I am, except for these chains.”

NIV

[24] At this point Festus interrupted Paul's defense. “You are out of your mind, Paul!” he shouted. “Your great learning is driving you insane.”

[25] “I am not insane, most excellent Festus,” Paul replied. “What I am saying is true and reasonable. [26] The king is familiar with these things, and I can speak freely to him. I am convinced that none of this has escaped his notice, because it was not done in a corner. [27] King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you do.”

[28] Then Agrippa said to Paul, “Do you think that in such a short time you can persuade me to be a Christian?”

[29] Paul replied, “Short time or long—I pray God that not only you but all who are listening to me today may become what I am, except for these chains.”

NET

[24] As Paul was saying these things in his defense, Festus exclaimed loudly, “You have lost your mind, Paul! Your great learning is driving you insane!”

[25] But Paul replied, “I have not lost my mind, most excellent Festus, but am speaking true and rational words.

[26] For the king knows about these things, and I am speaking freely to him, because I cannot believe that any of these things has escaped his notice, for this was not done in a corner.

[27] Do you believe the prophets, King Agrippa? I know that you believe.”

[28] Agrippa said to Paul, “In such a short time are you persuading me to become a Christian?”

[29] Paul replied, “I pray to God that whether in a short or a long time not only you but also all those who are listening to me today could become such as I am, except for these chains.”

[24] As he thus made his defense, Festus said with a loud voice, "Paul, you are crazy! Your great learning is driving you insane!"

[25] But he said, "I am not crazy, most excellent Festus, but boldly declare words of truth and reasonableness. [26] For the king knows of these things, to whom also I speak freely. For I am persuaded that none of these things is hidden from him, for this has not been done in a corner. [27] King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe."

[28] Agrippa said to Paul, "With a little persuasion are you trying to make me a Christian?"

[29] Paul said, "I pray to God, that whether with little or with much, not only you, but also all that hear me this day, might become such as I am, except for these bonds."

NLT

[24] Suddenly, Festus shouted, "Paul, you are insane. Too much study has made you crazy!"

[25] But Paul replied, "I am not insane, Most Excellent Festus. What I am saying is the sober truth.

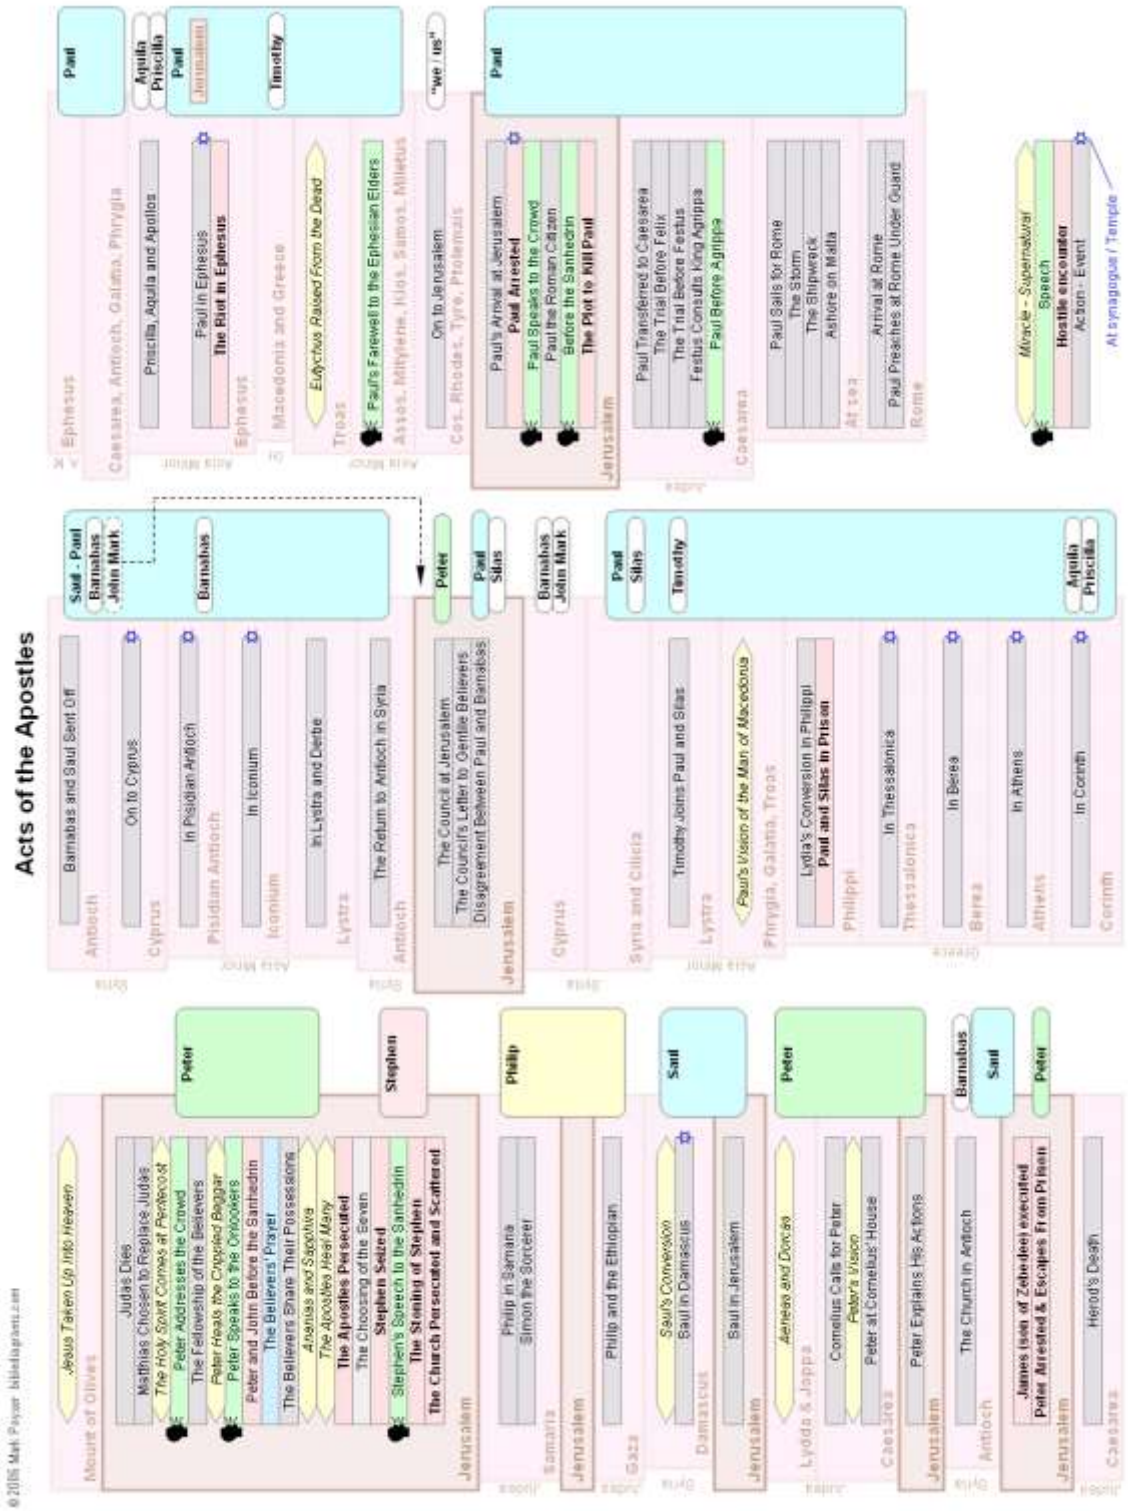
[26] And King Agrippa knows about these things. I speak boldly, for I am sure these events are all familiar to him, for they were not done in a corner! [27] King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you do–"

[28] Agrippa interrupted him. "Do you think you can persuade me to become a Christian so quickly?"

[29] Paul replied, "Whether quickly or not, I pray to God that both you and everyone here in this audience might become the same as I am, except for these chains."

HCSB

[24] As he was making his defense this way, Festus exclaimed in a loud voice, “You're out of your mind, Paul! Too much study is driving you mad! ”



[25] But Paul replied, “I'm not out of my mind, most excellent Festus. On the contrary, I'm speaking words of truth and good judgment. [26] For the king knows about these matters. It is to him I am actually speaking boldly. For I am convinced that none of these things escapes his notice, since this was not done in a corner. [27] King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know you believe.”

[28] Then Agrippa said to Paul, “Are you going to persuade me to become a Christian so easily? ”

[29] “I wish before God,” replied Paul, “that whether easily or with difficulty, not only you but all who listen to me today might become as I am — except for these chains.” *

The Structure of Revelation

The Book of Revelation is a book of revealing. It is revealing to a group of people introduced in the first chapter, and in particular to seven beings whom I will mention in just a moment as being very important. These seven beings are seven spirits who are seven angels who control the seven churches to whom Jesus is writing, and John is, as a secretary, writing down the account. Now the whole Book of Revelation is found in four major divisions.

1. The vision that was given concerning the messages to the seven churches, beginning with Ephesus and going to Laodicea. You will find the message to those seven churches given in chapters 2 and 3.

2. Another visionary section begins in chapter 4 when John was taken forward (in time) in vision, and that goes all the way to the end of chapter 16.

3. Look very carefully at the beginning of chapter 17, you have a third section that goes to the great white throne judgment.

4. After the great white throne judgment we have the kingdom of God on Earth, in another vision. That is the fourth vision written of the Book of Revelation.

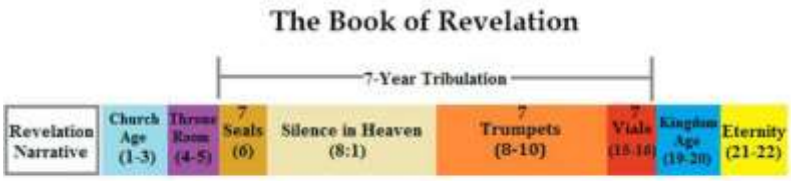
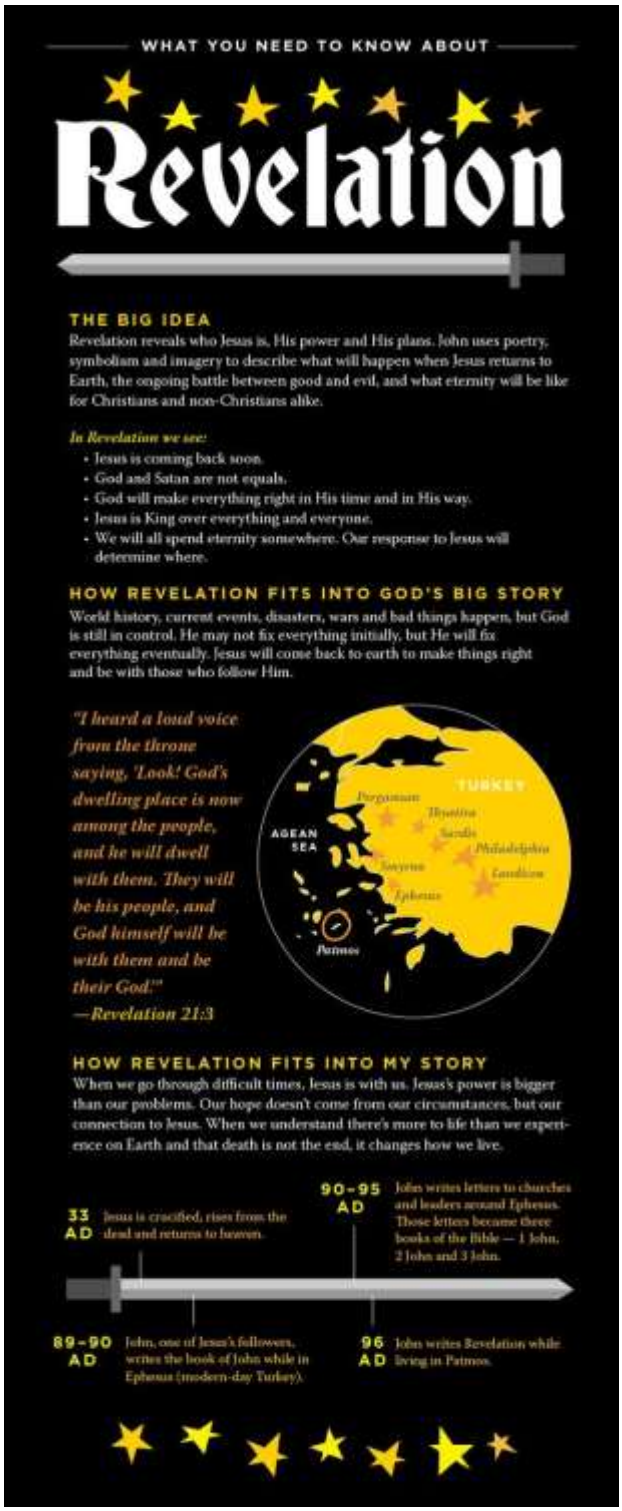
Revelation has an introduction to all of these four divisions, and a conclusion, a summing up that is chapter 22. These are not visions per se.

These four visions all impinge upon one another. They describe different time periods as far as months and a few years are concerned, about a seven year period total, or a little less. They really concentrate upon this last generation of history for mankind, just prior to the Second Coming of Christ back to this earth. That is when the Book of Revelation is to have its meaning and its prophecies fulfilled.



Throughout the Book of Revelation, you will notice there is a theme of Christ coming very quickly. John wrote back in the 1st century. If Christ was coming in the 1st century, then all of those Scriptures about coming quickly would have referred to that period of time. But if you look at it carefully, John was taken forward into this last generation prior to the Second Coming of Christ, the end-time generation, and the message is that He is coming quickly. He is coming soon. He is at the doors. And then He does come, and arrives here on Earth in the 19th chapter of the Book of Revelation.

So this whole book is for that end time generation, and it has been in the Bible for almost 1900 years. We are now approaching that end-time generation. We are still coming to that period of time when it will become quite evident that we are entering that time discussed in the Book of Revelation.



It is a time when John was taken in spirit to that sixth king — five were fallen, six is, one is yet to come for a short time, and then emerges the eighth who is the beast, the antichrist, the man of sin, the son of perdition, who will, with ten kings, fight Christ at His coming. Then Christ will subdue him and those ten kings, and then the millennium will occur with Christ introducing the kingdom of God here on Earth. At that occasion the resurrection from the dead takes place, according to the apostle Paul, Peter, and others.

1. PRETERIST: Revelation is about events in the past

   The events described in Revelation all took place around the time of the letter's writing and should be read with that historical context in mind. In other words, the letter was written first and foremost to Christians in the first century, under Roman rule and persecution. As such, we need to understand how they would have originally read it, before applying it to ourselves.

2. FUTURIST: Revelation is about events in the future

   The events described in Revelation were predicted to take place in the far distant future, at least from the point of view of the original readers. So, the focus is on events that are still to come, including times like "the tribulation" and "the millennium."

3. HISTORICIST: Revelation is about all of history

   Revelation describes the key events of history stretching from the death and resurrection of Jesus to his return as judge. It can be seen as a timetable, by which we can interpret "the signs of the times." In other words, world events today are described in Revelation.

4. IDEALIST: Revelation is about timeless principles

   Revelation isn't talking about a specific time. It is talking about a pattern of events or trends that will be repeated throughout history, as an encouragement to God's people of all times who face persecution. In that sense, it is a "timeless" message.

JESUS CHRIST AS ALPHA AND OMEGA DIRECTS JOHN TO WRITE TO THE SEVEN CHURCHES IN ASIA

A.D. 96.

Revelation 1: 1-3, 8-20.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave Him to show His servants—things which must shortly take place. And He sent and signified it by His angel to His servant John, who bore witness to the word of God, and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, to all things that he saw. Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written in it; for the time is near.

"I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End," says the Lord, "who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty."

I, John, was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day, and I heard behind me a loud voice, as of a trumpet, saying, 151†

"What you see, write in a book and send it to the seven churches which are in Asia: to Ephesus, to Smyrna, to Pergamos, to Thyatira, to Sardis, to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea."

Then I turned to see the voice that spoke with me.

And having turned I saw seven golden lampstands, and in the midst of the seven lampstands One like the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the feet and girded about the chest with a golden band. His head and hair were white like wool, as white as snow, and His eyes like a flame of fire; His feet were like fine brass, as if refined in a furnace, and His voice as the sound of many waters; He had in His right hand seven stars, out of His mouth went a sharp two-edged sword, and His countenance was like the sun shining in its strength. And when I saw Him, I fell at His feet as dead.

But He laid His right hand on me, saying to me, "Do not be afraid; I am the First and the Last. "I am He who lives, and was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore. Amen. And I have the keys of Hades and of Death.

"Write the things which you have seen, and the things which are, and the things which will take place after this. "The mystery of the seven stars which you saw in My right hand, and the seven golden lampstands: The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands which you saw * are the seven churches.

Footnotes

151:† Here (following) are set down those sayings only which John has ascribed to Christ, along with so much of John's context as barely to establish the sequences. The Revelation contains a series of prophetic visions — it is the only prophetic book in the New Testament. Its date is supposed to be A.D. 96.

The 7 Churches of Revelation and
The 7 Kingdom Parables of Matthew 13

The letters to 7 churches in Revelation 2 and 3 are generally recognized to be symbolic of the chronological history of the Christian church from the time of the apostles to the second coming. This study outline proposes that the kingdom parables of Matthew 13 are also chronological in sequence, and are directly related to the 7 churches in Revelation, giving further insight. Note that when a symbol is defined in a parable, that definition applies consistently and universally to the other parables. It is also proposed that Paul's letters to churches likely apply to the 7 churches as well.

1. Ephesus ("desirable"), Rev 2:1-7 — The Apostolic church of the 1st century.

Representative of Seven Stages of Church History

A number of expositors down through history have held that the seven churches represent seven sequential stages of church history.[1] While we do not favor this view, it is instructive to understand the arguments for and against such a view since it will frequently be encountered by students of the book of Revelation. The view is known as the historical-prophetical view:

The historical-prophetical interpretation . . . states that while all seven types of churches always exist, one type dominates a particular era of church history. Throughout church history all seven types of churches will be present, but one type will tend to dominate a particular period of church history. . . .[2]

Fruchtenbaum responds to the assertion that such a view of the letters to the churches violates the Golden Rule of Interpretation:

> The question this . . . perspective raises is: Does this view not violate The Golden Rule of Interpretation and the principles of a literal hermeneutic? If it could be clearly shown that all that was said in a particular letter can be or was true of that particular church or that type of church, then the answer would be: "Yes." But if statements are made that cannot in any way be true of that particular church, then the answer would be: "No." This author would prefer to limit the interpretation to that church only or to that type of church only, but now and then statements are made which render that impossible. . . .[3]

Certain statements made to individual churches cannot be true of the strictly local situation, and they must have a far wider meaning. . . . One example is the promise to keep the Church of Philadelphia from the hour of trail, that hour which is to come upon the whole earth. The time is long past that this promise could be kept only to that particular church, for that local church no longer exists; nor can this promise be limited to that type of church because other types of churches of these two chapters will also share in the promise. . . . It is statements like this [the use of the Phoenician name Jezebel at Thyatira] that lend credence to the historical-prophetical interpretation. . . . In [Rev. Rev. 2:22+], the woman is to be cast into the Great Tribulation. This means that unlike the true Church, the Roman Catholic Church [represented by Jezebel] will go into the Great Tribulation . . . This is another example of a passage that simply cannot be limited to the local situation.[4]

Fruchtenbaum suggests the following historical correlation.[5] We've augmented Fruchtenbaum's suggestions with those of Bullinger that each assembly denotes a unique phase in Israel's history:[6]

Seven Stages of Church History

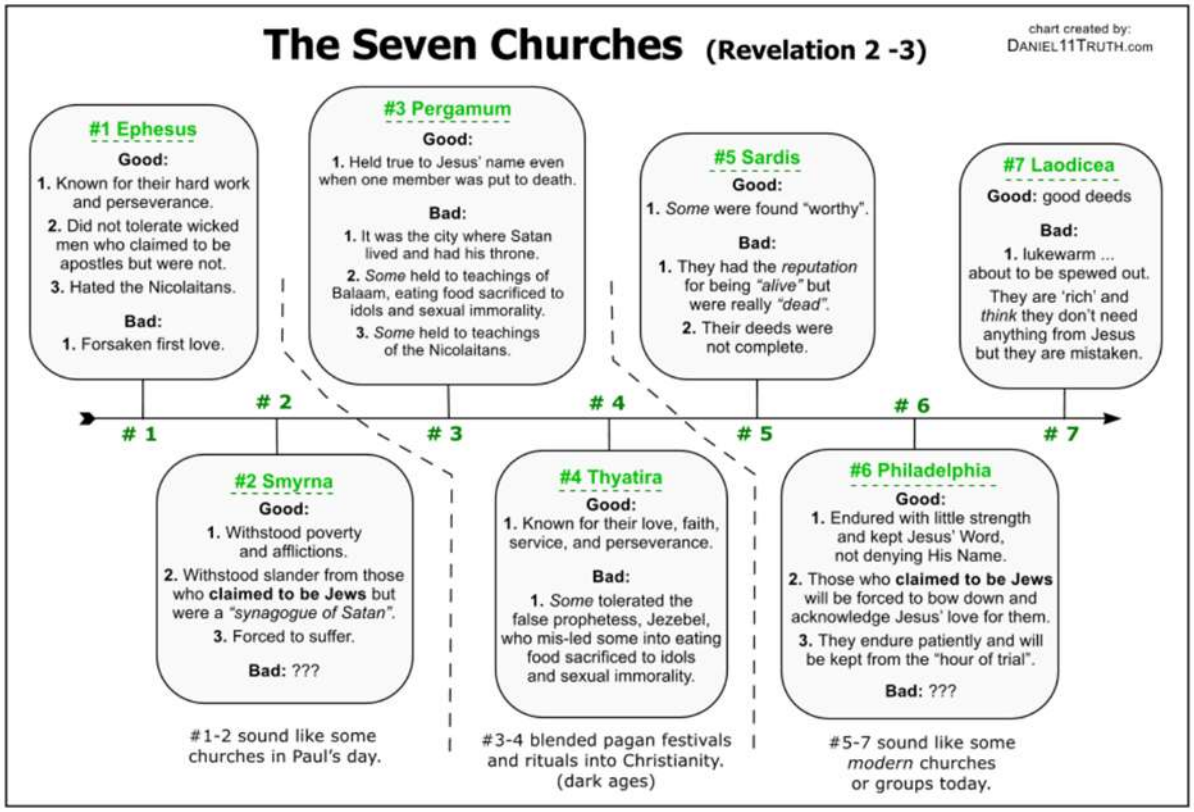
Church	Church History Typified	Dates	Israel's History Typified[7]	Verses
Ephesus	The Apostolic Church	A.D. 30-100	The Day of Israel's Espousals (Exodus)	Rev. Rev. 2:1-7+
Smyrna	The Church of the Roman Persecution	A.D. 100 - 313	The Period of Israel's Wanderings (Numbers)	Rev. Rev. 2:8-11+
Pergamum	The Church of the Age of Constantine	The Wilderness Period (Numbers)	A.D. 313-600[8]	Rev. Rev. 2:12-17+
Thyatira	The Church of the Dark Ages	A.D. 600-1517[9]	The Wilderness Period (Numbers)	Rev. Rev. 2:18-29+

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Sardis	The Church of the Reformation	A.D. 1517-1648	The Period of Israel's Kings (1 and 2 Kings)	Rev. Rev. 3:1-6+
Philadelphia	The Church of the Great Missionary Movement	A.D. 1648-1900	The Period of Israel's Removal (1 and 2 Chronicles)	Rev. Rev. 3:7-13+
Laodicea	The Church of the Apostasy	A.D. 1900-present day	The Period of Judah's Kings (2 Chronicles)	Rev. Rev. 3:14-22+

It is our view that the historical-prophetical view suffers from numerous problems.

1. There is significant disagreement between different proponents of the view concerning which periods of history are represented, both their characteristics and dates. In this, the historical-prophetical scheme suffers from the same problems as the Historicist Interpretation of Revelation.[10]
2. Church history is far more complex than can be reflected by seven periods sharing global characteristics.[11]
3. The correlation made between the letters and church history is entirely westernized and fails to take into account important movements and activities elsewhere in the world.
4. If the churches truly are representative of the course of church history, this fact must have been concealed from the early church or it would have destroyed the concept of imminency.[12]
5. The historical-prophetical interpretation seems to read more into the text than what is intended.[13]



Trench observes;

The multitude of dissertations, essays, books, which have been, and are still being written, in support of this scheme of interpretation, must remain a singular monument of wasted ingenuity and misapplied toil . . . a future looking into Scripture for that which is not to be found there . . . a resolution to draw out from it that which he who draws out must first himself have put in. Men will never thus make Scripture richer. They will have made it much poorer for themselves, if they nourish themselves out of it with the fancies of men, in place of the truths of God.[14]

For further information on this subject, see [Thomas, Revelation 1-7, 505-515].

Question: "What do the seven churches in Revelation stand for?"

Answer: The seven churches described in Revelation 2-3 are seven literal churches at the time that John the apostle was writing Revelation. Though they were literal churches in that time, there is also spiritual significance for churches and believers today. The first purpose of the letters was to communicate with the literal churches and meet their needs at that time. The second purpose is to reveal seven different types of individuals/churches throughout history and instruct them in God's truth.

A possible third purpose is to use the seven churches to foreshadow seven different periods in the history of the Church. The problem with this view is that each of the seven churches describes issues that could fit the Church in any time in its history. So, although there may be some truth to the seven churches representing seven eras, there is far too much speculation in this regard. Our focus should be on what message God is giving us through the seven churches. The seven churches are

(1) Ephesus (Revelation 2:1-7) - the church that had forsaken its first love (2:4).

(2) Smyrna (Revelation 2:8-11) - the church that would suffer persecution (2:10).

(3) Pergamum (Revelation 2:12-17) - the church that needed to repent (2:16).

(4) Thyatira (Revelation 2:18-29) - the church that had a false prophetess (2:20).

(5) Sardis (Revelation 3:1-6) - the church that had fallen asleep (3:2).

(6) Philadelphia (Revelation 3:7-13) - the church that had endured patiently (3:10).

(7) Laodicea (Revelation 3:14-22) - the church with the lukewarm faith (3:16).

TO THE CHURCH OF EPHESUS—"I WILL GIVE TO EAT OF THE TREE OF LIFE"

A.D. 96.

Revelation 2: 1-7.

“To the angel of the church of Ephesus write,

‘These things says He who holds the seven stars in His right hand, who walks in the midst of the seven golden lampstands:

“I know your works, your labor, your patience, and that you cannot bear those who are evil.

“And you have tested those who say they are apostles and are not, and have found them liars; and you have persevered and have patience, and have labored for My name's sake and have not become weary.

“Nevertheless I have this against you, that you have left your first love.

“Remember therefore from where you have fallen; repent and do the first works, or else I will come to you quickly and remove your lampstand from its place — unless you repent.

“But this you have, that you hate the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

Church of Ephesus - Revelation 2:1-7

Praise: I know that you do good deeds, and work hard. You are patient and cannot stand evil. You condemn those who do wrong and hold false teachings to the fire.

Condemnation: You have left your first love - the core of the gospel.

Advice to leaders: Remember where it is that you have fallen from, repent and go back to the original teachings.

Challenge to believers: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God.

Application: Men intent on abandoning the word of God (their first love) for their own doctrinal interpretations.

The inference here is the addition of doctrines into the church placing more importance on them than on the Word of God. This refers to legalistic churches that institute man-imposed salvation requirements, such as specific baptism rituals or organization membership, and teach that there is no salvation unless these requirements are met. They focus more on dos and don’ts and on who does and doesn’t do, than on the core message of Scripture and thus they deny salvation by grace through faith. The easiest way to spot a church of Ephesus is their claim of being the only true remnant church of Christ and their insistence that there is no salvation outside of their organization and without their rituals.

TO THE CHURCH IN SMYRNA—"BE THOU FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH"

A.D. 96

Revelation 2: 8-11.

“And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write,

‘These things says the First and the Last, who was dead, and came to life:

“I know your works, tribulation, and poverty (but you are rich); and I know the blasphemy of those who say they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan.

“Do not fear any of those things which you are about to suffer. Indeed, the devil is about to throw some of you into prison, that you may be tested, and you will have tribulation ten days.

“Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life.

“He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

“He who overcomes shall not be hurt by the second death.”’

Church of Smyrna -- Revelation 2:8-11

Praise: I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich).

Condemnation: None!

Advice to leaders: Don't fear your suffering - Satan will torment you and you will be tried. Be faithful unto death and you will have the crown of life..

Challenge to believers: He that overcometh shall not be hurt by the second death (and will have eternal life).

Application: Throughout the world, Christians are being persecuted in places like China, Russia, the Philippines and the Islamic nation states. Witnessing is illegal in many of these places and sadly, it is all too common to hear of Christians being jailed, tortured and even beheaded for the crime of attempting to spread the gospel and the testimony of Jesus.

TO THE CHURCH IN PERGAMOS—"REPENT, OR ELSE I WILL COME QUICKLY"

A.D. 96

Revelation 2: 12-17.

“And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write,

‘These things says He who has the sharp two-edged sword:

“I know your works, and where you dwell, where Satan's throne is. And you hold fast to My name, and did not deny My faith even in the days in which Antipas was My faithful martyr, who was killed among you, where Satan dwells.

“But I have a few things against you, because you have there those who hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols, and to commit sexual immorality.

“Thus you also have those who hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate.

“Repent, or else I will come to you quickly and will fight against them with the sword of My mouth.

“He who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.

“To him who overcomes I will give some of the hidden manna to eat.

“And I will give him a white stone, and on the stone a new name written which no one knows except him who receives it. ”’

Church of Pergamum - Revelation 2:12-17

Praise: You live where Satan lives, yet you never renounced me.

Condemnation: But I have a few things against you, your teachings pollute your people both spiritually and socially with unacceptable pagan practices.

Advice to leaders: Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of My mouth!

Challenge to believers: To him that overcomes will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth [it].

Application: Those teaching false doctrines, causing people to sin because they think it is “okay” based on the interpretations of their leadership. What these leaders are doing is teaching that the Word of God is to be treated as a cafeteria plan where you can pick and choose what you want to believe and disregard that which you don’t. Pergamum is not lukewarm to the gospel, they have just chosen to believe that certain things in it don't apply to them.

The first group that comes to mind here is the MCC - The Metropolitan Community Church (gay Christians.) This is a huge denomination that teaches that it is okay to be gay and Christian, maintaining that God created them gay (so it must be all right) rather than acknowledging that their homosexuality is merely a manifestation of the sin nature that we are all born with.

TO THE CHURCH IN THYATIRA—"I WILL GIVE UNTO EVERY ONE OF YOU ACCORDING TO HIS WORKS"

A.D. 96.

Revelation 2: 18-29.

“And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write,

‘These things says the Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and His feet like fine brass:

“I know your works, love, service, faith, and your patience; and as for your works, the last are more than the first.

“Nevertheless I have a few things against you, because you allow that woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach and seduce My servants to commit sexual immorality and eat things sacrificed to idols.

“And I gave her time to repent of her sexual immorality, and she did not repent.

“Indeed I will cast her into a sickbed, and those who commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they repent of their deeds.

“I will kill her children with death, and all the churches shall know that I am He who searches the minds and hearts. And I will give to each one of you according to your works.

“Now to you I say, and to the rest in Thyatira, as many as do not have this doctrine, who have not known the depths of Satan, as they say, I will put on you no other burden.

“But hold fast what you have till I come.

“And he who overcomes, and keeps My works until the end, to him I will give power over the nations —

‘He shall rule them with a rod of iron;

They shall be dashed to pieces like the potter's vessels’ —

“as I also have received from My Father; and I will give him the morning star.

Church of Thyatira - Revelation 2:18-29

Praise: I know your deeds, your love, your charity, faith and service. You are doing more of these things than you ever have!

Condemnation: While on the outside, you appear as a model church, you are rife with corruption and corrupt teachings, from deep within. You have committed adultery against me with your idol worship.

Advice to leaders: Repent now or I will spew you into the Tribulation.

Challenge to believers: To those who are faithful within, rejecting the false doctrines, hold fast till I come.

Application: The Lord references Jezebel in his condemnation to this church - referring to the woman who lured people away from Him with idolatry by focusing them on things other than Him.

Traits seen today include viewing Mary as the mediatrix between Man and God, the veneration of statues and images, grace being administered through humanly prescribed sacraments, church tradition held as equivalent in authority to the Bible, and the doctrine of confessing to priests as a means of maintaining one's salvation. The prime example of this is the Roman Catholic Church.

TO THE CHURCH IN SARDIS—"BE WATCHFUL: I WILL COME AS A THIEF"

A.D. 96.

Revelation 3: 1-6.

“And to the angel of the church in Sardis write,

‘These things says He who has the seven Spirits of God and the seven stars:

“I know your works, that you have a name that you are alive, but you are dead.

“Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die, for I have not found your works perfect before God.

“Remember therefore how you have received and heard; hold fast and repent. Therefore if you will not watch, I will come upon you as a thief, and you will not know what hour I will come upon you.

“You have a few names even in Sardis who have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with Me in white, for they are worthy.

“He who overcomes shall be clothed in white garments, and I will not blot out his name from the Book of Life; but I will confess his name before My Father and before His angels.

Church of Sardis - Revelation 3:1-6

Praise: I know your deeds - your name carries much recognition among men.

Condemnation: But now you are dead.

Advice to leaders: Remember your beginnings, return to them and repent. You are not paying attention to my Word and you need to wake up!

Challenge to believers: He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

Application: This is referring specifically to name brand denominations with long, well known histories that have fallen from truth and are seeking ecumenical unity without regard to the gospel. The suggestion the Lord is giving here is that these are the Reform churches—once very alive but now dead in their doctrines, filled with Sunday country club pew warmers.

A particular church is only as alive or dead as its local leadership.

TO THE CHURCH IN PHILADELPHIA—"I HAVE SET BEFORE THEE AN OPEN DOOR"

A.D. 96.

Revelation 3: 7-13.

“And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write,

‘These things says He who is holy, He who is true, “He who has the key of David, He who opens and no one shuts, and shuts and no one opens” :

“I know your works. See, I have set before you an open door, and no one can shut it; for you have a little strength, have kept My word, and have not denied My name.

“Indeed I will make those of the synagogue of Satan, who say they are Jews and are not, but lie—indeed I will make them come and worship before your feet, and to know that I have loved you.

“Because you have kept My command to persevere, I also will keep you from the hour of trial which shall come upon the whole world, to test those who dwell on the earth.

“Behold, I am coming quickly! Hold fast what you have, that no one may take your crown.

“He who overcomes, I will make him a pillar in the temple of My God, and he shall go out no more. I will write on him the name of My God and the name of the city of My God, the New Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from My God. And I will write on him My new name.

Church of Philadelphia - Revelation 3:7-13

Praise: You may not be the biggest group, but I know your works and your teachings. Even without strength or power, you have kept My Word and not compromised My name.

Condemnation: None!

Advice to leaders: I am coming quickly. Hold onto what you have.

Challenge to believers: Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, [which is] new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and [I will write upon him] my new name.

Application: This is written to those who are on fire for the Lord's return that have kept the winds of false doctrines out of their midst and maintained solid teachings. While everyone wants to think that they are in the church of Philadelphia - it is important to note, that there are true believers in each of the 7 churches. The Lord is merely commending the leadership of Philadelphia for their adherence to sound doctrine.

Ironically, the letter to the church of Philadelphia is used/abused by many churches to justify their exclusivity (no salvation outside of their organization) under what they perceive to be the "end times remnant church clause." For this reason, these churches are in reality the churches of Ephesus, discussed above.

TO THE CHURCH OF THE LAODICEANS—I STAND AT THE DOOR, AND KNOCK

A.D. 96.

Revelation 3: 14-22.

“And to the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write,

‘These things says the Amen, the Faithful and True Witness, the Beginning of the creation of God:

“I know your works, that you are neither cold nor hot. I could wish you were cold or hot.

“So then, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will vomit you out of My mouth.

“Because you say, ‘I am rich, have become wealthy, and have need of nothing’— and do not know that you are wretched, miserable, poor, blind, and naked — I counsel you to buy from Me gold refined in the fire, that you may be rich; and white garments, that you may be clothed, that the shame of your nakedness may not be revealed; and anoint your eyes with eye salve, that you may see.

“As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten. Therefore be zealous and repent.

“Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears My voice and opens the door, I will come in to him and dine with him, and he with Me.

“To him who overcomes I will grant to sit with Me on My throne, as I also overcame and sat down with My Father on His throne.

Church of Laodicea - Revelation 3:14-22

Praise: None!

Condemnation: You are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold. I wish you were one or the other but because you have no redeeming qualities whatsoever, I will spit you out of my mouth into the tribulation. You say that you are wealthy and in need of nothing, but what you don't realize is that you are truly wretched, miserable, poor, blind and naked.

Advice to leaders: You need to start concerning yourself with eternal riches and not earthly ones, humble yourself about your sins and open your eyes to My truth before it's too late.

Challenge to believers: To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne

Application: Unlike the other churches that have let doctrinal interpretations cloud the message of salvation, this group is neither hot nor cold to it - they simply avoid it all together. They teach of wealth and healing but not of salvation and repentance. Rather than instruct people on how to humble themselves to the Lord's will, they teach that He is to conform to our will.

Jesus said in John 18:36 that His kingdom is not of this world. In Matthew 6:19-20, He explains that we are to store up our riches in heaven and not on earth. All of this is seemingly lost on the church of Laodicea, whose complete focus is on the here and now. They flaunt their opulent lifestyles as proof of the Lord's earthly blessings.

They teach that the first step to health and wealth is to give "seed donations" to their ministries and then have the faith that the Lord will bless this gift and multiply it in return. This becomes a vicious cycle when those who are not healed or showered with wealth are told that it is because they lack the faith to give enough to these ministries, thus soliciting even more donations - all the while, using the Lord's name to increase their personal wealth.

"JOHN SEETH THE THRONE OF GOD IN HEAVEN—I AM ALPHA AND OMEGA"

A.D. 96.

Revelation 4: 1-2; 14: 13; 16: 15; 19: 9-10; 21: 5-8; 22: 6-21.

AFTER this I looked, and, behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which said, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be hereafter. And immediately I was in the Spirit: and, behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat on the throne.

And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me,

Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea,

Saith the Spirit,

That they may rest from their labors: and their works do follow them.

And I heard a great voice saying,

Behold, I come as a thief.

Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame.

And he saith unto me,

Write, Blessed are they which are called unto the marriage supper of the Lamb.

And he saith unto me,

These are the true sayings of God.

And I, John, fell at his feet to worship him. And he said unto me,

See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus: worship God: for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.

And he that sat upon the throne said,

Behold, I make all things new.

And he said unto me,

Write: for these words are true and faithful.

And he said unto me,

It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life freely.

He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son. But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death.

And he said unto me,

These sayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets sent his angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be done.

Behold, I come quickly: blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book.

And I, John, saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things.

Then saith he unto me,

See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God.

And he saith unto me,

Seal not the sayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be.

I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. For without are dogs, and sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth and maketh a lie.

I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star.

And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. And if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

He which testifieth these things saith,

Surely I come quickly. Amen.

Even so, come, Lord Jesus.
The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

THREE VIEWS OF THE INTERPRETATION OF REVELATION 2—3[244]
The Prophetical View
Statement: The seven churches addressed were not in existence in the first century but will come into being in the day of the Lord.[245]
Arguments pro		Responses
Revelation 1:19 stresses the unity of the book. The whole book is a revelation of things yet future.		This verse may indicate a two or three-fold division of the contents only some of which may be prophetical. Or chapters 2 and 3 are prophetic of the Church Age.
The connection of angels with these churches indicates that what is in view is Israel in the day of the Lord rather than the church. Elsewhere in Scripture, God associated angels with Israel (e.g., Dan. 10:21).		God also associated angels with churches in the New Testament (e.g., 1 Cor. 11:10). Or these angels may be human messengers.
God did not call church leaders angels in the New Testament.		John used this title in Revelation to emphasize the divine origin of these seven letters.
Tertullian (A.D. 145-220) and Epiphanius (ca. A.D. 367) wrote that churches did not exist in all the seven towns addressed when John wrote Revelation.		These writers were combating unorthodox views of the Apocalypse in their writings. They were not denying the existence of churches in these towns then.
The Historical View
Statement: The seven churches addressed existed in the first century, and what characterized each of them has marked other local churches in various locations throughout church history.[246]
Arguments pro		Responses
This is the way we interpret the other New Testament epistles.		God did not identify the other New Testament epistles as prophetic as He did these (1:19).
The Book of Revelation does not specifically identify the messages to the seven churches as prophetic.		That they are prophetic is clear from 1:19 and the contents of chapters 2 and 3. Moreover history has shown they were prophetic.

The Historico-Prophetical View
Statement: The seven churches addressed were in existence in the first century, and what characterized each of them has marked other local churches in various locations throughout church history. However they also reveal the history of the church from the time John wrote to the Rapture in seven successive periods.[247]
Arguments pro		Responses
There is a correspondence between seven successive periods of church history and these seven letters.		The correspondence is arbitrary and contrived as is clear from the differences in the limits of each period as expounded by various advocates of this view.
God said the whole of Revelation is prophetic (1:19), and to exclude chapters 2 and 3 seems unwarranted.		Revelation 1:19 means that the things "hereafter" are prophetic, and those things begin in 4:1.
The Rapture could not be imminent if chapters 2 and 3 reveal the history of the church from the first century to the twenty-first or beyond.		Chapters 2 and 3 do not predict that the church would pass through these stages before the Rapture. It is only by looking back that we can see they were prophetic.
This pattern of church history rests on a selective reading of history.		The correspondence is legitimate because there is adequate historical evidence to support this view.
These prophetic parallels hold true only for western Christianity.		Western Christianity has been the major leading branch of the church throughout history.

The relationship in time, of the bowl judgments to the trumpet judgments, has been a matter of disagreement among futurist commentators. On the one hand, there are some similarities between them, as a side by side comparison reveals.[634] However, the differences make it most difficult to conclude that they are identical judgments.[635]

Epiloque to the Book: 22:6-21

In this final section of the book, John reported concluding information and instructions that God gave him. He did this in order to comfort and caution his readers, and to affirm the authority of this book.

> "The concluding paragraphs of the Revelation sum up and press home on the reader's conscience the foremost practical lessons of the book."[923]

This section consists of verbal exchanges between an angel and John, and between Jesus and John. Three emphases mark this epilogue.[924] First, this prophecy is genuine (vv. 6-7, 8-9, 16, 18-19). Second, Jesus will return imminently (vv. 6-7, 10, 12, 20). Third, the unfit should beware, and the faithful should take courage (vv. 11-12, 15, 17-19). The whole epilogue is very similar to the first chapter in many ways.

Origin of the prophecy: God and Jesus	1:1	22:6
Subject of the prophecy: coming events	1:1	22:6
Mediator of the prophecy: an angel	1:1	22:6, 8, 16
Writer of the prophecy: John	1:1, 4, 9	22:8
Genuineness of the prophecy: true prophecy	1:3	22:6, 7, 9, 10, 18-19
Vehicle of the prophecy: a prophet	1:1, 9-11	22:8, 9, 10
Addressees of the prophecy: bond-servants	1:1	22:6
Destination of the prophecy: churches	1:3, 11	22:16, 18
Blessing of the prophecy: for obedience	1:3	22:7, 12, 14
Warning of the prophecy: for unfaithfulness	1:7	22:11, 12, 18-19
Center of the prophecy: Christ	1:2, 5, 9	22:16, 18, 20
God of the prophecy: Alpha and Omega	1:17	22:13
Chief character of the prophecy: God	1:5, 7	22:12, 13, 16
Hope of the prophecy: soon return	1:3, 7	22:7, 10, 12, 20

You're probably familiar with the eight Beatitudes or blessings that Jesus gave in the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:3-10) or at least you've probably heard about them. But did you know there are seven Beatitudes in the book of Revelation?

The first beatitude

The first one is my favorite because it's such an easy one to receive. All you need to do receive this blessing is to either read or hear the book of Revelation. Even if you don't understand all of it the first time through, don't worry. You'll still receive the blessing.

Blessed is he who reads and those who hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written in it; for the time is near.
Revelation 1:3

The six remaining Beatitudes are blessings promised to those who remain right with God until Christ returns for his church.

The second beatitude

This blessing is for those who are saved before they die.

Then I heard a voice from heaven saying to me, "Write: 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now on.'"
"Yes," says the Spirit, "that they may rest from their labors, and their works follow them."
Revelation 14:13

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

The term "die in Christ" or "*die in the L*ord" was also used by the apostle Paul in Romans 6:7-8. It means they received salvation from the Lord before they died. This certainly is better than the alternative of dying in your sin.

This Beatitude also reminds us that, unlike our earthly possessions, our good works follow us into eternity, where neither moth nor rust destroys (Matthew 6:20).

The third beatitude

This blessing also serves as a warning because it tells us that Jesus will come at a time that no one expects (like a thief). This blessing is promised to those who remain ready until Jesus comes for His church. Otherwise, if we're unprepared for His return, we will walk in shame because we'll have missed the rapture.

[Jesus said]
"Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is he who stays awake and who keeps his clothes [that is, stays spiritually ready for the Lord's return], so that he will not be naked—spiritually unprepared—and men will not see his shame."
Revelation 16:15

This blessing also reminds me of the parable of the wise and foolish virgins in Matthew 25:1-13 which is also a warning to stay alert for the Lord's return.

The fourth beatitude

The fourth blessing is for those who became members of God's kingdom before the foundation of Christ's church. It can't refer to Christ's church because the bride does not need to be invited to the marriage supper, which is in her honor.

Then he said to me, "Write: 'Blessed are those who are called to the marriage supper of the Lamb!'" And he said to me, "These are the true sayings of God."
Revelation 19:9

These guests represent the Old Testament believers such as the Old Testament prophets of God and everyone mentioned in Hebrews 11. I believe that John the Baptist will also be among the guests as he died as a believer before the foundation of the church.

The fifth beatitude

This blessing is for those who are in the Lord when Jesus returns for His church. The first resurrection refers to those who died in Christ before the rapture and are resurrected from the dead (1 Thessalonians 4:16). These blessed saints will be taken to heaven along with the believers who are still alive when the rapture of the church occurs. Together they will rule the Earth with Jesus for a thousand years following the seven year tribulation.

Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. The second death has no power over them, but they will be priests of God and of Christ and will reign with him for a thousand years.
Revelation 20:6

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

The second death is an eternal separation from God and an eternity in the lake of fire (hell) which is what unbelievers will be faced with. But praise God, the second death has no power over those who are in Christ Jesus.

The sixth beatitude

This one is pretty straight forward and is closely related to the first beatitude.

[Jesus said]
"Behold, I am coming quickly! Blessed is he who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book."
Revelation22:7

Keeping the words of the prophecy of Revelation includes things like refusing to take the mark of the beast which is something that many people will do who don't know that the book of Revelation specifically warns against it. Of course, to keep the words of the prophecy, you have to know the prophecy, which means that you have to read it or hear it. I've read it many times and if the Lord tarries, I'll read it many more times.

The seventh beatitude

This blessing is for those who are obedient to the Lord's commandments. These blessed servants of Christ will be rewarded with eternal life and the right to enter the Lord's city, which is the New Jerusalem.

Blessed are those who do His commandments, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city.
Revelation 22:14

For those of you who are in the Lord, I pray that these seven beatitudes motivate you to read or hear the book of Revelation, to stay ready for the Lord's return, and to remain obedient to the words of the prophecy. If you haven't already accepted Jesus Christ as your Lord and Savior, I pray that you will do so right now so you can receive these blessings. Believe me, it beats the alternative.

God bless,
Daniel

One Solitary Life

He was born in an obscure village, the son of a peasant woman.

He grew up in another village, where he worked in a carpenter's shop until he was thirty. Then for three years he became a wandering preacher.

He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never had a family or owned a house. He didn't go to college. He never visited a big city. He never travelled two hundred miles from the place where he was born. He did none of those things one usually associates with greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

He was only thirty-three when the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. He was turned over to his enemies and went through a mockery of a trial. He was executed by the state. While he was dying, his executioners gambled for his clothing, the only property he had on earth. When he was dead he was laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Twenty one centuries have come and gone, and today he is the central figure of the human race and the leader of mankind's progress. All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed, all the parliaments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man on this earth as much as that One Solitary Life.

Harmony of the Four Gospels

Comparison of the Four Gospels

QUOTE FROM SO4J-TV"S PASTOR: JOHN MACARTHUR on the FOUR GOSPELS:
"The Holy Spirit gave us four gospels and, specifically, three of them are synoptic (from a Greek word meaning to share a common point of view) so that the truth concerning our Lord and Savior might be established on the basis of two or three witnesses (cf. Deut. 19:15; Matt. 18:16; 2 Cor. 13:1). Because each writer emphasized different themes from His life, the four historical testimonies provide a powerful and profound composite picture of the Son of God and Son of Man.

MATTHEW - wrote primarily to a Jewish audience, presenting Jesus of Nazareth as Israel's long-awaited Messiah and rightful King. His genealogy, unlike Luke's focuses on Jesus' royal descent from Israel's greatest King, David. Interspersed throughout Matthew are OT quotes presenting various aspects of Jesus' life and ministry as the fulfillment of OT messianic prophecy. Matthew alone uses the phrase "kingdom of heaven," avoiding the parallel phrase "kingdom of God" because of the unbiblical connotations it had in first-century Jewish thought. Matthew wrote his gospel, then, to strengthen the faith of Jewish Christians, and it provides a useful apologetic tool for Jewish evangelism.*

MARK - targeted a Gentile audience, especially a Roman one. Mark is the gospel of action; the frequent use of "immediately" and "then" keeps his narrative moving rapidly along. Jesus appears in Mark as the Servant (cf. Mark 10:45) who came to suffer for the sins of many. Mark's fast-paced approach would especially appeal to the practical, action-oriented Romans.*

LUKE - addressed a broader Gentile audience. As an educated Greek, Luke wrote using the most sophisticated literary Greek of any NT writer. He was a careful researcher (Luke 1:1–4) and an accurate historian. Luke portrays Jesus as the Son of Man (a title appearing 26 times), the answer to the needs and hopes of the human race, who came to seek and save lost sinners (Luke 9:56; 19:10).*

JOHN - the last gospel written, emphasizes the deity of Jesus Christ (e.g., 5:18; 8:58; 10:30–33; 14:9). John wrote to strengthen the faith of believers and to appeal to unbelievers to come to faith in Christ.*

Taken together, the 4 gospels weave a complete portrait of the God-Man, Jesus of Nazareth. In Him were blended perfect humanity and deity, making Him the only sacrifice for the sins of the world, and the worthy Lord of those who believe. These four are in perfect harmony with each other because the infallible Holy Spirit is the one divine author who inspired and guided the four writers into all truth (John 16:13). Each is an inerrant record that can be harmonized with the others down to the smallest details."

Harmony of the Four Gospels (The Fourfold Gospel)

The Fourfold Gospel by J. W. McGarvey and Philip Y. Pendleton, was published in book form in 1914 by Standard Publishing, Cincinnati; it was first issued quarterly in 1905 as Standard Bible Commentary. The expanded electronic version has been transcribed from a copy of the 1914 edition. The electronic text was released into the public domain in 1993 as note files for the Online Bible. This version corrected typographical mistakes of the original and updated the reference system. The editor has continued the editorial process in this edition.

The Fourfold Gospel is an incomparable tool for the study of the life of Christ. The texts of the four Gospels have been woven together. The reader is alerted to the change from one Gospel narrative to another by parenthetical (a) (b) (c) or (d), representing Matthew, Mark, Luke and John respectively. The editor has updated to some extent the grammar and spellings of the original work. Superfluous comments or outdated notes have been eliminated. Occasionally the editor has inserted his own comment on a verse and so indicated by the parenthetical insertion of (JES). The Scripture version is a modernized American Standard Version, i.e., the old English has been modernized. The reader should be aware that no two scholars are in total agreement as to the chronological order of certain incidents in the life of Christ. The lengthy discourses of Jesus have been eliminated from this student version because class assignments will require students to research these discourses on their own.

Differences in the Gospels, A Closer Look (from: HCSB Study Bible, Dr. Robert Stein) http://www.christianitytoday.com/edstetzer/2012/march/differences-in-gospels-closer-look.html

Excerpt:

Serious readers of the Gospels notice various differences between them. One difference involves geographical arrangement. In the Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke), Jesus visits Jerusalem only once during His entire ministry. For instance, all of the events in Mark 1:1-11:10 take place either in Galilee (1:1-8:21) or on the way to Jerusalem (8:22-11:10). Only from 11:11 forward is Jesus recorded as entering Jerusalem.

The Gospel of John takes a different approach. John records Jesus visiting Jerusalem several times throughout His ministry (2:13-4:45; 5:1-47; 7:1-10:40; and 12:12-20:31), including an early temple cleansing (John 2:13-22). The Synoptics say nothing about an early temple cleansing, and John in turn says nothing about the later cleansing that the Synoptics recount (Mt 21:12-13; Mk 11:15-18; Lk 19:45- 48). It seems the authors chose different ways of using geography as a tool for arranging their accounts of Jesus' life.

Mark, whose Gospel likely predated and influenced Matthew and Luke, chose not to discuss any of Jesus' doings in Jerusalem until the climactic events beginning in 11:11. This literary approach builds a steady tension that finally explodes with Jesus' crucifixion in the sacred city. John, writing years after the Synoptics, took a different approach, sprinkling Jerusalem throughout his account.

Another literary consideration that helps account for differences among the Gospels is how the authors chose to group Jesus' teachings. Matthew is organized around alternating blocks of Stories of Jesus and Teachings of Jesus. Here is the arrangement: chapters 1-4 (S); 5-7 (T); 8-9 (S); 10 (T); 11-12 (S); 13 (T); 14-17 (S); 18 (T); 19-22 (S); 23-25 (T); 26-28 (S). Luke, on the other hand, places the teachings of Jesus in two large sections: 6:20-8:3; and 9:51-18:14. Different approaches such as this explain why the Gospel authors often place sayings of Jesus in different contexts, as for instance when Matthew records the Lord's Prayer early in Jesus' ministry (6:9-13) while Luke places it later (11:1-4).

The Gospel writers arranged much of their material on topical and logical grounds rather than chronological. The earliest reference to any Gospel was made by Papias, a church father who in the first decade of the second century stated that Mark wrote accurately but not in chronological order the traditions he learned from Peter. Thus early readers noticed the differences between the Gospels, understood some of the basic causes of the differences, and did not regard them as problematic.

Another reason for differences involves the literary style of individual evangelists. In Matthew 8:5-13 and Luke 7:1-10 we have two accounts of Jesus healing a centurion's servant. In Luke the conversation takes place between Jesus and Jewish elders who speak on behalf of the centurion. In Matthew the conversation is directly between Jesus and the centurion. There is no conflict in these accounts when we realize that Matthew has abbreviated the story (103 words compared to 186 words in Luke). Matthew omitted material unessential to the story, and the elders (serving as go-betweens) are the least important element in the story. Thus, just as modern-day journalists report on meetings between heads of state without mentioning the go-betweens, Matthew makes no mention of the elders.

Furthermore, the evangelists understood themselves to be inspired interpreters, not mere stenographers of Jesus' acts and teachings. They felt free to clarify and add explanatory comments to the traditions they were recording. For example, whereas Matthew in 7:11 records Jesus as saying God the Father gives "good things" to those who ask, Luke has Jesus saying God gives "the Holy Spirit." In this case, Luke has done some interpretive extension: of all the good things God gives, the Holy Spirit is the best of them. Other examples of inspired editorial work include:

The Baptism of Jesus

• In Matthew 3:17 the voice from heaven states, "This is My beloved Son."

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

• In Mark 1:11 and Luke 3:22 the voice states, "You are My beloved Son."

• ExplanationExplanationExplanationExplanation: In Mark and Luke, God's voice addresses Jesus. Matthew shifts the audience to the bystanders in order to make clear to his readers that God would have them know that Jesus is His Son. The overall meaning is unchanged.

The Beatitudes

• In Matthew 5:3 the first beatitude reads, "The poor in spirit are blessed . . ."

• Luke 6:20 has, "You who are poor are blessed . . ."

• : Matthew gives a "thought for thought" rather than "word for word" translation of the original. He adds "in spirit" to help his readers understand that in this context "poor" refers to spiritual humility. A similar usage of "poor" occurs in Psalm 86:1, where King David (who was financially wealthy) speaks of being "poor and needy."

Hour of the Crucifixion

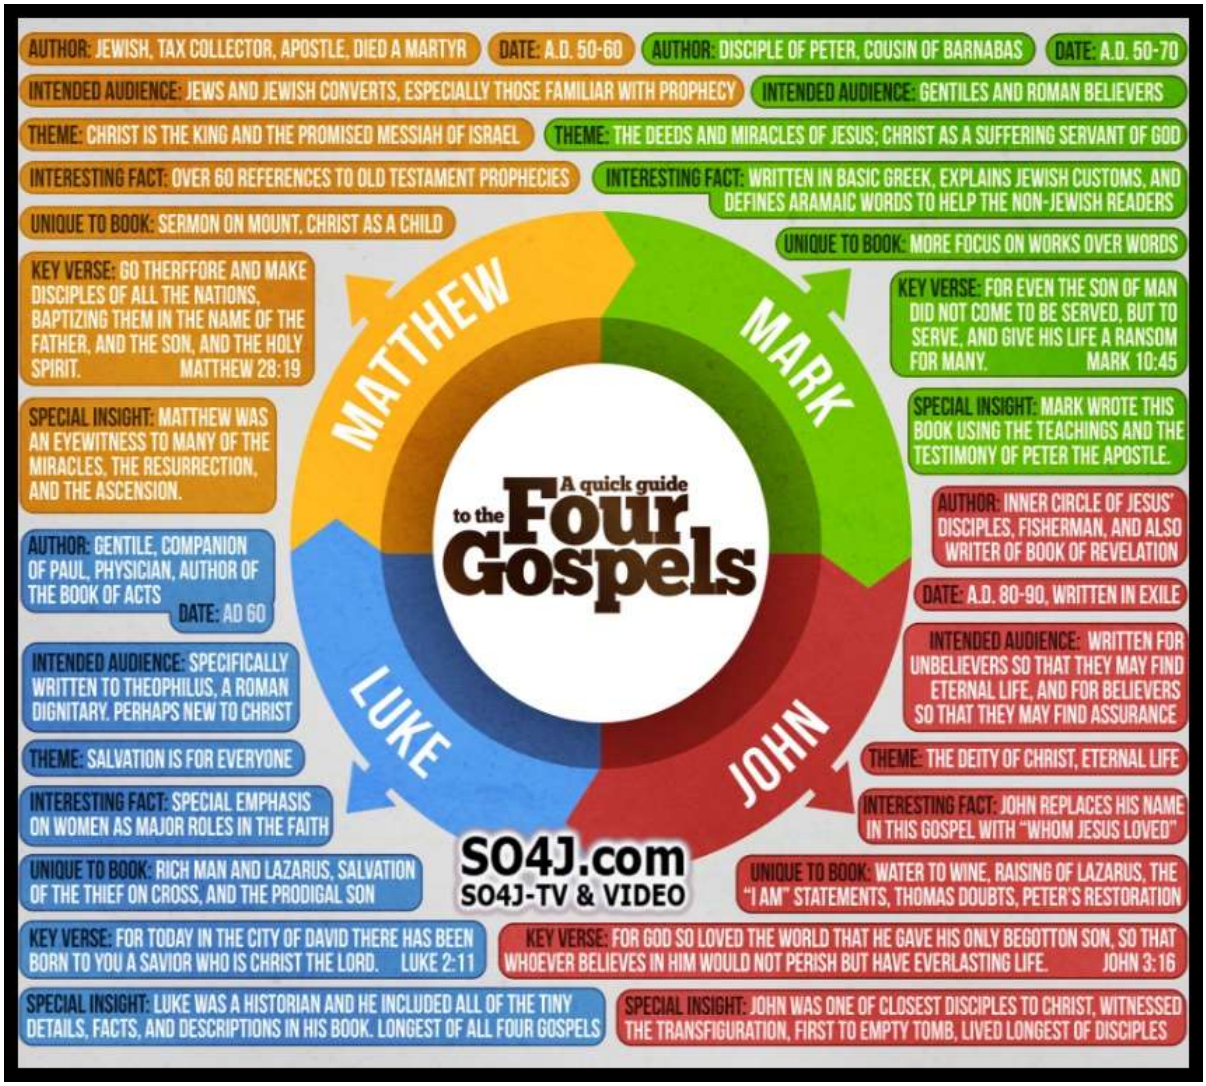
• In Mark 15:25 Jesus is crucified at "nine in the morning" (the third hour).

• In John 19:14 Jesus is crucified at "about six in the morning."

• : There are twenty-three time designations in the New Testament referring to a particular hour. Twenty of them refer to the third, sixth, or ninth hour. Only three designate other hours (the seventh, tenth, and eleventh). In an era when timekeeping was imprecise, a mid-morning crucifixion (occurring at, say, 10:30 a.m.) could very reasonably have been referred to as taking place at either the third or sixth hours since it fell between these times.

Peter's Denial of Christ

• Mark tells his readers of Peter's denial in Mk 14:53-54 and 14:66-72. Wedged between this two-part account is the story of Jesus' trial.



• Luke completes the entire account of Peter's denial before telling of Jesus' trial.

• : Rather than a chronological discrepancy, these are two different ways of telling two separate stories. Mark follows one of his favored stylistic techniques and "sandwiches" Jesus' trial between the two halves of the story of Peter's denial. Luke chooses to treat them separately.

We have avoided such terms as "discrepancy" and "contradiction" when discussing differences among the Gospels. When we seek to understand what the evangelists are doing as interpreters of Jesus' life, we often find that their different approaches help clarify and draw out implications from Jesus' acts and teachings. This often entails sharing the stories of Jesus' life in a topical or logical order, not chronological. In this light, alleged "discrepancies" and "contradictions" are seen as mere "differences."

New Testament Timeline

5 B.C. *	Jesus is born in Bethlehem.
4 B.C.	Jesus' family flees to Egypt to escape from Herod's plan to kill Jesus (Matt 2:13-18); Herod dies; Judas (of Sepphoris) and others rebel, requiring the Syrian Governor Varus to intervene throughout Palestine; Sepphoris, a city four miles from Nazareth, is destroyed by Roman soldiers; Judea, Samaria, and Idumea are given to Herod's son, Archelaus; Galilee and Perea are given to his son Antipas; Jesus' family, after returning from Egypt, resides in Nazareth (Matt 2:19-23), a small village in southern Galilee.
A.D. 6	Archelaus is exiled for incompetence; Judea becomes a Roman province; Judas the Galilean (of Gamla) leads a revolt against the tax census; the governor of Syria, Quirinius (A.D. 6-7), appoints Annas high priest (6-15).
8*	Jesus (age 12) interacts with the teachers in the temple (Luke 2:41-50).
8*-28/30	Jesus works as a carpenter in Nazareth (Matt 13:55; Mark 6:3) and probably in neighboring villages and Sepphoris, which was being rebuilt.
28-29*	John the Baptist begins his ministry around the Jordan River (John 1:19).
28-30*	Jesus begins his ministry in Judea, but soon focuses his efforts in Galilee. In Jerusalem, Pharisees (like Gamaliel) train disciples (like Paul) in their tradition. They send a delegation to Galilee, but the delegation rejects Jesus' teaching. In Alexandria, Philo (20 B.C. - A.D. 50) attempts to unify Greek philosophy with Hebrew Scripture.
33 (or 30)	Jesus returns to Judea, is crucified, and resurrected. James the brother of Jesus becomes a believer after witnessing the resurrected Jesus (1 Cor 15:7; Acts 12:17). Jesus ascends to the Father's right hand (Acts 1). Jesus' first followers receive the Holy Spirit at Pentecost and begin to proclaim the gospel (Acts 2).
33/34*	Paul witnesses the resurrected Lord the on the way to Damascus and is commissioned as an apostle to the nations (Acts 9; Gal 1:15-16).
34-37	Paul ministers in Damascus and Arabia (Acts 9:19-22; 26:20; Gal 1:16-18).

39	Antipas is exiled.
40-45*	James writes his letter to believers outside Palestine (cf. James 1:1).

42-44	Paul receives his “thorn in the flesh” (2 Cor 12:7).
44	Peter leaves Jerusalem; Agrippa is killed by an “angel of the Lord” (Acts 12:23).
44-46	Theudas persuades many Jews to sell their possessions and follow him into the wilderness where he claimed he would miraculously divide the Jordan River; Roman procurator Fadus dispatches his cavalry and beheads the would-be messiah.
44-47*	Paul's Second Visit to Jerusalem; time of famine (Acts 11:27-30; Gal 2:1-10).
46-47	Paul's First Missionary Journey (with Barnabas) from Antioch to Cyprus, Antioch in Pisidia, Iconium, and Lystra (Acts 13:4-14:26).
46-48	Roman procurator Tiberius Alexander crucifies two sons (Jacob and Simon) of Judas the Galilean.
48*	Paul writes Galatians, perhaps from Antioch (cf. Acts 14:26-28).
48-49*	Paul and Peter return to Jerusalem for the Apostolic Council, which, with the assistance of James, frees Gentile believers from the requirement of circumcision in opposition to Pharisaic believers (Acts 15:1-29); Paul and Barnabas return to Antioch (Acts 15:30) but split over a dispute about John Mark (Acts 15:36-40).
48/49-51*	Paul's Second Missionary Journey (with Silas) from Antioch to Syria, Cilicia, southern Galatia, Macedonia, notably Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea; and then on to Achaia, notably Athens and Corinth (Acts 15:36-18:22).

49-51*	Paul writes 1-2 Thessalonians from Corinth (Acts 18:1, 11; also cf. Acts 18:5 with 1 Thess 1:8).
51	Paul appears before Gallio, proconsul of Achaia (Acts 18:12-17).
50-54*	Peter comes to Rome.

Major Differences Between John and the Synoptic Gospels

https://bible.org/seriespage/2-major-differences-between-john-and-synoptic-gospels

Excerpt:

Introduction: The Relationship of John's Gospel to the Synoptics (Matthew, Mark, Luke).

Two basic positions on the relationship of John's Gospel to the Synoptics are possible:

- If John knew of the synoptics, then he wrote to supplement them. (To say John knew of one or more of the synoptics is not to say, however, that he wrote his gospel with copies of Matthew, Mark, and/or Luke in front of him. John may have been aware of the existence of other written accounts of Jesus' life and ministry without actually having seen them.)
- If John's Gospel is totally independent from the synoptics, he had enough material to choose from that much of it does not overlap with the synoptics (cf. Jn 20:30 and 21:25). This point is strengthened considerably if one accepts the Fourth Gospel's claim to reflect eyewitness testimony about the life and ministry of Jesus (John 21:23-24).

Major Differences:

1. Omission by John of material found in the synoptics.

John's Gospel omits a large amount of material found in the synoptic Gospels, including some surprisingly important episodes: the temptation of Jesus, Jesus' transfiguration, and the institution of the Lord's supper are not mentioned by John. John mentions no examples of Jesus casting out demons. The sermon on the mount and the Lord's prayer are not found in the Fourth Gospel. There are no narrative parables in John's Gospel (most scholars do not regard John 15:1-8 ["the Vine and the Branches"] as a parable in the strict sense).

2. Inclusion by John of material not found in the synoptics.

John also includes a considerable amount of material not found in the synoptics. All the material in John 2—4, Jesus' early Galilean ministry, is not found in the synoptics. Prior visits of Jesus to Jerusalem before the passion week are mentioned in John but not found in the synoptics. The seventh sign-miracle, the resurrection of Lazarus (John 11) is not mentioned in the synoptics. The extended Farewell Discourse (John 13—17) is not found in the synoptic Gospels.

3. Different length of Jesus' public ministry.

According to John, Jesus' public ministry extended over a period of at least three and possibly four years. During this time Jesus goes several times from Galilee to Jerusalem. The synoptics appear to describe only one journey of Jesus to Jerusalem (the final one), with most of Jesus' ministry taking place within one year.

4. 'High' Christology as opposed to the synoptics.

The Prologue to John's Gospel (1:1-18) presents Jesus as the Lovgo" become flesh (1:14). John begins his Gospel with an affirmation of Jesus' preexistence and full deity, which climaxes in John 20:28 with Thomas' confession "My Lord and my God!" The non-predicated ejgw eijmi sayings in the Fourth Gospel as allusions to Exod 3:14 also point to Jesus' deity (John 8:24, 28, 58). Compare Mark who begins his Gospel with Jesus' baptism and Matthew and Luke who begin theirs with Jesus' birth. John begins with eternity past ("In the beginning the Word already was…").

5. Literary Point of View: John versus the synoptics.

The synoptics are written from a third person point of view, describing the events as if the authors had personally observed all of them and were reporting what they saw at the time. Thus they are basically descriptive in their approach. John's Gospel, on the other hand, although also written from a third person point of view, is more reflective, clearly later than the events he describes. The author of the Fourth Gospel very carefully separates himself from the events he describes (cf. the role of the Beloved Disciple in the Fourth Gospel). However clear it is that he was an eyewitness of the life of Jesus, it is no less clear that he looks back upon it from a temporal distance. While we see the events through his eyes, we are carefully guided to see the events of Jesus' life not as John saw them when they happened but as he now sees them. We understand more of the significance of the events described from the position the writer now holds than an eyewitness could have understood at the time the events took place. In this sense John's Gospel is much more reflective.

There are numerous passages in John's Gospel which could serve as an example of this later perspective. Four will serve as examples:

(a) John 2:17—ejmnhvsqhsan oiJ maqhtaiV aujtou' o{ti gegrammevnon ejstivn…

(b) John 2:22—o{te ou hjgevrqh ejk nekrw'n…

(c) John 12:16—tau'ta oujk e[gnwsan aujtou' oiJ maqhtaiV toV prw'ton…

(d) John 20:9—oujdevpw gaVr h[/deisan thVn grafhVn…

In each of these passages it may be easily seen that John has adopted the "post-resurrection" point of view. He looks back on the events and emphasizes the inability of the apostles to understand the things that were happening in their true perspective at the time they occurred. It is only possible for us to understand these things when we consider the resurrection of Jesus and its significance in God's plan.

6. Extended dialogues or discourses rather than proverbial sayings.

John presents his material in the form of extended dialogues or discourses rather than the 'proverbial' or 'pithy' sayings found often in the synoptics: John 3 (with Nicodemus); John 4 (with the Samaritan woman); John 6 (the Bread of Life Discourse); John 13—17 (the Farewell Discourse with the disciples). As L. Goppelt observed:

The Gospel of John passed on the words of Jesus predominantly in another genre than the synoptics; it did not do so in sayings, parables, and controversy dialogues, but in connected or dialogical discourses.[25]

7. Use of symbolism and double meaning.

John makes more frequent use of these literary techniques than the synoptics. Examples: John 2:25 (temple/body); John 7:37-38 (water/Spirit); John 12:32 (lifted up/exalted).

Much of this symbolism takes the form of dualistic antitheses: light/darkness (1:4; 3:19; 8:12; 11:9; 12:35, 46); truth/falsehood (8:44); life/death (5:24; 11:25); above/below (8:23); freedom/slavery (8:33, 36). Much of this antithetical dualism is also found in the Qumran (Dead Sea Scrolls) texts. See J. H. Charlesworth, "A Critical Comparison of the Dualism in 1QS 3:13-4:26 and the 'Dualism' Contained in the Gospel of John", in John and the Dead Sea Scrolls, ed. J. H. Charlesworth (New York: Crossroad, 1990).

8. Use of the "misunderstood statement."

John makes frequent use of the "misunderstood statement" as a literary technique. Jesus says something to someone which is misunderstood, thus giving Jesus a further opportunity to clarify what he really meant. Examples: John 3 (Nicodemus' misunderstanding of the new birth as a second physical birth; John 4 (the Samaritan woman's misunderstanding of the living water as drinkable water).

9.* Ipsissima verba versus ipsissima vox.

The long discourses in John's Gospel do not necessarily represent Jesus' exact words (ipsissima verba) as long as they give a faithful summary and interpretive paraphrase (ipsissima vox) of what he actually said. Jesus' teaching in the Fourth Gospel may be couched in distinctively Johannine style. On the other hand, some of John's style may have been either directly or indirectly inspired by Jesus' own manner of speaking: in Mt 11:25-27 + Lk 10:21-22 Jesus uses language almost identical to that which characterizes his speeches in John's Gospel— "all things have been given to me by my Father, and no one knows the Son except the Father, nor the Father except the Son and the one to whom the Son wishes to reveal him."

10. "Kingdom of God" versus "eternal life."

The emphasis on the Kingdom of God found in the synoptics is largely missing in John (the phrase basileiva tou' qeou' occurs only twice in John's Gospel (3:3, 5) and the noun basileiva only three times (all in 18:36). Instead we find John's emphasis on 'eternal life' as a present reality (John 5:24 etc.). The emphasis on 'eternal life' in John's Gospel is closer to the letters of Paul than to the synoptic gospels, as the following chart shows:

A Comparison of the Usage of 'Life' and 'Kingdom' in John and in the Synoptics

11. Realized eschatology in the Gospel of John.

The problem of so-called 'realized' eschatology in the Gospel of John (the term was popularized by C. H. Dodd) can be seen in microcosm in John 5:20b-30. On the one hand there are statements that speak of the parousia (second advent) as a future event in the traditional sense: "…for an hour is coming when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come forth, those who have done good to a resurrection of life, and those who have done evil to a resurrection of judgment" (John 5:28-29 NASB). Alongside these on the other hand are statements that seem to speak of the full realization for believers of salvation in the present (5:20-27): "Truly, truly, I say to you he who hears my word and believes him who sent me, has eternal life; he does not come into judgment, but has passed from death to life" (John 5:24 NASB). There is an obvious tension between these statements that must be reconciled; judgment cannot be both present and future at the same time. Related to John's emphasis on 'eternal life' as a present reality is the stress on judgment as realized in a person's response to Jesus (John 3:19). In addition John's Gospel does not emphasize the second advent of Christ as a future eschatological event (John 14:3 is about the only clear reference).

12. Differences in grammatical style from the synoptic gospels.

The Gospel of John is written in a style of Greek quite different from the synoptics. The range of vocabulary is smaller. There is frequent parataxis (use of coordinate clauses rather than subordinate clauses). Asyndeton frequently occurs. Related to paragraph (7) above, there is little difference between the words that are ascribed to Jesus and the words of the Evangelist. Example: try to determine in John 3:1-21 where the words of Jesus to Nicodemus end and the interpretive comments of the Evangelist begin.

Examining the Four Gospels

https://www.christiancourier.com/articles/273-examining-the-four-gospels

Excerpt:

When one opens the New Testament, he is introduced to four narratives which are concerned with the activity and teaching of Jesus of Nazareth. These records are Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

Why are there four accounts that cover so much of the same material? Are the records harmonious or do they conflict?

When Jesus was crucified, a superscription was placed above his head proclaiming, “This is Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews.” It was written in three tongues—Hebrew, Latin, and Greek. These languages represented the three dominate cultures of the Mediterranean world when the New Testament was produced.

It is not without significance that there is a Gospel record designed for each of these societal elements. Matthew was directed to the Hebrews, Mark was written for the Romans, and Luke was designed to address the Greeks. John’s narrative, however, was cosmopolitan in its thrust. Each of these works deserves careful reflection.

The Gospel of Matthew

Though the book does not bear his name, early Christian tradition is unanimous in affirming that Matthew was the inspired author of the first Gospel account.

Matthew Levi was a Jew who had been called from his position as a tax collector to become an apostle of Jesus Christ (Matt. 9:9). There are indications within the book that the author was very familiar with finances. There are more references to money in this account than in the other three Gospel records. The selection of Matthew was a courageous move on the Lord’s part, for tax collectors were a despised class.

The purpose of the Gospel of Matthew is twofold: First, it is an apologetic, i.e., a defense of the proposition that Jesus is the promised Messiah of Old Testament prophecy. It was penned especially to convince the Jews of this fact.

It is no surprise, therefore, that this divine writer relied so heavily on Old Testament Scripture to establish his case. Matthew has about fifty direct quotations from the Old Testament; in addition there are some seventy-five allusions to Old Testament events. This would constitute powerful evidence to the Hebrew people, who viewed the Old Testament as a revelation from God.

It also would be important to the Jews to learn that the Messiah was about to initiate his reign, and so Matthew called attention to that kingdom in more than thirty-five passages. He likewise identified Jesus as the promised “son of David” (nine times).

Second, the book was doubtless intended as a message of encouragement to Jewish Christians. While it is true that the Jews had crucified their own Messiah, there was still hope for the seed of Abraham. Whereas the physical nation would have to pay a horrible price for its rebellion, i.e., the destruction of Jerusalem, nevertheless a new Israel was in the making—the church (cf. Matt. 21:43; Rom. 2:28, 29)—and every Hebrew who obeyed Christ could be a part of that fresh system (Gal. 3:26-29).

While Matthew carefully discusses the miraculous works of Christ (he lists twenty miracles—three of which are peculiar to his book), he gives a predominate interest to the Master’s words. He records a number of the Savior’s major speeches (e.g., the Sermon on the Mount in chapters five through severn and the Olivet Discourse in chapter twenty-four).

Even though Matthew’s thrust is decidedly Jewish, he is also aware of the fact that the Gentiles have an appointed place in the kingdom of God. Accordingly, he attempts to condition Hebrew thinking with this concept. He alludes to those who will come from afar to sit with the patriarchs in the kingdom of heaven (Matt. 8:11), and he plainly declares that the Gentiles have hope in the name of Christ (Matt. 12:21). And Matthew’s account of the Great Commission is universal in its scope (Matt. 28:18ff).

The Gospel of Mark

Mark was the son of a woman named Mary (Acts 12:12) and the cousin of the evangelist Barnabas (Col. 4:10). Apparently, Mark had a close relationship with Peter (1 Pet. 5:13), and there is considerable evidence that he wrote his Gospel account under the influence of that apostle.

The Gospel of Mark is remarkably different from that of Matthew. A survey of the information in this book reveals that it is for a non-Jewish audience. The writer has to explain Hebrew traditions (Mk. 7:2-4) and Palestinean conditions (Mk. 11:13).

The Latinisms within the book indicate that he was writing for Roman readers (see Mk. 12:42, where the Greek “two mites” lepta are converted into the Roman “a farthing” kodrantes [cf. Mk. 5:9; 15:16]). This, of course, explains why Mark does not appeal to the Old Testament as profusely (only nineteen times) as did Matthew.

His narrative was likely written to encourage Christians in Rome who were feeling the effects of tribulation for the cause of Christ. He mentions persecution as the cost of discipleship at a point where both Matthew and Luke, in parallel contexts, refrained from using that term (Mk. 10:30).

Whereas Matthew emphasized the words of the Lord, Mark, while recording only one major sermon (Mk. 13:3-37), underscores Christ’s deeds. He characterizes Jesus as a servant who came to do the Father’s will—and, servant-like, he did so with great urgency. Mark uses the servant’s word, euthus (“immediately”), fourteen times in describing the activities of the Savior.

Mark is a strong advocate of the fact that Jesus is the Son of God. To that end, he records the testimony of God (Mk. 1:11; 9:7), the Lord himself (Mk. 13:32; 14:61, 62), the demons (Mk. 3:11; 5:7), and the Roman centurion involved in the crucifixion (Mk. 15:39). Approximately forty percent of this shortest gospel account is devoted to the Lord's final journey to Jerusalem and the events that culminated with his death (Mk. 10:32ff).

The Gospel of Luke

Luke is the solitary Gentile writer of the Bible, yet his dual books of the Gospel of Luke and the book of Acts constitute about one-fourth of the New Testament.

By training he was a physician (Col. 4:14). He joined Paul on the apostle's second missionary campaign (Acts 16:10) and was with him periodically during the tireless preacher's ministry (note the "we" sections in Acts).

As with the Gospel of Mark, it is clear that Luke is writing for non-Hebrew recipients. He explains, for example, that Capernaum is "a city of Galilee" (Lk. 4:31), that the country of the Gerasenes is "over against Galilee" (Lk. 8:26), and that the town of Emmaus is seven miles from Jerusalem (Lk. 24:13)—circumstances quite familiar already to Palestineans.

Though the book is addressed to "most excellent Theophilus," with the purpose of confirming the faith of this Gentile in the matters wherein he had been taught (Lk. 1:3, 4), it is apparent that the intended audience was much wider. This is a treatise designed to reach the Greeks with the message of Jesus Christ.

The Greeks were preoccupied with a consideration of man. It is not without purpose, therefore, that Luke focuses upon Christ as the perfect example of humanity.

Luke's goal in underscoring the human aspects of the Lord is revealed by the following factors:

- He gives the most complete record of the Savior's birth and childhood (chapters one and two).
- The inspired historian traces Christ's lineage all the way back to Adam, demonstrating Jesus' solidarity with mankind.
- He emphasizes many human traits of the Master, e.g., his weeping over Jerusalem (Lk. 19:41) and his sweating great drops of blood (Lk. 22:44).
- Luke gives prominence to the prayers of Christ (a factor not unexpected in a consideration of the Lord's humanity). Of the fifteen prayers of Jesus that are recorded in the four Gospel accounts, eleven are found in Luke's narrative.

Luke provides first-rate testimony for the genuineness of Jesus' miracles. A scientist by profession, he had thoroughly investigated the claims of Christ's supernatural works (he mentions twenty of them, six of which are unique to him), and he treats them as historical reality.

Moreover, the evidence for the Lord's virgin birth must have been overwhelming for a doctor to acknowledge it and argue the case as strongly as Luke did (Lk. 1:26-38).

Luke's message is truly international in its thrust. He mentions that the angel who heralded Jesus' birth brought "good tidings . . . to all the people" (Lk. 2:10). He records the words of Simeon, who declared that the Messiah would be "a light for revelation to the Gentiles" (Lk. 2:32). He alone mentions God's interest in Gentiles during the Old Testament era—the cases of the widow of Zarephath and Naaman (Lk. 4:25-27). His account of Christ's parable of the good Samaritan reveals that spiritual concern is to flow beyond the pale of Judaism (Lk. 10:25-37).

The Gospel of John

John, the son of Zebedee and brother of James (Mk. 1:19), was the author of the fourth Gospel. John was a part of that inner circle of disciples (Mk. 5:37; 9:2; 14:33). Of all the apostles, he was closest to the Lord (Jn. 13:23; 19:26, 27).

This inspired record is in a class by itself. It is designed to appeal to all ethnic groups. Its basic purpose is to offer the evidence of certain signs which prove that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, which facts lead to eternal life (Jn. 20:30, 31).

In presenting his case for the divine nature of Jesus, John is very selective in the material he includes. For example, the entire scope of Christ's preaching ministry covers approximately three and one half years (as determined by the Passovers listed in the book [Jn. 2:13; 5:1; 6:4; 13:1]), yet John deals with only slightly more than thirty days of that entire time. Of the twenty-one chapters, containing 722 verses, about thirty-six percent of the material (seven chapters of 257 verses) involves only a twenty-four hour period.

Surely the abbreviated selectivity of one who was so close to his Lord is evidence of the fact that the Holy Spirit was guiding the production of the fourth Gospel.

No New Testament book is stronger in arguing the case for the deity of Christ. Three examples of this theme will suffice:

- John begins his document: "In the beginning was the Word [an allusion to Christ (see v. 14)], and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (Jn. 1:1).
- Near the middle of the book, the apostle has these words of Jesus: "I and the Father are one" (Jn. 10:30)—the neuter gender numeral suggests an identity of nature.
- Finally, as the book concludes, the confession of "scientific" Thomas is recorded. After examining the wounds of the resurrected Lord, the once-doubting apostle confessed: "My Lord and my God!" (Jn. 20:28).

John's record is characterized by a series of both word signs and work signs. The word signs are the famous "I am" declarations. Jesus affirmed: "I am ..."

- "the bread of life" (Jn. 6:35),
- "the light of the world" (Jn. 8:12),
- "the door" (Jn. 10:7),
- "the good shepherd" (Jn. 10:14),
- "the resurrection and the life" (Jn. 11:25),
- "the way, the truth, and the life" (Jn. 14:6), and
- "the true vine" (Jn. 15:1).

In addition, the use of the absolute "I am" in 8:58, affirms his timeless existence prior to the birth of Abraham.

Additionally, note these signs recorded by the apostle:

- Jesus demonstrated his power over time by instantly changing water into wine (Jn. 2:1-11).
- He showed his control of space by healing the nobleman's son from a distance of several miles away (Jn. 4:46-54).
- The Lord's authority over infirmity was evinced by the cure of the man at the pool of Bethesda (Jn. 5:1-18).
- Christ was the master of matter in multiplication of the loaves and fish (Jn. 6:1-14).
- The Savior controlled the law of gravity by walking upon Galilee's turbulent waves (Jn. 6:16-21).
- He reversed the effect of congenital blindness by restoring the vision of a sightless man (Jn. 9:1-41).
- And when Jesus called Lazarus from his tomb, he gave a preview of his power over death, to fully be revealed on the last day (Jn. 11:1-44).
- John's Gospel concludes with the apostle's eyewitness record of the resurrection events (20:1-29) and the miracle of the fish-laden net (Jn. 21:5, 6).

Truly, the signs of this book establish the divinity of Jesus. Indeed, the Gospel narratives testify in eloquent concert.

Do the Gospel Accounts Clash?

Unbelievers are constantly hawking the tired refrain that the Gospel accounts contradict one another and thus cannot be viewed as inspired history. The fact of the matter is, those making such charges are either unaware of what constitutes a genuine contradiction or else they simply are unwilling to give the Bible a fair hearing.

Of course the Gospel documents display some differences, even when describing the same events. Actually, this is evidence of literary independence; it demonstrates a lack of collusion. This circumstance most certainly does not demand historical unreliability.

But let us consider an alleged contradiction in the Gospel records. The accounts of the resurrection of Christ are supposed to provide evidence of several discrepancies. Two of these alleged disagreements will be examined here.

The apostle John states: “On the first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, while it was yet dark, unto the tomb” (Jn. 20:1). Mark declares: “Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Salome, brought spices, that they might anoint him. And very early on the first day of the week, they come to the tomb when the sun was risen” (Mk. 16:1-2).

The critic sees two problems here. First, it is argued that John records that only Mary Magdalene came to the tomb, whereas Mark mentions other women as well. Second, John says it was dark when Mary arrived, yet Mark states that the sun had risen. What are the facts?

Actually, John does not claim that only Mary Magdalene came to the tomb. He merely mentions her specifically. Furthermore, her testimony, subsequently recorded by the apostle, clearly indicates that others were present. To Peter she exclaimed, “They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid him” (Jn. 20:2). That “we” is entirely consistent with Mark’s account.

With reference to the sunrise, the records do not state that it was both dark and not dark (after sunrise) when Mary arrived at the tomb. In fact, neither account even uses the term “arrived.” In both cases the writers say that Mary, or Mary and the others, “cometh” (erchetai, erchontai [present tense forms]) to the tomb. The present tense of the verbs marks the progress of the journey.

Obviously, therefore, John was describing the early part of the trip (during the dark), which may have involved a considerable distance, whereas Mark speaks of the latter portion of the journey (after sunrise). There is no discrepancy!

The Gospel accounts are quite harmonious and they continue to enjoy unprecedented popularity as their critics progressively fade into oblivion.

The following chart was developed for a series of lessons covering the major themes of the Passion Week in 2010. It is an attempt to place the critical events of the final weeks of Jesus' first advent in chronological order. It begins when Jesus begins to head toward Judea for his final attendance at the Feast of Dedication (Hanukkah).

These late ministry events are listed alongside the Galilean, Judean, and Modern (Gregorian) dating systems. The Gospel parallels are also available for reading and consideration. While there are events leading up to the Passion Week the majority of this chart is focused on the Passion Week (a.k.a. Holy Week). The events prior to the Passion Week sets the stage for Jesus' royal entry into Jerusalem, his death, burial and resurrection.

Dating the Life of Christ

The dating of this chronology utilized a 33 C.E./A.D. crucifixion date as argued for by a number of scholars. In particular, the conclusions of Harold W. Hoehner (Chronological Aspects of the Life of Christ) and Darrell L. Bock (Studying the Historical Jesus: A Guide to Sources and Methods) informed my thinking regarding a 33 C.E./A.D. crucifixion. While I would respectfully vary somewhat from Hoehner's daily chronology during the Passion Week I do utilize his suggested solution to the problem of multiple Passovers (Jesus partakes of the Passover but also dies on Passover). Hoehner appeals to the Galilean (sunrise to sunrise) and Judean (sunset to sunset) calenders to resolve the apparent discrepencies in the Gospels. Namely, both days share the same lunar night.

Some events listed do not have dates but are still placed in chronological order.

Please note that I have included references to Acts and 1 Corinthians in the resurrection accounts for readings as well. Köstenberger's work (The Cradle, the Cross, and the Crown: An Introduction to the New Testament) proved useful concerning the order of resurrection appearances.

Reading Chronologically

Reading the Gospel events chronologically should by no means usurp the Gospel writers themselves. Each Gospel writer wants to say something very important to the reader with what they have written. That should be respected. It is not my aim to dismiss a Gospel writer's intentions with his audience. I only hope this helps a user to think through the events as they happened each of those critical days.

The suggested start date to the readings would be the week before the Passion Week. The daily readings begin the Saturday before Palm Sunday which appears as Nisan 9 (Galilean), Nisan 8 (Judean), and Saturday, 28 March 33 C.E. on the chart below. The Chronology intentionally leaves off this year's dates for use across multiple years and to accomodate Eastern and Western church calendars...

[Note: This chronology advocates a Passover Last Supper and a Friday crucifixion]

Differences between Galilee and Judea

http://www.thegospelcoalition.org/blogs/justintaylor/2011/08/17/7-differences-between-galilee-and-judea-in-the-time-of-jesus/

R. T. France, in his very fine commentary on The Gospel of Matthew (NICNT, 2007), laments:

Modern readers of the NT often know little about the geopolitical world of first-century Palestine. It is commonly assumed that "the Jews" were an undifferentiated community living amicably in the part of the world we now call "the Holy Land" united in their resentment of the political imposition of Roman rule to which all were equally subject.

But, he says, "This is a gross distortion of the historical and cultural reality."

The northern province of Galilee was decisively distinct—in history, political status, and culture—from the southern province of Judea which contained the holy city of Jerusalem.

Admitting that the following is a drastic oversimplification but hoping that it's not a complete caricature, Professor France summarizes seven differences:

1. Racially the area of the former Northern Kingdom of Israel had had, ever since the Assyrian conquest in the eighth century B.C., a more mixed population, within which more conservative Jewish areas (like Nazareth and Capernaum) stood in close proximity to largely pagan cities, of which in the first century the new Hellenistic centers of Tiberias and Sepphoris were the chief examples.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

2. Geographically Galilee was separated from Judea by the non-Jewish territory of Samaria, and from Perea in the southeast by the Hellenistic settlements of Decapolis.
3. Politically Galilee had been under separate administration from Judea during almost all its history since the tenth century B.C. (apart from a period of "reunification" under the Maccabees), and in the time of Jesus it was under a (supposedly) native Herodian prince, while Judea and Samaria had since A.D. 6 been under the direct rule of a Roman prefect.
4. Economically Galilee offered better agricultural and fishing resources than the more mountainous territory of Judea, making the wealth of some Galileans the envy of their southern neighbors.
5. Culturally Judeans despised their northern neighbors as country cousins, their lack of Jewish sophistication being compounded by their greater openness to Hellenistic influence.
6. Linguistically Galileans spoke a distinctive form of Aramaic whose slovenly consonants (they dropped their aitches!) were the butt of Judean humor.
7. Religiously the Judean opinion was that Galileans were lax in their observance of proper ritual, and the problem was exacerbated by the distance of Galilee from the temple and the theological leadership, which was focused in Jerusalem.

The result, he says, is that even an impeccably Jewish Galilean in first-century Jerusalem was not among his own people; he was as much a foreigner as an Irishman in London or a Texan in New York. His accent would immediately mark him out as "not one of us," and all the communal prejudice of the supposedly superior culture of the capital city would stand against his claim to be heard even as a prophet, let alone as the "Messiah," a title which, as everyone knew, belonged to Judea (cf. John 7:40-42).

This may at first blush sound like interesting background material that is not especially helpful for reading and interpreting the gospels. But Mark and Matthew have structured their narratives around a geographical framework dividing the north and the south, culminating in the confrontation of this prophet from Galilee and the religious establishment of Jerusalem.

Professor France writes: "To read Matthew in blissful ignorance of first-century Palestinian sociopolitics is to miss his point. This is the story of Jesus of Nazareth."

Did Jesus celebrate the Passover and die on Passover day, or was it on the evening before? Matthew, Mark, and Luke say it was on Passover day, but John seems to say He celebrated the day before. Why the difference?

The difference between John's Gospel and the Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke) concerning the Passover and the death of Jesus is due to the fact that there were two systems used at that time for reckoning Passover day. The Galileans used a different method of reckoning than the Judeans.

The Galileans and Pharisees measured it from sunrise to sunrise, whereas the Judeans and Sadducees used the sunset to sunset reckoning in John's Gospel. Thus, from the Judean reasoning in John's Gospel, Jesus did die on the eve of Passover when it began on Friday evening. But using the Galilean reckoning in the other three Gospels, the Passover meal began Thursday evening, with Passover day starting at sunrise Friday morning.

There is no contradiction because the Gospels reflect the two different chronological systems for determining the Passover.

Nisan13 (which in the year Jesus died would have been a Wednesday) is the day before Passover. It was on Wednesday the 13th that the disciples had the special meal prepared that we call The Last Supper and have transformed it into a church sacrament that we call Communion. We find in the Mishna that the Galileans (Yeshua and his disciples were Galileans) adopted a tradition that in Hebrew is called, seudah maphsehket; this translates essentially to "last supper". The Galilean Jews (Yeshua and His disciples were Galileans) had established an additional celebration called seudah maphsehket (last supper) that the Judean Jews (the Jews of the Jerusalem area) did not observe. This last supper was about remembering that it was indeed not ALL Hebrews who were in danger from death at God's hand in Egypt, but ONLY the firstborn sons. So a special nighttime meal was adopted whereby this meal would be eaten and then there would be a 24 hour fast that followed……thus the name "last supper". The next meal to be eaten was the Passover meal.

So on Nisan 13, Wednesday, the seudah maphsehket was prepared; HOWEVER, it was not eaten on Nisan 13. Rather, it was after sundown, at the end of the day of Nisan 13, that the meal was taken. That is, it was eaten as the first meal of the next day, Thursday Aviv 14th (remember the beginning of a new day is just after sundown). The meal called "last supper" was generally eaten starting in the first hour of Passover. It is here that Yeshua says to commemorate this day by drinking wine that symbolizes His blood that establishes the New Covenant, and by eating unleavened bread that symbolizes His body to which we become in union. NOTE: this was NOT the traditional Passover Seder meal; that meal was yet to come because that meal is not eaten until the END of Passover day.

Therefore at the start of the day of Nisan 14, Thursday (which is nighttime), Passover day, the Galileans ate a special meal commemorating firstborns, and that meal was called "last supper." After having the last supper where Yeshua proclaimed the words we now call Communion, the next event is that Judas betrays Him and shortly after midnight Our Lord is arrested. It is still Passover day. In the wee hours a little before sunrise, He is tried and convicted of blasphemy by the Sanhedrin. It is still Passover Day. After the Roman Governor, Pontius Pilate, confirms his death sentence Jesus is scourged and then nailed to Roman cross by Roman soldiers. It is still Passover Day, Thursday, Nisan 14.

At about the moment Jesus expires (around 3 pm in the afternoon on Passover Day) the slaughter of the Passover Lambs begins in the Temple grounds. Somewhere around ¼ million sheep will be killed and their blood collected between the hours of 3 pm and 6 pm. It is still Passover Day because the sun has not yet set.

While this is occurring the women are hurrying to convince the Roman soldiers to remove Messiah's corpse from the execution stake; it is a requirement that they MUST get Him buried immediately because otherwise He would just lay exposed for at least 2 days. Why? I'll show you in a minute. The women are relieved when the soldiers relent, take his dead body down, and then Yeshua is entombed before the sun sets. It is still Passover Day.

The butchered lambs are placed in the thousands of collective ovens located all around Jerusalem….both inside and outside the city walls….so that the hundreds of thousands of visiting Jewish pilgrims can cook their Passover Lambs. It is still Passover Day. Shortly after the sun sinks over the horizon 3 stars become visible thus ending Passover Day. It is nighttime, Passover Day has ended and the 1st day of the Feast of Matza begins. It is now Nisan 15, Friday, the 1st day of Unleavened Bread.

(Jn. 13:1) Does John contradict the Synoptics regarding the Passover meal?

Critics argue that John's chronology of the final night of Jesus' life is contradictory with the Synoptics (Matthew, Mark, Luke). That being said, there are also a number of chronological points on which all four gospels agree:

1. Jesus predicted that he would be raised on the third day (Mt. 16:21; Mk. 8:31; Lk. 9:22).

2. Jesus was laid in the tomb on Friday—the day of preparation—before the Sabbath on Saturday (Mt. 27:62; 28:1; Mk. 15:42; Lk. 23:54, 56; Jn. 19:31, 42).

3. The women rested on the Sabbath on Saturday (Lk. 23:56), and they went to the tomb on Sunday morning (Mt. 28:1; Mk. 16:1-2; Lk. 24:1; Jn. 20:1).

4. Jesus met his disciples on the road to Emmaus the day he rose from the dead, and they told him, "It is the third day since these things happened" (Lk. 24:21).

5. All four gospels state that Jesus ate the Last Supper a day before his crucifixion (Mt. 26:20; Mk. 14:17; Lk. 22:14; Jn. 13:2; c.f. 1 Cor. 11:23).

However, there is tension between the Synoptics and John on whether or not the Last Supper was the same as the Passover meal. The Synoptics tell us that the disciples prepared the Passover meal "on the first day of Unleavened Bread" (Mk. 14:12; c.f. Mt. 26:17; Lk. 22:7-8).

But John states that Jesus was crucified before the Passover meal. John tells us that the Jews didn't enter the Praetorium "so that they would not be defiled, but might eat the Passover" (Jn. 18:28). He also tells us that Jesus was tried in front of the people on "the day of preparation for the Passover" (Jn. 19:14). This puts his trial a day before Passover—not after it. Thus according to John, Jesus didn't eat the Passover supper on Thursday night, because Passover hadn't happened yet.

How do we reconcile these two accounts? Let's consider three fallacious views, and one view we find tenable:

OPTION #1: The Last Supper was not the Passover meal. It was a different meal.

Advocates of this view argue that none of the gospels explicitly state that the disciples ate the Passover lamb, which was central to the Passover feast.

However, we find this view to be untenable, because the Synoptics do explicitly state that they were celebrating the Passover meal. The disciples asked Jesus, "Where do You want us to prepare for You to eat the Passover?" (Mt. 26:17). In fact, the Synoptics claim this repeatedly (Mt. 26:17, 18, 19; Mk. 14:1, 12, 14, 16; Lk. 22:1, 7, 8, 13, 15).

[For a well reasoned and documented supporting view of this option: see http://themessianicfeast.com/]

OPTION #2: Jesus had his own personal Passover meal a day early.

Advocates of this view surmise that maybe Jesus had a personal Passover meal with his disciples early, while this wasn't really according to the proper Jewish calendar.

However, this view isn't tenable, because the Passover lamb had to be slaughtered in the Temple by the priest. Jesus couldn't have gotten a lamb earlier than the other people. He needed to get the Paschal lamb along with everyone else. This wouldn't solve the problem before us.

OPTION #3: The Qumran calendar places the Passover on Tuesday.

Advocates of this view argue that the Qumran calendar places the Passover early (on Tuesday), while the official Jewish calendar places it later.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

However, interpreting Jesus' actions in light of the practices of the Qumran community is historically and biblically bizarre. Hoehner writes, "There is no indication that Jesus was really associated with or ministered to the Qumran community and certainly no indication in the Gospels to support the conclusion that Jesus ever followed a Qumran calendar."[1]

OPTION #4: There were two calendars for the Pharisees and the Sadducees.

We hold to this final view. It states that the Jews celebrated the Passover on two consecutive days. Hoehner writes, "The Pharisees celebrated the Passover immediately (Nisan 13/14) while the Sadducees waited until the usual time (i.e., Nisan 14/15)."[2] Jesus celebrated the Passover on Thursday night according to the Pharisaic calendar, which is in line with the Synoptics. But John was going off of the Sadducean calendar, when he wrote his gospel, because he was focusing on Jesus' enemies.

Since there were so many people to feed, it would be virtually impossible for the priests to sacrifice enough lambs in a 24 hour period. Josephus estimates that about a quarter million lambs were slaughtered during the Passover.[3] Modern historians believe that Josephus was clearly exaggerating these numbers. It would be difficult for an army with guns and grenades to kill that many sheep, let alone a group of priests! However, modern historians estimate that anywhere from 150,000 to 500,000 people were in Jerusalem during Passover.[4] This would be a massive amount of people to feed with the sacrificed sheep.

By spreading this out over two days, this would help the priests perform the sacrifices. Thus Hoehner explains, "There arose the custom where the Galileans slew their lambs on Nisan 13, and the Feast of Unleavened Bread lasted eight days whereas the Judeans celebrated on Nisan 14."[5] Hoehner also argues that the Galileans/Pharisees could have used a different way of reckoning the day from the Judeans/Sadducees. He writes, "It is thought that the Galileans used a different method of reckoning the Passover than the Judeans. The Galileans and Pharisees used the sunrise-to-sunrise reckoning whereas the Judeans and Sadducees used the sunset-to-sunset reckoning."[6] We can express these two groups succinctly:

The Galilean Jews reckoned the day from sunrise-to-sunrise: This made the Last Supper a Passover meal. They had the Paschal lamb slaughtered in the afternoon on Thursday, Nisan 14. Carson writes, "The slaughter normally took place between 3.00 p.m. and 5.00 p.m. on 14 Nisan, falling on a Thursday in the year in question; Passover itself began about 6.00 p.m. on the same Thursday, the beginning of 15 Nisan."[7]

The Judean Jews reckoned the day from sunset-to-sunset: They would not have considered the Last Supper a Passover meal. They had their Paschal lamb slaughtered on Friday afternoon, Nisan 15. Under this calendar system, Jesus was eating the Passover meal, when his enemies were conspiring to arrest him. In fact, they arrested him the night before.

The corporate sacrifice of a burnt offering for the nation was done at 3 pm on Passover, according to the Judean calendar. This means that when the priest was slaying the Paschal lamb, Jesus was at that very moment yelling "tetelestai" from the Cross! John must have been calling attention to this fact by focusing on the Sadducean calendar.

Summary – Events of Last Week – by Day

The summary detailed below records the days before the Passover and the events recorded in the Gospels that took place on each day. The parallel accounts of the same event in each Gospel will help to clarify the details of the events of the week. The time of the day when the event took place and the location where the event took place are also included where possible. It is not possible, with some of the events, to be certain exactly what time of day or where an event took place. However in such cases an 'educated guess' has been made.

The objective of the overview in the summary is to provide a working framework of the events of the week that will enhance our studies and make it easier for us to visualize the flow of events.

The Sufferings of Christ – Even to the Lowest Hell

http://www.separationtruth.com/resources/Suffering1$2C2$2C3+new2.pdf [PDF]

Superficial Christendom will characteristically dwell upon the physical sufferings of Christ, such as demonstrated in the Mel Gibson movie—The Passion of Christ. They have very little appreciation, if any, of the real sufferings of Christ for our sins... Then He ascended from hell, and was gloriously resurrected from the dead. The purpose of this paper is to explore this three day death baptism of Christ from a careful Biblical perspective. We are going to allow numerous passages of Scripture to illuminate that dark and mysterious corridor of existence so that we might have a deeper appreciation for the price of our redemption.

Regarding Thursday Last (Passover) Supper and Friday Passover Crucifixion:

There is a very interesting footnote…There actually were two different evenings when the Passover was celebrated. I’ll just leave it at this. The northern people in Galilee celebrated it on Thursday evening while the Judeans, the Sadducees and the people in the south celebrated it on Friday evening. This is perfect, so that Jesus could celebrate the Passover with His friends in Galilee when they celebrated it on Thursday and still die as the Passover lamb on Friday at the time when the southern Judeans were slaughtering their lambs for their Passover. So there are actually two times; on Thursday for those in the north, and on Friday for those in the south. And that’s an important reckoning because there are texts in John’s gospel, in particular, that make it necessary to understand that.

[Advocates for a Thursday crucifixion]

Some notes related to above table:

The focal point of all Christianity is the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ. However, it is the least understood of most all the scriptures. Most of Christianity does not know when Jesus was crucified and when he was resurrected from the dead. Most teach that Christ was crucified on a Friday and resurrected on the first day of the week at sunrise. Others, who are more conservative, look at such scriptures as Mat 12:40 and interpret this scripture that Christ must be dead and in the grave three days and three nights for a total of 72 hours -- and to make this fit, they teach that he was crucified on a Wednesday, put into the grave just before sundown, and resurrected three nights and three days later just before sundown on the Sabbath.

The first group has Jesus Christ being crucified in the year 33 A.D. The second group, using Hillel II for calculation, has Him crucified in the year 31 A.D. Neither is correct. I do not question the honesty of either group. However, the Bible is very plain as to what day of the week He was crucified and when He was resurrected from the dead…

…we have to let the Bible interpret the Bible (Isaiah 28:9-23). Luke says that the start of the events of the 3 days and 3 nights have to start at the time He was HANDED into the hands of sinful men (Gentiles) EARTHY. The Jews were not of this WORLD; the gentiles WERE (earthy). And also, understand, we have to start with a day portion, NOT a night portion. Jesus said THREE DAYS and THREE NIGHTS, NOT 3 nights and 3 days.

Jonah was thrown overboard some time in the early hours just as daybreak started (Jonah 1). John the 18th and 19th chapters gives us the KEY. Jesus was taken captive by the Jews in the early hour of the morning BEFORE THE COCK CROWS. Then the Jews had a trial in chapter 18. The Jews knew what hour they handed him to Pilate and they were aware of the beatings and the scourgings, and of Pilate's edict of crucifixion.

John 19:14. And it was the PREPARATION of the Passover, and about the sixth hour. He said, "Behold your King!" John here uses Roman time (12 midnight & 12 noon) This is the only place in all scripture where Roman time is given. The synoptics and other manuscripts use Hebrew reckoning "beginning with sunrise." Jesus had been DELIVERED into Pilate's hands ALMOST AN HOUR BEFORE. Go back and read Luke 24. Remember Luke 24:7. The Son of man must be DELIVERED into the hands of sinful men, lst event, and be CRUCIFIED, 2nd event. Verse 20 says to be CONDEMNED to death.

We start to unravel the parable here. The Jews were involved with the START of the SIGN, when they handed Him into the hands of the Gentiles. The clock is started from THIS POINT. To answer Mat 12:40 we have to use the rest of the Bible. Things HAPPENED to Christ, BEFORE and AFTER

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

He was CRUCIFIED and while He was on the CROSS (or STAKE), that HAPPENED to JONAH IN THE BELLY OF THE GREAT FISH. The REEDS wrapped around his head = the CROWN OF THORNS on Jesus' head. The prayer that Jonah prayed, Jonah 2:1-9, Psalms 18:5-7. Read all of Psa 18:1-24. All of this happened while Jesus was on the cross that also happened to Jonah IN THE BELLY of the great fish. Now for the FINAL Truth.

Mat 27:62-66 The Jews, chief Priests, and Pharisees went to Pilate on the High Sabbath (the day after the day of preparation), saying, "Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, 'After three days I will rise again.' Command that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day." Pilate said, "You have your watch; make it as sure as you can." So they went, and made the sepulcher sure, SEALING the stone, and setting a guard.

Question: Don't you know those Jews made sure that Jesus' body was in the tomb? You better BELIEVE they did! They opened up the grave and made sure His body was there before they sealed it. They knew it was in the grave when the seal was put on and they made sure the watch understood that they were to remain into the third day -- and the watch was still there into the THIRD day NOT the fourth day. Read chapter 28:11.

Some of the guards came into the city and told the chief priests all the things that had happened at the grave site. Those Jews RECOGNIZED THE SIGN, because it was EXACTLY 72 HOURS BEFORE THE EARTHQUAKE WHEN THEY HANDED JESUS INTO THE HANDS OF THE GENTILES. They (the guard) were paid to state a falsehood. The ANGELS and the EARTHQUAKE were the END SIGN TO THOSE JEWS.

The three days and three nights, then, began from the time he was HANDED over to Pilate -- which started AS IT BEGAN TO DAWN on Thursday morning the 14th of Nisan, the DAY portion. It INCLUDES the trial before Pilate, the scourgings and beatings, being condemned to death, being crucified, the crown of thorns, all of His prayers while He was on the cross--with His final prayer, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?, The time while He was being prepared for burial before the High Sabbath; all of Thursday (day portion of 14th), Thursday night, Friday (15th), Friday night, Saturday (16th), and Saturday night up to the earthquake WHILE IT WAS YET DARK (John 20:1) on Sunday (Nisan 17), "As it began to dawn toward the first day of the week (Matt. 28:1). EXACTLY 3 DAYS and 3 NIGHTS!

We have shown when Jesus came into Jerusalem on the 1st day of crucifixion week, which was the 10th of Nisan, counting forward Jesus Christ was crucified on a Thursday. We have also shown counting back from resurrection day, the 1st day of the week, that Jesus was crucified on a Thursday, the 5th day of the week. All are Biblical and are irrefutable answers to the time of events that occurred from Nisan 9 through Nisan 17.

Let us now look at all the rest of the scriptures referring to 'after the third day, or the third day'. MAT 16:21. From that time Jesus began to show to His disciples that He must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders and chief Priests and scribes and be killed and raised the THIRD DAY.

MAT 20:18-19. "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and to the scribes; and they will condemn Him to death, and DELIVER Him to the Gentiles to mock and to scourge and to CRUCIFY. And the THIRD DAY HE WILL RISE AGAIN."

MARK 8:31 And He began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and after THREE DAYS rise again.

MARK 9:31 For He taught His disciples and said to them, "The Son of Man is being DELIVERED into the hands of men, and they will KILL Him. And after He is killed, He will rise the THIRD DAY."

LUKE 9:22 "The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised the THIRD DAY."

LUKE 18:31-33 Then He took the twelve aside and said to them, "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man will be accomplished. For He will be DELIVERED to the Gentiles and will be mocked and insulted and spit upon. And they will scourge Him and put Him to death. And the THIRD DAY He will rise again."

LUKE 24:7 saying,'The Son of Man must be DELIVERED into the hands of sinful men, and be CRUCIFIED, and the THIRD DAY RISE AGAIN.'"

1st CORINTHIANS 15:3-4 For I delivered to you first of all, what I also received, that Christ died for our sins ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES, and that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day, ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES.

ALL OF THESE AGREE WITH --- Luke 24:19-21. And He (Jesus) said unto them, "WHAT THINGS?" And they said unto Him, "The THINGS CONCERNING JESUS of Nazareth, who was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, and how the chief priests and our rulers DELIVERED Him to be CONDEMNED to death, and CRUCIFIED Him. But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, TODAY IS THE THIRD DAY SINCE THESE THINGS HAPPENED."

Now for some questions:

- 1. What about Daniel 9:27, which some have taught means Christ was cut off in the middle of the week?

This DOES NOT refer to Jesus Christ at all. It refers to the prince who is to come, the peacemaker in the Middle-East who will make a peace treaty with Israel. Notice verse 25 and 26. The Messiah will be cut off at the END OF THE SEVEN WEEKS AND 62 WEEKS; NOT in the middle of the 70th week. 7 weeks plus 62 weeks makes 69 WEEKS. This 70 weeks of Daniel have been totally misunderstood by a lot of Biblical teachers. We still have one week on Jerusalem, the Holy City, and the Jews, to be fulfilled. (We have literature on this subject. Please write for it).

- 2. But I thought the spices were bought on Friday?

For the answer, look at Luke 23:52. This man, Joseph of Arimathea, went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Vs.54 then he took it down, wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a tomb that was hewn out of rock where no one had laid before. That day was the preparation and the Sabbath drew near, Vs 55 and the women who had come with him from Galilee followed after and THEY OBSERVED HOW THE BODY WAS LAID. Then they returned and prepared spices and fragrant oil and rested the Sabbath days according to the commandments.

- 3. If the guards were set already on the grave, how could the women have observed the body on Friday?

They OBSERVED the body the day He was crucified. They BOUGHT THE SPICES the day He was crucified. They PREPARED the spices the day He was crucified. NOTE 1: Mat 28:1. Now after the Sabbath (should read after the Sabbaths, plural). There was a High Sabbath on Friday and regular weekly Sabbath on Saturday. NOTE 2: Mark 16:1 is given most correctly in the King James; HAD BOUGHT. They bought the spices on the day of preparation, the day Jesus was crucified NOTE 3: All through the scriptures the preparation day refers to the preparation of the Passover, NOT the weekly Sabbath.

Finally, what all of this really means is we are today NOT using the same calendar that was used in Jesus' day. THEY were observing New Moons. Today we have been observing Hillel II, a Jewish priest, who in 358 A.D. not only calculated the Holy Days, but also MANIPULATED these calculations so that we could NEVER have two HOLY Days in a row in the Days of Unleavened Bread or on the Day of Atonement.

Hebrew days begin at the evening and end after the morning (Genesis 1:5,8,13,19,23,31). The time when one day ended and the next day started is not precise.

The evening sacrifice had to be slain "at even". The Hebrew word for "at even" is plural. In the Masoretic text it is marked as dual in number and is understood to mean "between two evenings" (Numbers 28:4 AV margin). So the evening sacrifice had to be done between the two evenings. What were the two evenings?

The tabernacle had one opening, the large entrance facing east. So that after midday it would become progressively dark within the tabernacle. One purpose of the 7 branched lamp stand was to provide light in the tabernacle (Exodus 25:37 Numbers 8:2). So the priests would light the lamps early in the afternoon (Exodus 30:8). This would be the first evening. The evening sacrifice could then proceed. The setting of the sun would then be the second evening.

The Passover sacrifice also had to be slain "in the evening". Here the same Hebrew is used, again dual in number, meaning "between two evenings" (Exodus 12:6 AV margin). In the first century AD there were about 250,000 Passover lambs to be sacrificed (one for each Jewish household - Exodus12:3-4).

Each lamb had to be immersed by a priest in one of the 10 or so mobile tanks in the inner court of the temple (2 Chronicles 4:6). So on the eve of the Passover, the evening sacrifice and the slaying of all the Passover lambs had to be completed between the lighting of the temple lamps and the setting of the sun

The officiating priests would be under pressure having first to perform the evening sacrifice then afterwards to inspect, pass as fit, and immerse, all the passover lambs, leaving enough time for the head of each household to slay and roast his lamb. All of which had to be completed between the two evenings. Then, at the setting of the sun they could start the Pascal meal. This was done in the evening of the 14th of the first month - "the month of the Abib"* - the night of the "EXODUS" (Exodus 12:8,17,29-31,39,43,47,51). In which case the Passover lambs were slain after the noon of the 13th..

* "the Abib" [Hebrew: HA ABIB, the colour light green] refers to the colour of barley grain turning light green. When this happened the sighting of the next new moon indicated the first day of the first month of a Hebrew new year. All Hebrew years started with this month. It was called "the month of the Abib [the light green]". All Hebrew months were numbered from this month

Alfred Edersheim DD PhD wrote:-
"But at the time of our Lord the evening sacrifice certainly commenced much earlier. Josephus puts it down as at the ninth hour. According to the Rabbis the lamb was slain at the eighth hour and a-half, or about 2.30 P.M., and the pieces laid on the altar an hour later — about 3.30 P.M. Hence, when "Peter and John went up together into the Temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour," (Acts 3:1) it must have been for the evening sacrifice, or rather half an hour later, and, as the words indicate, for the "prayer" that accompanied the offering of incense. The evening service was somewhat shorter than that of the morning, and would last, at any rate, about an hour and a-half, say till about four o'clock, thus well meeting the original requirement in Numbers 28:4. After that no other offering might be brought except on the eve of the Passover, when the ordinary evening sacrifice took place two hours earlier, or at 12.30 P.M."

NOTE :- In Whiston's translation of War of the Jews VI: ix:3 , by Josephus, it says:-

"So these high priests, upon the coming of their feast which is called the Passover, when they slay their sacrifices, from the ninth hour to the eleventh, but so that a company not less than ten belong to every sacrifice, (for it is not lawful for them to feast singly by themselves,) and many of us are twenty in company, found the number of sacrifices was two hundred and fifty thousand five hundred; which upon an allowance of not more ten that feast together, amounts to two millions seven hundred thousand and two hundred persons that were pure and holy .... who come hither to worship." [* i.e. 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. - Emphasis by us]

THREE DAYS AND THREE NIGHTS ?

The Jews would sometimes count a part as a whole. So a part of a day might be counted as a whole day and part of a night and a part of a night might be counted as a whole night. However, as skeptics are quick to point out, it is not possible to fit even parts of 3 nights between Friday afternoon and Sunday morning.

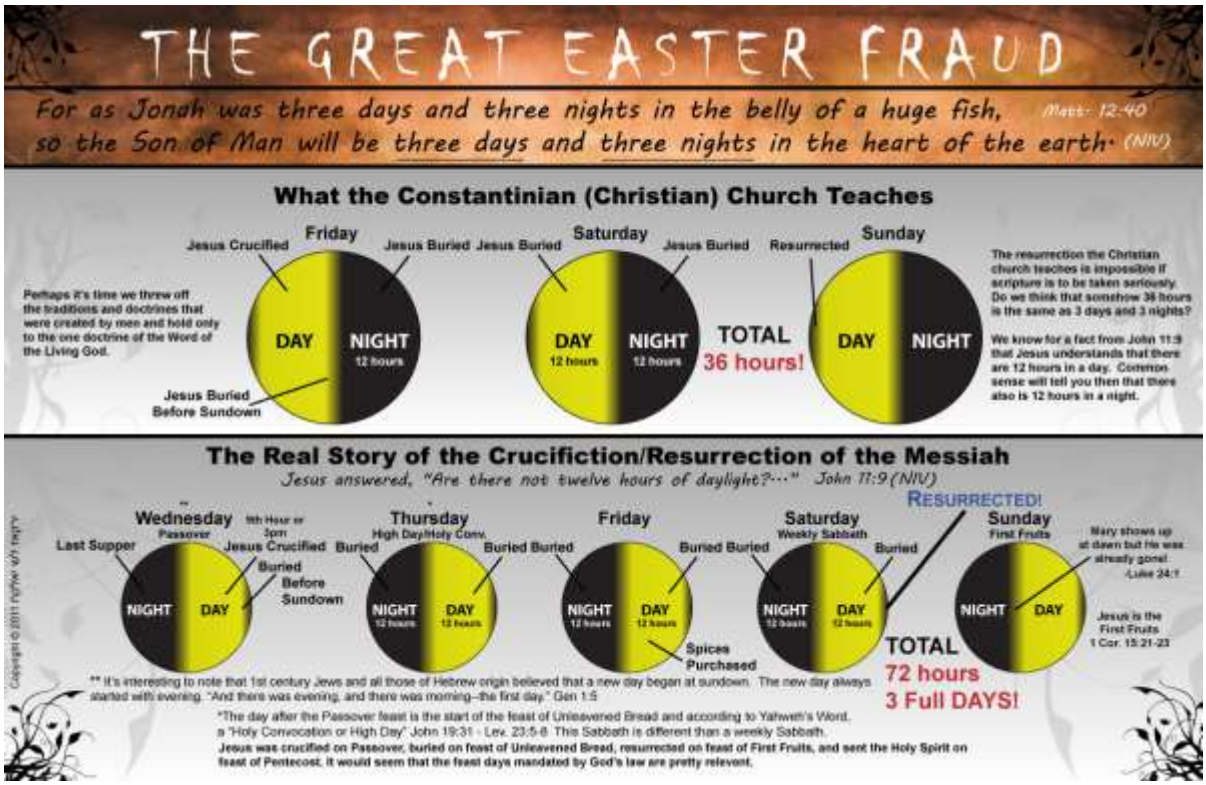
The tradition of observing "Good Friday" as the day on which the Lord was crucified was unknown in the early church.

Ignoring human tradition, does the Bible require us to believe that the Lord was crucified on a Friday?

The synoptic gospels do state that the Jews wanted the bodies removed from the crosses because after sunset it would be a Sabbath. They would want that to be done before any Sabbath, whether for the regular weekly Sabbath or for one of the several Hebrew festival "convocations" which would occur on different days of the week each year. On these days no servile work was allowed. These sabbaths were known as High Days, alternatively translated Great Days (John 7:37). There was always a High Day on the 15th of the first month (the month of the Abib).

John explains that the Sabbath following the Lord's crucifixion was a "High Day". There would be no need for John's explanation if in that year the 15th day was on a Saturday, that is on a regular weekly Sabbath. However it would make sense for John to stress that it was a High Day sabbath if it fell on a Friday. In which case the Lord would have been crucified on a Thursday.

If the Lord was crucified on a Thursday afternoon then there are 3 days counting part of Thursday and the whole of Friday and of Saturday. Also there are three nights counting Thursday Night, Friday night and part of Saturday night.



DISTINCT ISSUES

The chart is compiled on the premises that the Lord Jesus did partake of the regular Passover meal and that He was crucified on a Thursday. However these are distinct issues, the one not determining the other. It is possible to use the chart to consider these issues independently of each other.

Passion/Easter Week Chronology

The process for figuring out Passion Week's chronology is simply to catalog all the time references in Passion Week. The key word here is all. In the following chart green is used to mark time references. Using those references like puzzle pieces it is possible to put together the week's schedule using Gospel references alone. The following chart shows the entire week, with all key events drawn.

It is not possible to change from this schedule while remaining faithful to all of the time references given in the Gospels. Extensive notes follow below.

[Note: Advocates for a Thursday crucifixion]

- Most of the events listed in the chart have more than 1 scripture reference. To conserve space only single references are listed.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

- The chart is drawn to an accurate scale, 6 hours to the division.

- The black vertical lines indicate the changes between days, at sunset, in Jerusalem. The Roman system of dates is offset from this by about 6 hours.

- This happened in the spring, near the equinox, so days and nights were very close to 12 hour each. (Though it is possible to show that the Bible's clock is set at noon, and hours are always the same length. Observed sunset is thus unimportant.)

- Christians soon began celebrating new years on March 25, which was the custom until the mid 1700s in the English world. That date marks the Sunday of the resurrection and also limits which years could possibly have been the year of Jesus' crucifixion. Year 31 is the only reasonable candidate, which is the year shown here for the Roman style dates.

- The Nisan dates, the Jewish dates, are not possible to reproduce by modern use of computers as at this point in history the Jewish calendar was subjectively, politically, fixed by the Sanhedrin. This was a political process similar to that used by the Senate in Rome which fixed the Roman calendar until 46 BC. The modern Jewish calendar, tightly synchronized to the moon, but determined by equations, was determined in the 300s and finally fixed in the 900s, nearly 1000 years after the Romans had done the same.

  The modern Sanhedrin has begun the practice of setting the calendar again, which will likely annul the modern Jewish calendar. The Jewish dates are drawn here by fixing Nisan 14 ending at Sunset on Thursday, March 22, 31 AD, as this is when the Special Sabbath following Passover began.

- The day and night cycle indicates when it was daylight and night time.

- Green is used on this chart to indicate events that are fixed by time in the Gospel narrative. The most important is Jesus' arrival at Lazarus' house before sunset on Friday, March 16, 31 AD. He would not have traveled on the Sabbath and that began at sunset. This arrival is 6 days before the special high sabbath mentioned later in John's account. It establishes the otherwise questionable nature of a special Sabbath on Friday of the week.

  The High Sabbath could not have been 1 day later, since that would put Jesus' arrival on the Sabbath. The High Sabbath could not have been 1 day earlier, since this would have allowed the women to attempt to put spice on Jesus' body on Friday, which they clearly did not do.

- The events of the week starting with the triumphal entry are a prophetic match to the main time line of the Bible. Jesus was rerunning the entire chronology of the bible at 210 historical years to the hour. The units used in Gospels for time, 1 hour, is also matched to 1 week in his ministry, providing a double confirmation on the timing.

  That prophetic match to the historical chronology provides a precise timing and significant editorial on what Jesus was saying and doing across the entire time of Passion Week. The prophetic schedule is much tighter than the hours used in the Gospel accounts, accurate to within a few minutes. This tight timing appears important for future prophetic replays, especially at the 2000th biblical anniversaries of these dates in October of 2028.

- Passion Week was week 62 in Jesus' public ministry. Even though there was a replay within this week, his regular pattern of prophetically replaying history as he went through his ministry continued through this week. The most important time, for the purposes of modern application, is the 3 hours of darkness on Wednesday across noon. Those 3 hours replayed across World War II, and are a prophetic statement of world history at that time. No other time in all of history is as bad, including the end-times.

- The week began when Jesus sent out disciples to prepare in various ways. The fetching of the donkey for his ride into the city is the most well known. Matthew's account includes what amounts to a footnote that there were disciples sent to prepare the Passover on the first day of the week. This was the same time as the donkey was fetched. Note that Matthew's text does not include the word "week" but Unleavened Bread is the day after Passover, so the "First Day" can be safely inferred as the first day of the week of the celebration of Unleavened Bread.

- The triumphal entry is a prophetic match to Adam's fall. The prophetic stories continue with Jesus cleansing the temple, a match to Enoch's ascension. Most of the events listed in the table above have known prophetic matches to events along the Bible's trunk chronology.

  The chart above, though, is only drawn to the hour since the original account is only accurate to within 1 hour. Note also that several prophetic series have an implied 1 hour each which is supported by the underlying prophetic schedule Jesus used in this week.

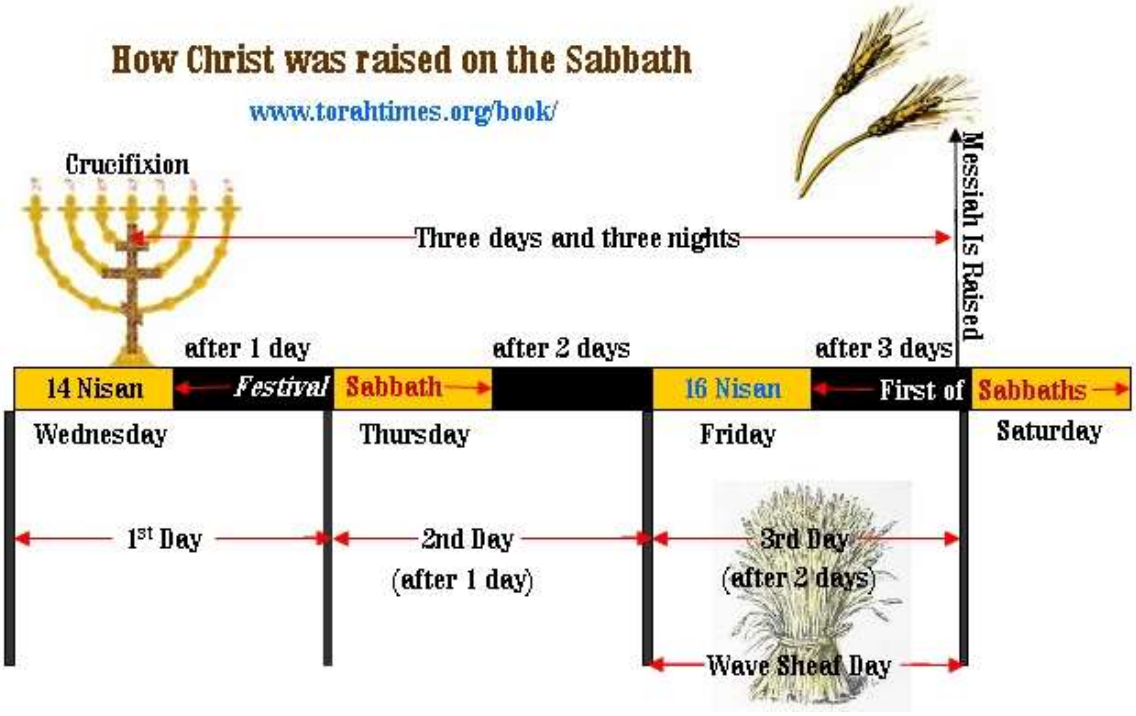
- There was significant activity after dark on Tuesday night, indeed this was perhaps the busiest time in his entire ministry. Jesus held his Last Supper that night and then went to pray.

  He was arrested later that night and Jewish activity continued until about the time of Peter's denial about daylight on Wednesday morning. All 4 gospels mention this Wednesday morning time, including importantly the Book of John. John, though continues with important details.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

On Wednesday morning, Jesus went to Roman authorities, Pilate and also Herod, where he made several appearances before these men and the crowds across several hours.

One of Jesus' appearances before Pilate is explicitly recorded in the Book of John as happening about the 6th hour which was on Wednesday about 11:00 AM. (Hour 1 begins at 6:00 AM, if you have not studied this.)



This 6th hour appearance means Jesus could not have been arrested at night and crucified the next day. It spreads out as shown here across Tuesday night and Wednesday.

This same timing likely applies at his return, with additional public presentations at a prophetic timing following the same schedule as he followed with Pilate, Herod, and the attendant crowds. This timing also suggests a considerable wait from the end of the trial until the start of Thursday morning when the Via Dolorosa began. This wait, too, has considerable prophetic significance.

- The 3 days and nights in the tomb followed a prophecy about Jesus as the fulfillment of Jonah's 3 days in the fish. These 3 days came in at about 62 hours total time dead instead of the expected 72 hours. This makes this time into another prophetic match to the core time line of the Bible. In this case the 62 weeks of Jesus' public ministry are in view. The weeks of ministry are themselves a reflection of the time from Adam's fall until the general resurrection when Christians will come out of the grave. The prophecy points at 62 * 210 = 13020 AA, or more precisely, the 20 years ending at 13020 AA.

- There is considerable additional detail that this level of view cannot hope to display. But, there are enough scripture references in the chart above to allow anyone versed in scripture to reconstruct the key times in Passion Week, even without access to a more complete Bible chronology

Knowledge of a Wednesday crucifixion was passed down for at least three centuries after the founding of the apostolic church. The Didascalia, which dates from the third century, offers historical evidence that the belief in a Friday crucifixion was a change from the original teaching. The following description of the day of Jesus' crucifixion appears in Book V of the Apostolic Constitutions, which contains the original words of the Didascalia:

"For they began to hold a council against the Lord on the second day of the week, in the first month, which is Xanthicus; and the deliberation continued on the third day of the week; but on the fourth day [Wednesday] they determined to take away His life by crucifixion" (Apostolic Constitutions—Didascalia Apostolorum, book V, section I, paragraph xiv). A church historian explains the significance of this record in the Didascalia: "…the only reason can have been that Jesus' passion began on a Wednesday, i.e., the day when He was arrested [and crucified]" (Lietzmann, A History of the Early Church, p. 69).

[1] Scholars disagree about the actual year of Christ's crucifixion. The traditional date is A.D. 30. Some argue for an A.D. 33 date, and a few prefer A.D. 32. If A.D. 30 is correct, the Thursday of the crucifixion would be April 7 (the 15th of the Jewish month of Nissan).

[2] The resurrected Lord made other appearances subsequently: one week later to all the apostles including Thomas (Jn. 20:26-29); some time later to the apostles fishing at the Sea of Galilee (Jn. 21:1-23); later to the apostles on a mountain in Galilee (Mt. 28:16-20; Mk. 16:15-18); to the apostles in Jerusalem and the Mt. of Olives at His ascension (Mk. 16:19-20; Lk. 24:44-53; Ac. 1:3-9; to Peter (Lk. 24:34; 1 Co. 15:5); to more than 500 disciples (1 CO. 15:6); to James (1 Co. 15:7); and finally several years later, to Paul at his conversion (Ac. 9:1-19; 22:3-16; 26:9-18; 1 Co. 9:1).

[3] Maundy Thursday—This may even be the oldest of the Holy Week celebrations. The term "Maundy" came through several European languages from the Latin word mandatum meaning "command. It refers to Jesus' new commandment in Jn. 13:34-35. It has often been observed with special celebrations of communion, foot washing ceremonies, and Passover seders. Sometimes it includes the giving of gifts to the poor.

Chronology of the Death, Burial and Resurrection of Yeshua

Here is a tentative chronology of the key events surrounding Yeshua's death, burial and resurrection. Yeshua was crucified on Nisan 14 (a Thursday), exactly when the Passover Lambs were being offered at the Temple, and He rose from the dead three days and nights later, on the night of Nisan 17 (i.e., before sunrise on Sunday):

Nisan 14 evening - Yeshua's early Seder (Wed. night)

Nisan 14 daytime - "Preparation day" (Luke 23:54; Mark 15:42) for Passover. Yeshua died Thursday afternoon at the same time that the korban Pesach (Passover Lamb) was sacrificed at the Temple and was buried before sundown.

Nisan 15 evening - The High Sabbath of Passover begins (the actual Seder night)

Nisan 15 daytime - The High Sabbath of Passover (Friday before sundown)

Nisan 16 evening - The Weekly Sabbath begins (Friday after sundown)

Nisan 16 daytime - Weekly Sabbath, waving of the omer (Saturday)

Nisan 17 evening - Yeshua was resurrected some time before sunrise on Sunday.

Nisan 17 daytime - Women bring spices to the tomb early in the morning. Disciples encounter risen Messiah.

To understand this reckoning, you must remember that a Jewish day starts at sundown and ends at twilight the following day. If Yeshua was on the cross on Nisan 14 (during the time of sacrifice of korban Pesach at the Temple) and was raised after three days and nights, we then would have the following:

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

<< Note: The above chart assumes FirstFruits is on the 16th of Nisan because of the following reasoning:

There is some controversy about precisely when the wave offering (called tenufat HaOmer) was performed, since the phrase "the day after the Sabbath" can refer to either:

1. Sunday (or Yom Rishon). This was the interpretation of the (corrupt) Sadducees. The Wave Offering would occur on the first Sunday after the regular weekly Sabbath.

   Note: Some have argued that since the Sadducees controlled the Second Temple worship schedule, the Wave Offering would have occurred on the Sunday following the weekly Sabbath. However, if this were so, it would not help make the case that the Resurrection of Yeshua occurred at this time, since the gospels state that Yeshua was raised before the women discovered Him missing from the tomb early on Sunday morning (Matt 28:1; Mark 16:2, Luke 24:1, John 20:1). In other words, the time of the resurrection of Yeshua and the time of the Wave Offering were not coincidental, since the wave offering occurred later in the day.

2. The day following the "High" Sabbath of the first day of Unleavened Bread (a "High" Sabbath is a day of shabbaton (rest) that may occur on any day of the week besides the weekly Sabbath day of Saturday). This is the position of the Pharisees and Orthodox Judaism. The wave offering would occur on Nisan 16, the day following the High Sabbath of the first day of Unleavened Bread (Josh. 5:11).

<<> See additional notes countering the notes from this site with the reasoning for Firstfruits having occurred on the 17th of Nisan >>>

How to Read the ABOVE Chart

First it is vital to understand that the Jewish day begins at sundown and ends at twilight the following day... The chart above therefore indicates the following chronology:

Yeshua was crucified and buried on Nisan 14, a Thursday afternoon (i.e., 1/2 day). This was also the "Preparation Day" for the Sabbath of Passover that would begin after sundown that same day.

He was in the tomb Nisan 15 (from sundown until twilight Fri. = 1 day) and

He was in the tomb Nisan 16 (from sundown until twilight Sat. = 1 day) and

He was also in the tomb on Nisan 17 (i.e., after sundown Sat. = 1/2 day) BUT

He later rose from the dead that day Nisan 17 (i.e., before sunrise Sun. morning)

If you add these up you will get 1/2 + 1 + 1 + 1/2 = 3 days and nights (Matt. 12:40). He therefore was crucified on Thursday, Nisan 14 (before sundown) and was resurrected on Sunday, Nisan 17 (before sunrise) on the third day (Luke 24:45-46). The disciples then encountered the risen Lord on Nisan 17, a Sunday morning (Matt. 28:1-10).

It is also important to understand that there are more Sabbaths in the Jewish year than there are "seventh days" on the Jewish calendar. For instance, Passover and the other holidays are regarded as Sabbaths, and therefore in Mark's gospel the women are said to have come to the tomb after the Sabbaths (i.e., σαββάτων, a plural noun) which indicates that both Passover (Nisan 15) and the following day (i.e., Nisan 16, the seventh day of the week) were regarded as Sabbath days (see the Greek text for Mark 16:2).

Mashiach Yeshua our First Fruits

Although not happening coincidentally, the Wave Offering and the Resurrection of Yeshua are linked together prophetically by the Apostle Paul:

But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep. For as by a man came death, by a man has come also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive. But each in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ. (1 Cor. 15:20-23)

(The Messiah is our firstfruits.)

Here the apostle clearly links the firstfruit offering with the resurrection of Yeshua our Mashiach. Yeshua's resurrection was like a "wave offering" presented before the Father as the "firstfruits" of the harvest to come! Moreover, Yeshua presented His firstfruits offering to the Father on this day:

> The tombs also were opened. And many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised, and coming out of the tombs after his resurrection they went into the holy city and appeared to many. (Matt. 27:52-53)

Our Lord offered to the Father the "early crops" of what will be an overwhelming harvest at the end of the age (acharit hayamim).

Yeshua is the first-begotten of the Father (Heb. 1:6); the Firstborn of Creation (Col. 1:15-16); the first-begotten of the dead (Rev. 1:5) and is the Firstfruits of those who are to be resurrected (1 Cor. 15:20-23). Baruch HaShem. And just as He is our Firstfruits, so "He chose to give us birth through the word of truth, that we might be a kind of first fruits of all he created" (James 1:18).

General Themes of the Season

Pesach represents our salvation and deliverance by the sacrifice of the Lamb of God, Yeshua the Mashiach. We are justified by trusting in the sacrificial blood of the Lamb of God (Rev. 7:14; 2 Cor. 5:21).

Chag HaMatzot represents our sanctification as we rid ourselves of the old leaven of "Egypt" and die to the carnal nature. In fact, this is represented by the burial of the Mashiach and our identification with His mortification.

Reshit Katzir represents the resurrection of Yeshua our Mashiach and our future glorified state as part of the coming harvest of God at the end of the age.

Resurrection Blessing

The resurrection of Yeshua the Messiah demonstrates that His sacrifice for our sins was accepted by God. When God raised Yeshua from the dead, He "absolved" the Substitute of the sins He bore. The sin imputed to Him was "left in the grave," so to speak, and the resurrection therefore confirms Yeshua's triumphant word, tetelestai: "It is finished" (John 19:30; Matt. 27:50). The resurrection declares that the King of all kings has pardoned you and constitutes proof that God has accepted Messiah's payment for your sins.

A Note about Chag Ha-Bikkurim

The Hebrew term bikkurim derives from the same root as bekhor - firstborn. In the Torah, the general principle that the firstborn of man (and beast) belonged to the LORD is also applied to the first fruits to ripen each agricultural season, beginning with a sheaf of the new barley harvest (omer) on Reishit Katzir, and culminating in the celebration of Shavuot, also called Chag ha-Bikkurim — "the first fruits festival," which represents the birth of the Church! In other words, Reishit Katzir is a picture of the resurrection of the Mashiach whereas Shavuot (bikkurim) represents the birth of the Church.

Nisan 17 in Jewish History

According to the Torah and traditional Jewish interpretation, other events that occurred on Nisan 17 include the following:

> Noah's Flood Ended: Gen. 8:4. Note that the seventh month was later designated as the first month at the time of the Exodus (Ex. 12:2). Our new creation in Messiah began on the anniversary of the rebirth of the world.
>
> Israel Crossed the Red Sea: Some sages believe that Israel crossed Yam Suf on this date. They reason that from the crossing of the sea to the arrival at Sinai was 47 days (Ex. 19). Three days later would mark the 50th day as the original occasion of Shavuot and the commemoration of the giving of the Torah.
>
> The Wave Sheaf offering was made at the Mishkan (and later, at the Temple). This was the first fruit of the Spring barley harvest. This is the holiday of Reshit Chatzir.
> Haman was hanged. According to various Jewish authorities, the villain Haman was hanged on the gallows he had specifically prepared for Mordechai the Jew on this date.
>
> Yeshua was resurrected on Nisan 17. In 1 Cor. 15:20-23 Paul clearly links the firstfruit offering with the resurrection of Yeshua our Mashiach. Yeshua's resurrection was like a "wave offering" presented before the Father as the "firstfruits" of the harvest to come! Moreover, Yeshua presented His firstfruits offering to the Father on this day (Matt. 27:52-53). Yeshua is the first-begotten of the Father (Heb. 1:6); the Firstborn of Creation (Col. 1:15-16); the first-begotten of the dead (Rev. 1:5) and is the Firstfruits of those who are to be resurrected (1 Cor. 15:20-23). Baruch HaShem. And just as He is our Firstfruits, so "He chose to give us birth through the word of truth, that we might be a kind of first fruits of all he created" (James 1:18).

What about "Good Friday?"

Though the Gregorian calendar varies every year, originally Yeshua's suffering on the Cross would have been Thursday afternoon -- certainly not on "Good Friday." Moreover, His resurrection would have occured on the following Saturday night -- not on Sunday morning when the tomb was already found empty.... Nonetheless, the most important thing -- the matter of "first importance" -- is that Messiah 1) died for our sins; 2) was buried; and 3) was raised the third day (1 Cor. 15:3-4). Good people sometimes argue over the details but risk missing the greater point. Yeshua completely atoned for our sins and His resurrection validated that God the Father accepted His sacrifice. It was God the Father who raised Yeshua in victory (Gal. 1:1, Rom. 10:9), and those who trust in Him are justified by faith. Yeshua "was delivered for our offenses, and raised again for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). As Yeshua the Messiah said, "Because I am alive, you also will live" / כִּי־אֲנִי חַי וְכֵן גַּם־אַתֶּם תִּחְיוּן / ὅτι ἐγὼ ζῶ καὶ ὑμεῖς ζήσετε (John 14:19).

THE THREE MAJOR GREEK KEYS THAT UNLOCK THE GOSPELS

There are three Greek language keys that unlock the truth of the Gospels while solving the apparent contradiction between John and the other Gospel writers as to whether the Last Supper was the Passover or not. There is no question that the English translations of Matthew, Mark, and Luke seem to state that the Last Supper was the Passover. But one must remember that the Gospels were not originally written in English but in Greek. When Jewish idioms and Passover laws are considered along with original Greek scriptures, it's evident that the story told, after Rome disconnected from these Jewish understandings, is inaccurate. These language keys will help us get back to the truth.

The first key is the Greek subjunctive mood, which can imply doubt and uncertainty. The subjunctive mood is used every time Jesus refers to his actual eating of the Passover in the Greek language, but its use does not always carry over into the English translations of the Gospels. This seemingly small change has huge implications for accurately determining whether the Last Supper was the Passover or not.

The second key is the Greek dative of reference, which affects the meaning of Greek articles (a common article in English is "the"). In the English language, these Gospel accounts seem straightforward; yet in the original Greek language, the dative case brings additional shades of meaning. This is important because, as Greek scholar Daniel B. Wallace noted in Greek Grammar Beyond the Basics, one in seven words in the Greek scriptures is an article.

The third key is the Greek aorist tense, which Greek scholar Buist M. Fanning suggests is like a "snapshot" that "presents an occurrence in summary."[1]We will examine how such a snapshot helps us interpret Luke 22:7 in the proper light.

I realize that many readers are not versed in Greek, but please don't think "It's all Greek to me" or assume this will be too difficult. I'll explain these concepts in ways that those without Greek training can understand. So let's start right in with the first key…

[Advocates Thursday crucifixion and full 72 hours for 3 days & 3 nights]

THE REAL 3 DAYS & 3 NIGHTS

The focal point of all Christianity is the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ. However, it is the least understood of most all the scriptures. Most of Christianity does not know when Jesus was crucified and when he was resurrected from the dead. Most teach that Christ was crucified on a Friday and resurrected on the first day of the week at sunrise. Others, who are more conservative, look at such scriptures as Mat 12:40 and interpret this scripture that Christ must be dead and in the grave three days and three nights for a total of 72 hours -- and to make this fit, they teach that he was crucified on a Wednesday, put into the grave just before sundown, and resurrected three nights and three days later just before sundown on the Sabbath.

The first group has Jesus Christ being crucified in the year 33 A.D. The second group, using Hillel II for calculation, has Him crucified in the year 31 A.D. Neither is correct. I do not question the honesty of either group. However, the Bible is very plain as to what day of the week He was crucified and when He was resurrected from the dead.

NOTE: 1. The only authority for this paper is your bible. We have used the 26 translations of the new testament, plus the Fenton Bible, King James and revised King James translations.

NOTE: 2. We accept what Luke says in Luke 1:1-4, that he is writing an exact order of events and that he has several manuscripts before him of Matthew, Mark, and others of those who were with Christ. Luke is saying that THIS IS THE HARMONY OF THESE GOSPELS, i.e. the chronological order of things.

NOTE: 3. The book of John was written much later and John added to Luke the things that Luke and others had left out. I personally believe that John had the book of Luke in front of him at the time he wrote the book of John.

Careful examination of Luke will show you of his intent. It is important to understand that Luke gives us an orderly account of the crucifixion and resurrection. John fills in on important accounts about the crucifixion week that we also need to understand. John talks about (John 12:1) six days before the Passover, (WHICH IS THE FEAST OF PASSOVER). Jesus had a meal prepared and Mary had a pound of spikenard ointment and anointed his feet. This was on the 9th of Nisan which was a Sabbath (proof will be added later).

The next day Jesus was coming into Jerusalem, which was the 10th of Nisan (John 12:12). Many people saw Him entering Jerusalem and took palm branches and went forth to meet Him shouting, "Hosanna! Blessed is the king of the Jews." And Jesus found a young ass and sat upon it to fulfill scripture. This day was five days before the Feast, or the 10th OF THE FIRST MONTH, NISAN.

We all know that the Feast of Passover is on the 15th. We also know that the lamb without blemish was chosen and penned up on the 10th and then slain on the 14th in the afternoon, NOT in the night portion of the 14th. Check at Exodus l2:3-l8. The lamb was slain on the afternoon of the 14th and blood was put on the doorpost that evening. The Israelites stayed in until after the death angel passed through around midnight which is on the 15th, or the high holy Sabbath a MEMORIAL OF THE PASSING OVER.

There are 7 days of unleavened bread. The first day is a high Feast Sabbath, the 7th day is a High Sabbath Feast day. John refers to the Passover day as the Feast day. PASSOVER WAS THE FEAST DAY -- THE 15th OF NISAN. Now, counting back to the 10th from the 15th, makes the day Jesus came into Jerusalem 5 days before the Feast or the 10th of Nisan, the day they chose the King which is the VERY DAY that the Israelites chose the lamb without blemish to be slain on the afternoon of the 14th. The strewing or waving the palm branches down through all Christian writings has been called or referred to as PALM SUNDAY, the first day of the week.

NOTE: Those who believe in a Wednesday crucifixion have a problem -- 6 days before the Passover, if He was crucified on a Wednesday, would fall on a Friday. Thus Jesus would have had to enter the streets of Jerusalem riding on an ass on the SABBATH, a direct BREAKING of the Sabbath. Exodus 20:10 says all cattle and beasts of burden were also given a Sabbath of rest. Jesus never broke the Sabbath.

Now lets put the rest of the story together. JESUS CHRIST WAS CRUCIFIED ON A THURSDAY AND WAS RESURRECTED ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK "WHILE IT WAS YET DARK, AS IT BEGAN TO DAWN TOWARD THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK."

Lets look again at Luke 1. Note what Luke says in verse 4 "that we may know the certainty of what we have been instructed in." Now read the entire chapter of Luke 24 and study it very thoroughly. I am going to pull out the most important parts. Verse 1 of Luke 24 says it is the first day of the week (Sunday) and he tells about those who came to the grave to anoint the body and found two angels. They were afraid and the angels asked, "Why do you seek the living among the dead? :6 "How He spoke to you while He was yet in Galilee, saying, (and THIS IS IMPORTANT) "The son of man must be DELIVERED (#1) into the hands of sinful men (Gentiles), be CRUCIFIED (#2), and the third day RISE AGAIN." :8 - and They REMEMBERED.

Verse 13-14, Two of them traveling to Emmaus were talking together of all THESE THINGS. :15 Jesus came to them, but they did not recognize him, and asked them why they were sad. :18 And one of them whose name was Cleopas answered and said, "Are you a stranger and have you not known these things that have come to pass in these days?" Verse 19-21 are very important. Jesus said, "WHAT THINGS?" They answered and said, "THE THINGS CONCERNING JESUS of Nazareth who was a prophet mighty before GOD and all the people (:20) and how our chief priests and our rulers DELIVERED HIM up to be CONDEMNED to death and have CRUCIFIED Him. (:21) "Besides this, TODAY is the THIRD DAY since THESE THINGS were done.

NOTE: The HANDING into the hands of the Gentiles, the CONDEMNING to death, and the CRUCIFIXION all happened on the SAME DAY, THREE DAYS BEFORE. When you COUNT BACK from the first day of the week, Saturday would be ONE day back, Friday would be TWO days back, and Thursday would be THREE days back. Counting FORWARD from Thursday, Friday would be one day, Saturday would be the 2nd day, and SUNDAY would be the THIRD day.

Christ was crucified on THURSDAY the 14th of Nisan, the 15th of Nisan was on Friday, the High Sabbath, the 16th on weekly Sabbath, and Sunday was Nisan 17, day of the WAVE SHEAF OFFERING, which was the day when the priests harvested (FROM THE EARTH) the very first fruits of grain offering to the LORD. Jesus Christ (BEING HARVESTED FROM THE EARTH), now living, and ascending to the Father, IS THE WAVE SHEAF OFFERING; and it was ON the first day of the week.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Just about now a lot of you are saying, "Hey! What about Mat 12:40 and Mr. Armstrong says the guards were put there on Thursday?" Complete events of when the guards were placed will be discussed, BUT Christ asked them in Luke 24:19, "WHAT THINGS?" and they spelled out WHAT THINGS in detail. Mr. Armstrong did not understand the 3 days and 3 nights and had to have an answer for Luke 24 which was, if you please, ADDING to the scriptures.

In Mat 12:38-40 The scribes and Pharisees asked Jesus for a sign. He said unto them,"An evil and adulterous generation seeks after a sign and there shall no sign be given to it, but the sign of the prophet Jonah. For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the great fish, so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." NOTE what this does not say.

- 1. It does NOT say that He would be DEAD 3 days and 3 nights.
- 2. It does NOT say that He would be in the ROCK HEWN SEPULCHER 3 days and 3 nights, as H.W.A. booklet "Resurrection Not On Sunday: emphasizes.
- 3. It does NOT say IF He wasn't in the sepulcher 3 days and 3 nights He is not our Savior. All of these are man's interpretation of Matthew 12:40.

It all comes down to this; what does IN THE HEART OF THE EARTH mean? Jesus always talked to them in parables; never directly. This is a parable or a riddle and was THE SIGN to those Jews. And, believe it or not, they RECOGNIZED the 3 days and 3 nights. THEY KNEW THE SIGNS! And the signs MUST be shown. The problem has been that it has been a riddle in our day also to most all of the Biblical scholars, but NOT ALL.

To find the 3 days and 3 nights we have to show the start and show the finish. If Christ gave them a sign, THEY had to recognize it. H.W.A. booklet makes an assumption that He was resurrected on the Sabbath. He did not show the beginning or the end signs of the 3 days and 3 nights. HE ASSUMED. YOU CANNOT BUILD A DOCTRINE ON ONE SCRIPTURE. ALL SCRIPTURES MUST COME INTO PLAY.

If we want to answer this question we have to let the Bible interpret the Bible (Isaiah 28:9-23). Luke says that the start of the events of the 3 days and 3 nights have to start at the time He was HANDED into the hands of sinful men (Gentiles) EARTHY. The Jews were not of this WORLD; the gentiles WERE (earthy). And also, understand, we have to start with a day portion, NOT a night portion. Jesus said THREE DAYS and THREE NIGHTS, NOT 3 nights and 3 days.

Jonah was thrown overboard some time in the early hours just as daybreak started (Jonah 1). John the 18th and 19th chapters gives us the KEY. Jesus was taken captive by the Jews in the early hour of the morning BEFORE THE COCK CROWS. Then the Jews had a trial in chapter 18. The Jews knew what hour they handed him to Pilate and they were aware of the beatings and the scourgings, and of Pilate's edict of crucifixion.

Verse 14. And it was the PREPARATION of the Passover, and about the sixth hour. He said, "Behold your King!" John here uses Roman time (12 midnight & 12 noon) This is the only place in all scripture where Roman time is given. The synoptics and other manuscripts use Hebrew reckoning "beginning with sunrise." Jesus had been DELIVERED into Pilate's hands ALMOST AN HOUR BEFORE. Go back and read Luke 24. Remember Luke 24:7. The Son of man must be DELIVERED into the hands of sinful men, lst event, and be CRUCIFIED, 2nd event. Verse 20 says to be CONDEMNED to death.

We start to unravel the parable here. The Jews were involved with the START of the SIGN, when they handed Him into the hands of the Gentiles. The clock is started from THIS POINT. To answer Mat 12:40 we have to use the rest of the Bible. Things HAPPENED to Christ, BEFORE and AFTER He was CRUCIFIED and while He was on the CROSS (or STAKE), that HAPPENED to JONAH IN

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

THE BELLY OF THE GREAT FISH. The REEDS wrapped around his head = the CROWN OF THORNS on Jesus' head. The prayer that Jonah prayed, Jonah 2:1-9, Psalms 18:5-7. Read all of Psa 18:1-24. All of this happened while Jesus was on the cross that also happened to Jonah IN THE BELLY of the great fish. Now for the FINAL Truth.

Mat 27:62-66 The Jews, chief Priests, and Pharisees went to Pilate on the High Sabbath (the day after the day of preparation), saying, "Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, 'After three days I will rise again.' Command that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day." Pilate said, "You have your watch; make it as sure as you can." So they went, and made the sepulcher sure, SEALING the stone, and setting a guard.

Question: Don't you know those Jews made sure that Jesus' body was in the tomb? You better BELIEVE they did! They opened up the grave and made sure His body was there before they sealed it. They knew it was in the grave when the seal was put on and they made sure the watch understood that they were to remain into the third day -- and the watch was still there into the THIRD day NOT the fourth day. Read chapter 28:11.

Some of the guards came into the city and told the chief priests all the things that had happened at the grave site. Those Jews RECOGNIZED THE SIGN, because it was EXACTLY 72 HOURS BEFORE THE EARTHQUAKE WHEN THEY HANDED JESUS INTO THE HANDS OF THE GENTILES. They (the guard) were paid to state a falsehood. The ANGELS and the EARTHQUAKE were the END SIGN TO THOSE JEWS.

The three days and three nights, then, began from the time he was HANDED over to Pilate -- which started AS IT BEGAN TO DAWN on Thursday morning the 14th of Nisan, the DAY portion. It INCLUDES the trial before Pilate, the scourgings and beatings, being condemned to death, being crucified, the crown of thorns, all of His prayers while He was on the cross--with His final prayer, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?, The time while He was being prepared for burial before the High Sabbath; all of Thursday (day portion of 14th), Thursday night, Friday (15th), Friday night, Saturday (16th), and Saturday night up to the earthquake WHILE IT WAS YET DARK (John 20:1)on Sunday (Nisan 17), "As it began to dawn toward the first day of the week (Matt. 28:1). EXACTLY 3 DAYS and 3 NIGHTS!

We have shown when Jesus came into Jerusalem on the 1st day of crucifixion week, which was the 10th of Nisan, counting forward Jesus Christ was crucified on a Thursday. We have also shown counting back from resurrection day, the 1st day of the week, that Jesus was crucified on a Thursday, the 5th day of the week. All are Biblical and are irrefutable answers to the time of events that occurred from Nisan 9 through Nisan 17.

Let us now look at all the rest of the scriptures referring to 'after the third day, or the third day'. MAT 16:21. From that time Jesus began to show to His disciples that He must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders and chief Priests and scribes and be killed and raised the THIRD DAY.

MAT 20:18-19. "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be betrayed to the chief priests and to the scribes; and they will condemn Him to death, and DELIVER Him to the Gentiles to mock and to scourge and to CRUCIFY. And the THIRD DAY HE WILL RISE AGAIN."

MARK 8:31 And He began to teach them that the Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and after THREE DAYS rise again.

MARK 9:31 For He taught His disciples and said to them, "The Son of Man is being DELIVERED into the hands of men, and they will KILL Him. And after He is killed, He will rise the THIRD DAY."

LUKE 9:22 "The Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised the THIRD DAY."

LUKE 18:31-33 Then He took the twelve aside and said to them, "Behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of Man will be accomplished. For He will be DELIVERED to the Gentiles and will be mocked and insulted and spit upon. And they will scourge Him and put Him to death. And the THIRD DAY He will rise again."

LUKE 24:7 saying,'The Son of Man must be DELIVERED into the hands of sinful men, and be CRUCIFIED, and the THIRD DAY RISE AGAIN.'"

1st CORINTHIANS 15:3-4 For I delivered to you first of all, what I also received, that Christ died for our sins ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES, and that He was buried, and that He rose again the third day, ACCORDING TO THE SCRIPTURES.

ALL OF THESE AGREE WITH --- Luke 24:19-21. And He (Jesus) said unto them, "WHAT THINGS?" And they said unto Him, "The THINGS CONCERNING JESUS of Nazareth, who was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, and how the chief priests and our rulers DELIVERED Him to be CONDEMNED to death, and CRUCIFIED Him. But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, TODAY IS THE THIRD DAY SINCE THESE THINGS HAPPENED."

Now for some questions:

- 1. What about Daniel 9:27, which some have taught means Christ was cut off in the middle of the week?

This DOES NOT refer to Jesus Christ at all. It refers to the prince who is to come, the peacemaker in the Middle-East who will make a peace treaty with Israel. Notice verse 25 and 26. The Messiah will be cut off at the END OF THE SEVEN WEEKS AND 62 WEEKS; NOT in the middle of the 70th week. 7 weeks plus 62 weeks makes 69 WEEKS. This 70 weeks of Daniel have been totally misunderstood by a lot of Biblical teachers. We still have one week on Jerusalem, the Holy City, and the Jews, to be fulfilled. (We have literature on this subject. Please write for it).

- 2. But I thought the spices were bought on Friday?

For the answer, look at Luke 23:52. This man, Joseph of Arimathea, went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Vs.54 then he took it down, wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a tomb that was hewn out of rock where no one had laid before. That day was the preparation and the Sabbath drew near, Vs 55 and the women who had come with him from Galilee followed after and THEY OBSERVED HOW THE BODY WAS LAID. Then they returned and prepared spices and fragrant oil and rested the Sabbath days according to the commandments.

- 3. If the guards were set already on the grave, how could the women have observed the body on Friday?

They OBSERVED the body the day He was crucified. They BOUGHT THE SPICES the day He was crucified. They PREPARED the spices the day He was crucified. NOTE 1: Mat 28:1. Now after the Sabbath (should read after the Sabbaths, plural). There was a High Sabbath on Friday and regular weekly Sabbath on Saturday. NOTE 2: Mark 16:1 is given most correctly in the King James; HAD BOUGHT. They bought the spices on the day of preparation, the day Jesus was crucified NOTE 3: All through the scriptures the preparation day refers to the preparation of the Passover, NOT the weekly Sabbath.

Finally, what all of this really means is we are today NOT using the same calendar that was used in Jesus' day. THEY were observing New Moons. Today we have been observing Hillel II, a Jewish priest, who in 358 A.D. not only calculated the Holy Days, but also MANIPULATED these calculations so that we could NEVER have two HOLY Days in a row in the Days of Unleavened Bread or on the Day of Atonement.

All of this manipulation has, for the last 1500 years, covered up the true day of the crucifixion and aided, in recient times, to the wrong interpretation of Mat 12:40.

I personally feel that NO MAN has the authority to MANIPULATE the Holy Day calendar or to COVER UP the actual crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ; because THAT IS what has taken place. All other scriptures referring to the THIRD DAY agree and coincide with Luke. If you have any questions or there is something I have missed, I am open to your comments.

The following graph depicts not only what the Hebrew Bible would say was the chronology (with respect to the "Sabbath" of 15 Nisan), but, in keeping with Jesus's allusion to Jonah in the Hebrew Bible, Jesus was in the grave for three days and three nights, if we use the Hebrew Bible's interpretation of what happened to Jonah.

Why the Saturday Resurrection Theory Is False, and Why It Matters.

Those who teach the Saturday resurrection usually believe in a Wednesday crucifixion (which they believe was the 14th day that year). They are not always clear on whether they believe the last supper was the Passover or not (my book makes it clear that it was not). The Saturday resurrection option is popular among those who understand that Jewish law would never have Jesus crucified on the holy 15th-day high Sabbath, but this Saturday option falls short of the scriptures because of the reasons listed below:

1. No early historian even mentions a Saturday resurrection*, because all of the sides in the early disputes agreed on the Sunday resurrection. Several early doctrinal disputes did arise between Roman Christians and Messianic Jewish believers, and the "Setting the Table 1" chapter of The Messianic Feast documents some of these disputes. The Messianic Fourteenthers (i.e., those early Jewish believers who were called this because they understood that Jesus was crucified on the 14th day) wrote of a Sunday resurrection, as did those called Church Fathers in Rome. Although early Jewish believers disputed the Roman concept of a 15th-day crucifixion and other Roman beliefs, both sides in these early doctrinal disputes wrote of and agreed on the Sunday resurrection.

2. Paul called Jesus the "first fruits" because his resurrection on Sunday (the morrow of the Sabbath) fulfilled this offering (Leviticus 23:10–14; 1 Corinthians 15:20, 23). Early church writer Clement of Alexandria (a Fourteenther who understood that Jesus was crucified on the 14th day) wrote that the resurrection was on the morrow of the Sabbath (i.e., Sunday), when the priest was to offer up this sheaf of the first fruits. In the following quote, Clement shows how Christ fulfilled this offering: "He certainly rose on the third day, which fell on the first day of the weeks of harvest, on which the law prescribed that the priest should offer up the sheaf" (click here for full quote in book, on p.381). Forcing a Saturday Sabbath resurrection would render Christ as our "day-early first-fruits" offering. (See also: Feast of Firstfruits / Counting of the Orem)

3. Those who teach this Saturday resurrection usually believe in a Wednesday crucifixion, but this would make Sunday the fourth day since Jesus was delivered up, condemned, and crucified instead of the third day since "these things" happened (Luke 24:1, 19–21; John 20:1). Jesus said he would be in the heart of the earth for three days and three nights (Matthew 12:40). He did not mean to the exact second, but that he would be in the tomb for a portion of three different days and nights. The occurrence of the Last Supper on late Wednesday and the crucifixion on Thursday fit this perfectly. He was in the tomb for a portion of Thurs-day, Fri-day, and Satur-day, and for a portion of Friday nighttime, Saturday nighttime, and Sunday nighttime (Sunday nighttime started at sundown on Saturday). The Wednesday crucifixion with a Saturday resurrection would have Jesus in the tomb for a portion of four days—Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. This Saturday option does not fit the scriptures, and the Messiah said the scriptures cannot be broken (John 10:35). There is no Greek variant in these verses that would change this timing.

4. Some say that the Saturday resurrection is the only way to fulfill the three days and three nights exactly by having the Messiah resurrected late Saturday afternoon, exactly 72 hours after he entered the "heart of the earth" (Matthew 12:40). But the Jews did not have stopwatches or atomic clocks to mark exact times, so when Jesus said "three days and three nights," he did not mean exactly 72 hours to the minute. In the Old Testament interpretation, even a portion of a day or night counted as the whole day (such as for ritual cleansings). Jesus said he would be in the "heart of the earth" for three days and three nights just as Jonah was in the whale, and no proof exists that Jonah fulfilled this timing to the exact minute.

5. Jesus also said he would be killed and arise from the dead on the third day (Matthew 16:21 and Luke 24:7), meaning the third day after he was killed. The scriptures are clear that the Thursday scourging and crucifixion fulfills this, where Friday is the first day since, and Saturday is the second day since, and as the disciples are walking on Sunday it is the "third day since these things happened" (which is exactly what the scriptures prove in Luke 24:1, 19–21).

6. The Saturday resurrection option rejects Mark 16:9, which states (in Greek) that Jesus arose early on the first day of the week—our Sunday. Also, if Jesus had arisen on Saturday, why would he have waited more than twelve hours (until the following day) to reveal himself? Some say that the scripture in Matthew 28:1, translated as "in the end of the Sabbath" by the King James Version, shows a Saturday resurrection. But the Greek actually says "after the Sabbaths," with the plural "Sabbaths" probably referring to the 15-day Sabbath (Friday that year) and the Saturday Sabbath that followed it.

7. Luke 24:1 and John 20:1 show Mary Magdalene and the others leaving very early in the morning (while it was still dark) with spices to anoint the body. If Jesus had been crucified on Wednesday, why would these women have risen and left home in the darkness of Sunday morning when they had all day Friday to complete this task? After all, if the 14th-day crucifixion was Wednesday and the 15th-day Sabbath was Thursday, then Friday would not have been a Sabbath—and that would have been the obvious time to anoint the body, rather than waiting until the fourth day when decay would have set in.

8. Mark 16:1 specifies that the women "bought" the spices and were now coming to anoint the body. Therefore, they probably purchased the spices right after the crucifixion (as Thursday the 14th day was ending) and before the 15th-day high Sabbath set in, as Luke makes clear (23:55, 56). It would also have been legal to make this purchase anytime after sundown of the Saturday Sabbath.

9. The proof for the Sunday resurrection is quite strong; it is the only possible way to fit the template challenge for this Jewish feast (see link here), whereby all of the scriptural time keys harmonize and make sense. While it is true that when Mary Magdalene and the others arrived early Sunday morning, Jesus had already arisen, it must be remembered that anytime after sundown on Saturday would then be Sunday.

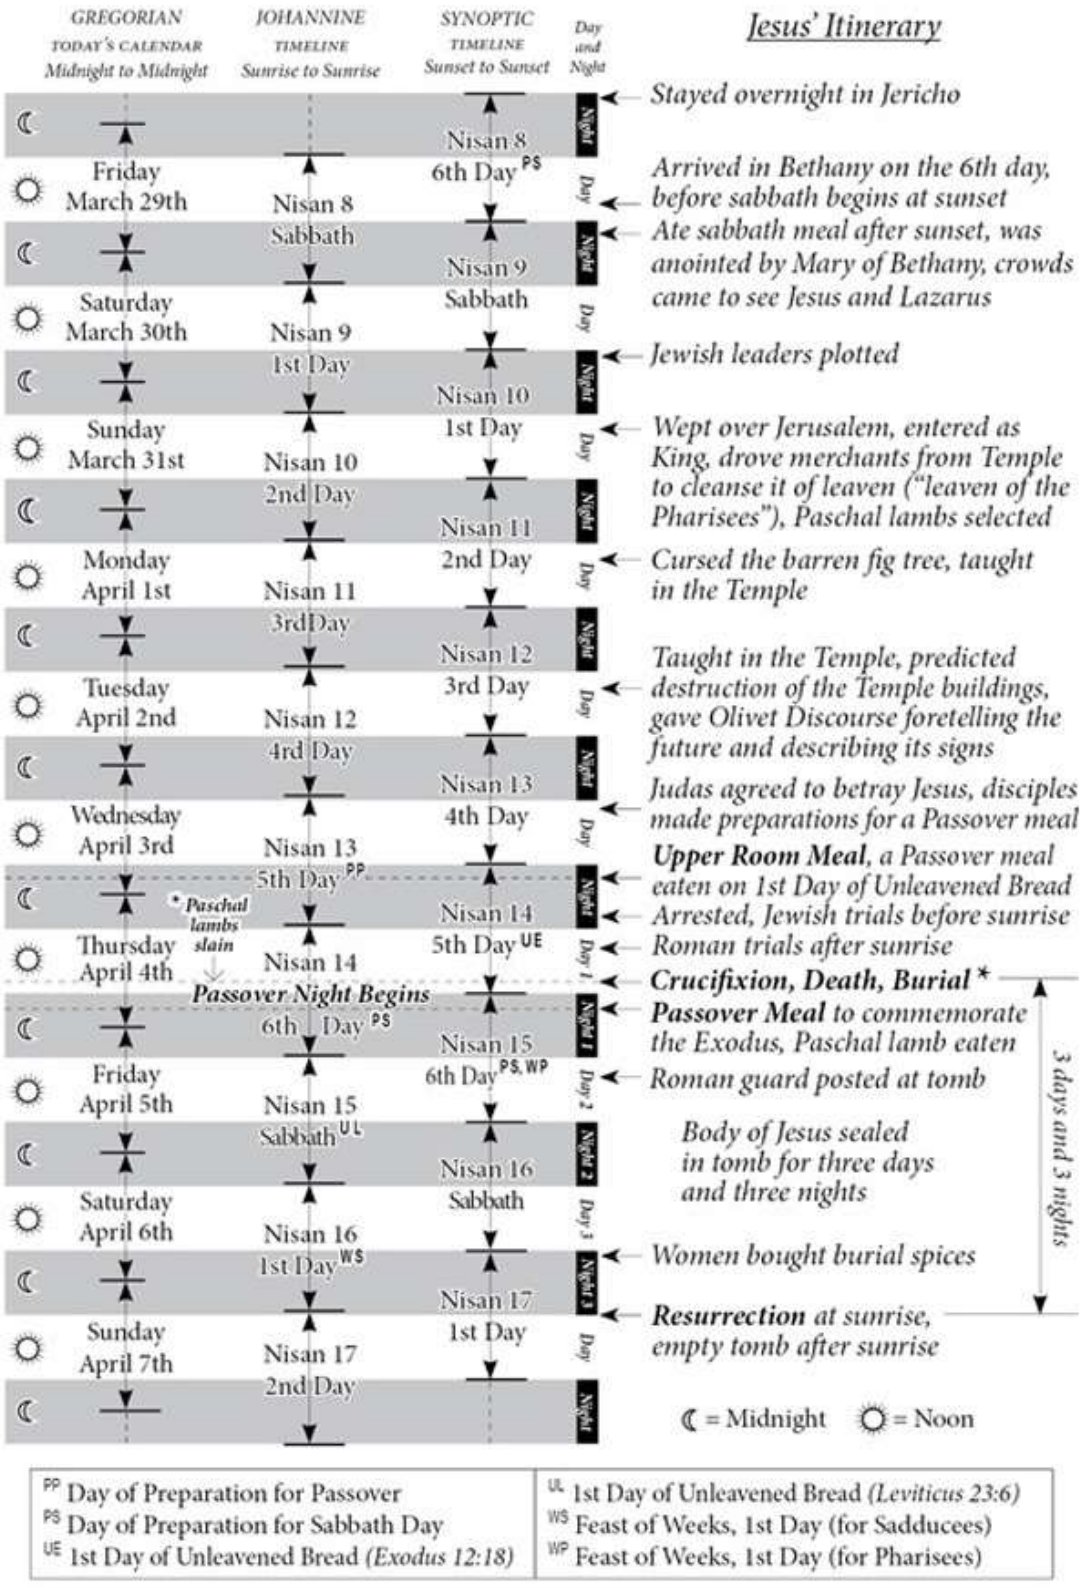
10. Any option that does not have Jesus eating the Passover at the last supper would still have to explain Matthew 26:17, Mark 14:12, and Luke 22:7, which on the surface appear to show it was the Passover. The "Three Major Greek Keys That Unlock the Gospels" chapter lists what I believe is the proper way to interpret these scriptures, using the accepted rules of Greek grammar.

Conclusion: To believe the Saturday resurrection, we therefore have to believe that the apostles and the early Messianic Jews did a horrible job of teaching and handing down the supposed truth of a Saturday resurrection, because both sides (the Messianic Jewish believers and the Roman Christians) fully agreed on the Sunday resurrection.



Why it even matters: There are many reasons why it matters whether Jesus (Yeshua) was raised from the dead on Saturday or Sunday. For one thing, the Messiah said to buy the truth and sell it not. Truth is always important; oftentimes it builds out bigger truths that can only happen correctly if the smaller foundational truths you build upon are in fact true. The Sunday resurrection fits with a Thursday crucifixion (where Sunday is the 3rd day since all "these things happened"—i.e., arrest, trial, and crucifixion—Luke 24:1, 18, 19, 21). This then opens the door to understanding that Jesus was crucified on the 14th day in which the lambs were offered up, which then proves that his final supper the night before could not possibly have been a Passover. This then opens one's eyes to the fact that they were eating regular leavened bread at this meal (all of the Greek scriptures show this as Course 1 proves linked here). And finally, this proves that the unleavened-bread Communion ritual handed down by Rome was not what Jesus or the early Messianic Jews taught or believed, which then helps us to see what the Messiah really meant in his vitally important parables at the last supper. This is all explained in my book, The Messianic Feast: Moving Beyond the Ritual.

Significance of Nissan (or Nisan) 17

OTHER EVENTS OCCURRING ON THE DAY OF FIRSTFRUITS

Date	Event
Nisan 17	Noah's Ark safely rested on Mt. Ararat (Gen. 8:4)
Nisan 17	Hebrews entered Egypt (Exod. 12:40-41) 430 years before deliverance.
Nisan 17	Moses led the Israelites through the Parting of the Red Sea (Exod. 3:18; 5:3)
Nisan 17	Day of Firstfruits, Israel entered and ate the fruits of the Promised Land (Joshua 5:10-12)
Nisan 17	The Walls of Jericho (Joshua 5:13)
Nisan 17	The Cleansing of the Temple by Hezekiah (eight hundred years after entering the promised land) (2 Chron. 29:1-28)
Nisan 17	Queen Esther saved Hebrews from elimination (Esther 3:12; 5:1)
Nisan 17	The Resurrection of the Messiah

The odds of just two of these events all happening on the same day of the Hebrew year (360 days) are one in 129,000.

The odds of these events all happening on the same day of the Hebrew year are one in 783 quadrillion, 864 trillion, 876 billion, 960 million (783,864,876,960,000,000). (Fraie 1993)

Of course, assumes that Nisan 17 fell on the first day of the week during year Jesus was crucified and resurrected.

Nisan 17 in Jewish History

According to the Torah and traditional Jewish interpretation, other events that occurred on Nisan 17 include the following:

Noah's Flood Ended: Gen. 8:4. Note that the seventh month was later designated as the first month at the time of the Exodus (Ex. 12:2). Our new creation in Messiah began on the anniversary of the rebirth of the world.

Israel Crossed the Red Sea: Some sages believe that Israel crossed Yam Suf on this date. They reason that from the crossing of the sea to the arrival at Sinai was 47 days (Ex. 19). Three days later would mark the 50th day as the original occasion of Shavuot and the commemoration of the giving of the Torah.

The Wave Sheaf offering was made at the Mishkan (and later, at the Temple). This was the first fruit of the Spring barley harvest. This is the holiday of Reshit Chatzir.

Haman was hanged. According to various Jewish authorities, the villain Haman was hanged on the gallows he had specifically prepared for Mordechai the Jew on this date.

Yeshua was resurrected on Nisan 17. In 1 Cor. 15:20-23 Paul clearly links the firstfruit offering with the resurrection of Yeshua our Mashiach. Yeshua's resurrection was like a "wave offering" presented before the Father as the "firstfruits" of the harvest to come! Moreover, Yeshua presented His firstfruits offering to the Father on this day (Matt. 27:52-53). Yeshua is the first-begotten of the Father (Heb. 1:6); the Firstborn of Creation (Col. 1:15-16); the first-begotten of the dead (Rev. 1:5) and is the Firstfruits of those who are to be resurrected (1 Cor. 15:20-23). Baruch HaShem. And just as He is our Firstfruits, so "He chose to give us birth through the word of truth, that we might be a kind of first fruits of all he created" (James 1:18).

Background Information

With the end of the Sabbath at sunset on Saturday, the shops would reopen and the women would be able to buy burial spices to anoint Jesus' body (Mark 16:1). The women came to the tomb hoping to complete Joseph's work (see 15:42-47; John 19:39-40). Their purpose was not to embalm the body, but to alleviate the stench that a decaying body would create. The women were clearly not anticipating Jesus' resurrection, so attempts to explain Jesus' resurrection appearances to them as hallucinations are unconvincing. The psychological conditions required for such hallucinations were lacking. Even the empty tomb would fail to convince them that Jesus had been raised from the dead (John 20:2,11-15).

spices. Embalming was not practiced by the Jews. These spices were brought as an act of devotion and love

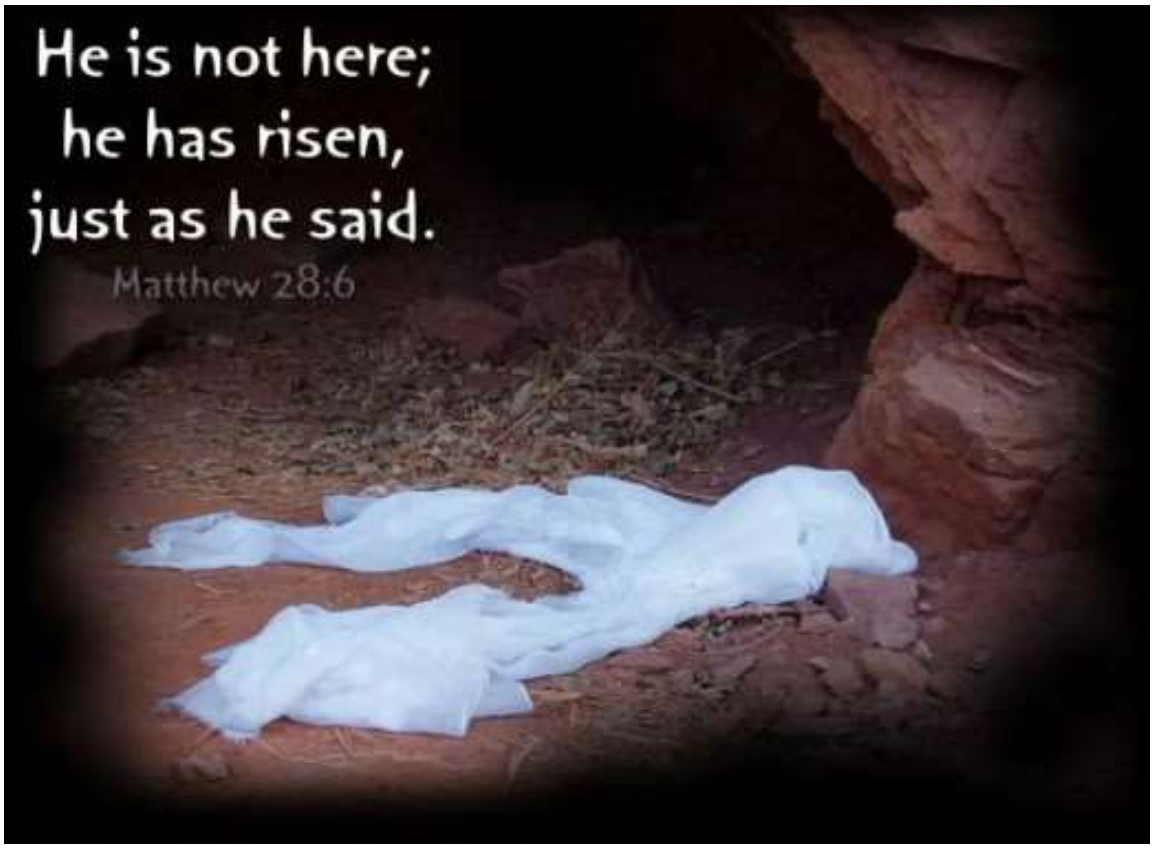
Sabbath ended at nightfall on Saturday. The shops would have been open then, so the women could have bought the spices needed for burial. To embalm the body of Jesus they had to wait until it was daylight on Sunday morning (known ever since to Christians as 'the Lord's day'). These preparations are the strongest proof that even Jesus' closest disciples were not expecting the resurrection and so would not have made the story up. Why did they buy spices or come to embalm him, if they believed that he was going to rise? Why worry about moving the stone from the door? (Mark 16:3). If Jesus had not risen, this stone would have been a real problem. The women knew well which tomb Jesus had been laid in (Mark 15:47); there was no chance of any mistake. They must have known how heavy the stone was and that three women would have been unable to move it. (Preparations for burial were usually done by women).
[Source: New Bible Commentary]



The Sabbath ended at sundown Saturday evening; as soon as daylight breaks (by 6 a.m. at this time of year) these women head for the tomb. (In popular superstition, night was dangerous due to the predominance of demons at that time, but the women probably do not travel at night because it would be too hard to find the tomb, which was outside the city walls on unfamiliar terrain.) Spices may not have been used for everyone but were often used for the bodies of special persons (e.g., Herod). They reduced the immediate stench of rapid decomposition in the normally hot Mediterranean days. After one day and two nights, the women could expect that the body would already stink. But Jerusalem is over two thousand feet above sea level and is cool enough in April that in a sealed tomb the body would have still been approachable.

Part of the reason for the apostles' unbelief (when the women reported back to that the tomb was empty) is that a resurrection of this nature contradicted their messianic expectations; another reason may have been that many men considered the witness of women nearly worthless, because they regarded women as unstable and undependable. (These opinions appear, e.g, in Josephus , Jewish Antiquities 4.219 and Justinian, Institutes 2.10.6, as well as Mishnah Yevamot 15:1, 8-10; 16:7 ; Ketubbot 1:6-9 ; Tosefta Yevamot 14:10 ; Sifra Vayyiqura Dibura Dehobah pq. 7.45.1.1.)

Historicity of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ

Theft by Disciples
Probably the earliest fabrication explaining the empty tomb of Jesus was the lie that the disciples stole the body of Jesus from the tomb. Matthew 28:11-15 says:

Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, saying, “Tell them, ‘His disciples came at night and stole Him while we slept.’ And if this comes to the governor’s ears, we will appease him and make you secure.” So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

Could the disciples have stolen the body of Jesus? Is this explanation valid? There are several problems with this view.

First, the tomb of Jesus was well guarded. There were possibly four to sixteen Roman soldiers protecting the tomb of Jesus. Each Roman soldier was trained to protect six feet of ground. Four men would be placed in front of what they were to protect, while the other twelve would sleep in a semi-circle in front of them with their heads pointed in towards the other guards. To steal the body of Jesus, the disciples would have had to walk pass the sleeping Roman soldiers without waking them, and then fight off the other four experienced soldiers, move the huge stone, steal the body of Jesus, and leave the graveclothes, and then somehow slip past the guards with the body of Jesus.

Second, the Roman soldiers were bribed to tell the story that the disciples came and stole the body. Why would the chief priests pay this bribe to the Roman soldiers? They had to be bribed because by telling a lie they would be putting their lives on the line. The Roman soldiers knew that to say that they were asleep when they should have been awake doing their duty would be to incriminate themselves. The penalty for a Roman soldier who slept while on guard was death. That is why the chief priests say that if the news reached the governor’s ears, they would appease him and make the soldiers secure. The fact that the soldiers were accountable ultimately to Governor Pilate shows that these were Roman soldiers and not just some Jewish temple police who were guarding the tomb of Jesus.

Third, the Roman soldiers could not have known that the disciples stole the body of Jesus if they were sleeping. How could sleeping soldiers know what happened? Also, would it be likely that all of the Roman soldiers would sleep at the same time? Probably not. How could they not have heard the disciples move the huge stone that was placed in front of the entrance to the tomb of Jesus? Their story was contradictory.

Finally, the disciples were not in a psychological state to try to steal the body of Jesus from the tomb. The disciples fled from Jesus when he was arrested in the garden of Gethsemane. Peter denied that he knew Jesus. On the Sunday night after Jesus was crucified, the disciples were behind locked doors and not out in the open. Why? They were afraid of the Jews (John 20:19).

Theft by the Authorities
This theory doesn’t make sense. If the Jewish or Roman authorities had the body of Jesus, why did they bribe the guards to accuse the disciples of stealing it (Matt 28:11-15)? They could have stopped the resurrection story cold by simply producing the body of Jesus and showing it around Jerusalem. Instead, the Jewish authorities scolded the apostles for filling Jerusalem with their teaching, arrested them, and beat them (cf. Acts 3-5). They became so upset with Stephen that they stoned him to death (Acts 7).

… A few years ago I participated in a debate on the resurrection of Jesus with a professor at the University of California, Irvine. He had written his doctoral dissertation on the resurrection, and he was thoroughly familiar with the evidence. He could not deny the facts of Jesus' honorable burial, empty tomb, post-mortem appearances, and the origin of the disciples' belief in the resurrection. So his only recourse was to come up with some alternate explanation of those facts. And so he argued that Jesus of Nazareth had an unknown, identical twin brother, who was separated from him as an infant and grew up independently, but who came back to Jerusalem at the time of the crucifixion, stole Jesus' body out of the tomb, and presented himself to the disciples, who mistakenly inferred that Jesus was risen from the dead! Now I won't bother to go into how I went about refuting this theory. But I think the example is illustrative of the desperate lengths to which skepticism must go in order to refute the evidence for the resurrection of Jesus. Indeed, the evidence is so powerful that one of the world's leading Jewish theologians, the late Pinchas Lapide, who taught at Hebrew University in Israel, declared himself convinced on the basis of the evidence that the God of Israel raised Jesus of Nazareth from the dead!

I. A summary of the false theories of the Resurrection of Jesus

Theory	Explanation	Refutation
Passover Plot Hugh Schonfield	Jesus planned to fulfill the Old Testament prophecies of both suffering servant and ruling king through a mock death and resurrection. Joseph of Arimathea and a mysterious "young man" were co-conspirators. The plot went bad when the soldier speared Jesus, who later died. The "risen Lord" was the young man.	1. The guard posted at the tomb is ignored in Schonfield's theory. 2. The basis of the theory is faulty. The resurrection myths on which Jesus supposedly based his plot were not evident until the fourth century A.D. 3. Such a "resurrection" could not account for the dramatic change in the disciples. 4. All but four biblical witnesses are not accounted for, especially the five hundred eyewitnesses whom Paul spoke of as still living. 5. The whole plot of enduring crucifixion (and in doing so, alienating his national supporters) seems unlikely.
(Swoon) 18th-cent. Rationalists	Jesus did not die on the cross; he fainted from exhaustion. The cold temperature and spices revived him.	1. Medical science has proved that Jesus could not have survived the scourging and crucifixion. 2. Could this nearly dead Jesus make an impression as the risen Lord?
Body Stolen by the Disciples Jews	The disciples stole the body while the guards were sleeping.	1. If the guards were sleeping, how did they know that the disciples stole the body? 2. Severe penalties, even death, would be the result of sleeping on duty. The highly disciplined guard would thus not have slept. 3. There is no way that the disciples could possibly overcome the guard. 4. It is preposterous to believe that the disciples died for a lie that they created.
Existential Resurrection Rudolf Bultmann	A historical resurrection is not necessary. The Christ of faith need not be bound to the historical Jesus. Rather, Christ is raised in our hearts.	The early disciples were convinced by historical events. They claimed to base their faith on what they saw, not on an existential need nor an a priori faith (Luke 24:33-35; 1 Cor. 15:3-8).
	The body of Jesus was buried in a common pit	1. Not all criminals were buried in a common pit.

Excerpt From: http://www.peterkreeft.com/topics-more/resurrection-evidence.htm
(Evidence for Resurrection -- discussing the five possible theories: Christianity, hallucination, myth, conspiracy and swoon.)

Conclusions: More Objections Answered

No alternative to a real resurrection has yet explained: the existence of the Gospels, the origin of the Christian faith, the failure of Christ's enemies to produce his corpse, the empty tomb, the rolled-away stone, or the accounts of the post-resurrection appearances. Swoon, conspiracy, hallucination and myth have been shown to be the only alternatives to a real resurrection, and each has been refuted. What reasons could be given at this point for anyone who still would refuse to believe? At this point, general rather than specific objections are usually given. For instance:

Objection 1: History is not an exact science. It does not yield absolute certainty like mathematics.
Reply: This is true, but why would you note that fact now and not when you speak of Caesar or Luther or George Washington? History is not exact, but it is sufficient. No one doubts that Caesar crossed the Rubicon; why do many doubt that Jesus rose from the dead? The evidence for the latter is much better than for the former.

Objection 2: You can't trust documents. Paper proves nothing. Anything can be forged.
Reply: This is simply ignorance. Not trusting documents is like not trusting telescopes. Paper evidence suffices for most of what we believe; why should it suddenly become suspect here?

Objection 3: Because the resurrection is miraculous. It's the content of the idea rather than the documentary evidence for it that makes it incredible.
Reply: Now we finally have a straightforward objection—not to the documentary evidence but to miracles. This is a philosophical question, not a scientific, historical or textual question. (See chapter five in this book for an answer).

Objection 4: It's not only miracles in general but this miracle in particular that is objectionable. The resurrection of a corpse is crass, crude, vulgar, literalistic and materialistic. Religion should be more spiritual, inward, ethical.
Reply: If religion is what we invent, we can make it whatever we like. If it is what God invented, then we have to take it as we find it, just as we have to take the universe as we find it, rather than as we'd like it to be. Death is crass, crude, vulgar, literal and material. The resurrection meets death where it is and conquers it, rather than merely spouting some harmless, vaporous abstractions about spirituality. The resurrection is as vulgar as the God who did it. He also made mud and bugs and toenails.

Objection 5: But a literalistic interpretation of the resurrection ignores the profound dimensions of meaning found in the symbolic, spiritual and mythic realms that have been deeply explored by other religions. Why are Christians so narrow and exclusive? Why can't they see the profound symbolism in the idea of resurrection?
Reply: They can. It's not either-or. Christianity does not invalidate the myths, it validates them, by incarnating them. It is "myth become fact," to use the title of a germane essay by C.S. Lewis (in God in the Dock). Why prefer a one-layer cake to a two-layer cake? Why refuse either the literal-historical or the mythic-symbolic aspects of the resurrection? The Fundamentalist refuses the mythic-symbolic aspects because he has seen what the Modernist has done with it: used it to exclude the literalhistorical aspects. Why have the Modernists done that? What terrible fate awaits them if they follow the multifarious and weighty evidence and argument that naturally emerges from the data, as we have summarized it here in this chapter?

The answer is not obscure: traditional Christianity awaits them, complete with adoration of Christ as God, obedience to Christ as Lord, dependence on Christ as Savior, humble confession of sin and a serious effort to live Christ's life of self-sacrifice, detachment from the world, righteousness, holiness and purity of thought, word and deed. The historical evidence is massive enough to convince the open-minded inquirer. By analogy with any other historical event, the resurrection has eminently credible evidence behind it. To disbelieve it, you must deliberately make an exception to the rules you use everywhere else in history. Now why would someone want to do that?

Ask yourself that question if you dare, and take an honest look into your heart before you answer.

The Case for the Resurrection (Part 1 of 2)

The Case for the Resurrection (Part 1)

www.ColdCaseChristianity.com www.str.org

Did Jesus Really Die on the Cross?

1. Many first-century and early second-century unfriendly Roman sources (i.e., Thallus, Tacitus, Mara Bar-Serapion, and Phlegon) and Jewish sources (i.e., Josephus and the Babylonian Talmud) affirmed and acknowledged that Jesus was crucified and died.
2. The Roman guards faced death if they allowed a prisoner to survive crucifixion. Would they really be careless enough to remove a living person from a cross?
3. Jesus would have to control His blood loss from the beatings, crucifixion, and stabbing in order to survive, yet was pinned to the cross and unable to do anything that might achieve this.
4. Jesus displayed wounds following the resurrection but was never observed to behave as though He was wounded, in spite of the fact that He appeared only days after his beating, crucifixion, and stabbing.
5. Jesus disappeared from the historical record following His reported resurrection and ascension and was never sighted again (as one might expect if He recovered from His wounds and lived much beyond the young age of thirty-three).

Were the Disciples Lying About the Resurrection?

1. The Jewish authorities took many precautions to make sure the tomb was guarded and sealed, knowing that the removal of the body would allow the disciples to claim that Jesus had risen (Matt. 27:62–66).
2. The people local to the event would have known it was a lie (remember that Paul told the Corinthians in 1 Corinthians 15:3–8 that there were still five hundred people who could testify to having seen Jesus alive after His resurrection).
3. The disciples lacked the motive to create such a lie (more on this in chapter 14).
4. The disciples' transformation following the alleged resurrection is inconsistent with the claim that the appearances were only a lie. How could their own lies transform them into courageous evangelists?

Did the Disciples Hallucinate the Resurrection?

1. While individuals have hallucinations, there are no examples of large groups of people having the exact same hallucination.
2. While a short, momentary group hallucination may seem reasonable, long, sustained, and detailed hallucinations are unsupported historically and intuitively unreasonable.
3. The risen Christ was reported seen on more than one occasion and by a number of different groups (and subsets of groups). All of these diverse sightings would have to be additional group hallucinations of one nature or another.
4. Not all the disciples were inclined favorably toward such a hallucination. The disciples included people like Thomas, who was skeptical and did not expect Jesus to come back to life.
5. If the resurrection was simply a hallucination, what became of Jesus's corpse? The absence of the body is unexplainable under this scenario.

The Case for the Resurrection (Part 2 of 2)

The Case for the Resurrection (Part 2)

www.ColdCaseChristianity.com www.str.org

Were the Disciples Fooled by an Imposter?

1. The impersonator would have to be familiar enough with Jesus's mannerisms and statements to convince the disciples. The disciples knew the topic of the con better than anyone who might con them.
2. Many of the disciples were skeptical and displayed none of the necessary naïveté that would be required for the con artist to succeed.
3. The impersonator would need to possess miraculous powers; the disciples reported that the resurrected Jesus performed many miracles and "convincing proofs" (Acts 1:2–3).
4. Who would seek to start a world religious movement if not one of the hopeful disciples? This theory requires someone to be motivated to impersonate Jesus other than the disciples themselves.
5. This explanation also fails to account for the empty tomb or missing body of Jesus.

Were the Disciples Influenced by Limited Spiritual Sightings?

1. The theory fails to account for the numerous, divergent, and separate group sightings of Jesus that are recorded in the Gospels. These sightings are described specifically with great detail. It's not reasonable to believe that all these disciples could provide such specified detail if they were simply repeating something they didn't see for themselves.
2. As many as five hundred people were said to be available to testify to their observations of the risen Christ (1 Cor. 15:3–8). Could all of these people have been influenced to imagine their own observations of Jesus? It's not reasonable to believe that a persuader equally persuaded all these disciples even though they didn't actually see anything that was recorded.
3. This explanation also fails to account for the empty tomb or the missing corpse.

Were the Disciples' Observations Were Distorted Later?

1. In the earliest accounts of the disciples' activity after the crucifixion, they are seen citing the resurrection of Jesus as their primary piece of evidence that Jesus was God. From the earliest days of the Christian movement, eyewitnesses were making this claim.
2. The students of the disciples also recorded that the resurrection was a key component of the disciples' eyewitness testimony (more on this in chapter 13).
3. The earliest known Christian creed or oral record (as described by Paul in 1 Corinthians 15) includes the resurrection as a key component.
4. This explanation also fails to account for the fact that the tomb and body of Jesus have not been exposed to demonstrate that this late legend was false.

Were the Disciples Telling the Truth?

1. This explanation has only one liability: It requires a belief in the supernatural; a belief that Jesus had the supernatural power to rise from the dead in the first place.

Comparison (and attempted Harmonization) of Gospels regarding Jesus' Resurrection and Post-Resurrection Appearances, Beginning the Morning of the First Day of the Week (Sunday) thru the Ascension:

Luke / Acts	Matthew	Mark	John
[24:1] Now on the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they, and certain other women with them, came to the tomb bringing the spices which they had prepared.	[28:1] Now after the Sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came to see the tomb.	[16:1] Now when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, that they might come and anoint Him. [2] Very early in the morning, on the first day of the week, they came to the tomb when the sun had risen. [3] And they said among themselves, "Who will roll away the stone from the door of the tomb for us?"	[20:1] Now on the first day of the week Mary Magdalene went to the tomb early, while it was still dark,
[2] But they found the stone rolled away from the tomb.	[2] And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat on it.	[4] But when they looked up, they saw that the stone had been rolled away—for it was very large.
			and saw that the stone had been taken away from the tomb.
			[2] Then she ran and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and said to them, "They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid Him."
	[3] His countenance was like lightning, and his clothing as white as snow. [4] And the guards shook for fear of him, and became like dead men.
	[5] But the angel answered and said to the women, "Do not be afraid, for I know that you seek Jesus who was crucified.

		[5] And entering the tomb, they saw a young man clothed in a long white robe sitting on the right side; and they were alarmed.
	[6] “He is not here; for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.	[6] But he said to them, “Do not be alarmed. You seek Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He is risen! He is not here. See the place where they laid Him.
[3] Then they went in and did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. [4] And it happened, as they were greatly perplexed about this, that behold, two men stood by them in shining garments.
[5] Then, as they were afraid and bowed their faces to the earth, they said to them, “Why do you seek the living among the dead? [6] “He is not here, but is risen! Remember how He spoke to you when He was still in Galilee, [7] “saying, ‘The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.’” [8] And they remembered His words.
	[7] “And go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead, and indeed He is going before you into Galilee; there you will see Him. Behold, I have told you.”	[7] “But go, tell His disciples — and Peter — that He is going before you into Galilee; there you will see Him, as He said to you.”
	[8] So they went out quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy,	[8] So they went out quickly and fled from the tomb, for they trembled and were amazed.

		And they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.
	and ran to bring His disciples word.
			[3] Peter therefore went out, and the other disciple, and were going to the tomb. [4] So they both ran together, and the other disciple outran Peter and came to the tomb first. [5] And he, stooping down and looking in, saw the linen cloths lying there; yet he did not go in. [6] Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb; and he saw the linen cloths lying there, [7] and the handkerchief that had been around His head, not lying with the linen cloths, but folded together in a place by itself. [8] Then the other disciple, who came to the tomb first, went in also; and he saw and believed. [9] For as yet they did not know the Scripture, that He must rise again from the dead. [10] Then the disciples went away again to their own homes.
		[9] Now when He rose early on the first day of the week, He appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom He had cast seven demons.	[11] But Mary stood outside by the tomb weeping, and as she wept she stooped down and looked into the tomb. [12] And she saw two angels in white sitting, one at the head and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. [13] Then they said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?” She said to them, “Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid Him." [14] Now when she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, and did not know that it was Jesus. [15] Jesus said to her, "Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you seeking?" She, supposing Him to be the gardener, said to Him, "Sir, if You have carried Him away, tell me where You have laid Him, and I will take Him away." [16] Jesus said to her, "Mary!" She turned and said to Him, * "Rabboni!" (which is to say, Teacher). [17] Jesus said to her, "Do not cling to Me, for I have not yet ascended to My Father; but go to My brethren and say to them, 'I am ascending to My Father and your Father, and to My God and your God.'"

	[9] And as they went to tell His disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, "Rejoice!" So they came and held Him by the feet and worshiped Him. [10] Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid. Go and tell My brethren to go to Galilee, and there they will see Me."
	[11] Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. [12] When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers,

	[13] saying, “Tell them, ‘His disciples came at night and stole Him away while we slept.’ [14] “And if this comes to the governor's ears, we will appease him and make you secure.” [15] So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.
[9] Then they returned from the tomb and told all these things to the eleven and to all the rest. [10] It was Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them, who told these things to the apostles. [11] And their words seemed to them like idle tales, and they did not believe them.		[10] She went and told those who had been with Him, as they mourned and wept. [11] And when they heard that He was alive and had been seen by her, they did not believe.	[18] Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that He had spoken these things to her.
[12] But Peter arose and ran to the tomb; and stooping down, he saw the linen cloths lying by themselves; and he departed, marveling to himself at what had happened. [NOTE: See corresponding occurrence in John 20:3-10]
[13] Now behold, two of them were traveling that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was seven miles * from Jerusalem. [14] And they talked together of all these things which had happened. [15] So it was, while they conversed and reasoned, that Jesus Himself drew near and went with them. [16] But their eyes were restrained, so that they did not know Him. [17] And He said		[12] After that, He appeared in another form to two of them as they walked and went into the country. [13] And they went and told it to the rest, but they did not believe them either.

to them, “What kind of conversation is this that you have with one another as you walk and are sad?” * [18] Then the one whose name was Cleopas answered and said to Him, “Are You the only stranger in Jerusalem, and have You not known the things which happened there in these days?” [19] And He said to them, “What things?” So they said to Him, “The things concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, [20] “and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered Him to be condemned to death, and crucified Him. [21] “But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, today is the third day since these things happened. [22] “Yes, and certain women of our company, who arrived at the tomb early, astonished us. [23] “When they did not find His body, they came saying that they had also seen a vision of angels who said He was alive. [24] “And certain of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but Him they did not see.” [25] Then He said to them, “O foolish ones, and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! these things and to enter into His glory?" [27] And beginning at Moses and all the Prophets, He expounded to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. [28] Then they drew near to the village where they were going, and He indicated that He would have gone farther. [29] But they constrained Him, saying, "Abide with us, for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent." And He went in to stay with them. [30] Now it came to pass, as He sat at the table with them, that He took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. [31] Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him; and He vanished from their sight. [32] And they said to one another, "Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us on the road, and while He opened the Scriptures to us?"
[33] So they rose up that very hour and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven and those who were with them gathered together, [34] saying, "The Lord is risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon!".
[35] And they told about the things that had happened on the road, and how He was known to them in the breaking of bread	[also, in 1 Corinthians 5:5 … "and He was seen by Cephas"…]
[36] Now as they said these things, Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and said to them, "Peace		[14] Later He appeared to the eleven as they sat at the table; and He rebuked their unbelief	[19] Then, the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the

[39] "Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself. Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have." [40] When He had said this, He showed them His hands and His feet. [41] But while they still did not believe for joy, and marveled, He said to them, "Have you any food here?" [42] So they gave Him a piece of a broiled fish and some honeycomb. [20] When He had said this, He showed them His hands and His side. Then the disciples were glad when they saw the Lord. [21] So Jesus said to them again, "Peace to you! As the Father has sent Me, I also send you." [22] And when He had said this, He breathed on them, and said to them, "Receive the Holy Spirit. [23] "If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained."
[44] Then He said to them, "These are the words which I spoke to you while I was still with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the Law of Moses and the Prophets and the Psalms concerning Me." [45] And He opened their understanding, that they might comprehend the Scriptures. [46] Then He said to them, "Thus it is written, and thus it was necessary for the Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead the third day, [47] "and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. [48] "And you are witnesses of these things.

[49] "Behold, I send the Promise of My Father upon you; but tarry in the city of Jerusalem until you are endued with power from on high."
	[also. in 1 Corinthians 5:5 … and he was seen by Cephas, "then by the twelve"]	Alternate: [14] Later He appeared to the eleven as they sat at the table; and He rebuked their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they did not believe those who had seen Him after He had risen. [Some place this with the first meeting of the disciples (w/o Thomas) above – depending on how you interpret "the eleven".]	([24] Now Thomas, called the Twin, one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. [25] The other disciples therefore said to him, "We have seen the Lord." So he said to them, "Unless I see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into His side, I will not believe.") [26] And after eight days His disciples were again inside, and Thomas with them. Jesus came, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, "Peace to you!" [27] Then He said to Thomas, "Reach your finger here, and look at My hands; and reach your hand here, and put it into My side. Do not be unbelieving, but believing." [28] And Thomas answered and said to Him, "My Lord and my God!" [29] Jesus said to him, "Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed."
			[30] And truly Jesus did many other signs in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book; [31] but these are written that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing you may have life in His name.

	[also, in 1 Corinthians: [6] After that He was seen by over five hundred brethren at once, of whom the greater part remain to the present, but some have fallen asleep. [7] After that He was seen by James (his half-brother), then by all the apostles. [8] Then last of all He was seen by me (Paul) also, as by one born out of due time.]
			[21:1] After these things Jesus showed Himself again to the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias, and in this way He showed Himself: [2] Simon Peter, Thomas called the Twin, Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of His disciples were together. [3] Simon Peter said to them, “I am going fishing.” They said to him, “We are going with you also.” They went out and immediately * got into the boat, and that night they caught nothing. [4] But when the morning had now come, Jesus stood on the shore; yet the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. [5] Then Jesus said to them, “Children, have you any food?” They answered Him, “No.” [6] And He said to them, “Cast the net on the right side of the boat, and you will find some. ” So they cast, and now they were not able to draw it in because of the multitude of fish. [7] Therefore that disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, “It is the Lord!” Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on his outer garment (for he had removed it), and plunged into the sea. [8] But the other disciples came in the little boat (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits), dragging the net with fish. [9] Then, as soon as they had come to land, they saw a fire of coals there, and fish laid on it, and bread. [10] Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish which you have just caught.” [11] Simon Peter went up and dragged the net to land, full of large fish, one hundred and fifty-three; and although there were so many, the net was not broken. [12] Jesus said to them, “Come and eat breakfast.” Yet none of the disciples dared ask Him, “Who are You?”—knowing that it was the Lord. [13] Jesus then came and took the bread and gave it to them, and likewise the fish. [14] This is now the third time Jesus showed Himself to His disciples after He was raised from the dead. [15] So when they had eaten breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, “Simon, son of Jonah, do you love Me more than these?” He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I love You.” He said to him, “Feed My lambs.” [16] He said to him again a second time, “Simon, son of Jonah, do you love Me?” He said to Him, “Yes, Lord; You know that I love You.” He said to him, “Tend My sheep.” [17] He said to him the third time, “Simon, son of Jonah, * do you love Me?” Peter was grieved because He said to him the third time, “Do you love Me?” And he said to Him, “Lord, You know all things; You know that I love You.” Jesus said to him, “Feed My sheep. [18] “Most assuredly, I say to you, when you were younger, you girded yourself and walked where you wished; but when you are old, you will stretch out your hands, and another will gird you and carry you where you do not wish.” [19] This He spoke, signifying by what death he would glorify God. And when He had spoken this, He said to him, “Follow Me.” [20] Then Peter, turning around, saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following, who also had leaned on His breast at the supper, and said, “Lord, who is the one who betrays You?” [21] Peter, seeing him, said to Jesus, “But Lord, what about this man?” [22] Jesus said to him, “If I will that he remain till I come, what is that to you? You follow Me.” [23] Then this saying went out among the brethren that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, “If I will that he remain till I come, what is that to you?”

	[16] Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, to the mountain which Jesus had appointed for them. [17] When they saw Him, they worshiped Him; but some doubted.
	[18] And Jesus came and spoke to them, saying, “All authority has been given to Me in heaven and on earth. [19] “Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, [20] “teaching them to observe all things that I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.” Amen.	[15] And He said to them, “Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. [16] “He who believes and is baptized will be saved; but he who does not believe will be condemned. [17] “And these signs will follow those who believe: In My name they will cast out demons; they will speak with new tongues; [18] “they * will take up serpents; and if they drink anything deadly, it will by no means hurt them; they will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover.”
[50] And He led them out as far as Bethany, and He lifted up His hands and blessed them. [51] Now it came to pass, while He blessed them, that He was parted from them and carried up into heaven. [52] And they worshiped Him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy, [53] and were continually in the temple praising and blessing God. Amen.		[19] So then, after the Lord had spoken to them, He was received up into heaven, and sat down at the right hand of God. [20] And they went out and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them and confirming the word through the accompanying signs. Amen.
			[24] This is the disciple who testifies of these things, and wrote these things; and we know that his testimony is true. [25] And there are also Acts [1:4] And being assembled together with them, He commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the Promise of the Father, "which," He said, "you have heard from Me; [5] "for John truly baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now." [6] Therefore, when they had come together, they asked Him, saying, "Lord, will You at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" [7] And He said to them, "It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority. [8] "But you shall receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you shall be witnesses to Me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth." [9] Now when He had spoken these things, while they watched, He was taken up, and a cloud received Him out of their sight. [10] And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as He went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, [11] who also said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand gazing

Another look at the Sunday Resurrection events in the four Gospel accounts:

Event	Mt 28:1–8	Mk 16:1–8	Lu 24:1–10	Jn 20:1–8
When?	at dawn	just after sunrise	very early in the morning	while it was still dark
Who comes first?	Mary Magdelene and the other Mary	Mary Magdelene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome	Mary Magdelene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and others	Mary Magdelene
What do they find?	earthquake with angel who rolls back the stone	stone rolled away	stone rolled away	stone removed from the entrance
Whom do they see?	angel sitting on the stone	young man in white robe, sitting on the right	two men in clothes that gleamed like lightening	no one
What do they do?	ran to tell his disciples	fled from the tomb, afraid to say anything	told what had happened to the Eleven and others	ran to tell Peter and the disciple, the one Jesus loved
What happens next?	Jesus met them		Peter goes to the tomb to investigate	Peter and the other disciple investigate
What is the third scene?	guards report to chief priests and are bribed		story of two disciples on Emmaus road	Mary sees two angels in white, seated where Jesus' body had been

When we examine these four accounts, we notice some similarities.

First, all agree that the events happened around dawn, although they disagree about whether it was already light. Given that the events happened over a period of time, this difference is hardly significant.

Second, all agree that Mary Magdalene was at least one of the ones discovering that the body had disappeared. The purposes of the individual narratives seems to determine how many other women are mentioned (with Luke, who has a special interest in women, noting the most women).

Third, all agree that the women find an open, corpseless tomb. Matthew seems to imply that they also saw the opening of the tomb, although he may narrate the opening of the tomb as something that happened while the women were traveling and before they arrived at the tomb. None of the other Gospels mentions the guards, so how the tomb gets opened is less of a problem for them.

Fourth, all agree that the women saw one or more angels (only Luke has two). However, the angel in John's account appears to be functioning in a different narrative role than the ones in the other accounts. It is, perhaps, more accurate to say that John does not inform us if Mary saw anyone at the tomb before going to tell the disciples. What the angels say also differs, although in all cases the women are informed that Jesus is not there. In the various accounts they are told not to fear (and that they were afraid anyway), to report to the disciples and to meet Jesus in Galilee. Finally, all agree that the women left the tomb, and three of the four accounts note that they did inform the disciples. (Mark breaks off with verse 8, the longer ending probably not being part of the original text; it is debated whether an original ending of Mark has been lost or whether he intended to break off with the women in fear and the question of whether they would follow Jesus into Galilee hanging in the air.)

Furthermore, two of the accounts agree that the woman or women met Jesus, that they tried to hold on to him, and that he sent them on their way. However, John appears to put this meeting after Peter and the beloved disciple investigate, and Matthew puts it before the women report to the disciples. What can we conclude from this data?

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

First, it is possible to make this data into a coherent story. If we assume that the pre- or postdawn timing depends on whether one gives the time of the women starting their trip or their arrival at the tomb, if we assume that the earthquake and angelic descent happened before the women arrived at the tomb, if we merge what the angels say into one account, if we assume that the angels moved around, and if we assume that Mary Magdalene remained behind at the tomb while the others went and reported (and thus had a separate meeting with Jesus), one can make a single coherent account out of the various stories. Obviously, if there were two angels, one writer could report only one. Not every writer has to report all of the details another mentions. In other words, these are different stories but not necessarily conflicting stories. All could be true at the same time.

Second, while it is possible to make the data fit into a coherent story, we cannot be sure that we have the right coherent story. We have a jigsaw puzzle of information and cannot be sure that we have all of the pieces. Thus, since the Scripture has not given us a single unified story, we must be careful or else we will end up believing that our reconstruction is the truth.

A reconstruction may be the truth or it may distort the truth. Perhaps if we had some other critical pieces of information we would make quite a different reconstruction.

Third, these stories are exactly what one would expect to discover after a significant event like the resurrection. The chancellor of this author's university died at the end of an address to the student body. Within an hour of the event a sociology professor had his thirty students each write down their own account of what had happened. Each was instructed to write as honest and detailed account as they could, given the limited time of the class period. When the accounts were later compared, there were numerous differences in detail, although all agreed that the chancellor had died at the end of his address. Presumably each Gospel writer had a series of stories about the resurrection to sort through. For example, we know that Matthew knows and values Mark's account, but in the resurrection story he obviously has some independent information as well. The Evangelists selected and combined data to get the accounts that they give us. But even the beloved disciple in John is not an eyewitness of most of the events, so we are not surprised to find a lot of differences in their reporting what happened.

Finally, when we try to put the stories together, we miss the point of the authors. The church accepted into its canon four separate Gospels, viewing each as inspired by God. It did not put into the canon a harmony of these Gospels (although such existed). The fact is that each writer is trying to bring out his unique perspective and theological insights by the details he includes or leaves out (although, unless Matthew and Luke are differing from Mark, which we know that they knew, we often cannot be sure that the author actually knows a detail and so purposely leaves it out). Matthew wants to underline the miraculous and also explain a rumor that the body of Jesus was stolen. Luke stresses the fulfillment of the words of Jesus and yet the disbelief of the apostles. John, by focusing on a single character and her intimate discussion with Jesus, points out that in the resurrection and ascension of Jesus the promises of John 13–16 are fulfilled. Jesus cannot be held, for it is better for him to go to the one who is not only his Father but is now also our Father.

It is when we look at the resurrection through such eyes, informed by the perspective of each Gospel writer, that we see not simply a miracle, nor even the fact of the resurrection, but the message the church has believed that God wanted to communicate in and through the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

12 Groups saw Jesus After He Was Resurrected

Jesus appeared 12 times to different group sizes ranging from just one person to 500 people.

1) Mary Magdalene (Mark 16.9-11; John 20.11-18), Peter in Jerusalem (Luke 24.34; 1 Cor. 15.5), Jesus' brother (insider skeptic) James (1 Cor. 15.7). "And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any [man]; for they were afraid" (Mark 16.8). Some of the New Testament authors explicitly claimed to be eyewitnesses to Jesus' resurrection (and transfiguration). Peter said, "We did not follow cleverly invented stories when we told you about the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty" (2 Pet. 2.16). John also said, "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked at and our hands have touched...we proclaim to you what we have seen and heard" (1 John 1.1,3).

2) The other women at the tomb (Matthew 28.8-10).

3) The two travelers on the road (Mark 16.12,13; Luke 24.13-34).

4) Ten disciples behind closed doors (Mark 16.14; Luke 24.35-43; John 20.19-25).

5) All the disciples, with Thomas, excluding Judas Iscariot (John 20.26-31; 1 Cor. 15.5).

6) Seven disciples while fishing (John 21.1-14).

7) Eleven disciples on the mountain (Matthew 28.16-20).

8) A crowd of 500 "most of whom are still alive" at the time of Paul writing (1 Cor. 15.6). This may have been the same group as in Matt. 28.16: the rendezvous was to "to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had directed them." Unlike the other accounts which were unexpected and by surprise, and to gather such a large number of people, this meeting was held outdoors. The women were told to tell the disciples to meet Jesus in Galilee as well. "And when they saw him, they worshipped him: but some doubted" (Matt. 28.17) may be a reference to many present, both believers and non-believers. Paul had firsthand contact with them. So it was not a legend. He knew some of the people had died in the interim, but most were still alive. He is saying in effect they are still around to be questioned. You can talk to some of the witnesses. He never could have made this challenge if this event had not occurred.

9) "Then to all the apostles" (1 Cor. 15.7) which includes the Twelve plus all the other apostles.

10) Jesus appeared to the disciples in Jerusalem (Luke 24.44-49).

11) Those who watched Jesus ascend to heaven (Mark 16.19,20; Luke 24.50-53; Acts 1.3-8).

12) Least of all Paul (outsider skeptic) with others present and as though he was not living in the proper time (1 Cor. 15.8-9; Gal. 1.13-16; Acts 9.1-8, 22.9, read all of chapters 22 and 26; 13.30-37; 1 Cor. 15.10-20; Gal. 2.1-10).

The Brother of Jesus was a Leader of the Church of the Resurrected Jesus

It's interesting that the two people Paul mentions in 1 Corinthians 15 and Galatians 1 are the first two original Apostles he met in Jerusalem after he had spent three years in Damascus. For two weeks in Jerusalem on a fact finding trip he met with Peter and James. We have good evidence in the gospels none of the brothers of Jesus believed he was the Messiah, until that day James saw Jesus resurrected. In fact, Jesus' brothers tried to goad him into a deathtrap by showing himself publically at a feast when they knew the Jewish leaders were trying to persecute and kill him. But then James emerges as one of pillars of the NT church and one of its leaders.

Even if Paul didn't mention James seeing Jesus resurrected, you would have to invent something to account for his transformation and leadership in the church. What would it take to make you believe your brother was the Lord if you didn't see him alive from the dead? He willingly went to his death in AD 67 by the Jewish Sanhedrin for his belief Jesus was Lord, Son of God, resurrected Messiah!

Peter Said He Saw Jesus Alive from the Dead

With John in the Temple Peter said, "You killed the author of life, but God raised him to life. And we are witnesses of this fact!" (Acts 3.15). Not just Peter, but "all the Apostles" (1 Cor. 15.7).

Again, Peter said, "Him God raised up the third day, and shewed him openly; Not to all the people, but unto witnesses chosen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead" (Acts 10.40-41). This verse does not say He showed Himself only to those who he ate and drank with before He died, but He ate and drank with those He appeared to after He was resurrected.

It Would Make No Sense Paul Would Convert to Christianity Unless He Saw Jesus Resurrected

Paul entered a life of incredible hardship as a Christian when he didn't need to. He had a successful career going on in Judaism as a Pharisee.

Luke Makes No Mention of Paul's Death His Two Books

Paul died in the Neronian persecution in 64-65 AD. Luke set forth the biography of Paul in Acts and his mission activities but makes no mention of his death. At the end of the book Paul had not yet died. So Acts had to have been written before his death. Had he died the author would have mentioned it especially considering Paul almost died seven times in the Scriptures. Death is important in a biography so that places Acts around 55 A.D.

Luke said in the book of Acts: "The former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen: To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God: And, being assembled together with *them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence" (1.1-5).

The former treaty by Luke to Theophilus was the Gospel of Luke: "Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us, Even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eyewitnesses, and ministers of the word; It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, That thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed" (1.1-4).

We keep moving back from the 64-65 A.D. Since Acts was written about 55 A.D., Luke would be even earlier around 45 A.D. Even more, Luke took in part from Mark so that places Mark around 35 A.D. just 2 years after the cross. And Mark worked closely with Peter so that places Peter's two books quite early as well. These primary sources are all within a decade or two after the cross exactly what historians like to see. Amen.

The Origin of the Disciples' Beliefs was Jesus Resurrected

What was the origin of the disciples' beliefs? It couldn't have been the result of Christian influences for the simple reason, there wasn't any Christianity yet and they were the first believers. The origin of their beliefs can't be pagan such as Adonis and Osiris since the disciples don't make the claim they are attached to any of these mythical gods. Rather, they are just symbols for passage of the seasons. The god dies in the winter and comes back to life as a new crop in the spring. It would be simply unthinkable for the disciples to believe this is what Jesus meant. There is actually not only no causal relationship, but in first century Palestine these myths of dying and rising gods was a later invention added in, and the disciples had no contact with these sorts of things. Therefore, the best explanation is Jesus rose from the dead.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Highest Standards of Historical Record in Antiquity with Multiply Corroborated Facts

To the best of my knowledge, there is nothing recorded in antiquity so close to the events that happened and number of sources. Therefore, it is holding the highest of standards of historical record. Jesus has 45 sources of Him within 150 years of His death. Tiberius died on just 4 years after Jesus and only had 9 sources. Actually, Jesus has more sources about Him than any ten figures from antiquity.

Paul said in Gal. 1 & 2 he met James and Peter a few years after the cross as indicated in 1 Cor. 15 in which he says he is delivering what he received from them. Scholars place his conversion two years after the cross. Galatians says it was "3 years" after his conversion he met James and Peter, so that's five years after the cross he met original eyewitness Apostles. And it's safe to say they talked about more than just the weather.

Altogether, there is Paul's writings, oral traditions in creeds, hymns and sermon summaries in various NT books, and writings of the early church fathers such as Polycarp and Clement of Rome who personally knew the Apostles John and Peter. Polycarp was a student of John and Clement of Rome was a friend of Peter. Clement is mentioned in the Bible in addition to extra-Biblical sources.

Paul's Extensive Testimony and Interaction with the Apostles

Luke has no problem between Paul's appearance and those made to the disciples in Luke 24 and Acts 1.1-11. Luke records both types of appearances of Jesus to the disciples and to Paul.

"Last of all he was seen of me also" (1 Cor. 15.8). "Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord?" (1 Cor. 9.1). Others saw the light, heard the voice and fell to the ground during when Paul saw Jesus bodily, however because Paul's experience was post-ascension, it may be slightly different.

"And the men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man" (Acts 9.7). This presumes that Paul saw the Man.

"To reveal His Son in me" (Gal. 1.16,18) took three years following the Damascus road experience. Don't mistake this portion as being the bodily appearance. Paul got to know Jesus for three years before becoming an Apostle.

Paul reports knowing some of the disciples personally who had seen Jesus resurrected including Peter, James, and John. Acts confirms this (Acts 9.26-30; 15.1-35). And Paul says in 1 Cor. 15.11 that whether "it was I or they, this is what we preach" referring to the resurrection of Jesus.

"Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days. But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother" (Gal. 1.18,19). Suffice it to say, they talked about more than just the weather. Years later Paul met up with John. Peter and James present then also.

"Then fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also. And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain. And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision. But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed" (Gal. 2,1-2,9,11). This was regarding circumcision. James and Barnabas were also at fault with Peter.

"I said to Cephas before them all, If you, though a Jew, live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you compel the Gentiles to live like Jews?" (Gal. 2.14) They continued long in discourse.

The Evolution of the Resurrection Devolved

Evolution of a resurrection theory actually devolved from the accounts of the 40 days with the disciples to when Paul saw Jesus (Gal. 1.15-16). Paul's experience was more like a vision, yet a vision that affected those with him on the road to Damascus.

Many years after Paul saw the vision on the Damascus road, he testified, "Wherefore . . . I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision" (Acts 26.19).

No Naturalistic Explanation Since All Possibilities Have Been Exhausted

Now if so many people saw Jesus resurrected (see even more compelling testimony), is it really so hard to believe the saved will be resurrected at the consummation of the age of the dispensation of grace, the end of the mystery age of the Church? As Christians died with Christ we shall be resurrected in a resurrection like His. Even the unsaved will be resurrected though a thousand years later to the Great White Throne to be sentenced to burn for eternity in the Lake of Fire. They would rather burn and be tortured than to be saved by accepting Christ as their Savior.

In enclosed rooms and open areas; in the region of Jerusalem, Galilee and well beyond. He appeared at night and at various times of the day.

Jesus Appeared to People of Diverse Status
To people he knew well and to people he didn't know well at all, to those in His inner circle, to those less connected and to complete strangers (Paul). Some were devout followers, some were more skeptical and some were in complete denial.

Jesus Appeared for Diverse Purposes
To many He simply wanted to demonstrate His Deity and Resurrection power. With others He ate a meal or had an important conversation. He appeared to Peter to comfort and challenge him and to Paul to call him away from his murderous mission.

Jesus Appeared for Periods of Time
Some of his appearances were little more than a few minutes, others for hours. He stayed with the believers in Jerusalem for forty days.

Jesus' Appearances Were Recorded By Diverse Authors
Two were direct eyewitnesses, two were close associates of the eyewitnesses. Some were better educated than others. One was a doctor, one a tax collector, one a fisherman.

Harmonizing the Resurrection of Jesus Christ

Conclusion

One prevalent theme in the Gospel narratives is the initial skepticism of the witnesses about Jesus' resurrection. On the first day of the week, the women are perplexed when they find the stone rolled away and an empty tomb. There is no rush to conclude that Jesus is resurrected (Luke 24:4). When Peter and John see the empty tomb they do not connect it with Jesus' teaching about His resurrection (John 20:8-9). Rather than being resurrected, Mary Magdalene is convinced that someone has stolen the body of Jesus (John 20:13-15). The apostles do not believe the women's testimony about seeing the risen Jesus (Luke 24:11 and Mark 16:11). The two disciples traveling to Emmaus are sad because Jesus has been crucified, His body is missing, and their hope in Him as the redeemer of Israel is lost (Luke 24:17-24). When the two Emmaus disciples tell of seeing the resurrected Jesus, they are not believed (Mark 16:12-13). When Jesus appears to the apostles on the resurrection night, they think He is a spirit rather than a flesh and bone physical body (Luke 24:37-43). Being absent at the time, Thomas rejects the testimony of the ten apostles and others present (John 20:24-25).

The clear testimony we have in the Gospels is that the witnesses were not gullible followers wanting to believe their teacher had come back to life. They were not zealots, bent on creating a resurrection myth. Most, if not all, of Jesus' disciples initially dismissed any thought of His resurrection and rejected claims to that effect; however, they were later convinced through personal contact He was alive. The apostles became changed men. Rather than being deniers and deserters as they were before the crucifixion, they now proclaimed Jesus as Messiah. Because of the resurrection, the apostles were so convinced of His message that most died for their beliefs. Their changed behavior is additional testimony to the truth of the resurrection.

The four Gospel accounts of the resurrection of Jesus can be logically harmonized with very little conjecture. Within each Gospel, all resurrection events occur in a simple, coherent timeline. The integration of four different accounts, based on multiple eyewitnesses, by four different writers, without collusion or coaching, adds enormous credibility to the resurrection story. The combined Gospels are an accurate historical record of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Harmonizing the Resurrection of Jesus Christ

This article may be copied and distributed without restriction. For a printer friendly copy click RESURRECTION. (Revised Friday, September 12, 2014) J. Gene White Christians believe Jesus Christ resurrected from the dead. Jesus was crucified by Roman soldiers on a cross between two thieves. After he died, Roman soldiers thrust a spear into his side to ensure he was dead. The upward spear thrust penetrated his heart. Jesus was taken down from the cross, wrapped in burial clothes, and placed in an empty tomb. A heavy stone was rolled in place to close the entrance. The tomb was then sealed and Roman soldiers were assigned to prevent it from being disturbed. Three days later Jesus arose from the dead, left the tomb, and was seen by many people in subsequent weeks. Christians celebrate Easter in memory of Christ's resurrection.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ represents the cornerstone of the Christian faith. If Jesus did not resurrect, then he was simply a man. As many other famous men in history, he overcame his humble beginnings through natural talent, ambition, and hard work. He achieved prominence as a leader, attracted a following of dedicated supporters, and then died the same as any other man. Although a significant prophet, a healer, a miracle worker, a great teacher, a compassionate person, a defender of the downtrodden, a moral individual, and one unjustly crucified; nevertheless, he died, was buried, remained in the grave, and his body decomposed. He was unable to escape death and decay. However, the resurrection puts the final stamp of approval on Jesus' life and ministry as being born of a virgin, a fulfiller of messianic prophecy, a sinless individual, a perfect sacrifice, and the son of God. The resurrection authenticates His claims that "I and my father are one" (John 10:30) and "I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me" (John 6:38). Jesus' resurrection validates the Apostle John's statement, "These are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name" (John 20:31). Eyewitness testimony of events on the day Jesus resurrected recorded in the four Gospels clearly shows the historical fact of this miracle; however, a perceived lack of harmony raises several issues. Christians must steadfastly defend the biblical account of the resurrection against those who deny it.

Resurrection Critics

According to skeptics and critics, the four Gospel accounts of the resurrection of Jesus Christ contain contradictions and errors. They lack harmony and cannot be reconciled. One skeptic says, "The Gospel accounts of the risen Jesus are discordant and contradictory,"[1] while another states, "When we examine the resurrection narratives, it is obvious that they cannot be reconciled."[2] Michael L. Martin, philosophy professor and atheist says, "In sum, the accounts of what happened at the tomb are either inconsistent or can only be made consistent with the aid of implausible interpretations."[3] Thomas Sheehan, professor of religious studies and a disbeliever in the resurrection says, "The differing narratives of Easter in the later Gospels cannot be harmonized to produce a consistent story, without doing violence to the accounts both individually and as an ensemble. The various Easter narratives contradict one another egregiously."[4] Dan Barker, preacher turned atheist and co-president of Freedom from Religion says, "The story of the resurrection of Jesus, told by at least five different writers, is hopelessly irreconcilable."[5] Barker challenges believers to provide a simple non-contradictory chronological narrative of the resurrection and ascension without omitting a single biblical detail.[6]

In responding to skeptics and critics of Jesus' resurrection, we should realize that a satisfactory answer is most likely unachievable. When the Gospels harmonize perfectly, skeptics accuse the writers of conspiring and simply copying one another. When the Gospels differ, critics say they are contradictory, spurious, and false. Regardless of the approach taken, apologists of Jesus' resurrection will be viewed as wrong.

Harmonization Difficulties

However, some criticism of Jesus' resurrection is justified since popular Christian writers have not fully harmonized the four Gospel accounts. Several issues make harmonization difficult. This does not mean the Gospel accounts of Jesus' resurrection are in error, but only that they are difficult to harmonize. Essentially all attempts at harmonization ignore specific verses, fail to give a coherent timeline of events, add events not in scripture, or rely on significant speculation.

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

A careful analysis of popular books about the life of Jesus and his resurrection subtly illustrate the problem of harmonization. Josh McDowell in Evidence That Demands a Verdict and More Than a Carpenter presents a convincing apologetic in support of the resurrection, but does not give a harmony of events in a coherent timeline using all relevant verses. Lee Strobel in The Case for Christ defends the resurrection, but does not give a harmony of all pertinent verses in a chronological order. Both A. T. Robertson in A Harmony of the Gospels and Craig Blomberg in Jesus and the Gospels fall short of harmonizing the resurrection of Jesus found in Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.[7, 8] Gary Habermas and Michael Licona in The Case for the Resurrection of Jesus acknowledge the harmony problem, but offer no solution.[9] John Wenham in Easter Enigma gives a brief harmony of the resurrection, but leaves several issues unresolved. Likewise, articles found on several apologetic Internet sites[10, 11, 12, 13] fail to harmonize all verses applicable to the resurrection in a simple timeline.

Incomplete Testimony

The writers of the four Gospels relied on their personal account of events, in addition to the testimony of other eyewitnesses. Matthew and John were apostles (among the chosen twelve) while Mark was probably a young disciple. All three were intimately familiar with Jesus' betrayal, crucifixion, and resurrection. John is specifically mentioned as being at Christ's crucifixion. Matthew, Mark, and John undoubtedly saw Jesus after his resurrection. All four writers of the Gospels, to one extent or another, rely on eyewitness testimony of the resurrection given by Peter, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Salome, Joanna, at least one Roman soldier, and Cleopas. Additional possible sources include the other apostles, Mary the sister of Lazarus, Mary the wife of Cleopas, and Mary the mother of Jesus.

Incomplete accounts of eyewitness testimony cause some difficulty in harmonizing the resurrection. Witnesses of Jesus' resurrection told what they remembered or felt was significant from their perspective. For example, the account found in John 20:1-18 is clearly from the viewpoint of Mary Magdalene. Mary told John her personal account of events.

Witnesses often left out details they considered unimportant. Leaving out information in a historical account is not wrong; however, it can contribute to the perception that harmony is unachievable. For example, when identifying the women who went to the tomb John mentions Mary Magdalene, Matthew mentions Mary Magdalene and the other Mary, while Mark lists Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, and Salome. None of the three accounts are wrong; however, none give a complete list of all the women who went to the tomb.

Mary Magdalene

The Bible says that Jesus appeared first to Mary Magdalene after his resurrection; however, harmony of this statement within the Gospels is somewhat difficult to achieve. An explanation developed by Harvard Law Professor Simon Greenleaf in The Testimony of the Evangelists Examined by the Rules of Evidence Administrated in Courts of Justice published in 1874 illustrates the problem. Greenleaf's harmony has the resurrected Jesus appearing first to the women who went to the tomb (Matthew 28:8-10) before appearing to Mary Magdalene. However, Mark 16:9 clearly states that Jesus appeared first to Mary Magdalene. For Jesus to appear first to Mary Magdalene, she must be separated from the other women at the tomb. This permits Mary Magdalene to see Jesus first, followed by the other women.

Peter's Visit to the Tomb

The Gospels of John and Luke describe when Peter visits the empty tomb, and a harmony of the two accounts is easily achieved with careful analysis. Greenleaf has Peter making one visit to the tomb; however, the most plausible explanation is that Peter made two visits. In the first visit (John 20:2-5), Peter and John go to the tomb when summoned by Mary Magdalene. In the second visit (Luke 24:10–12), Peter goes to the tomb alone when Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women return from the tomb and tell the eleven apostles (which includes Peter) about seeing the resurrected Jesus. The second visit gives a plausible time for Jesus to reveal himself to Simon Peter, apart from the other apostles, as mentioned in Luke 24:34 and 1 Corinthians 15:5. A second visit by Peter easily harmonizes the timeline of events in Luke and John.

Timeline Discontinuities

Breaks in the timeline of events are a difficult problem to resolve when harmonizing events in the four Gospel accounts of the resurrection. Sometimes action occurs, time progresses, or the scene changes without being clarified in the narrative, an issue common throughout the four Gospels, but of critical importance in the resurrection story. For example, Matthew 28:4-5 represents a major timeline break where significant action occurs between the two verses. Matthew does not mention John's account of Mary Magdalene running to get Peter and John, their race to the tomb, its subsequent examination, and their departure. Nor does he mention Mary looking into the tomb, seeing two angels, leaving the tomb entrance, and her subsequent encounter with the resurrected Jesus in the garden. Mark 16:4-5 and Luke 24:3-4 are timeline discontinuities for the same information.

Harmonization Fundamentals

All four Gospels combined give the most complete story about the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The following twenty-two point harmony of the resurrection flows in a coherent timeline based upon: (1) All events within each Gospel account occur in a chronological order. (2) Information from one Gospel can be used to fill in omissions in another. (3) Each Gospel account is accurate in regard to the details mentioned.

In the following harmonization, all verses are accounted for in Matthew 28:1-15, Mark 16:1-13, Luke 24:1-43, and John 20:1-25 that describe events on the day Jesus resurrected. Conjecture and added events not specifically mentioned in scripture are eliminated or kept to an absolute minimum. The language of the New King James Version is used.

A Twenty-Two Point Harmony of the Resurrection of Jesus

1. The resurrection of Jesus took place on the first day of the week following the Sabbath. The day of Christ's resurrection is described in the four Gospels as:

- Now after the Sabbath, as the first day of the week began to dawn. (Matthew 28:1)
- Now when the Sabbath was past . . . on the first day of the week. (Mark 16:1-2)
- Now on the first day of the week. (Luke 24:1)
- Now the first day of the week. (John 20:1)

2. The time of day when the women went to the tomb is described as:

- Early, while it was still dark. (John 20:1)
- Very early in the morning. (Luke 24:1)
- Very early in the morning . . . when the sun had risen. (Mark 16:2)
- As the first day of the week began to dawn. (Matthew 28:1)

Harmony among the four Gospels is relatively easy to achieve in regard to the time of day the women went to the tomb. The women left their homes while it was dark; however, by the time they walked to the appointed meeting place, waited for everyone to assemble, traveled the remaining distance, and arrived at the tomb the sun had begun to show above the horizon. The time from dark to sunrise is around forty minutes depending on cloud cover and the phase of the moon. Some of the women may have walked the two mile distance from Bethany, which would have taken at least thirty minutes.[14] We should keep in mind that any meeting time selected by the women was only approximate since accurate time was not kept in the typical household. Waiting for the group to assemble, including the inevitable straggler, could have easily consumed twenty minutes or more. The total time for the entire process probably exceeded one hour.

The Greek word erchomai is typically translated “come, came or went” in the four Gospel accounts to describe the women “coming” to the tomb. Erchomai means “to come” or “to come from one place to another.”[15] Coming to the tomb involved leaving home, walking a distance, meeting at a specific location and approximate time, walking another distance, and arriving at the tomb. The entire “coming” process began when it was dark and ended after sunrise.

3. Harmony of the four Gospel accounts about the identity of the women who went to the tomb can easily be achieved. A group of women walk to the tomb where Jesus is buried, having plans to anoint His body with spices. Individuals in the group are Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Joses, Salome, Joanna, and other women (Matthew 28:1, Mark 16:1, Luke 24:10, John 20:1). We can conclude the group was comprised of at least six women and probably more.

Matthew 27:55-56 and Luke 23:49 mention that a group of women followed Jesus from Galilee and were witnesses of His crucifixion. Matthew 27:61 and Luke 23:55-56 point out that the same group of women followed Jesus’ funeral procession and observed where He was buried. Some sat by His tomb. These women then prepared spices and fragrant oils to anoint His body as soon as the mandatory Sabbath rest was past. Six names associated with this group of Galilean women are mentioned in Matthew 27:56, Mark 16:1, Luke 24:10, and John 19:25. They include Mary the mother of Jesus, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Joses, Mary the wife of Cleopas, Joanna, and Salome (wife of Zebedee and mother of James and John). Mary the sister of Lazarus may have also been in the group.

4. Sometime prior to the women arriving at Jesus’ tomb, an earthquake occurs. An angel of the Lord descends from heaven and rolls away the large stone from the door. The angel sits on the stone to prevent it from being rolled back in place, dominating any course of action the soldiers might consider. The angel has a countenance like lightning and is clothed with raiment as white as snow. The angel’s appearance is so frightful that the guards shake and become unconscious (Matthew 28:2-4).

5. As the women approach the tomb, they discuss among themselves who will roll the stone away from the tomb entrance (Mark 16:3).

6. When the women arrive at the tomb, the stone has been rolled away (Mark 16:4, Luke 24:2, John 20:1). The angel sitting on the stone has disappeared, the guards have regained consciousness and left, and the tomb site is deserted.

7. The women enter the tomb and see that Jesus’ body is missing (Luke 24:3). A harmony of events is relatively easy up to this point in the resurrection narrative.

8. Mary Magdalene leaves the other women at the tomb and runs to get Peter and John (the disciple whom Jesus loved). She tells them that Jesus’ body has been taken from the tomb (John 20:2).

When John 20:2 and 20:18 are accepted as two separate events, harmony is easily achieved. John 20:2 records the first event when Mary Magdalene summons Peter and John. All three return to the tomb. John 20:18, Mark 16:10, and Luke 24:9-10 record the second event when all the women return from the tomb and tell the eleven apostles of their experiences. In Luke 24:12 Peter alone returns to the tomb.

9. Peter, John, and Mary Magdalene return to the tomb. John outruns Peter to reach the sepulcher first but remains outside. Peter arrives and immediately enters. They both verify that Jesus’ body is missing and see the linen clothes with the head covering lying by itself (John 20:3-9). The visit to the tomb by Peter and John mentioned in John 20:3-9 is a completely separate event from the second solo visit by Peter mentioned in Luke 24:12.

10. The disciples, Peter and John, leave the tomb and return to their homes (John 20:10). As typical men, they have completed their investigation, reached a conclusion, and see no need to linger. All the women remain behind at the tomb. Originally, the women had planned to anoint the body of

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Jesus with spices, a task requiring some time. Having no body to anoint, the grieving women stand outside the tomb and discuss the disappearance of the body, being perplexed by its absence.

11. A weeping Mary Magdalene walks to the tomb entrance, stoops down, and looks inside. She sees two angels dressed in white, one at the head and one at the foot where Jesus' body had lain. The angel asks "Woman, why are you weeping?" Mary replies, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him" (John 20:11-13). The angels appear as men. At this point, Mary believes someone has stolen the body of Jesus.

12. To achieve a harmony of the Gospels, Mary Magdalene must be separated from the other women. Mary Magdalene turns and walks away from the tomb. In the distance, she sees a male figure walking in the garden. Desperate to find where Jesus' body has been taken, she walks toward the unknown man, believing Him to be the gardener, and perhaps responsible for the missing corpse. She separates herself from the other women, leaving them at the tomb. Jesus sees Mary in the distance coming in His direction, perhaps looking behind bushes for the missing body. He loudly calls out, "Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you seeking?" Still not close enough to recognize Jesus, Mary calls in reply, "Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him." After this short exchange, Mary resumes her search of the garden. As she draws closer, Jesus speaks her name in a normal tone of voice. At that point Mary recognizes Jesus, turns directly toward Him and calls out, "Rabboni" (John 20:14-17). Mary Magdalene was the first person to see Jesus following His resurrection (Mark 16:9). Three arguments support this explanation.

- If Mary had been in close proximity to Jesus as she turned and walked away from the tomb, she would have been able to identify Him. This suggests He was some distance away.
- The tomb was located in a garden (John 19:41). Mary made a logical error when she mistook Jesus for the gardener.
- A person calling out in a loud voice is often not identifiable even when one is familiar with their normal speaking voice. Mary was not able to identify Jesus when He called loudly from a distance.

English translations do not do justice to the language used to describe Mary's actions at the tomb in John 20:14. The NKJV says, "She turned around," while the KJV is rendered, "She turned herself back." We typically interpret this passage to mean that she turned her head around and saw Jesus. A literal translation from the Greek says, "She turned to the back." The two Greek words eis and opiso used in this verse provide a key to its understanding. Eis and opiso are used together in Matthew 13:16, Luke 9:62, Luke 17:31, John 6:66, and John 18:6 to denote significant action in reversing ones course, either spiritually or physically. Based on the language, we can say that Mary "turned back" or "turned and walked away" from the tomb.

According to John 1:41, Jesus was buried near where He was crucified (Golgotha) in a tomb located within a garden. The Garden Tomb (also known as Gordon's Calvary) is one site proposed as the burial place of Jesus. In 1883, Charles G. Gordon found a rocky escarpment which from several angles resembled the face of a skull. Gordon concluded that the rocky escarpment was probably Golgotha where Jesus was crucified. Nearby were located a number of tombs, one of which was surrounded by a garden. This tomb, which has become known as the Garden Tomb, contains an ancient wine press and a large cistern where gardeners stored and drew water for their plants. While the Garden Tomb is probably not the burial place of Christ (the site of Church of the Holy Sepulcher is the most authentic location), it supports scripture by serving as a historical example of a tomb located within a garden.

When considering the surrounding garden, Mary's logic in leaving the tomb to look for the body of Jesus is readily apparent. We can surmise that herbs, grapes, figs, and olives were grown in the garden. All of these provided cover where the corpse could have been hidden. Mary thought Jesus' body had been stolen, and left the tomb to search among the surrounding vines, bushes, and trees.

13. After Mary Magdalene leaves the tomb to search the garden, two angels appear to the remaining women standing outside the tomb entrance. The women are frightened and bow their faces to the earth. The angels tell the women not to fear and announce that Jesus is resurrected (Matthew 28:5-7, Luke 24:4-8).

14. The women enter Jesus' tomb and find a young man clothed in a long white robe sitting on the right side. He shows them where the body had lain and again announces that Jesus is resurrected (Mark 16:5-6). As pointed out by Matthew, the women enter the tomb at the angel's invitation (Matthew 28:6). The young man is one of the two angels previously observed by Mary (John 20:12). According to the women's testimony, the angels outside the tomb had a powerful angelic appearance while those inside appeared as normal men clothed in white.

15. Angels command the women to tell the disciples that Jesus is resurrected. The women exit the tomb in fear and great joy, and run to tell the disciples (Matthew 28:7-8, Mark 16:7-8).

16. As the women leave the tomb they are hailed by Jesus, who has been talking with Mary Magdalene in the garden. The women bow down, hold His feet, and worship Him. Jesus instructs the women to tell His brethren they will see Him again (Matthew 28:9-10).

17. Concurrent with the women's visit to the tomb and subsequent events, some of the guards assigned to secure the tomb enter the city (Matthew 28:11-15). Since Pilate approved placing the guards at the tomb, they were no doubt Roman soldiers rather than Jewish temple police (Matthew 27:62-65). Reporting back to Pilate raised several difficulties. To admit incompetence by losing Jesus' body, combined with an unbelievable story of a shining angel who rolled away the stone covering the tomb, was not a viable option. As Dr. Peter May says, "It could well have cost them their lives."[16] Seeking a more sympathetic ear, the soldiers go to the chief priests and tell of their terrifying experience. The chief priests consult with the elders and determine a course of action. They give the soldiers a large sum of money and promise to intervene with the governor if necessary to protect them. In turn the soldiers are instructed to say that Jesus' body was stolen by His disciples at night while they slept.

18. Harmony is easily achieved between Mark, Luke, and John about the women's return from the tomb. Being afraid, the women do not speak to anyone on their return journey (Mark 16:8). Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Salome, Joanna, and other women in their group go straight to the apostles and tell of seeing angels and the resurrected Jesus (Mark 16:10, Luke 24:9-10, John 20:18). This is separate from the event described in John 20:2, which involves Mary Magdalene alone.

19. The women's words are as idle tales and not believed (Mark 16:11, Luke 24:11). After all, Peter and John had earlier witnessed the empty tomb—not angels and a resurrected Jesus. Rejection of the women's testimony is plausible in view of the fact that in first century Jewish culture women were considered inferior witnesses, not as dependable as men.

20. A second visit to the tomb by Peter is the easiest and most logical way to achieve harmony among the Gospel accounts. Peter, one of the apostles present, hears the women's story. Characteristically an action driven person, he runs back to the tomb for a second look by himself. He reexamines the empty tomb and sees the linen clothes lying as originally observed (Luke 24:12). As Simon Peter leaves the tomb he encounters the risen Christ in the garden (Luke 24:34). In 1 Corinthians 15:5, the Apostle Paul says that Cephas (Peter) saw Jesus before the twelve. We can logically conclude that Peter saw the resurrected Jesus during his solo trip to the tomb.

21. Later in the day, Jesus appears to Cleopas and another disciple as they walk to Emmaus, located about seven miles from Jerusalem (Mark 16:12-13, Luke 24:13-32). The two disciples discuss the women's report of an empty tomb, their encounter with angels, and verification of the empty tomb by Peter and John (Luke 24:23-24). However, the two disciples have no knowledge of Peter's second trip to the tomb. The two return to Jerusalem and report to the eleven. They discover that Simon Peter has seen the resurrected Jesus, presumably during his second trip to the tomb (Luke 24:33-35).

22. The eleven apostles and other disciples (Luke 24:33) gather together in a locked room on the resurrection night in fear of the Jews. As Cleopas and the other disciple tell their story, Jesus appears and shows them His hands and feet and side. Jesus then asks for food and eats to verify that He is flesh and bones (Luke 24:36-43, John 20:19-25). Thomas is absent when Jesus appears, perhaps having temporarily stepped out (John 20:24).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

Ending the Resurrection Narratives

Deciding when events on the resurrection day end, and subsequent action begins, illustrates the issue of timeline discontinuities related to a harmony of resurrection events. The resurrection account is one of many instances in the four Gospels when action occurs, time progresses, or the scene changes without being clarified in the narrative. Events on the resurrection day can be ended as follows:

Matthew's narrative of events on the resurrection day can be stopped at Matthew 28:15. As described in Matthew 28:16-17, the disciples later travel to a mountain in Galilee where they meet the resurrected Jesus, an event geographically related to Christ's appearance at the Sea of Galilee described in John 21:1-19. The Sea of Galilee appearance probably took place near Capernaum, the home of Peter, a straight line distance of 79 miles from Jerusalem.

Mark's account of the resurrection day can be terminated at Mark 16:13. Jesus' appearance to the eleven in Mark 16:14 easily corresponds to John 20:26-29, eight days after His resurrection.

Luke's description of the resurrection day can be halted at Luke 24:43. Verses that follow can be ascribed to events immediately prior to Jesus' ascension described in Acts 1:2-12, forty days after His resurrection.

The Apostle John clearly defines an end to the resurrection day events in John 20:25. After the first appearance, Jesus appears a second time eight days later in the same room, this time with Thomas present.

Post Resurrection Appearances

Jesus made a number of appearances after His resurrection. According to Acts 1:3, Jesus remained on earth for forty days following His resurrection before he ascended into heaven. The following scriptures describe at least nine separate occurrences where Jesus appeared following his resurrection. Some of the scriptures describe the same events, such as Paul's mention of Jesus appearing to Cephas (Peter) and the twelve in 1 Corinthians 15:5.

1. Jesus appears to Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James, Salome, Joanna, and other women near the tomb (Mark 16:1-2, Luke 24:10).
2. Jesus appears to Simon Peter, probably during his second visit to the tomb (Luke 24:34).
3. On the road to Emmaus, Jesus walks with Cleopas and a friend on the afternoon of the resurrection day (Mark 16:12-13, Luke 24:13-32).
4. Jesus appears to the ten disciples gathered together at night on the resurrection day. Thomas is absent (Luke 24:33-43, John 20:19-25).
5. Jesus appears to the eleven disciples eight days after His resurrection (Mark 16:14, John 20:26-29).
6. At the Sea of Galilee, Jesus talks and eats with seven of the disciples including James and John (the sons of Zebedee), Simon Peter, Thomas, and Nathanael (John 21:1-19). This is the third appearance Jesus made to His disciples (the chosen apostles) following the resurrection (John 21:15). This event took place near Capernaum, the home of Peter, located on the Sea of Galilee a straight line distance of 79 miles from Jerusalem.
7. Jesus meets with the eleven disciples at a mountain location in Galilee (Matthew 28:16-17).

Free duplication permitted with references for personal use. Portions copyrighted LY; NKJV T.Nelson Pub.; others. [TOC]

8. Paul records that Jesus appeared to Cephas (Peter) before appearing to the other apostles (1 Corinthians 15:5). This probably refers to when Peter met Jesus during his second visit to the tomb in Luke 24:34.
9. Paul states that Jesus appeared to the twelve (1 Corinthians 15:5). This could be in reference to Jesus' appearance eight days after his resurrection mentioned in John 20:26-29. At that time Thomas was present, in addition to Matthias to make twelve even though he was not yet formally selected to replace the fallen Judas (Acts 1:21-26).
10. Paul said that Jesus appeared to a large crowd of over 500 brethren at one time (1 Corinthians 15:6).
11. Paul affirms that Jesus appeared to James and then to all the apostles (1 Corinthians 15:7).
12. Jesus speaks to the disciples before His ascension at the Mount of Olives near Bethany outside of Jerusalem (Luke 24:50-51, Acts 1:4-12).

Conclusion

One prevalent theme in the Gospel narratives is the initial skepticism of the witnesses about Jesus' resurrection. On the first day of the week, the women are perplexed when they find the stone rolled away and an empty tomb. There is no rush to conclude that Jesus is resurrected (Luke 24:4). When Peter and John see the empty tomb they do not connect it with Jesus' teaching about His resurrection (John 20:8-9). Rather than being resurrected, Mary Magdalene is convinced that someone has stolen the body of Jesus (John 20:13-15). The apostles do not believe the women's testimony about seeing the risen Jesus (Luke 24:11 and Mark 16:11). The two disciples traveling to Emmaus are sad because Jesus has been crucified, His body is missing, and their hope in Him as the redeemer of Israel is lost (Luke 24:17-24). When the two Emmaus disciples tell of seeing the resurrected Jesus, they are not believed (Mark 16:12-13). When Jesus appears to the apostles on the resurrection night, they think He is a spirit rather than a flesh and bone physical body (Luke 24:37-43). Being absent at the time, Thomas rejects the testimony of the ten apostles and others present (John 20:24-25).

The clear testimony we have in the Gospels is that the witnesses were not gullible followers wanting to believe their teacher had come back to life. They were not zealots, bent on creating a resurrection myth. Most, if not all, of Jesus' disciples initially dismissed any thought of His resurrection and rejected claims to that effect; however, they were later convinced through personal contact He was alive. The apostles became changed men. Rather than being deniers and deserters as they were before the crucifixion, they now proclaimed Jesus as Messiah. Because of the resurrection, the apostles were so convinced of His message that most died for their beliefs. Their changed behavior is additional testimony to the truth of the resurrection.

The four Gospel accounts of the resurrection of Jesus can be logically harmonized with very little conjecture. Within each Gospel, all resurrection events occur in a simple, coherent timeline. The integration of four different accounts, based on multiple eyewitnesses, by four different writers, without collusion or coaching, adds enormous credibility to the resurrection story. The combined Gospels are an accurate historical record of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

17.	11. Now while they were going, behold, some of the guard came into the city and reported to the chief priests all the things that had happened. 12. When they had assembled with the elders and consulted together, they gave a large sum of money to the soldiers, 13. saying, "Tell them, 'His disciples came at night and stole Him away while we slept.' 14. And if this comes to the governor's ears, we will appease him and make you secure." 15. So they took the money and did as they were instructed; and this saying is commonly reported among the Jews until this day.

21.		12. After that, He appeared in another form to two of them as they walked and went into the country. 13. And they went and told it to the rest, but they did not believe them either.	13. Now behold, two of them were traveling that same day to a village called Emmaus, which was seven miles from Jerusalem. 14. And they talked together of all these things which had happened. 15. So it was, while they conversed and reasoned, that Jesus Himself drew near and went with them. 16. But their eyes were restrained, so that they did not know Him. 17. And He said to them, “What kind of conversation is this that you have with one another as you walk and are sad?” 18. Then the one whose name was Cleopas answered and said to Him, “Are You the only stranger in Jerusalem, and have You not known the things which happened there in these days?” 19. And He said to them, “What things?” So they said to Him, “The things concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a Prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people, 20. and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered Him to be condemned to death, and crucified Him. 21. But we were hoping that it was He who was going to redeem Israel. Indeed, besides all this, today is the third day since these things happened. 22 Yes, and certain women of our company, who arrived at the tomb early, astonished us. 23. When they did not find His body, they came saying that they had also seen a vision of angels who said He was alive. 24. And certain of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but Him they did not see.” 25. Then He said to them, “O foolish ones, and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! 26. Ought not the Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into His glory?” 27. And beginning at Moses and all the Prophets, He expounded to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. 28. Then they drew near to the village where they were going, and He indicated that He would have gone farther. 29. But they constrained Him, saying, “Abide with us, for it is toward evening, and the day is far spent.” And He went in to stay with them. 30. Now it came to pass, as He sat at the table with them, that He took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. 31. Then their eyes were opened and they knew Him; and He vanished from their sight. 32. And they said to one another, “Did not our heart burn within us while He talked with us on the road, and while He opened the Scriptures to us?” 33. So they rose up that very hour and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven and those who were with them gathered together, 34. saying, “The Lord is risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon!” 35. And they told about the things that had happened on the road, and how He was known to them in the breaking of bread.

22.			36. Now as they said these things, Jesus Himself stood in the midst of them, and said to them, “Peace to you.” 37. But they were terrified and frightened, and supposed they had seen a spirit. 38. And He said to them, “Why are you troubled? And why do doubts arise in your hearts? 39. Behold My hands and My feet, that it is I Myself. Handle Me and see, for a spirit does not have flesh and bones as you see I have.” 40. When He had said this, He showed them His hands and His feet. 41. But while they still did not believe for joy, and marveled, He said to them, “Have you any food here?” 42. So they gave Him a piece of a broiled fish and some honeycomb. 43. And He took it and ate in their presence.	19. Then, the same day at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut where the disciples were assembled, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst, and said to them, “Peace be with you.” 20. When He had said this, He showed them His hands and His side. Then the disciples were glad when they saw the Lord. 21. So Jesus said to them again, “Peace to you! As the Father has sent Me, I also send you.” 22. And when He had said this, He breathed on them, and said to them, “Receive the Holy Spirit. 23. If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained.” 24. Now Thomas, called the Twin, one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. 25. The other disciples therefore said to him, “We have seen the Lord.” So he said to them, “Unless I see in His hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put my hand into His side, I will not believe.”

Jesus' Resurrection Appearances

As the angels told the women at the empty tomb, "Why do you look for the living among the dead? He is not here; he has risen! Remember how he told you, while he was still with you in Galilee?" (Luke 24:5–6). The four New Testament Gospels record at least eleven resurrection appearances of Jesus to hundreds of individuals over a period of several weeks. None of the Gospels have all the appearances, which requires that we reconstruct the probable sequence of these appearances.

Comment from web site on which the following chart is found (addressed to Dr. Kostenberger):

For the sake of precision, may I be so bold to make the following suggestion regarding the first on your list of appearances:

1. Empty tomb Early morning – Matt 28:1–10 Mark 16:1–8 Luke 24:1–12 John 20:1–9.

Technically the women's experience at the empty tomb is not an appearance, but confirmation that the tomb is empty (along with an angelic announcement that Jesus is risen).

Of the above references, I think it is true to say that only Matt 28:8-10 records an actual appearance of Jesus (as opposed to the emptiness of the tomb and the angelic announcement that Jesus was risen).

This appearance was to “the women” who were hurrying away from the tomb. Matt 28:1 identifies these women as Mary Magdalene and other Mary (the mother of James and Joses – Matt 27:56).

So I think your numbering is correct, but the title and some of references for your first ‘appearance’ may be slightly misleading, as the actual appearance was on the way back from the empty tomb (unless this is a doublet with John 20:10-18, with John not mentioning that another woman was present).

If I am correct, then this would also change the stats for the number of appearances in each source. (e.g., Mark would actually have no appearances per se.)

We might add the exceptional nature of Christ’s resurrection appearance to Paul as a twelfth example also.

NOTE REGARDING MARK AND ABOVE CHART:

Because the above author does not recognize the official inclusion of the ending section of Mark found in the KVJ and NKVJ versions of the Bible (based on the Textus Receptus),
as there is general controversy over whether it is part of the original text (and therefore is excluded or “bracketed off” in many popular later versions, (e.g., NASB, NIV, ESV, NET, etc.), the two appearances by Jesus mentioned in that contested section of Mark are not included in the above chart.
Technically, as also mentioned in the above comment, the appearance count for Mark should be zero.

Do the Gospel Resurrection Accounts Contradict Each Other?

How many women were at Christ's tomb on that first Easter morning – 1, 2, 3, or 5? Were there two angels or only one that announced His resurrection? Did Jesus appear to His followers at Galilee or Jerusalem?

Skeptics of Christ's resurrection oftentimes claim that the various gospel accounts of Jesus rising from the dead in the New Testament contradict each other. Even some theologians question whether the gospel episodes of the resurrection can be reconciled; for example, listen to Emil Brunner: "The sources contradict one another, and only a 'harmonizing' process which is not too much concerned about truth, could patch up a fairly connected account of the events, in which it is only too manifest that the later and less credible witnesses appear more important than the earlier, and more reliable ones. Such a dishonest way of dealing with the subject really has nothing to do with 'faith in the Word of God'; it only serves to support the disastrous prejudice that Christian faith is only possible in connection with historical dishonesty."[1]

Is this the case? Do Christians have to be dishonest when it comes to declaring the resurrection accounts found in the gospels as historically accurate?

I don't believe so.

A Look at Some of the Issues

In the first place, comments like Brunner's present a more foreboding situation than what is actually present. The gospels most certainly agree on the major facts (e.g. Christ's burial, God raising Jesus from the dead).

What we are left with are various apparent minor discrepancies in details like those listed in the following table:

	Matthew	Mark	Luke	John
Women at the tomb	2	3	5	1
Visit to the tomb	Dawn	Sun had risen	Dawn	Still dark
Messengers at tomb	Angels – 1	Men	Men	Angels – 2
Messengers location	Outside then in	Inside	Inside	Inside
Women encounter with Jesus	Held Christ	Nothing	Nothing	Told not to touch Christ
Women told	Disciples	No one	Disciples and others	Only Mary M told disciples
Appearance to the 11	1 – Galilee	1- Jerusalem	1 - Jerusalem	2 - Jerusalem

Another task is to attempt a layout of when Jesus appeared to people and where:

	Appeared to	Where	When	References
1	Mary Magdalene	Jerusalem	Sunday	Mark 6:9-11; John 20:11-18
2	Other Women	Jerusalem	Sunday	Matt 28:9-10

Some General Rules of Biblical Interpretation

Before we address the specifics of the resurrection accounts, it's good to first understand a few basics of Biblical interpretation that will help understand why some things seem to differ in the gospels. First, it's important to remember that a partial report is not a false report. Just because each gospel author doesn't report every detail of a story doesn't mean it's inaccurate. All historians edit their accounts for various purposes and the gospel writers are no different.

Second, a divergent account is not a false account. For example, Matthew speaks of one angel at Christ's tomb whereas John mentions two. A contradiction? Not at all. Simple math says if you have two, you also have one. Matthew did not say there was only one angel; if he had then we would have a true contradiction. Instead, he just records the words of the one who spoke.

Divergent accounts can seem to cast doubt on the accuracy of the reporters, but we must try and reserve judgment until all the facts are in. For example, take the following account told by Dr. Kenneth Kanzer:

"Several years ago the mother of a friend of ours was killed. We first learned of the death through a trusted mutual friend who reported that the woman had been standing on the corner of the street at a bus intersection waiting for a bus and had been hit by another bus passing by and was fatally hurt, dying a few minutes thereafter. Later, we learned from the grandson that she had been involved in a collision, was thrown from the car in which she was riding and was killed instantly. Now which would you believe?

Much later we learned that the woman had been waiting for a bus, was hit by another bus and was fatally hurt. She had been picked up by a passing car, dashed to the hospital, but in this haste, the car in which she was being transported to the hospital collided with another, she was thrown from the car and died instantly."

These two rules, as well as a number of others[2], should be kept in mind when examining the multiple resurrection accounts.

Reconciling the Resurrection Events

The below represents an attempt to succinctly lay out a reconciliation and timeline of the gospel account records of Christ's resurrection and his appearing over forty days to various individuals that followed. For a more exhaustive treatment of the details and various explanations, please see John Wenham's work The Easter Enigma.
